AMERICAN STATE PAPERS.

PUBLIC LANDS.

23D CONGRESS.] No. 1230. [1ST SESSION.

IN RELATION TO THE LOCATION OF RESERVATIONS UNDER THE CHOCTAW TREATY OF THE 27TH OF SEPTEMBER, 1830.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE APRIL 11, 1834.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, April 8, 1834.

SIR: I have the honor to communicate a report from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, with accompanying documents, containing the information called for by the resolutions of the Senate of the 3d of March, in relation to the location of reservations under the treaty with the Choctaws of September 27th, 1830.

I am, sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

LEWIS CASS.

Hon. MARTIN VAN BUREN, President of the Senate.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office Indian Affairs, April 8, 1834.

SIR: In compliance with the first resolution of the Senate of the 3d ult., I have the honor to state that William Trahern, Esq., was appointed to locate the reservations for orphans under the 19th article of the treaty with the Choctaws of 27th September, 1830, and Col. George W. Martin to locate the other reservation granted in the same treaty. I transmit, herewith, copies of the instructions to these gentlemen, and of the correspondence between them and this department, and between this department and other persons, touching the locations of said reservations, and the manner in which the duties of these agents have been performed.

I also lay before you, in conformity with the second resolution of the Senate, "copies of the registers of the names of such Choctaw Indians as claim reservations of land under the 14th and 19th articles of said treaty," with the instructions given to the agents who prepared these registers.

All these papers have been copied in full, with the exception of some to Col. William Ward, in 1831, of which such passages have been omitted as related solely to the general business of his agency, and of three letters received from Mr. Gwinn and Col. Martin.

The letter of the first is dated June 20, 1833; those of the last, November 18th and 19th. Extracts of these only are given, as the other portions implicate the conduct of persons who are not officers of the government, nor responsible to this department.

I am, sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant, ELBERT HERRING.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, January 7, 1834.

SIR: I have received your letter of December 6, and entirely approve of your general views concerning the execution of your duty in the location of the Choctaw reservations. I am aware that you must have many difficulties to encounter, but I am satisfied that you will meet them in a proper manner, and with a determination to comply with the laws and your instructions.

I have applied to the General Land Office to procure copies of the plats for you. The enclosed memorandum furnishes the answer.

As it appears to be out of the power of that officer to render you the necessary assistance, I have directed some of the topographical officers to prepare and forward to you copies of such plats as are in the General Land Office. As the others arrive they shall be copied and forwarded to you. I understand it is almost impracticable for the surveyor general to have copies prepared for you, in consequence of the pressure upon his office. Under these circumstances I must refer you to the plats of the respective land offices, till copies can be sent by this department. In the meantime, should you find it indispensably necessary, you are authorized to have such a general sketch prepared as you may find essential in the performance of your duty, if it can be effected for a small expenditure.

Very respectfully, &c., LEW. CASS.

To GEORGE W. MARTIN, Esq., Columbus, Alabama.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, January 7, 1834.

SIR: I have the honor to enclose a copy of the opinion of the Attorney General on the question submitted by you, respecting the location of Choctaw reservations.

Very respectfully, &c.,

LEW. CASS.

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OFFICE, December 28, 1833.

SIR: I have looked into the supplement to the Choctaw treaty of the 28th September, 1830, upon which, as I understand, the question proposed to me in your communication of the 26th inst. arises; and I have the honor to submit the following opinion as the result of my reflections thereon.

The articles, both of the principal treaty and of the supplement, carefully provide, as a general rule, that the several reservations granted therein shall include the existing residences and improvements of the respective grantees. In particular instances, this general rule is departed from, but usually in such a manner as to indicate, very clearly, that each reservation, unless special provision to the contrary be expressly made, is to include, so far as it can, the premises actually improved by the party; reference being first had, agreeably to the decision already made by you, to his actual place of residence. Where the reservation is only of one section, or of a part of a section, there can be no difficulty in making the location upon this principle. And in accordance with it, I think that where the reservation exceeds a section, the excess beyond the section containing the dwelling house, ought to be so taken from a contiguous section as to include the other improvements, if any, possessed by the grantee at the date of the treaty; and if those improvements are on different sections, I think the excess ought to be taken from that section within which the greatest portion of the improvements shall have fallen. If the grantee had no improvements in his possession at the date of the treaty, except such as shall have fallen within the section containing his dwelling house, then I am of opinion that he may locate the excess beyond that section, in any contiguous section not otherwise appropriated.

I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

B. F. BUTLER.

The letter of Mr. Archer, referred to in your communication, is herewith returned.

To the Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office Indian Affairs, February 3, 1834.

SIR: Juba B. Hancock has transmitted to this office papers to establish his claim to reservations for himself and two children, under the 14th article of the treaty of September 27, 1830. He states that he is a white man, married to a Choctaw woman, the mother of these children. That his son, William Mitchell, was twelve years old on the 1st day of September, 1830, and his daughter, Mary Melinda, was ten years old on the 14th February, 1830. That his name and theirs were registered by Col. Ward, in August, 1831, but the leaf on which they were registered was lost. This statement is supported by the affidavit of Giles Thompson and David Fulsom, and P. P. Pitchlynn, certifying that the claimant was, for many years prior to the treaty a citizen, and entitled to all the privileges of a citizen.

You are requested to inquire of Col. Ward whether these circumstances are truly stated, and if they are, you will locate a section for the father, and a half section for each of the children, and apprise the department of the result.

Very respectfully, &c.,

E. HERRING.

P. S. There is a third child, Caroline Delia, who is now about ten years of age, and of course entitled to a quarter section.

To Col. GEO. W. MARTIN, Columbus, Alabama.

WASHINGTON CITY, February 10, 1834.

SIR: Under the treaty of Dancing Rabbit Creek, George W. Harkins was entitled to two sections of land, the one to include his improvement, and the other to be a floating claim. A considerable time before the treaty Mr. Harkins had built and paid for a house on section 31 in township 16, range 1 east; and at that time said George W. Harkins had no other improvement in the nation, but resided with his mother. But as he did not reside on that section at the time of making the treaty, it was denied to him, and given to Vaughn Brashears, who was also entitled under the treaty to his own improvement, which was situated on the section next adjoining, on the south, to wit: section 6 in township 15, range 1 east, to which latter section the said Brashears had a rightful and proper claim.

As the treaty provides that, in all cases of doubt, the construction shall be in favor of the Indian claims, it is thought that as Harkins had no other residence or improvement of his own, that this must be the land to which, under the true meaning of the treaty, he is entitled.

It is therefore respectfully asked that a patent shall not issue to said Brashears, but that the case may be considered, and the title to said section 31 awarded to George W. Harkins.

I have the honor to be, your obedient servant,

GREENWOOD LEFLORE.

WASHINGTON CITY, February 18, 1834.

SIR: The undersigned respectfully represents, that in many instances complaints have been made of the course pursued by the present locating agent of the Choctaws, granted to them by the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek, and particularly with regard to the 14th article, the 19th article, and the supplemental treaty. He therefore prays that William Armstrong, whom he hereby recommends as a suitable person, may be appointed an agent to examine and adjust those claims, consisting of the claims of Capt. Red Dog, or Offehoma, and Capt. James Shields, these claims having been sold by the government: the claim of Capt. Shields was located by the locating agent; afterwards the location was set aside by said agent and the land sold, which it is believed was done in violation of the provisions of the treaty.

The case of Capt. Red Dog, or Offehoma, was never located, though fully embraced by the treaty. It is believed that injustice has been done in the case of David Coconona, who was entitled to one section of land under the 19th article of the treaty, to be governed by sectional lines, and half of which has been awarded to another person. The case of Consha is also a claim requiring examination, being secured to her under the 19th article; but of which she has been deprived by the act of the locating agent, by giving preference to a claimant under the 14th article of the treaty.

The claim of George W. Harkins, embraced in the supplemental treaty, is also one to which I would call the attention of the proper department, out of which has arisen a difficulty as to the construction which ought to be given to the phraseology in regard to residence and cultivation. The case of Capt. Minta is one precisely situated as that of Capt. Shield, before referred to. These claims it is sought to have re-examined and adjusted according to the true spirit and meaning of the treaty, and with particular instructions as to these cases, which have arisen under the several parts of the treaty above enumerated. I would respectfully suggest, if it be compatible with your sense of propriety, that the examining agent be clothed with power to decide upon any and all other controversies growing out of the action of the locating agent.

I have the honor to be, your obedient servant,

GREENWOOD LEFLORE.

The claims in the foregoing communication came under my personal knowledge, and the facts in relation to them are known to me. G. L.

To the Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON CITY, February 19, 1834.

SIR: I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 18th instant, inquiring what knowledge, if any, Mr. Laud or myself has of the validity of the claim of John T. Harlan for reservation of land for himself and family, as members of the Choctaw tribe of Indians; and, in reply, I have to state for the information of your department, that at the date of the treaty of 1830, John T. Harlan was not a resident of the Choctaw country, having previously been ordered out of the nation by the United States' agent, Col. William Ward, for the crime of murder; nor was he or his family ever recognized as members of the Choctaw nation. He is a white man, and his wife a Cherokee, from which nation he ran away for a crime similar to that committed in the Choctaw country.

I have therefore no hesitation in saying that his claim is altogether unjust, fraudulent, and unworthy of your consideration.

I am, respectfully, your obedient servant,

GREENWOOD LEFLORE.

To ELBERT HERRING, Esq., Indian Bureau.

WASHINGTON CITY, February 19, 1834.

SIR: I have to state in reply to your enquiries addressed to Colonel Leflore and myself, respecting the validity of John T. Harlan's claim for reservations of land for himself and family, as members of the Choctaw tribe of Indians, that I have known said Harlan since 1829; and during the year 1830 he resided within half a mile of my plantation in Yazoo county, Mississippi, which, at that time, was not within the limits of the Choctaw country. He moved into the Choctaw nation in the spring of 1831, and settled on the place that he now claims as his residence and improvement. These facts I give you from my own personal knowledge, and am,

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

CHARLES LAUD.

WASHINGTON CITY, February 22, 1834.

SIR: I have read Colonel Leflore's letter to you of the 18th instant, praying for the appointment of a competent person to re-examine the claims of Capt. Red Dog, or Offehoma, Capt. James Shields, David Coconona, Consha, George W. Harkins, and Capt. Minta, to reservations of land under the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek of 1830. The facts set forth in Col. Leflore's letter, respecting Capt. James Shields, David Coconona, Consha, and George W. Harkins, came under my own knowledge, and I know them to be true; and believe those set forth in relation to Capt. Red Dog, or Offehoma, and Capt. Minta, are also true, although they did not come so directly under my knowledge as the others.

I am, respectfully, your obedient servant,

CHARLES LAUD.

To the Honorable LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office Indian Affairs, March 1, 1834.

SIR: Colonel Greenwood Leflore represents, in a letter to the Secretary of War, (a copy of which is herewith enclosed,) that, in several cases therein specified, errors have been committed, and consequent injustice done by the locating agent in his location of the Choctaw reservations under the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek.

The agent has been instructed to report fully to the department the circumstances and proceedings in those respective cases for its decision; and, until that decision be communicated to you, I am instructed to request you to suspend all further proceedings in those cases.

Very respectfully, &c., ELBERT HERRING.

To ELIJAH HAYWARD, Esq., Com. of the General Land Office.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office Indian Affairs, March 1, 1834.

SIR: A letter (a copy of which is enclosed) has been presented by Col. Greenwood Leflore to the Secretary of War, stating that in a variety of instances therein mentioned, errors have been committed, and injustice done by you as locating agent. I am therefore instructed to require you to report fully your proceedings therein, that, if error exist, or injustice has been done in any of them, the injury may be redressed. In the meantime, let there be a suspension of all further proceedings in those cases, until the final decision of the department shall be communicated to you.

Very respectfully, &c., ELBERT HERRING.

GEORGE W. MARTIN, Esq., Columbus, Alabama.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, March 7, 1834.

SIR: Having, agreeably to your request, submitted to the Attorney General, the additional papers transmitted in your letter of January 21, I have now the honor to enclose a copy of the opinion of that officer upon the question presented to him.

Very respectfully, &c. LEW. CASS.

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OFFICE, February 26, 1834.

SIR: I have examined the maps and other papers enclosed in your communication of the 28th ultimo, with the view of ascertaining whether the location applied for by Mr. Archer could be authorized consistently with the rules adopted by the War Department, and with those suggested by myself, in the opinion to which you refer. It appears from the statement of Mr. Archer that the improvement of Vaughn Brashears was in two sections, (31 and 6,) and he desires to locate the section and half reserved for said Brashears by taking part of sections 31, 6, 5, and 8. According to the rules above referred to, this cannot be done; but the entire reservation must be taken from numbers 31 and 6, the whole of that section in which the actual residence of Brashears was situated being first taken, and the residue of the reservation being located in the other section, and in such manner as to include the actual improvement of Brashears.

The papers are herewith returned.

I am, sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant, B. F. BUTLER.

To the Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office of Indian Affairs, December 17, 1833.

SIR: In answer to your letter of the 19th ult., to the Secretary of War, relative to the mode of locating the reservations for Delila and her children, Peggy Trahern and her children, and the widows of Pushmitaha and Puck-tshe-nubbee and their children, I am instructed to say that you will locate in one body those sections intended for Delila and her children; and in one other body those for Peggy Trahern and her children; and in like manner with the other two widows. And in selecting the land for them, you will take neither the best nor the worst, but that which is of good average quality, fit for cultivation and improvement.

Very respectfully, &c., ELBERT HERRING.

To Mr. G. W. MARTIN, Columbus, Mississippi.

COLUMBUS, December 6, 1833.

SIR: The land sales are just brought to a close in this district for the present.

I have succeeded in registering and reserving such claims as have been presented and are entitled to be located, taking the register made by Major F. W. Armstrong, and the treaty, and also the citizen register, which I found in the possession of W. W. Ward, the former agent, for my guide.

If you recollect, I said to you, in a former letter, that I should, in all cases, require of the reservee applicant to make a true representation of the facts on filing his application; that on his failing so to do, and claiming lands to which he or they were not justly entitled under the treaty, he might hazard, and in all probability would lose, the land to which he was entitled; that if I found there had been any such fraudulent attempt, by making a wrong location designed to cover better land with the reserve, I should, on discovering the fraud, raise the reserve thus improperly located, and have the land sold. Under this rule I raised a reserve which had been made and designated on the map, for a section of land on the first week of the sales. The particulars of the case are these: an individual representing Capt. James Shields, one of the reservees, did, through a fraudulent design, procure a location of a section of land, which section did not include the residence, &c., of said reservee, as required by the 19th article of the treaty, but knowingly, and with fraudulent design, presented his claim as laying on a section of much better quality; saying, as I was informed and believe, that, before the mistake could be discovered and remedied, he would be able to buy the land should the fraud ever be discovered. In this, however, he was mistaken, as one of the deputy surveyors who surveyed the land, and knew on what section the house and improvement of Capt. Shields properly belonged, came forward and certified to the fact, that the location was marked on the map as a reserve, did not embrace the house and improvement of said Shields; leaving no shadow of doubt as to the fraud. In consequence of which, I felt myself bound from the position I had first taken, and the more fully to protect the interests of the government by putting a stop to the mighty scheme of fraud which I believed, in all probability, was in contemplation to the prejudice of the interest of government. Consequently, I directed Major Dowsing, the register, to erase the marks designating the reserve on the map, likewise, to offer the land for sale as other public lands, which was done; and, by this act, I feel confident I have put a stop to that mode of fraud more finally than by any other course that possibly could have been adopted. However, there was a similar fraud attempted on the lands on which the mission house Mayhew is established, which also proved abortive, (this was the most glaring attempt at fraud I ever knew,) and those lands, &c., brought the government a good price. The checking of these frauds has caused me some frowns, and perhaps threats of the designing ones, but I value them not a pin. I have undertaken this important trust, and, although at a great sacrifice, I will do my endeavors to bring it to a close in a proper manner, as far as my feeble abilities will permit. I have been, and yet am, much embarrassed in progress of this business for the want of the necessary maps. I have never been furnished, as seemed contemplated by the department, with the first map. Consequently, I have had to ride like a post-boy from Chocchuma to this place, say four times in the last two or three months, at least one thousand miles through a wilderness, having, in part, to pack my provisions, and sometimes compelled to sleep in the woods. I wrote the surveyor general on receipt of your favor of July last, and sent him an extract of the letter from the department, but he did not seem to me to understand that he was to furnish me with any maps, nor has he ever done so. I have located the claims which lay in that section of that nation which he has offered for sale, (which, by the by, is but a small part;) and there is no maps as yet furnished of the balance, or any part thereof. What am I to do? It will be an endless job for me to wait and attend the sales of lands as they may hereafter be offered for sale. Would it not be better that I should be furnished with copies of maps in all cases, as soon as they can be made out after the surveys done, by which means the locating of the claims might be brought to a more speedy close. Mr. Hayward, in his reply to the War Department, calling on the surveyors for maps for my use, said, in answer, that the locating agent under former treaties had had reference to the maps in the district land office. There would be no objection to this mode as regards any treaty made prior to the treaty at Dancing Rabbit creek, as there never has been, as I believe, one-hundredth part of the claim to locate, and that, too, at a round of some seven to nine hundred miles, to include the four offices in this State; and God only knows how far it is, or may be, to include the one in Alabama, as I am uninformed at what place the Indian lands in that State will likely be sold. There are a great many reserves in that part of the Choctaw nation; these lands have been surveyed some time since, and it would be but trifling for the surveyor general to furnish me with the maps; thus I might locate the claims there belonging to the Indians under the treaty, as well as also the surveyor general of this State. It would be a much more speedy and convenient mode of transacting this business, to be furnished with the maps, which would enable me to close the business, and bring it to a termination as shortly after the surveys are completed as practicable; otherwise, it will be utterly out of my power to continue in the office. I have a large family, and but just settled in a new country; my lands yet to improve, and put in a state for cultivation, requiring much more labor and attention—all of which require my personal and strict attention. I have thirty-five to forty in family, and a disproportion of laborers; consequently, creating a responsibility on me and my time paramount to all other considerations. It may be proper here to state, that the department may be fully advised of all things touching my official acts, as well as things touching my office, as far as practicable. There have been many spurious efforts to pass false claims through my office, hoping, thereby, to procure land to which they, from the treaty and the register, seem not to be entitled. I have ever met such pretence with promptness and decision; of course to the discomfiture of the designing; and I am sorry to say, that many of these groundless claims were presented at my office with much address, and urged on me with great earnestness, by a gentleman, (much honored by the citizens of this State,) and who ever took occasion to admonish me that, should his claims be rejected by me, they should be presented to a higher tribunal; leaving me to infer he would bring all such before Congress, or, perhaps, first the War Department: should they fail at the department, thence to Congress, &c. Should this effort at fraud be persevered in, it is possible it may be effectual at Washington, procuring there what could not be allowed here. Should it be so, I have one consolation—my skirts are clear.

I have the honor to be, &c.,

G. W. MARTIN.

Hon. LEWIS CASS.

P. S.—Should you wish to confer with any one who has been present during the sales at Chocchuma, I cite you to Judge Black, Senator from this State, Mr. John Bell and Mr. Dickinson, from Tennessee.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, November 1, 1833.

SIR: I have received your letter of the 10th ultimo, and, in answer, have to inform you that it has already been decided that, in locating the reservations granted by the Choctaw treaty, when a section is granted, an entire surveyed section must be taken. When a half section is granted, the surveyed half of an entire section must be taken, and so with a quarter section. It is not conceived that any well-founded doubt can exist upon this subject, and the locating agent has been directed to execute his duties accordingly.

A copy of Mr. Felder's letter has been transmitted to Colonel Martin, to whom I refer you for further information respecting it.

Very respectfully, &c., LEWIS CASS.

To THOMAS D. WOOLDRIDGE, Lowndes County, Mississippi.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office Indian Affairs, November 1, 1833.

SIR: Your letter of the 29th September last, addressed to the Secretary of War, has been referred to this office, and, in reply, I have to state that your name is among the number returned by the agent as having signified their intention to become citizens of the United States within the period stipulated in the treaty.

The whole duty of locating the reservations under the Choctaw treaty has been confided to G. W. Martin, Esq., and copies of the registers have been forwarded to him. You can therefore obtain all the information you desire on application to him.

The name of Anthony Pariss appears on the register, and it is supposed he is the person to whom you allude.

Very respectfully, &c., ELBERT HERRING.

To Mr. JACOB DANIEL, Daniel's Prairie, Alabama.

Extract of a letter from Samuel Gwin to the Secretary of War, dated at CHOCCHUMA LAND OFFICE, November 8, 1833.

"The agent for locating Indian claims is now at Columbus attending to his duties, before the land sales come on at that place. He has completed all those in this district, but will not, as he informed me, make a report for some time, as he believed he had made reservations that were not contemplated by the treaty; and that he might have further time to examine and do justice to the claimants, as well as to the United States, he reserved the land from sale, but will at a future period examine the claims more minutely, and make a final decision. This course was deemed best, as it gave every opportunity to the Indian to make up his case.

"I would suggest to you the propriety of not acting on any claims until you have first heard from Col. Martin, the locating agent; and I would also suggest the propriety of ordering Col. Martin to Washington during the next session, as there is no doubt but what an attempt will be made to have allowances made to Indians for pretended claims under the treaty, that have no existence in fact. I only suggest the above for the information of the department and the President; and would refer you to the honorable Messrs. Bell and Dickinson, of Tennessee, now here."

COLUMBUS, November 8, 1833.

SIR: I arrived here this morning at 8 o'clock, having left Chocchuma on Tuesday night, 5th instant, having closed the business in that district at present; having, as I believe, located all claims as I believe justly entitled under the treaty, (when found on the register furnished me as my guide, &c.,) except, perhaps, some floating claims, which possibly may be held up by owner. I am happy to have it in my power to say that I believe I shall have the same success here from the great number of claims already located in this district.

I left Chocchuma on Tuesday, in the second week of the sale of the public lands. As I am extremely pressed with business at this moment, I shall write to the department again in a short time more fully, and after progressing further with matters here. I am happy to say to you I am in possession of the registers sent me from Washington. I received them on the 18th of October by an express from this place. Your esteemed favor of the 27th of September came to hand on the 18th of October, with regard to all of which I will write you more fully in a few days.

I have, &c., GEO. W. MARTIN.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Washington.

P. S. The registers I received from Washington are deficient as regards the citizens or five years' claims, as I find no such claims alluded to in any part of said registers. These claims are under the 14th article of the treaty. If there is any such register, I should like to know it. There are many complaints of the defects of the one furnished by Col. Ward.

Respectfully, G. W. M.

Extract of a letter from George W. Martin to Secretary of War, dated

COLUMBUS, November 19, 1833.

"I am as yet uninstructed in what manner the department will direct that clause of the treaty in which there is 960 acres of land allowed to Delila and her five children, and also to Peggy Trahern and her children, and to the widow of Pucktshe-nubbee, &c. I say I am uninstructed how these claims shall be located; that is, shall they be located on lands selected by me or by themselves? shall they be located in quarter sections, or in one entire tract? I am desirous to hear from the department, and know in what manner I am to view these claims."

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office of Indian Affairs, October 2, 1833.

SIR: In reply to your letter of the 14th ult., I would observe that copies of all the documents in this office which can facilitate Mr. Martin in locating the Choctaw reservations, had been forwarded to him previously to the receipt of your letter. Suitable instructions, growing out of the circumstances in which he is placed, have also been communicated to him.

Very respectfully, &c., ELBERT HERRING.

To Capt. W. ARMSTRONG, Choctaw Agency, Mississippi.

N. E. LAND DISTRICT, Mississippi, October 3, 1833.

SIR: I presume that Col. George W. Martin has apprised you of the course which he has taken in relation to the location of Indian reserves, viz: the appointing of an acting agent at each land office for the purpose of registering Indian reserves; and, inasmuch as he has conferred the appointment on me for this district, I feel it my duty to consult you upon such subjects as are presented to me, about which I may be difficultied. The case which I wish to present to you is the following:

Col. David Folsom (a half-breed Choctaw), has purchased an Indian reserve of three-quarters of a section; he has also purchased another reserve of one-quarter section, making a whole section. Both of those Indians lived on the same section on which was a missionary establishment, where the Rev. Mr. Byington resided, and at present resides. The buildings and improvements are pretty good. The colonel has applied to me to register his two reserves, covering that establishment. I have not thought proper to comply with his wishes, and he says he will contend.

You will please give me specific instructions in reference to this subject as soon as practicable. It is also in contemplation by a certain gentleman, I am informed, to sweep Mayhew in the same, or nearly in the same manner.

I entertain but little doubt of being able to register all the reserves within this district before the sales of the land.

You are aware of the importance of an early reponse to this, without a suggestion on my part.

Your obedient servant,

WM. DOWSING, Register.

Hon. ELIJAH HAYWARD, Commissioner General Land Office, Washington City.

MISSISSIPPI, Lowndes County, October 10, 1833.

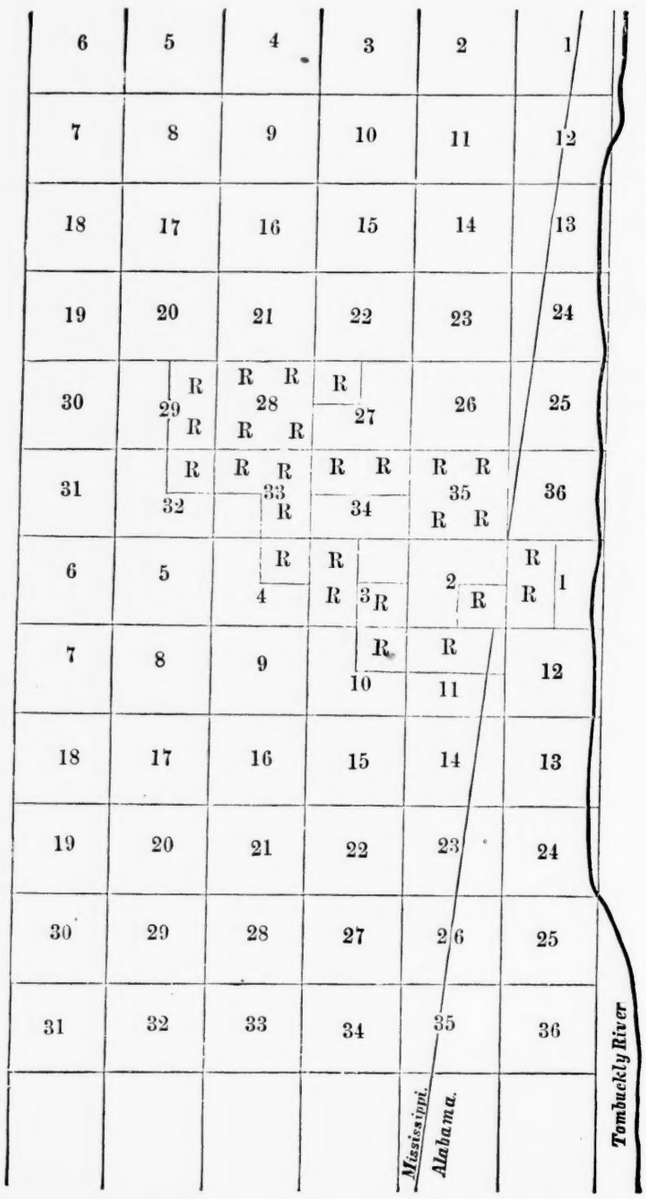
DEAR SIR: I am requested to write you as agent for John McGilry and Taner McGilbry, who have taken citizenship as Choctaws under the provisions of the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek, agreeable to the fourteenth article of said treaty. Application was made through me to Mr. Dowsing, who is acting as agent for locating reservations of said treaty: the location was wished by the Indians to adjoin the parent by a connection of one-half mile, and connect one on the other in that way throughout. This was objected by the acting agent as contrary to his instructions from the principal agent, Col. Martin.

I have consulted several men, learned in law, who give it as their opinion that they were entitled to run their land in any way so as to adjoin the location of the parent. Is there any doubt as regards this location? If there is, is it not a well-founded doubt on the part of the Choctaws? I will refer you to that clause of the treaty where it is expressed, "that where any well-founded doubt arises as to the construction of the treaty, the most favorable shall be given to the Choctaw:" this does certainly give the right claimed by the Choctaws. If you are not the proper officer of the government that should be applied to on this subject for information, will you be so good as to lay this statement before them for instructions, and forward them to me as soon as possible.



There are a few settlers that have settled on this land, who are endeavoring to prejudice the government against the Indians and their rights. It is understood by the Indians that one of them, Gabriel Felder, has written a remonstrance to your department against their locating their lands agreeable to the most favorable construction of said treaty, adding that it was only advantageous to a speculator. If this is the case, I can assure you it is without foundation, and should take it as a singular favor to be furnished with a copy of that letter. I have no fears that such would go to the prejudice of the Indians, as I have every confidence that ample justice will be dealt out to those unfortunate people; and that, as regards the location, no speculator will be benefited or injured. In that event be so good as to advise me on this subject as early as possible. There appears to be one more difficulty in this location: the State line betwen Alabama and Mississippi running through the improvements, a part is wanted on each side, which we wish to be advised on. I hope that Mr. Felder will not be countenanced in his nullification notions, who not only wishes to nullify the laws and treaty, but the rights of those unfortunate Indians. The Indians urge me to press on you for a construction of the treaty, and to advise them, through me, as soon as possible, as they wish to know before the lands are sold.

I am yours, &c.,

THOMAS D. WOOLDRIDGE.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

P. S. Enclosed you have a map of the land wanted: they are all entitled to six sections and a half of land, including Gordon McGilbry's claim. Those marked R is the land claimed by the McGilbry's: those marked R embrace all the improvements owned by the whole of them. Please direct your letter to Pickensville, Alabama.

Section 28, and northwest ¼ of 27, and northeast ¼ of 23, is wanted for Turner McGilbry, and two children under ten years of age. Section 35 and west half of section 34, for Gordon, and two children under ten years of age.

Fractional ½ section 1 in Alabama, southwest ¼ of section 2, north half 11, northeast ¼ of 10, southeast ¼ of 3, and west ½ of 3, northeast ¼ of 4, east half of 33, and northwest ¼ of 33, northeast ¼ of 32, and southeast ¼ of 29, for John McGilbry, and four children over ten years of age, and two under.

You will see by the map that it is nearly in a body. It would be an extremely hard case to confine them to the river and river swamps. We think they are entitled to the location as laid down by the treaty, and Col. Trahern, who was locating a few days since orphan claims, gave it as his opinion that they were entitled to those lands, and respected their claims.

Yours, respectfully, THOMAS D. WOOLDRIDGE.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, October 11, 1833.

SIR: I have received your letter of the 15th and 22d ultimo, together with a printed notice enclosed in the former.

I perceive the embarrassments under which you labor, and am satisfied you will proceed in the execution of your duty in the best manner the means of information in your power will permit. You doubtless, ere this, have received a copy of the register prepared by Major Armstrong. This will furnish you with an authentic list of all the claims to which any of the Choctaws are entitled, and you will be guided by it and by the treaty in making the locations. I perceive you have selected certain persons to aid you in the receipt of applications. The full effect you mean to give to these applications, I do not understand. I presume, however, it is merely to guide you in reserving from sale the proper tracts. You will, under no circumstances, allow a reservation to a person whose right is not recognized in the register of claims prepared by Major Armstrong, or by name in the treaty. If, however, you should find that this mode of receiving claims would aid you in the execution, you are at liberty to pursue it, taking care that a very small compensation is promised to the persons employed, as their labor must be comparatively trifling.

There are three modes of location pointed out by the treaty: one is specific, depending on the situation of the improvement annexed to it, and will require no direction in fixing it. Another is at the option of the reservee—and here of course you must be guided by his own choice. And a third is general, and confided entirely to you.

With respect to the latter, you will observe that the President desires to fulfill the stipulations of the treaty in a spirit of justice and good faith to the Indians. He neither wishes all the valuable tracts to be selected for the Indians which give value to the country, nor such ones assigned to them as are unfit for cultivation. Wherever you have a discretion in the location, let the tracts selected be of the average quality of the country, and such as are fit for all farming purposes, and upon which the Indians can obtain a proper support. Let no white man interfere with you in these locations. Receive no representations from any one. Any conveyances made by the Indians are as yet wholly void, and the President does not recognize the right of a single person claiming lands in the Choctaw country under a deed or conveyance from any Indian.

The representation of the Indians themselves, you are at liberty to receive, and it is proper they should be received; but act for yourself, after you have procured all necessary information.

You will consider that clause in your instructions of the 26th of June, which requires you to establish permanent marks upon each reservation, as applicable only to the plans of surveys, and not to the tracts of land themselves.

By entering the name of each reservee upon his location, the object of that provision will be attained.

It is important that the Indian reservations should be brought as much together as possible, and you will not lose sight of this object. If too much scattered, the Indians will be exposed to great inconveniences. Whereas, by living in the same neighborhoods, they can be better protected in their rights and secured from injuries. Let, therefore, no individual reservations, in the locations of which you can exercise a discretion, be made apart from others.

By the treaty, persons entitled to reservations in consequence of improvements are to locate them upon the legal subdivisions which contain their dwelling-houses. If two or more persons occupy dwelling-houses upon the same tract, let them make an amicable arrangement for preference, if they are willing to do so. If this cannot be done, let the tract be assigned to the oldest settler, where the fact can be determined. Where it cannot, you must draw lots for choice.

I have read your printed notice, and do not see any thing objectionable in the course you have marked out. Your views will of course be limited by these instructions.

On inquiry, I find you had been advised by a letter of July 1, 1833, that it was not in the power of the General Land Office to furnish you with plats in time for the locations, and that you had been referred to the surveyor general to procure them. I trust that you have been supplied ere this with all the requisite information on the subject.

I am, &c., LEWIS CASS.

To Col. George W. Martin, Chocchuma, Mississippi.

Columbus, October 12, 1833.

Sir: According to instructions received from the Office of Indian Affairs, I have completed the locations of the orphan children of the Choctaw nation in the northwestern and northeastern land districts; the time being too short to accomplish the whole of the orphan claims before the ensuing sales at the different land offices. Therefore, in the southeastern district, I have not made any selections, but will do so as soon as practicable.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

WILLIAM TRAHERN, Agent Choctaw Orphan Children.

Department of War, October 22, 1833.

Sir: Your letter of the 3d instant to the Commissioner of the General Land Office has been referred to this department.

The Choctaw treaty provides that the reservations granted to the Indians on account of improvements should be so located as to include the dwelling-houses of the grantees. If, therefore, the dwelling-houses of the persons to whom you refer are situated upon such legal subdivisions as embrace any portion of the missionary improvements, there is no authority in the treaty to prevent them from holding the same. No exceptions are made in favor of any one. But you have nothing to do with assignees. You will recognize no person in the execution of this business except it is the grantee himself, or some other Indian acting bona fide for him. The principles of the location are distinctly stated in the instructions to Col. Martin.

Very respectfully, &c., LEWIS CASS.

To William Dowsing, Esq., Register, &c., N. E. Land District, Columbus, Mississippi.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, September 3, 1833.

SIR: I have received your letter of the 9th ult., suggesting for consideration and decision several questions connected with the execution of your duty in locating the reservations granted by the Choctaw treaty. I have submitted the matter to the President, and his views I now communicate to you.

1st. Where there is more than one occupant upon an improvement within the same legal subdivision, the rule of preference suggested by you seems to be a just one. Let the person whose improvement is the oldest, if that fact can be ascertained, receive the tract, and let the reservations of the others be located as near as may be upon such of the adjacent land as may be fit for cultivation. But if the fact of the priority of settlement cannot be satisfactorily ascertained, then let lots be drawn for the tract containing the improvement, and let the location of the others be fixed as already directed.

2d. In locating the reservations of children which are to adjoin the tracts of their parents, it is not necessary that the reservations of a parent and child should adjoin each other along the whole extent of one of their lines. It is sufficient that they actually adjoin, whether upon the corners or the sides.

3d. Where a dwelling-house, with a portion of the improvement, is in one legal subdivision, and the residue of the improvement in another, the tract containing the dwelling-house must be located for the claimant. This case is expressly provided for in the treaty, and it is impossible for the President to give any other directions.

4th. Whether the tract upon which the dwelling-house is situated be valuable or not, there is no power to assign to the occupant any other land. The treaty itself has laid down the rule, and there can be no departure from it.

It is to be regretted that Col. Leflore, or any other Choctaw, has taken up impressions that it is competent for the Executive so essentially to vary the stipulations of the treaty as would be necessary to make the changes in the third and fourth questions you have proposed. The language of the treaty is plain and explicit, and nothing is left for the Executive but to carry it into effect. While the President is determined faithfully to extend to the Indians all the advantages it promises them, he is determined also to adhere to the arrangement which both parties, with a full knowledge of the subject, have made.

5th. All streams which, by the return of the surveyors, make fractional sections and subdivisions, will be considered as making fractions in all cases of Indian locations. Where the stream is not of such size as to make fractions for the purpose of sale, it will not make them in the case of Indian location.

6th. You inquire what is to be done in those cases where the reservees have left the country? I answer, let the locations be made in all cases agreeably to the terms of the treaty, and to the return made by Major Armstrong, and now in your possession, of the persons entitled to tracts of land.

Those persons who decline accepting the land, and claim the other benefits secured by the treaty, will have the right of so doing when application is made to them. Some evidence of their relinquishment is necessary, and when the location is made, the proper agent will be directed to ascertain the determination of such, and to provide for them the land or its equivalent.

7th. The business of locating the reserves for the orphans has been committed to Mr. Trahern, and it is therefore unnecessary to give you any instructions respecting it.

By inserting upon each subdivision in the several township maps the name of the person to whom it is assigned, and by returning duplicate lists, one to the surveyor general, and one to this department, showing the names of each person, and by describing the tract by its proper number in its township, range and section, I think the several reservations will be sufficiently identified.

8th. When a reservation is to include three-quarter sections, it is the opinion of the President that these three quarters must lie in the same section.

I see no objection to the suggestion you make respecting the mode of locating claims not fixed by the treaty, where the persons entitled have the right of selection, and where more than one apply for the same tract. Let the claim be determined by lot. I observe, however, that there are very few of these cases. In general, where the location is not fixed, it does not depend upon the choice of the claimant, but upon your discretion.

I am aware the subject committed to you is difficult and important, but I rely upon your zeal and exertions to accomplish in a manner best calculated to promote the welfare of the Indians, and the proper interest of the government. Make the locations where you think right. Do not suffer yourself to be influenced by the applications or importunities of white persons. The government recognize no sale which has been made, nor will they until the locations are completed, and a system adopted and made public for protecting the Indians and their conveyances, and of insuring to them a just consideration for their property. Arrange your business, therefore, with the Indians alone.

I am apprehensive that there will not be time for you to complete this before the arrival of the time fixed for the public surveys. In that event, you will please to give notice to the proper registers and receivers, and they will be instructed to postpone the sale to such a period as you may consider necessary. It is to be hoped, however, the districts can be designated, the sales of which may go on without interfering with the Indian locations.

Very respectfully, &c., LEWIS CASS.

CHOCTAW AGENCY, September 11, 1833.

SIR: I am at this place, in discharge of the duties as agent for locating the reservations made at the treaty at Dancing Rabbit creek; and have made application for copies of the registers of said reserves, (as per instructions of the War Department,) preparatory to locating the same.

But I am much disappointed in not being able to procure such copies and information as seems to have been anticipated by the department. Col. Ward says there are no entire and perfect copies of the registers of reservations retained here, and advised me to apply to the department, &c.

I shall procure such papers here as may enable me to proceed in the locating, but I am certain the work cannot be done in a complete and perfect manner, unless I am furnished with a more full register, as the one here is incomplete.

I wrote the department, requiring further instructions, on the 9th of August; I am also desirous to hear from the department, and the several interrogatories therein mentioned.

I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

GEORGE W. MARTIN.

The Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War, Washington City.

N. B. The register here has been torn, and is extremely imperfect, as I am informed and believe.

G. W. M.

CHOCTAW AGENCY, September 11th, 1833.

SIR: I have just returned from the lower district, and find here Mr. Martin, the agent selected to locate the land claims under the late treaty with the Choctaws. Mr. Martin has shown me his instructions, in which he is directed to apply to me and Col. Ward for a copy of the register of those entitled to land under the cultivation section. The register in the possession of Col. Ward is in part destroyed, I acted as an agent in taking the census and examining the fields in Mushulatubbee's district, which was returned to the War Office. Before Mr. Martin can act, he will have to be furnished with a copy of those entitled to land, as will appear by the books returned by my brother F. W. Armstrong, and also a list of those who have relinquished their land to the government, on which payment, in part, was made west Mississippi last winter. The books will show the locality of the land, and enable the agent to discharge his duty.

The lands are advertised for sale, and, knowing that not a moment is to be lost, I have taken the liberty of addressing you on the subject.

Respectfully, your obedient servant,

WM. ARMSTRONG, Sup't Choctaw Removal.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

CHOCTAW AGENCY, September 14th, 1833.

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of yours of the 30th August last, requesting me to act in valuing the improvements and other property belonging to the board of American missions within the Choctaw purchase. I will endeavor to perform this duty as early as practicable, and report as directed. The several missionary stations are located in the three districts of the nation, at some distance apart. I shall, however, notify Mr. Kingsbury, who, I understand, is the agent for the board, and proceed immediately.

I took the liberty of writing to the Secretary of War, by last mail, in reference to what would be proper to furnish Mr. Martin with, (the agent) for locating the land under the treaty. This I done because, in Mr. Martin's instructions, he had been directed to call on me with Col. Ward for a register, &c. I was one of the agents who took the census and surveyed the fields under the cultivated section in the Choctaw nation, which was returned by my brother F. W. Armstrong to the War Department. A copy of those who were entitled to land by cultivation will have to be furnished Mr. Martin, which copy will show the locality and quantity of land; also, a copy of those who relinquished their lands to the United States; as also a copy of those who registered to remain five years, and become citizens. The register of those entitled to land, left by F. W. Armstrong with Col. Ward, was left exposed, and, indeed, a leaf or two lost. Mr. Martin took it with him to Chocchuma, and I presume will act, as far as he can, until he receives other instructions.

Seeing the lands advertised for sale, and the time so short for Mr. Martin to make return in, must be my apology for addressing you at all on the subject. The citizens of this State are deeply interested in the proper location of these claims. I hope, however, I have been anticipated, and that the copies, as above, have been, before this, sent to Mr. Martin.

Respectfully, your obedient servant,

WM. ARMSTRONG, Sup't Choctaw Removal.

To ELBERT HERRING, Esq., Commissioner, &c., Washington.

CHOCCHUMA, MI., Sept. 15th, 1830.

SIR: I received, on the 8th instant, and not till that time, a communication from D. Kurtz, Esq., acting commissioner, &c., dated the 8th of August last, advising me that "the President of the United States has directed that the lands ceded to the United States by the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek shall be offered at public sale on the 3d Monday in October next; that it is necessary the location of the reservations provided for in that treaty should be compiled and entered in the proper land office prior to that date;" and he adds, "you are therefore directed to proceed without delay to execute this duty." Immediately on the receipt of this communication, I proceeded to the agency, a distance of 120 miles from my residence, to obtain from Colonel Ward or Wm. Armstrong, Esq., copies of the register of the different "claims of reservees in the three districts," as directed in your instructions of the 26th June last. The result of my application enabled me only to procure a partial and very defective register, of which you have been advised by my communication of the 11th instant.

You promised, in your instruction of the 26th June last, to forward to the care of General Coffee copies of the township maps of survey, which are deemed necessary to the better discharge of my duty. I have again to repeat that I am not yet furnished, notwithstanding the most urgent request which I have made by letter both to the register and surveyor general. I however still hope a short time will, from some quarter, put me in possession of them. The want of these maps, the defect in the register just referred to, although great barriers to the quick and correct discharge of the duties assigned me, still I have not deemed them of sufficient magnitude to delay my entering immediately on the locations of the claims referred to in the treaty and your instructions. I therefore, on the 14th instant, deemed it proper to open my office for the reception of applications to locate reservations, and have proceeded accordingly. The time is so limited between this and the public sale, that it will be impossible for me to go around and locate, on the ground, all the reservations provided for under the treaty, as seem to be contemplated by your instructions of the 26th June last.

Upon reference to your instructions, the President's proclamation offering the lands for sale, and the treaty, it is clearly the object of all that the officer charged with the settlement and location of the different reservations, improvement claims, and five years' stay claims allowed under the treaty, shall so manage as at least to exclude from sale all such claims justly entitled under the treaty; otherwise great injustice would result to the honest claimant, and much inconvenience possibly to the government, as, in such a contingency, the result would be petitions to Congress for redress, which could not be denied upon an honest claim, which might require other provisions to be hereafter made less advantageous to the government. With this view of the subject, and in the absence of further instructions from your department, I find myself much embarrassed as to the proper course for me to pursue. The time of the public sale is so near at hand, that it will be impossible for me to go on the ground, and make the locations of all the claims allowed under the treaty previous to the day of sale, and embraced under your instructions. I must then either proceed to locate on the ground as many of the claims as I can previous to the public sale, and register them as instructed, leaving the balance unattended to, and liable to be offered at public sale, or adopt such other course as may seem best calculated to effect what I conceive to be the spirit and object of your instructions; thereby excluding from sale all reservations allowed under the treaty, and so manage the business that I can, consistently with the rights of the Indians and the obligations of the government hereafter, proceed to locate on the ground all such claims. Some judicious course like this will enable the government to exclude from the sale just at hand the lands of all just claimants under the treaty, and will enable me hereafter, when locating on the ground, to correct and cause to be entered on the township maps, as contemplated by your instructions and the President's proclamation, the reservations of all just claimants, and, at the same time, rejecting all such claimants as may have claimed lands not intended to be embraced and granted to them by the treaty.

I have condensed the instructions which I have received from the War Department and the General Land Office, in the form of a circular, for the benefit of those interested, a copy of which I herewith enclose.

I have the honor to be, &c., GEO. W. MARTIN, Agent.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

To those who claim reservations under the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek:

By a communication from the War Department, under date of July 23d, which was not received until the 5th of August last, I learned that I was appointed to make the selections and locations of the reservations of lands granted to the Choctaws under and by virtue of the provisions of the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek, made and entered into on the 27th September, 1830, between the United States of America and the Choctaw nation of Indians. It was contemplated by the department, before I proceeded to the discharge of the duties required of me, that I should be furnished with the plats of all the townships of land within that district of country ceded by the treaty aforesaid, which have been surveyed, and also with copies of the register of all persons entitled to land under the same. I have not yet been furnished with any of the plats of survey, and with but imperfect copies of the registers. By a communication from the War Department, dated August the 8th, which I received on the 8th instant, I am informed that the President of the United States has directed the lands ceded by the treaty aforesaid to be offered at public sale, to commence on the 3d Monday in October next; and that it is necessary for the reservations provided for under the treaty to be located prior to the day of sale; and I am directed to proceed without delay to execute the duty required of me. My instructions seem to require of me to go in person on the grounds and examine the improvement and lines of survey, corner posts, &c., of each local reservation claimed under the treaty: this I am unable to do before the day of sale. For the information of those interested, I have prescribed the following rules and regulations to be observed in presenting claims under the treaty, and in making locations, which are as nearly in conformity with my instructions as the circumstances of the case will permit.

I will open an office in each land district within that tract of country ceded by the treaty aforesaid, for the purpose of receiving applications, and registering the names of applicants for reservations as soon as practicable, and keep the same open until the day set apart for the commencement of the sales in each district. In the northwestern district, the office will be opened at Elliott; in the northern district at Columbus; in the Augusta district at Augusta; and in the Mount Salus district at Clinton.

The applicants must proceed to the place designated in their respective districts prior to the day of sale, and adduce to the agent, or such person as may be appointed to represent him, satisfactory proof that he or she is entitled to a reservation of land under the treaty, designating the numbers of the reservation so claimed. The name of the reservee will then be registered, the number of the section, half section, quarter section, or other quantity to which he may be entitled marked on the plat of survey in the proper land office, and the land reserved from sale.

The reservations granted to heads of families under the 14th article of the treaty, to those who desire to remain five years and become citizens, will be bounded by sectional, half sectional, or quarter sectional lines of survey, and so located as to include the improvement of the head of the family at the time of the making of the treaty, or a portion of it. The half sections and quarter sections allowed for their children must adjoin the location of the parent.

The reservations granted under the 3d and 4th clauses of the 19th article of the treaty will also be bounded by sectional and quarter sectional lines of survey, and so located as to include that part of the improvement which contained the dwelling house of the head of the family at the time of the making of the treaty. When the dwelling house of two or more persons entitled to reservations under this article shall be included within the same section, half section, or quarter section, they will be so located as to take such legal subdivisions of adjacent sections as will give to each reservee his claim in as square a form as practicable: thus, if different improvements are so situated upon the same section or subdivision of a section as to allow the parties, by taking legal subdivisions, to retain that part of their respective improvements containing their dwelling houses, they will have to take such legal subdivisions, together with such adjacent lands as may be necessary to give the required shape and contents to their claims. If, however, two or more reservees have settled upon and improved the smallest legal subdivision of a section, and thus rendered it impracticable to make a division of the improvements by the selection of legal subdivisions, they will have to make an arrangement among themselves as to the manner in which their reservations are to be located. If they cannot agree among themselves, they will be permitted to cast lots for the same, and those who lose their improvements take the quantity to which they are entitled out of the adjacent lands. Where a reservation based upon an actual improvement falls on a fraction, and that fraction is short of the number of acres to which the reservee is entitled, he will be allowed to make up the complement from the adjoining fraction, provided that the subdivision which may be located to complete the quantity be so designated as to give the entire reserved form. If the contingency should happen, contemplated in the latter part of the fourth clause of the 19th article, that the number of reservees should exceed the number provided for, the chief of the proper district will be called on to decide who shall be excluded. Captains entitled to less than a section, who claim an additional half section under the 5th clause of the 19th article, must locate the same on lands adjoining their improvements and dwelling house.

Those claiming local reservations granted to them by name in the treaty, or the supplement thereto, in designating the boundaries of their claims, will have to be governed by the rules prescribed in the particular clause under which they claim. Those persons claiming floating reservations granted to them by name in the treaty or supplement, will be permitted to locate the same on any lands which were unoccupied and unimproved at the time of the making of the treaty, unless confined by the treaty to a particular district. In making the locations, they will be confined to sectional, half sectional, or quarter sectional lines of survey, and will not be permitted to cross sectional, half sectional, or quarter sectional lines. If they locate them on fractional sections, they will be compelled to take such fraction, if less than the complement, in full satisfaction of the whole quantity claimed under such floating reserve. In no case whatever can a floating claim be divided. Where application is made at the same time to locate two or more floating claims of equal size on the same tract of land, the same course for the adjustment of the matter as is prescribed in case of conflicting claims under the 3d and 4th clauses of the 19th article, will be pursued as near as practicable; and all conflictions will be settled in the same manner. Where application is made at the same time to locate two or more floating claims of different sizes, the largest will have preference: thus, a section will have precedence over a half section, and a half section be preferred to a quarter section, &c.

In all cases, the claim will be confined within the section lines of the section run and marked by the surveyor of the United States, and will not be permitted to go into an adjoining section or fraction, unless the quantity of land, or the terms of the treaty in which the grant is made, requires or authorizes it to be done.

I intend to examine on the ground, after the sales, the several local reservations, if it should be deemed necessary to a final adjustment and settlement of claims, before I return a register thereof to the War Department; or adopt such other course as I may be instructed to pursue in relation thereto.

It is important that every claimant should, in person or by his agent, attend promptly to his interest and make his application, particularly describing the land claimed, within the time prescribed, in order to exclude his land from sale. I have thus given explicitly my views, and the substance of the instructions to me, which I hope will be satisfactory to all interested. If any additional information is desired in relation to any clause of the treaty which I have inadvertently omitted, I will take a great pleasure in giving it on application. It is the intention of the President, as well as the War Department and the undersigned, in making the locations of the several reservations granted under the treaty, to conform to the letter and spirit of that instrument in every particular, and to construe the same, wherever well-founded doubt shall arise, and any discretionary power is to be exercised, favorably towards the Choctaws.

NASHVILLE, September 20, 1833.

DEAR SIR: I have just seen a letter from William Armstrong: he says "the people of Mississippi are all in uproar on account of the sales of land in October; arising from the circumstance that the cultivation claims secured under the treaty, are not reserved from sale." Major Martin, whom you sent to locate the orphan claims, has not been able to do anything, because the report made by F. W. Armstrong, of the cultivation claims, under the treaty, has not been sent to him. One was left with the agent, Colonel Ward, but is so torn and mutilated as to be of no service; and, until he is advised where those claims are, the orphan reservations cannot be made. To quiet "this uproar," you had better, from the report of F. W. Armstrong, have all those cultivation claims marked down upon the plat of survey by the commissioner, Mr. Hayward, and sent speedily to Major Martin. The plat, too, should be forwarded to the register in Mississippi, and be instructed not to sell any of these cultivation Indian claims.

I doubt much if there will be time for this; and if not, rather than the confusion spoken of should take place, would it not be well to postpone the sales?

I write in haste, and to keep you all out of scrapes and difficulties. Indeed, so prevailing is the idea with the people that the price of the public lands will be reduced at the next Congress, that dissatisfaction is expressed about the sales at this time.

Yours, J. H. EATON.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War, Washington City.

DUMFRIES, September 20, 1833.

SIR: Your attentive acknowledgment of my letter, enclosing Mushulatubbee's conveyance to D. W. Wright, I duly received, but have deferred replying until now. In order to a fair and equitable adjustment of the numerous contracts for floating claims and reserves, I will submit a few facts analagous of the whole; and from which I hope the War Department will be able, in part, to reach the cunning land speculator in his strongest hold.

In a majority of cases, a small advance was made by the citizen to the Indian for his possession, say from one-fourth to one-tenth the amount agreed on as the price, the balance to be paid when the President ratified the sale. Promissory notes were given to the Indians, to be paid when the title became perfect. A bona fide deed and warranty, with an acknowledgment of the receipt of the whole purchase money, is given by the Indian who emigrates forthwith to Arkansas. The purchaser, as soon as he can, sells the land to an emigrant settler, and he, perhaps, to some one else. Indeed, it may go through half a dozen transfers before the ratification; and, consequently, before the money is due to the Indian, the first purchaser, by a few successful operations, realizes a fortune, leaving the Indian to seek him where he can find him, and the last purchaser in danger of losing his land and improvements, honestly obtained and paid for.

Mushulatubbee's two sons (full blooded Indians), James and Hiram King, were allowed a section each at the treaty (at their father's old place), on the great military road leading to Lake Pontchartrain, a most valuable location. Messrs. Wright, Hatch, and Hand, of Columbus, had formed a sort of combination or connexion to speculate in claims. Old Mushulatubbee was with them a great bobba shela (a friend), and, together with the two floating sections, they got Mushulatubbee's sons' two sections before mentioned, for which they gave three young negroes. Pending this transaction, Messrs. Grabel, Grant, and Lincecum, of Columbus, informed me that squire Maglue, or Maclue, who knew that the said negroes were free, had colleagued with a lawyer Tucker, of Columbus, to extort money out of Colonel Townshend, who brought the negroes from Tennessee or Kentucky, and sold them to the said company, Wright, Hatch, and Hand. Of the six negroes sold Mushulatubbee, five of them were free, the sixth purchased from Grabel Lincecum. The said free negroes were the offspring of a free woman that accompanied a family from near Hagerstown, Maryland, to Kentucky, many years ago.

But to return to Tucker and Maclue: they went to Townshend, and threatened to make the discovery unless he would give them five hundred dollars. He agreed to do it, and gave his note accordingly; but when it became due he refused to pay it, on the ground of bribery and extortion. They sued him in the court at Columbus; the trial came on before Judge Nichols, and, perhaps, few cases have occurred where the enormity of crime was received with less concern.

It was said that Wright & Co. took back those negroes, and put others in their places; but not believed—James King having been hurried off with them to Arkansas long before the emigration commenced. Mr. Lincecum, also Peter Pitchlynn, told me it was only a sham; that the negroes (excepting one of them, drowned in the river Potean,) were eighteen miles from Fort Smith. Wright, a few days after the treaty, took a deed for Robert Nail's claim for a half section. Robert was then about eighteen years old. It was to be paid for as soon as the sale was ratified by the President.

Robert and his mother had great confidence in Wright, and of course would sign any paper he required of him. Supposing, therefore, as soon as the emigration commenced, that he could get his money, he applied for it, and was told he would not pay him, but would place the money in the hands of Major Pitchlynn. He continued to baffle Robert with this as long as I remained in the nation. Wright & Co. had taken, I understand, a conveyance bond from the old interpreter, Middleton Mackay, for his grant from Congress, given in lieu of his reserve, which was not valuable. Mackay told me he had never received any thing from them, and merely promised to give them the refusal. Mackay and his wife died of cholera on the road between Memphis and Little Rock. I have no doubt some one has set up a claim for Mackay's donation, and I am as certainly sure he never sold it. The claim of Captain Billy Hays (a Choctaw) came directly under my notice: Nored and McNutt agreed to give him seven hundred dollars, viz., three hundred dollars on the first September, 1831, and four hundred more first January, 1832. McNutt left for Arkansas with the emigrants; Nored remained, and paid Hays two hundred and seventy-six dollars. The agreement was left in my hands, and I gave it to Major Armstrong, who told me he had left it with Colonel Ward at the old agency. Nored refuses most positively to pay the balance, on the ground that Captain Hays was not allowed as much land as he expected. Nored lives on the place, eighteen miles N. E. of Doak's stand. I hope he will be made to pay to Billy Hays' heirs every cent before any title is given him. The land is richly worth the money: a good house on it, a large enclosure, and four hundred and eighty acres.

Col. James McDonald, an educated Choctaw, was provided for in the treaty, and subsequently drowned himself in Pearl river, near Jackson. Robert Jones, a relative of McDonald, told me that Judge Caldwell, of Clinton, had obtained from McDonald's mother, (his rightful heir,) the claim for a paltry, or, at least, a consideration far short of its value.

In reference to the latter part of your letter, I ought only to say, "the account of my injuries and wrongs are rather long, and the particulars tedious." But, in using this apology, I do not abandon the task of recounting, to those who feel interested for me, the whole subject-matter thereof; and by which, although not justifiable in any law, yet decidedly so by those who have heard and believed my statement of the transaction.

It is a matter of astonishment to myself and friends how I have encountered so many difficulties; and what has been the cause of it? My own impression is, that it has ever been my misfortune to meet with oppression, and to resist to a degree beyond the necessity of the case.

During my service in the army and elsewhere for the government, I have disbursed near an hundred thousand dollars. I was among the first commissaries appointed after establishment of the commissariat. I have letters in the archives of the War Department showing my promptitude as a volunteer in the time of the war, and of my general character for capacity and integrity through life.

I can procure ample testimonials from an extensive acquaintance in the different parts of the country I have resided. I defy any one to bring a charge of fraud or peculation against me in more than twelve years' public service. My misfortunes are, therefore, rightfully ascribed to an irresistable impulse of passion, almost as fatal to my peace and happiness as the worst of offences. I did think I should never offend again when that best of men, Major Eaton, listened to my wrongs, and gave me employment; and

I did use every precaution to avoid collision with any person. But I am growing tedious, and will only add, as I am rather under the ban, that I hope you will look on my case with a more favorable view hereafter than the first impressions induced you to do; and that I may not despair, at some future period, of being restored to the confidence of all my friends.

I am sir, very respectfully, your most obedient servant,

WM. S. COLQUHOUN.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

COLUMBUS, September 22, 1833.

SIR: In pursuance of the course laid down in my letter to you of the 15th instant, I have established offices and appointed assistants at the several land offices, for the reception and filing of applications in the several districts; namely, William Dowsing, Esq., at Columbus, William Howze, Esq., at Augusta, R. H. Sterling, Esq., at Elliott, and George B. Dameron, Esq., at Mount Salus, who are authorized to receive, and place on file for registration, all such claims as may be presented, and come under the rules prescribed and furnished them; a copy of which is herewith enclosed.

I intend visiting each office prior to the day of sale for the purpose of examining the claims presented, and to register and reserve from sale such claims as are filed and shall come under the provisions of the treaty, and in conformity with my instructions from your department.

I have the honor to be, &c.,

GEO. W. MARTIN.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War, Washington City.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office of Indian Affairs, September 24, 1833.

SIR: Your letter of the 11th instant has been received. I regret that you should have met with any delay in obtaining copies of the Choctaw registers. Complete copies of them were taken from this office by Major F. W. Armstrong, and it was supposed he would leave them with his brother at the old agency. As this was not done, the preparation of other copies has been commenced, and they will be transmitted to you as early as practicable.

The paper you request will be procured, and forwarded to you to-morrow.

Your letter to the President has been referred to this department. You will permit me to observe that, during your appointment, this office is the proper channel of communication with the Executive.

Very respectfully, &c.,

ELBERT HERRING.

To Col. GEORGE W. MARTIN, Choctaw Agency.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, September 27, 1833.

SIR: I regret to learn that, owing to some misunderstanding, the copy of the register of the names of the Choctaw Indians entitled to reservations, which is in the possession of Major Armstrong, has not been received by you. Another copy is preparing here, which will be ready for transmission in a day or two. But, in the meantime, I am apprehensive that this circumstance will delay the sale of at least a portion of the lands ceded by the Choctaws. I am desirous that the inconvenience should be as little as possible, and I would therefore suggest to you the expediency, as you cannot now possibly complete the locations prior to the day appointed for the sale of the lands, to fix upon such a district of country for the locations as will enable you to do justice to the Indians, and let the residue of the ceded territory be offered for sale agreeably to the proclamation. I do not myself see any objection to this course, and I think it will be promoting the public interest, late as it is; possibly there may be difficulties attending it of which I am not aware. I must refer the subject to your discretion. Be pleased to communicate with the surveyor general, and registers and receivers, on this matter.

Very respectfully, &c.,

LEWIS CASS.

To Col. GEORGE W. MARTIN.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office of Indian Affairs, September 28, 1833.

SIR: The copies of lists of Choctaw reservations will be forwarded to you by this day's mail.

I am, &c.,

ELBERT HERRING.

To Col. GEORGE W. MARTIN, Choctaw Agency, Mississippi.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office Indian Affairs, September 28, 1833.

SIR: In the absence of the Secretary of War, I beg leave to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 20th instant, addressed to him, and to thank you for the information which you have given in relation to Indian contracts for the sale of their reservations. They have suffered extremely by imposition and fraud practiced upon them by unprincipled white men, and it is the duty of us all to protect them, if possible, from further injury.

If unfavorable impressions exist against you on the part of any of your friends, I trust that your future good conduct will erase it, and conciliate the esteem of all who know you.

Very respectfully, &c.,

ELBERT HERRING.

To WILLIAM S. COLQUHOUN, Dumfries, Virginia.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, September 28, 1833.

SIR: I transmit a copy of a letter addressed to the locating agent under the Choctaw treaty, and would suggest the propriety of giving corresponding instructions to the proper registers and receivers. I would also suggest whether it would not be well to remove the injunctions heretofore laid upon those officers to keep secret the fact of the necessity of withholding from sale, should such necessity be found to exist, any tracts required for the location of Choctaw reservations, and when that duty cannot be performed before the day fixed for the sale.

Very respectfully, &c., LEWIS CASS.

To ELIJAH HAYWARD, Esq., Commissioner of the General Land Office.

NEAR JONES' BLUFF, Sumpter County, Alabama, September 29, 1833.

DEAR SIR: I am and have been a citizen, for twelve years and more, on the territory ceded to the United States by the Choctaw people at Dancing Rabbit creek, in September, 1830. (Previous to my settling in this country, I served three years and five months as a regular soldier in the United States' army, the most of the time in active service in the last war.) Under the 14th article of that treaty, I entered, or had my name entered, on the agent's, Colonel Ward's books, within the prescribed time, as one who wished to become a citizen of the United States. I had at that time a wife and four small children under ten years of age living with me. These are all that I entered with Colonel Ward, for which I have his certificate; but I had at that time another child, my first born, a son, at the Choctaw academy, in Kentucky, and being uninstructed in the art of construing treaties, and as he was not immediately under my roof at the time of giving in the rest, I ignorantly failed to name him. These facts I can well establish. Now, one inquiry I wish to make is, whether I can obtain land for this other child by satisfactorily establishing his existence now, and at the time of the treaty, and a development of the circumstances of his name being neglected? If so, will you oblige an humble individual by seeing me righted in this particular.

Now, there are a great many white people settled on the Choctaw purchases, some four or five on the land which, in good faith, I must get; and they endeavored to slacken my faith in the government, by saying that white men married to Choctaw women were not considered by government as the heads of Choctaw families, and the treaty was so worded in order to cut white men with Indian families out of lands. This I know was not the intention or understanding of the contracting parties at the time; for inquiries were made, at the time, of the United States' commissioners upon this head, and they unequivocally stated that white men married to Choctaw women were considered as Indians, and would be entitled under the treaty to all the privileges and benefits of other Choctaws.

You will confer a favor upon me by giving me your opinion upon this head. Another inquiry I wish to make, is, whether a claimant will be allowed to take fractional sections, or quarter sections, in lieu of full ones? Our late agent had, for some time previous to going out of office, been in the habit of stimulating very freely, so much so, that I thought he was liable to do business rather loosely, and I have been actually informed that he has failed to enter names when he was applied to to do so; and I have understood that he has lost a part of the names that he registered. Should this be the case, what remedy has the claimant? Will his certificate set the claim to rights? Or will it be sufficient evidence for the locator to lay off the claims? You will oblige me by informing me if my name is on the list transmitted to your office, and whether it is as one claiming a citizenship. I have the agent's certificate to this effect, but if he has lost any names, it is possible mine may be among them. One other, and the last inquiry, is, what way are we to get rid of those persons who are settled upon our lands, and cutting down and destroying our timber, and clearing it up in little spots in a very injurious manner?

Your very humble servant,

JACOB DANIEL.

P. S.—Please inform me whether Antonio Parish's name is on your list. He is a brother-in-law, and an old brother soldier who served with me in the last war. Please write me immediately, and direct your letter, Daniel's prairie, Green county, Alabama.

Honorable LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, September 30, 1833.

SIR: In the absence of the Secretary of War, I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 20th instant, and in reply to state that it being apprehended the duty of locating reservations under the late Choctaw treaty might not be completed in time for the sale in October, under the President's proclamation, instructions were issued through the General Land Office to its agents to withhold from public sale such lands as Colonel Martin and W. Trahern, Esq., might designate as reservations or orphan claims under the treaty with the Choctaw Indians.

Owing to some misunderstanding, the copy of the register of Indians entitled to reservations in Major Armstrong's possession has not been received by Col. Martin. This circumstance, it is feared, will delay the sale of at least a portion of the lands ceded. Another copy has been prepared and transmitted to the locating agent at the Choctaw agency, Mississippi; and with a view of lessening the inconvenience which may result by the failure of receiving the first copy, the expediency has been suggested to Colonel Martin, as he cannot now complete the locations prior to the day appointed for the sale, to fix upon such a district of country for the locations as will enable him to do justice to the Indians, and let the residue of the ceded territory be offered for sale agreeably to the proclamation.

I have the honor, &c., JOHN ROBB, Acting Sec'y of War.

To Major JOHN H. EATON, Nashville, Tennessee.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office Indian Affairs, August 8, 1833.

SIR: The President of the United States has directed that the lands ceded to the United States by the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek shall be offered at public sale on the 3d Monday in October next; and I am instructed to inform you, that it is necessary the location of the reservations provided for in the treaty should be completed, and entered in the proper land office, prior to that date. You are therefore directed to proceed without delay to execute this duty.

I enclose, for your information, opinions which have been given by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, which may be useful to you.

I am, sir, &c., D. KURTZ, Acting Commissioner, &c.

To Col. GEO. W. MARTIN, Near Elliot Mission House, via Rankin, Mississippi.

TUSCAHOMA, Washington Co., Miss., August 9, 1833.

DEAR SIR: I am just in receipt of a communication from the War Department relative to my agency in locating and registering the claims provided for in the treaty made at Dancing Rabbit creek.

Notwithstanding my desire to commence my official duties, I shall be constrained to defer acting until I hear further from the department, for reasons herewith assigned.

1st. When there is a plurality of claimants on the same tract of survey, will it not be proper to give a preference to the oldest occupant? (when it can be established who is oldest:) and what course is best to be pursued with regard to the minor claim or claimants?—shall I locate them on similar lands nearest and adjoining?

2d. In locating the several claims, for instance, thus alluded to in the 14th article of the treaty, where it provides the lands of the child shall adjoin the location of the parent, shall I be confined to lateral lines of survey, or otherwise—for instance, cornering or adjoining?

3d. When a tract or claim has been divided by line of surveys, leaving the house in one section, and most of the improvements in another, will the claimant be allowed to take part in two sections, so as to include the whole of his improvement? or, should the claimant prefer relinquishing the house, and taking the residue of the improvement, will he be permitted to do so?

4th. Should the claim be so prejudiced as to be entirely worthless, may he be permitted to have land of *same value at or near his residence, notwithstanding he should cross a section line to accomplish it? Permit me here to mention that Col. Leflore, (in behalf of his people) is very firm and positive in his demands of a favorable construction by the department of all the clauses contained or embraced in the 3d and 4th interrogatories, as above stated. "He says he ever objected to a rigid construction of the treaty relating to these cases," and claims redress under the latter clause of the 18th article of the treaty, which reads, "when well-founded doubt shall arise, it shall be construed most favorable towards the Choctaws." He further says, many have already abandoned their reserves, which have been, or would be rendered worthless under a rigid construction of the treaty, (as regards ruling them to take their claim in the section containing a respective part of their improvement, regardless of its including any portion of good land,) believing it a matter of design in the government to take the good lands, and leave them that which was valueless. The claims affected by survey, and now held, are not very numerous, but he feels desirous that justice may be done, confidence restored and sustained; feeling great solicitude that his people may go west imbibed with full confidence, and a just regard for our government.

5th. In locating and registering such claims as are on fractional tracts of survey, will the claimant be ruled to sectional lines of survey? or will the river be considered a natural boundary, and the claim to be located on the same side of the river on which the improvements are?

6th. There are many of the reservees gone west, having abandoned their claims—what's to be done in such cases?

7th. I am uninstructed as to the manner contemplated by the department in the location of the orphan claims: shall these be located as floats, or, otherwise, to be confined to districts, &c.?

I am required by the department to "establish such prominent marks upon each reservation as will show its extent and boundary." I shall forthwith call on the surveyor general for the requisite plats, maps, &c., on which I shall mark the extent, boundary, &c., of the several claims at the time of registering the same, believing it the most correct and satisfactory mode.

8th. In locating the three-quarter section claims, shall the claimant be ruled to the sectional lines of survey in all instances, that is, to be compelled to take the three-quarters in the same section? (with his improvement.)

I am of opinion the most correct mode in locating floats, when there are more than one applicant for the same tract, it should be determined by lottery, unless when the float has been owned by one making improvement, &c., since the treaty. Should the department have further communications to offer for my better government than at present, they would be most direct by Rankin, unless the route contemplated in the Chickasaw treaty should go into operation, and, in that event, via the Chickasaw nation, to my residence near Tuscahoma and Chochuma. I am equal distant from either.

* If such should be contiguous and adjoining the improvement.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant, GEO. W. MARTIN.

The Hon. LEWIS CASS, Washington City.

N. B.—I shall use my best exertions, and hope to receive an answer to this, that I may commence my duties the earliest practicable moment.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, August 12, 1833.

SIR: You have been selected to locate the reservations provided for Choctaw orphans by the 19th article of the treaty of September 27, 1830.

You will be allowed five dollars per day as a compensation in full for all your services and expenses while actually employed; and, in the execution of this duty, you will be governed by the instructions you will receive from the Office of Indian Affairs.

I am, sir, &c., &c., LEWIS CASS.

To WILLIAM TRAHERN, Esq., Jackson, Mississippi.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office Indian Affairs, August 12, 1833.

SIR: You having been appointed to locate the reservations for Choctaw orphan children, I have been directed by the Secretary of War to communicate to you the following instructions.

The 6th clause of the 19th article of the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek provides "that children of the Choctaw nation, residing in the nation, who have neither father nor mother, a list of which, with satisfactory proof of parentage and orphanage being filed with the agent in six months, to be forwarded to the War Department, shall be entitled to a quarter section of land, to be located under the direction of the President; and, with his consent, the same may be sold, and the proceeds applied to some beneficial purpose for the benefit of said orphans."

I enclose a copy of the list of orphans transmitted to this department, which you will take as your guide in locating the reservations, assigning tracts to no persons whose names are not there registered. This list contains all the names reported by the agent, and that of Amelia Trahern, which has been added by direction of the department. The whole number of orphan children in the three districts is one hundred and thirty-four, and you will select for each of these a quarter section of land of average quality and value.

When the selections are made, you will file a duplicate of your proceedings in the proper land office, and transmit the original to this department. As the President has directed the lands ceded by the Choctaws to be offered for sale on the 3d Monday of October next, I have to request that you will proceed to the discharge of this duty without delay.

The department depends upon you for its prompt and faithful execution, uninfluenced by the representations or conduct of persons around you, whether they be white citizens or Indians.

I am, &c.,

D. KURTZ, Act'g Commissioner, &c.

To WILLIAM TRAHERN, Esq., Jackson, Mississippi.

DUMFRIES, August 15, 1833.

SIR: When I last saw Mushulatubbee, the old Choctaw chief, he handed me the enclosed instrument of writing, to present to the President in person. This I never intended to do, but only through the proper channel. It will be seen by the agent that, for the paltry consideration of three little negroes, a debt to Doctor Hand, of Columbus, (a medical bill) of $100, the assumption to pay a debt to a man named Neville for sixty-five dollars, and fifty dollars in cash, Mr. Daniel W. Wright, then a partner of Messrs. Hatch and Hand, obtained two of the best floating sections of land in the Choctaw purchase, worth at the time of the agreement, according to the evidence of Major Peter P. Pitchlynn, $2,000 each, and subsequently worth upwards of $3,000 each, or $6,000 for the two. Col. Folsom sold his at $3,500 each.

The agreement is witnessed by Colonel Ward, and Middleton Mackay, interpreter. Col. W., since then, in the presence of Col. Wm. Armstrong, declared he was not advised of the terms of the agreement at the time he witnessed it.

The agreement being evidently a fraud, I did not fail to let Mr. Wright know that the case would be reported, together with that of Molly Nail and Robert Nail. We had been friends: he being a man of fascinating manners, it was impossible to avoid his flattery and friendship, and which he abundantly dispensed towards a man he wished to use. It was my fate to experience this; for, as soon as the new agents came on, he so hedged himself under their influence that he was able, in a newspaper statement, to refer to Major F. W. Armstrong for the correctness of his conduct in regard to his land speculations with the Indians. I replied to him, and sent him word that as soon as we met the matter must be settled to my satisfaction. He, however, did not return through Mississippi, but, being at Natchez, he took the route by New Orleans and Mobile.

Wright is a popular man, and there are so many in Mississippi inculpated in fraudulent purchases of Indian lands, that his conduct on that score does not in the least detract from his reputation. I have good grounds for believing that Major Armstrong's hostility to me was owing in fact to an impression that I had infringed on his prerogatives as Indian agent. The indignities he heaped on me from the moment of our meeting until the period of our separation was sufficient to produce exasperation in any man; and to be driven from the service at a single breath, and accused falsely of drunkenness, (I have certificates to prove the charge false,) and then, sir, to be ordered out of his presence, and treated as a slave set on shore in disgrace—the course I pursued was inevitable. I pray you, sir, to excuse my troubling you with these remarks, it being impossible to refrain availing myself of the opportunity to lay before you the case of Mushulatubbee, and to add, as I am bound to believe, the causes which led to my removal from the emigration service.

I was advised by a friend of yours to send you the agreement. I recollect several other cases, among which are the heirs of Middleton Mackay, and, also, of Billy Hays, a captain.

I am, sir, your obedient servant,

WM. S. COLQUHOUN.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Choctaw Nation:

Know all men by these presents, that the following contract has this day been entered into between Daniel W. Wright, of the county of Monroe, and State aforesaid, and Mingo Mushulatubbee, a chief of the Choctaw tribe of Indians, now resident in said State. "Witnesseth," "that, whereas" a treaty was concluded and signed a few days since between the chiefs, captains and headmen of said tribe of Indians, and John H. Eaton and Gen. John Coffee, commissioners on the part of the United States, by which treaty, among other provisions, the said Mushulatubbee has reserved to him two sections of land to be located on any unimproved or unoccupied lands in said nation: Now, it is agreed by the parties to these presents, for themselves, their heirs, executors or administrators, that, in the event of said treaty being ratified by the President and Senate of the United States, that the said Wright is to pay to the said Mushulatubbee three negroes, viz. two boys to be between the ages of fourteen and thirty years of age, and a girl between the age of twelve and twenty years of age, to pay a debt due from him to Doctor John H. Hand, of one hundred dollars—pay a note of his with the said Wright as security, executed this day to a man by the name of Neville, and due the first day of December next, for sixty-five dollars, and fifty dollars in cash, estimated at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, all to be delivered and paid upon ten days' notice at the agency house in said Choctaw nation, whenever the said Mushulatubbee shall make, or cause to be made, to the said Wright a good and sufficient title in fee simple to said reserves of six hundred and forty acres each. For the faithful performance of the terms and true meaning of this contract, the parties to these presents hereby bind themselves one to the other, them and each of them, their heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, in the sum of three thousand dollars.

In testimony whereof, we have hereunto set our hands, and affixed our seals, this 7th day of October, 1830.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office of Indian Affairs, August 17, 1833.

SIR: In the instructions of June 26th, there is a single clause from which you may have inferred that it was the intention of the department to assign to you the location of the reservations of the Choctaw orphans. This clause was inserted through inadvertence, and it is my object now to inform you that this duty has been entrusted to Wm. Trahern, to whom the requisite instructions have been forwarded.

I am, sir, &c., D. KURTZ, Acting Commissioner, &c.

To Col. G. W. MARTIN, near Elliott's Mission House, via Rankin, Mississippi.

CHOCTAW NATION, WEST, August 20, 1833.

DEAR SIR: A proper regard to my own interests, and a sense of duty to my family, form my apology for troubling you with this communication. In the second article of the supplement to the late treaty between the United States' Government and the Choctaw people, my name is inserted as one entitled to a gratuity of a section of land. The location of the land is to be fixed by my residence and improvement—a condition which cannot be complied with. From the time I left my father's house, which was soon after my return from the school in Kentucky, I have never resided within the limits of the Choctaw country. I left my father at the time of my marriage, and after that, until I removed to this country, I resided constantly with my father-in-law, a white man, living near, but without, the limits of the Choctaw country, and I never had, or pretended to have, any improvement in that country. There were two other persons, McDonald and Jones, whose names are embraced in the same article with mine, who were known never, since their childhood, to have resided in the Choctaw country, and were on that account provided with floating reservations. My case was about being represented to the commissioners while this article was under consideration, when a similar provision would probably have been made for me, but the business having been suddenly interrupted by a disturbance among the people, it was neglected. My claims were thought to be quite as good as those of the persons above named. While they were entirely disconnected from any participation in the affairs of the Choctaw nation until the subject of the treaty came up, when they were known to be unfriendly to the principal treating chief, Col. Leflore, I had constantly, since my return from Kentucky, held the office, and performed the duties of a captain of the northwest district, near the line of which I resided, had sustained my chief, Col. Leflore, in the measure of treating, and exerted what influence I possessed among my warriors to effect it. When the removal commenced, finding that I could not dispose of my claim in its present shape, and knowing that the government was anxious to get the people off, I started among the first, and done what I could to assist the agents of the government under whose direction I acted. While almost every person provided for by the treaty realized the value of their several donations previous to leaving the old country, many of whom, by the employment of the proceeds in planting in this country, have doubled the amount, I am in a worse situation than I was previous to the treaty—on a new place, without the means of making comfortable improvements.

The favor I have now to ask, is, that you would have the goodness to advise me what will be the probable issue of my claim. I can do nothing with it in its present shape, and I know not where to apply for aid. There is no agent of the government here to whom I can apply, and if there was, he could not probably satisfy my inquiries.

Thinking that Congress could grant the necessary relief, I sent, last session, to Mr. Plummer, the representative of Mississippi, a petition, (praying that my claim might be made a floating reservation in the northwest district,) accompanied with the certificates of my chief, and such of the agents of government for the removal, as I could see. I observed from the papers that it was presented; but not having heard of it since, I conclude that it was dismissed as an improper application. I am now inclined to think that my case presents a question of construction by the President, as other proper officers, whose decision will be regulated by the 18th article of the treaty. Although the subject of this communication may be considered by others as very trifling, it is of real importance to me, and you will do me an act of kindness, which I shall remember with gratitude, by giving it the necessary attention.

I should be glad to receive a communication either from yourself, or from some person to whom you may most properly refer the matter, addressed to me at Vicksburg, Mississippi, from whence it will be forwarded to me as soon as convenient. I have been for more than a year endeavoring to dispose of it to a person who will purchase it if it is constituted a floating reservation in the district in which I was captain. I am extremely anxious to close the sale.

Yours, very respectfully, S. D. FISHER.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, August 20, 1833.

SIR: I received your letter of the 13th instant, with its enclosure. The transaction, as you state, is certainly discreditable, and the consideration utterly disproportioned to the value of the land attempted to be purchased. I will place the papers on file to be adverted to should the sanction of the department to the agreement be asked. By the provisions of the Choctaw treaty, some of the reservations cannot be sold without the assent of the President. Others, at the expiration of a certain time, may be sold without any condition. So far as the action of the President may be required, it will certainly be withheld unless the contracts are made in strict conformity with the regulations that may be prescribed. These regulations are not yet fixed upon, nor will they be until the surveys are completed, and the reservations located. The department will be glad to receive at any time, information from any quarter that would be useful in guarding the rights of the Indians and the public.

With respect to your personal difficulties, it is unnecessary for me to say any more upon the subject. Whatever circumstances may have led to it, your attack upon Major Armstrong appeared, and still appears to me, as one of those acts which, however they may be excused by the frailties of human nature, cannot be justified.

Very respectfully, &c., LEWIS CASS.

To WILLIAM S. COLQUHOUN, Dumfries, Va.

LOWNDES COUNTY, Mississippi, August 20, 1833.

DEAR SIR: Some new and interesting movements are getting on foot by land speculators, respecting the lands to be granted to the heads of Choctaw families under the fourteenth article of the late treaty concluded at Dancing Rabbit. A construction is placed upon this article which seems to me to be foreign from its letter, and highly fraudulent against the government: which, I understand, is to be carried into effect by appealing to the sympathies of the government in behalf of the Indians, under the eighteenth article, which stipulates that the treaty shall be construed in the most favorable manner towards the Indians, when, in truth, they will not in the least be benefited.

Their construction is this: that the treaty fixes the location of six hundred and forty acres for the head of the family at the reputed place of residence, and that then the locations for the children are in the nature of floats. For instance, suppose an Indian to have eight unmarried children entitled to one half section each; that instead of locating for them the half sections lying around and adjoining that of the parent, they will be permitted to commence anywhere adjoining the parent, and run off in any direction in solid column, or diagonally by quarter or half sections, so as to secure all the most valuable land not only in the immediate vicinity, but for several miles off. The facts that have come to my knowledge are these: the head of a certain Choctaw family and his unmarried children are said to be entitled to six sections of land. They have made an unconditional and bona fide sale to a speculator at one dollar per acre, to take effect at the expiration of five years from the ratification of the treaty. The land upon which they live is fine oak and hickory land, but the speculator not being satisfied with what is good, covets a large fertile prairie lying several miles off, which will bring to the government at least five dollars per acre. And, secondly, that the land to be granted under the provision of said article wholly belongs to the parent, and no part of it to the children: therefore, the head of the family having eight children entitled to one-half section each, is properly and legally the owner of the whole; and thus, being solely seized of five sections, has full authority, when he has lived upon the land five years after the ratification of the treaty, to consummate the sale now made, disregarding any claim that the children might have. Thus these poor Indian children are to be defrauded out of the boon given them by the government. If this construction is not in accordance with the true meaning of the treaty for the benefit of white men, will it be permitted?

That you may understand more clearly the manner in which these claims are intended to be located, I have enclosed a rough sketch, representing the State line, township and sectional lines, residence, and intended locations.

[This sketch represents four fractional townships, two lying in Alabama and two in Mississippi. John McGilbry lives in Alabama, on the fraction which is marked J. McG. I am not acquainted with the numbers of the sections in Alabama; but they design coming into Mississippi, and entering the north halves of 11, 10 and 9, the west half of section 4, the whole of sections 33 and 28, and the eastern half of section 29; all of which are marked with L. This may not present the entries correctly, but it clearly exhibits the plan and design.]

For the purpose of preventing frauds against the government, Indian children, and emigrants, I thought best to inform the War Department that an attempt will be made upon the sympathies of the government, representing the property of the Indians, and that the land which they must receive under the strict letter of the treaty is not fit for cultivation; that benevolence ought to be exercised towards them, and that they ought to be permitted to locate their land elsewhere, and according to the sketch I have enclosed. But, sir, I do assure you that in this there is a wolf in sheep's clothing. The Indians are not to be benefited, because, as I have before said, they have made an unconditional sale, and that too, to the very men who are intending to excite the sympathies of the government: thus, by stratagem and hypocrisy, enrich themselves and depress the Indians; for one dollar per acre is much less than the value of the land upon which they now live.

I would suggest one other important idea respecting settlement or cultivation rights granted under the 19th article: that where an Indian has in cultivation a certain quantity of land, he is entitled to a proportionate quantity, to include the reputed residence. A large quantity of reservations of this kind have likewise been sold to speculators, and it is not uncommon where the surveys have been made, that a corner stake stands near the house—the house upon a poor tract. By moving the stake a few rods, the house is then represented as being upon a different quarter or half section of much more, and, sometimes, of intrinsic value. If entries of this description of claim are permitted to be made without a watchful eye on the part of the government, frauds of no small magnitude may be committed.

I would therefore suggest the propriety of compelling all land claimants under Indian titles to take the county surveyor, and particularly point out their claims by him surveyed, and returned to the registers of the several land offices; and, also, that a commissioner be appointed for each land district, with specific instructions how to locate the several reservations. I would point out other means of intended fraud, but having seen the able publication of Major Gwin on the subject of Indian claims, perceived that it was laid before you, and that it contains most, if not all, the means of preventing frauds, both against claimants and the government.

Some of my neighbors and myself are deeply interested in the mode by which the claims under the fourteenth article will be located; because we have emigrated here, and, under great difficulties, privations, and hardships, have made valuable improvements upon the public domain with a view of purchasing them at the land sales; and if these speculators are permitted to run the location of their claims in any direction, so as to, designedly, cover the improvements made by emigrants at a remote distance from the Indians when there is an abundance of good unoccupied land adjoining the location of the heads of families, we will find it to our advantage to cease improving, and give possession: this we would the more readily do, if it were to the advantage of the Indians.

Will you please give me an answer as soon as circumstances will permit, stating the manner of locating these claims? because, if they are located according to the enclosed draft, some of our improvements will be taken, and the season is advancing when we should be making preparations elsewhere for a crop next year. A compliance will much oblige yours, and many friends of the administration.

Respectfully,

GAB. FELDER.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office Indian Affairs, July 1, 1833.

SIR: I enclose, herewith, an extract from a letter recently received from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, by which you will observe that the difficulty of obtaining copies of the plats of the reservations under the 19th article of the Choctaw treaty, in time for the commencement of your operations, will render it necessary for you to make such references to the plats in the office of the surveyor general of Mississippi as may be required for the efficient discharge of your duties.

A copy of your instructions has been furnished to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, who will give the necessary directions to the land officers to afford you every facility which you may require.

I am, sir, &c.,

ELBERT HERRING.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office Indian Affairs, July 1, 1833.

SIR: I enclose, herewith, a copy of the instructions to George W. Martin, Esq., the agent appointed to make the selections of the locations of the tracts of land granted to the Choctaws by the treaty of September 27, 1830.

Owing to the difficulty of obtaining copies of the plats, as stated in your letter of the 17th ult., I have this day written to Mr. Martin, directing him to make reference to the plats in the office of the surveyor general of Mississippi, as far as may be necessary to the accomplishment of his duties, and have informed him that such instructions would be given by you to the land officers as would insure him every facility in the prosecution of his labors.

I am, sir, very respectfully, &c.,

ELBERT HERRING.

To JOHN M. MOORE, Esq., Acting Commissioner Gen'l Land Office.

CLINTON, July 7, 1833.

DEAR SIR: Enclosed you will receive a publication that I have felt it my duty to make to satisfy the numerous inquiries daily made to me on the subject of the Indian reserves and floats under the late Choctaw treaty.

I submit these remarks to you that you may compare them with the provisions of the treaty, and if I am in error on any point I wish to be corrected.

It is important that these claims should be disposed of at as early a day as practicable, as every day's delay tends to embarrass the closing them.

I have no doubt attempts will be, and are making, to change many of the settlement claims to other lands that please the present holders more.

I would advise the closing all these claims as early as practicable. I hope you will examine the enclosed, and correct it in all the material points, and return the same.

I am, respectfully, your obedient servant,

SAML. GWIN, Reg. N. W. Dist. Mi.

NOTE.—The paper enclosed in this letter has been mislaid.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office Indian Affairs, July 23, 1833.

SIR: I am instructed to forward to you a copy of a letter from this department appointing you to locate reservations granted to the Choctaws by the treaty of September 27, 1830.

As your place of residence was not known, the original of this letter was enclosed to General Coffee. The lamented decease of that gentleman may have prevented its transmission. You are requested to inform the department, at an early day, whether you accept this appointment, and, if you do, to enter upon the discharge of its duties as soon as may be practicable.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, June 17, 1833.

SIR: Your letter to the Commissioner, of the 8th instant, has been duly received, wherein you state that Col. George W. Martin has been appointed by the department to locate reservations under the 19th article of the treaty with the Choctaws of September 27, 1830, and request that the Commissioner will direct copies of the plats of the one hundred and twelve townships and fractional townships which have been surveyed to be prepared and forwarded to Col. Martin.

It devolves upon me to advise you that, with the present force at the disposal of this office, it will be impracticable to comply with your request, and that the surveyor general of Mississippi will not be enabled to furnish such extra copies within any reasonable time. The surveyor is already required to prepare triplicate plats of the public surveys, and, until such triplicates are completed, a fourth set cannot be ordered. Under these circumstances it will be advisable, and indeed indispensably necessary, for Col. Martin to make references to the plats in the office of the surveyor general at Washington, Mississippi, (which office is directed, by a law of the last session of Congress, to be removed to Jackson,) or to the land officers of the northeastern and northwestern districts. The President has designated a town recently established on the Yellow Busho, (a stream tributary to the Yazoo,) which is situate within about three miles of the old missionary establishment at Elliott, as the seat of the land office for the northwestern district. The town is, I believe, named Tuscahomo. He has designated the town of Columbus, on the Tombeckbee, as the seat of the land office for the northeastern district.

The necessary instructions preparatory to the opening of those offices have been given. The offices have not as yet received the late advice of the President's designation of the sites for those offices.

The first step to be observed by the officers will be to obtain the township plats from the surveyor general. Col. Martin may, in the meantime, decide whether it would be more convenient to make reference at the office of the surveyor general, or at the district land offices.

I would further remark that, in the location of the numerous reservations under various Indian treaties heretofore made, it has never been customary to furnish copies of plats to the Indian agents. They have always obtained the information to be afforded by the plats, by reference either to the surveyor's office or the district land office.

I have to request that you will have the goodness to furnish this office with a copy of the instructions to Col. Martin as soon as your convenience will admit.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your most obedient servant,

JOHN M. MOORE, Act'g Commissioner.

To ELBERT HERRING, Esq., Commissioner of Indian Affairs.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, June 26, 1833.

SIR: You are hereby appointed to make the selection of the locations of the tracts of land granted to the Choctaws by the 14th, 15th, and 19th articles of the treaty of September 27, 1830, concluded at Dancing Rabbit creek.

Your compensation will be five dollars per day, to include services and expenses while engaged in this duty; and you are authorized to employ an interpreter, if one attached to the agency cannot be detailed to attend you, and to allow him two dollars and a half per day in full for his expenses and services. These claims will be paid upon accounts certified by both yourself and the interpreter.

The department is informed that plats of the surveys of one hundred and twelve townships have been received at the General Land Office, and that the exterior lines of one hundred and seventy-six townships have been run, the sectioning of a majority of which is in progress. Copies of the plats received here will be forwarded for you, from the General Land Office, to the care of General Coffee.

You will please to apprise the department of your address, that copies of the other plats may be sent to you direct.

Upon application to Col. Ward, or William Armstrong, Esq., at the Old Agency, you will be furnished with copies of registers of the different classes of reservees in the three districts, and may obtain all the information you will require in the fulfillment of this duty. These registers are supposed to be complete, and you will be governed by them in the location and assignment of reservations in all cases, unless otherwise directed by the department.

The general provisions of the treaty are, that the reservations shall be bounded by sectional or quarter sectional lines of survey, and include the improvements of the reservees. An exception to this rule occurs in the 15th article, and in the first clause of the 19th, by which two of the four sections granted to the three chiefs and to Col. Folsom are to be located "on unoccupied, unimproved land." You will consult the wishes of those persons in locating these sections, taking care not to interfere with the possessory rights of any other Indian. The half sections and quarter sections allowed to heads of families in the 14th article, for their children, will adjoin the locations of their parents.

The number of reservees provided for in the 3d and 4th clauses of the 19th article is limited, and the extent of their respective reservations is proportioned to the number of acres in cultivation. You will learn from the registers the names of persons entitled to land under the several classes. In locating the three-quarter sections granted to those who shall have cultivated thirty acres or more, you will observe that the treaty provides they shall be "contiguous and adjoining." The reservations allowed under these two classes are also so to be located as to include that part of the improvements which contains the dwelling-house. If the contingency should happen contemplated in the latter part of the 4th clause, that the number of reservees should exceed the number stipulated for, you will call upon one or more of the chiefs of the district to which they belong to decide who shall be excluded. For instance, one half section is granted to the cultivators of from twenty to thirty acres, the number not to exceed four hundred. If there should be four hundred and fifty claimants, the chiefs are to decide upon the fifty whose claims must be rejected.

The 5th clause provides for the assignment to the captains, whose cultivated possessions may entitle them under the previous clauses to less than a section, of an additional half section. This half section must adjoin the tract which includes their improvements and dwelling-house. The register will also show you the names and number of the orphans entitled to reservations.

If any of the Choctaws have no improvements, or if the location of a tract would include the improvement of more than one of them, in that case you must exercise a sound discretion respecting the person to whom such tract shall be assigned. It is desirable that the parties interested should decide for themselves, or agree to submit to the determination of their chief; but, if they will not do either, perhaps the best method will be to draw lots in their presence. It is also desirable that the reservees of each district should be located together, and as near to each other as the preservation to each of them of his improvements will permit.

You will establish such permanent marks upon each reservation as will show its extent and boundaries. You will also open a new register, and enter upon it the names of the reservees, and the number of the sections, half sections, or quarter sections, as marked on the plats of survey, assigned to them respectively. The originals of this register you will leave with the sub-agent, William Armstrong, Esq.: a copy you will forward to this department.

The department relies upon your zeal and exertions to execute every part of your duty under these instructions in a manner accordant with the obligations of the government, and satisfactory to the Indians. I enclose a copy of the treaty.

Very respectfully, &c., JOHN ROBB, Acting Secretary of War.

To GEORGE W. MARTIN, Esq., (care of Gen. John Coffee,) Florence, Alabama.

Extract of a letter from Samuel Gwin to the Secretary of War, dated

"CLINTON, June 30, 1833.

"I returned a few days past from a trip through the northwest land district, embraced in the late Choctaw purchase at Dancing Rabbit creek. Not knowing who would have the locating the reserves, floats, &c., in the nation, and being satisfied that great frauds were in contemplation on the United States, and believing that these claims would have at last to pass through my hands, I have drawn up a circular, giving my views fully upon every point in the treaty touching the reserves, &c., which will in a few days be published. To save the United States from those contemplated frauds, I have been strict in requiring evidence where frauds could occur. I have been among these speculators, have heard their plans and intentions, and it is upon this information that much of my circular is based. The Indian cannot be injured if he gets the land given him at the treaty, or at least he cannot ask for more. The speculators wish to change it to better lands, and places for towns. I shall send you a copy as soon as they are printed, and would take it as a favor to correct any errors in fact that you may discover when comparing it with the treaty. I have taken this course solely with a view to cut up a set of speculators who are attempting to change every Indian settlement-right where the land is not good. I would thank you, also, for a copy of all those who have listed themselves with the agent, as pointed out in the treaty, having such a quantity of land in actual cultivation in 1830, and a house on it, and any other claims, a register of which is in your department.

"An attempt is now made to put off the sales in the late purchase until this fall. If this succeeds it will be the most ruinous act that could be done. These claims are now fresh in the recollection of many persons, and can be corrected; but once let this evidence be removed, and there is no barrier to prevent frauds; and it would be better to give up the whole country to the speculators without further trouble. I pledge myself in one month to close every reserve, float, and settlement-right, if authorized so to do. Let it be known that there is no shuffling, and all will be right; and can be easily done. Every township that is surveyed should be brought into market at as early a day as practicable. Until this is done, there will be no end to those claims; but the moment a sale is announced they will forthwith close the matter. Another reason which is given for wishing the sales postponed, is, to give time to locate the orphans' claims. A delay on this account is entirely unnecessary, and not called for by the claimants. If an agent is appointed to locate these claims, he can do it in a short time; but should the President determine to sell those claims at the government price at once, and vest the proceeds in stocks, (which, by the by, will be better for the orphans,) why, it will be still less cause of delay in the sales."

RANKIN, May 2, 1833.

SIR: For the information of those persons who are interested, I desire to be informed what course the individuals who claim land under the provisions of the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek must pursue to secure their titles? That I may be the more distinctly understood, I take the liberty of propounding the following interrogatories, viz.

Has any person been appointed to locate the land granted to orphans under the 19th article of the treaty; and, if so, who is he, and what are the nature of his instructions?

Will the President permit them to locate their claims on any unimproved and unoccupied lands?

What course must those persons who hold land under the 14th article of the treaty pursue, to have their claims reserved from sale?

What testimony is it necessary for those who claim under the cultivation clause of the 19th article of the treaty to adduce, and before whom or what tribunal, in order to procure titles to their reservations?

The answers to these interrogatories are respectfully requested, (if not in violation of any rule of the War Department,) for the benefit of those Indians who are interested. If the government has established any rules or regulations in relation to the reservations, &c., granted to the Indians by the treaty, the manner of their locations, &c., I should be pleased to be furnished with copies. If any person or persons have been appointed to locate any or all of the grants of land made by the treaty, or to attend to the business in any way, I should be pleased to be furnished with a copy of their instructions.

Please to address me at this place, (Rankin, Mississippi.)

I am, sir, with sentiments of respect, your most obedient servant,

F. E. PLUMMER.

To the Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

PICKENSVILLE, Alabama, May 15, 1833.

SIR: Your answer of the 22d of April to my letter of inquiry dated 25th March last, has been received. It gave me the information desired, for which Mr. Mitchell truly feels thankful. But upon one point you were not as clear as is desirable; that is, in speaking of Mr. McGilbry, you have not used the Christian name, and as there are three Indians claiming land under the 19th article of the late Choctaw treaty of that name, it is now desirable to ascertain whether John, Turner, and Gordon McGilbry have all had their names duly registered, and, if not, which one is not named upon the record. An answer to this letter will, I think, terminate in the friendly adjustment of existing differences.

Respectfully, yours,

GAB. FELDER.

Hon. E. HERRING, Commissioner Indian Affairs.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, May 23, 1833.

SIR: I have had the honor to receive your letter of the 2d instant, and, in answer, beg leave to inform you that no person has yet been appointed to make any of the locations under the Choctaw treaty; nor will they be so until the country is surveyed, and the surveys returned to the General Land Office.

A census of the Choctaw nation has been taken, and the quantity of land to which the several grantees are entitled have been ascertained; but no instructions with respect to the final locations will be given till the surveys are completed.

Very respectfully, &c.,

LEWIS CASS.

Hon. F. E. PLUMMER, Member of Congress.

GREENSBORO', April 4, 1833.

SIR: By a clause in the 19th article of the treaty of 1830 with the Choctaws, it is provided that "children of the Choctaw nation, residing in the nation, who have neither father or mother, a list of which, with satisfactory proof of parentage and orphanage, being filed with the agent in six months, to be forwarded to the War Department, shall be entitled to a quarter section of land, to be located under the direction of the President; and, with his consent, the same may be sold, and the proceeds applied to some beneficial purpose for the benefit of said orphans." I am desirous of ascertaining what number of orphans were registered in the department under the foregoing provision, and whether the locations of their quarter sections have been made as provided for. If they have, how they are to be ascertained, and how they may be purchased. If not, whether the President would affix a price to the claim, and allow a purchaser to locate it when he chooses?

An early answer to these inquiries will oblige

Your obedient servant,

THOMAS F. FOSTER.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office Indian Affairs, April 13, 1833.

SIR: A number of Choctaws, who allege that they are entitled to reservations under the provisions of the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek of 27th September, 1830, and the commutation for the same to such as gave notice of their wish to sell, &c., finding that their names are not among those enrolled, and thus entitled to pay, have presented their claims for the action of the War Department; and not having the means of ascertaining, readily, of their justice, a copy of Major Armstrong's report, together with their lists of claims, are herewith transmitted for examination and report, to which your immediate attention is requested.

If notice had been given by the Choctaws of their wish to sell, and an omission on your part so to note and report it, justice requires that it be now done; or if, in your opinion, the claims are preferred in the expectation of imposing upon the government, it is equally just that you should state it. Any information calculated to correct errors, if any, or expose impositions, is required; or if, through inadvertence, the required record has not been made within the limited time expressed in the treaty to entitle them to the benefits thereof, such information in relation thereto as would insure the favorable action of Congress on their claims, would be proper, if in your power to communicate it.

I am, sir, &c. ELBERT HERRING.

To Col. WM. WARD.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office of Indian Affairs, April 20, 1833.

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 4th inst., addressed to the Secretary of War, and to answer the several questions contained in it.

According to the list of Choctaw orphans forwarded to the department by the agent, there are one hundred and thirty-four entitled to a quarter section of land each under the 19th article of the treaty of 1830.

The locations have not yet been made, and I cannot therefore inform you how they will be ascertained; probably, however, by numbers on the map of the land.

I am also unable to inform you whether they will be sold, and the proceeds invested for the benefit of the orphans; or whether they will be retained for any period of time under an expectation of increase of value of the land.

I have, &c. ELBERT HERRING.

Hon. THOS. F. FOSTER, Greensboro', Georgia.

WASHINGTON CITY, March 4, 1833.

SIR: So much of the enclosed letter as is not erased I take the liberty of referring to you, with a request that you will give to me the desired information as soon as convenient. Please return with your answer the letter of Mr. Alston.

Most respectfully, your obedient servant, F. E. PLUMMER.

To Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office of Indian Affairs, March 26, 1833.

SIR: In answer to your letter of the 4th instant, addressed to the Secretary of War, and enclosing one of Mr. J. Alston's to yourself, I have the honor to state that, if the Indian reservation purchased by Mr. Alston is found, on survey, to be included in the 16th section of lots, he must take the land elsewhere in order to prevent interference with a pre-existing right created by act of Congress previously to the date of the treaty.

I would further observe, that those Choctaws who claim a right to land under the 14th article of the treaty of 1830 at Dancing Rabbit creek will not be entitled to a grant in fee simple, unless on certain contingencies. Until these take place, a valid conveyance of the land cannot be executed. These answers embrace the questions in Mr. Alston's letter, which is herewith returned.

I have the honor, &c., ELBERT HERRING.

To the Hon. F. E. PLUMMER.

WASHINGTON CITY, March 26, 1833.

SIR: Susan (sometimes called Susannah) Graham claims the twenty-eighth, and the west half of the twenty-seventh sections of township fifteen, in range one east, situate in that tract of country ceded to the United States by the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek, under and by virtue of the provisions of the 14th article of said treaty. Her name has been registered in the manner prescribed by the treaty, as appears from the report of Elbert Herring, esquire, of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, made on the 10th of March, 1832, and enclosed to me under cover of yours of the same date. Mrs. Graham requests that the section and a half of land herein described should be reserved from sale for her use. I request that this communication may be filed in the Bureau of Indian Affairs, War Department.

Most respectfully, your obedient servant,

F. E. PLUMMER, for, and at the request of, Susan Graham.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON CITY, March 26, 1833.

SIR: I am desirous to know the number of Choctaws whose names are registered for reservations of land under the provisions of the 19th article of the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek.

1st. How many are entitled to one section of land in consequence of having had in cultivation, during the year 1830, fifty acres or more?

2d. How many are entitled to three quarter sections of land in consequence of having had in cultivation, during the year 1830, thirty acres, and less than fifty?

3d. How many are entitled to one half section of land in consequence of having had in cultivation from twenty to thirty acres?

4th. How many are entitled to one quarter section of land in consequence of having had in cultivation from twelve to twenty acres?

5th. How many are entitled to one-eighth of a section in consequence of having had in cultivation from two to twelve acres?

This information is desired for the benefit of those Choctaws who are entitled to the benefit of the provisions of the article of the treaty before referred to. If the number of those whose names are registered for reservations exceed the limitations prescribed in the treaty, the applicants are solicitous to know which of them will be excluded, in order that they may make application to the proper source for relief. I beg leave to refer you to the treaty for the stipulations and provisions contained in the 19th article, which will, in my humble opinion, enable you to discover the importance of the information to those interested.

Most respectfully, your obedient servant,

F. E. PLUMMER.

Hon. ELBERT HERRING, Com. Indian Affairs.

WASHINGTON CITY, March 27, 1833.

W. quarter of section twenty-one, in township three, of range ten east. In support of his claim, I send you the enclosed documentary testimony, with a request that the same, together with this letter, be filed in the office of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, and his name registered.

CHOCTAW AGENCY, WEST, January 2, 1833.

SIR: Under the last treaty I was entitled to one hundred and sixty acres of land by cultivation, as will appear by the books returned. I emigrated, with my family, with the first party that came by the government, and left home in a great hurry, and without knowing the value of my land, or very little concerning it. There was standing in the field between two and three hundred bushels of corn, for which I received fifty dollars at a time when corn was selling at fifty cents per bushel. I received for the land a wagon, much used, and two yoke of oxen, and a horse, which was all I ever received for my land.

To you, our great father and the friend of the Choctaws, I look for protection, when the conduct of Grant and Clemmons is examined into, not only in my case, but many other poor Choctaws whom they have deluded. My brother, Levi Pickins, who had the same quantity of land, and is since dead, sold his land for about one hundred dollars. He left a wife and children, who are now here. I know our grievances will be redressed.

Your friend and brother, JOSEPH PICKINS.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office Indian Affairs, February 25, 1833.

SIR: Your letter of the 2d January to the Secretary of War has been referred to this office to be answered.

In relation to the reservation of 160 acres, which you allege you sold, nothing can be now done, provided the conveyance for the land has been executed and delivered. You state that you have received payment for it. Why accept the consideration if there was fraud or imposition? Why give your deed unless you were satisfied? The President never would have approved the contract unless there had been presented to him proof of its fairness.

Permit me to inform you that Major Armstrong is your agent; that he has been appointed to attend to the concerns of your tribe; that it is not only his duty, but also his inclination, to hear all your applications, and, if necessary, to report them to the department for direction or decision. Have the goodness in future to direct your communications to him.

With great respect, &c., ELBERT HERRING.

Mr. JOSEPH PICKINS, Choctaw Agency, West Arkansas.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, April 26, 1831.

SIR: By the provisions of the 19th article of a treaty concluded with the Choctaw Indians, reservations are stipulated for to the amount of 458,000 acres. The right to claim these is made to depend on the number of acres which each individual of the several enumerated classes actually "had in cultivation, with a dwelling-house thereon," during the year 1830.

To give certainty and effect to this article, and to avoid everything of fraud and imposition, it becomes necessary that the ceded country be thoroughly examined, and the quantity of land cultivated by each Indian during the past year, having a dwelling-house thereon, be ascertained. By the terms of the article, you will perceive that the first class of persons provided for are such as have cultivated fifty acres or more, and varying downwards to such as cultivated in 1830 from two to twelve acres. A reference to the treaty will more fully explain the objects which will require your attention.

Actual surveys to ascertain the quantity of land will not be necessary. The mere stepping over a field, and often the eye alone, will be enough to determine the quantity with sufficient accuracy. What shall be understood by "cultivation," is not that the party should have planted a crop and worked it regularly. The term may include grass lots, as well as fields which have been used for the growing of product of different kinds. But waste grounds, although cleared and under fencing, will not be understood as coming under the term "cultivation." In the first place, the land must contain a dwelling-house, meaning a house or cabin in which persons have actually resided, with lands cleared, and attended to during the year, under such circumstances as to show that they have been used for the purposes of agricultural benefit of some kind.

As the reservations are to be surveyed so as to include the dwelling-house, you are to be particular, in your examinations, that the house was built previous to the date of the treaty. In your report, therefore, you will endeavor to specify, nearly as may be, the precise locality of each farm examined, that settlements and removals after the treaty was concluded may not be passed off upon the government, and reservations obtained at other places, and on better lands.

A register of farms examined, and the acres in cultivation, their situation and probable worth, with such distinguishing places to understand their locality as you can be informed of, you are requested to state for the information of the department. The names of the Indians owning or claiming the several places secured under the 19th article, with the number of each family over and under, say ten years and sixteen years, are desired. Far as practicable, the department desires to be informed of the strength of the nation, the better to know the preparation proper to be made for their removal, and the quantity of rifles necessary to be procured.

As it is important to the interest of the government, and to the just demands of the Indians, that the service here assigned you should be done with as little delay as possible, two assistants will be assigned to aid you in the performance of the duty, to whom a compensation of 750 dollars each will be given. Your own will be 1,000 dollars. You and they will be paid on the receipt of a certificate from you that the service has been fully executed.

Enclosed are three copies of the treaty. Such information, connected with any part of it, as you may be able to obtain during your stay, will be acceptably received by the department, to be communicated in your report.

Five hundred dollars are assigned for the purpose of partial expenditures that may arise, and for engaging persons to act as pilots in traversing the country. In the selection, it will be advisable to procure Indians, of whom there are many who speak both languages. They are a jealous people, and may have some fears when asked about the numbers of their people, that the object is to tax them. To avoid this, you will explain to them that the only design of your visit and inquiry is to enable the government to lay off their reservations, to know the quantity of materials, guns, &c., necessary to be procured for them, and to obtain a sufficiency of provisions to be adequate to all their wants; and that these objects can be attained, with certainty, in no other way than after the one pursued. Impress upon them the necessity of being ready, one-third or one half of them, to remove by the 15th or 20th of September, that they may reach their homes before the cold weather sets in.

Until informed as to the probable number that will remove in the fall, the necessary preparations cannot be made; the number of wagons that will be wanted cannot be known, nor can it be ascertained what quantity of provisions will be necessary. It is wished, therefore, that you will strongly impress on the agent, and the principal men of the nation, the propriety of advising the department on this subject as early as possible, and do so yourself, in order that every arrangement may be made. All should not depart in one season. A few going over to raise their crops would make the others on their arrival more comfortable, through the facility with which provisions could be obtained.

From time to time you will keep the Secretary of War advised of your movements, and of such information connected with the general provisions of the treaty as you may consider advisable to be known. Punctuality and despatch, and a full and final report before the meeting of Congress, will be expected.

Very respectfully, JOHN H. EATON.

To Major F. W. ARMSTRONG.

Extract of a letter from Samuel S. Hamilton to Col. William Ward, Indian Agent, Choctaw Agency, dated 27th May, 1831.

"Claims for reservations must be governed entirely by the treaty provisions on that subject. A copy of the treaty has been enclosed to you, but, lest that should be lost or mislaid, another is herewith sent. Copies have also been sent to each of the chiefs, for the information of themselves and their people."

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office Indian Affairs, May 21, 1831.

SIR: Your letter of the 3d inst. is received. Enclosed is a copy of the Choctaw treaty, which you will observe is ratified entirely, and precisely as it was concluded with the Choctaws, with the exception of the preamble. The exception of the preamble is a matter of no consequence to the Indians, as it does not affect, in any way, any article or stipulation of the treaty, all of which will, in due time, be fulfilled in due faith.

You will be careful, in keeping a register of the reservations taken under the 14th article of the treaty, a fair copy of which to be made, duly certified, and transmitted for the information of the department. Your attention is also called to the 5th and 6th division or stipulation of the 19th article. You will keep a register of the claims to be filed under these stipulations, also, noting therein everything necessary to a proper understanding of the claims, that justice may be done to all intended to be provided for by the treaty. Certified copies of these registers will be transmitted for the information of the department as early as practicable after the duty is performed.

You are requested to be very particular in attending to these matters, as great reliance is placed on you for correct information in regard to them. You are also expected to attend to any and everything else that, as agent, it is required of you by the treaty to do towards its execution.

As respects the payment of the annuity of the Choctaws for this year, the Secretary of War directs me to inform you that, as the Choctaws are about to move west, a compliance on your part with the instructions of the Second Comptroller on this subject will not be required. You are therefore at liberty to pay the annuity to the chiefs, and take their receipts for the same as you have heretofore done.

I am, &c., &c.

SAMUEL S. HAMILTON.

To Col. WILLIAM WARD, Indian Agent, &c.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, June 4, 1831.

SIR: I beg leave to call your attention to the supplemental article of the treaty, where it is stipulated that the persons there provided for are not to have the benefit of the 19th article of the treaty: they are excluded.

It is so important to be accurately informed of the persons who are entitled to reservations, and the size they shall be, that it is thought best to appoint one other assistant. This will enable you to act with greater rapidity and more accuracy, as well in relation to the reservations as to the number of inhabitants of the country. Archibald Litle is directed to report to you.

The whole amount of reservations, to the utter extent, under the 9th article, cannot exceed 458,000 acres, and upon close examination must, no doubt, fall greatly below this. I mean that the number in each class, as there limited, will not come up to the limit. There cannot be so many cultivators of the soil. But beside this, all these in the supplement are excluded from the 19th article. The agent though has lately reported that there are already registered claims to very nearly half a million, which shows that frauds are in progress. To guard against them, vigilance by you and your assistants will be necessary.

I have thought it advisable, and suggest it to you, to arrange yourself and assistants by natural divisions of the country, where it is practicable; or, otherwise, the same farms and the same persons may be twice assessed. It is a business full of difficulties, many of which we cannot anticipate here; but reliance is had upon the vigilance and good judgment of you and your associates to surmount them.

With great respect, &c.

JOHN H. EATON.

To Major F. W. ARMSTRONG.

Extract of a letter dated June 16, 1831, from Samuel S. Hamilton to Col. William Ward, Indian Agent, &c.

"I am directed by the Secretary of War to inform you that no sale by Indians entitled to reservations under the late treaty, made before the lands are surveyed and located, will be sanctioned by the President; and not then, unless he is satisfied that the Indian has received a fair consideration for his land."

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office Indian Affairs, November 18, 1831.

SIR: I am directed to inform you that the department has decided that the Choctaws have the right, under the late treaty, to make relinquishments until the 1st day of January, 1832, and that any one entitled to a reservation of land under any provision of the treaty may, within the period mentioned, relinquish the same, if he prefers doing so. You will inform the chiefs of this decision; and, as soon as practicable after the expiration of the period aforesaid, return a complete body of the list of claims to reservations left with you by Major Armstrong, showing in the proper column the name of each person who may relinquish his claim.

The claims of Thomas Wall and others to reservations, whose names have been omitted, or improperly entered in the late treaty, will be submitted to Congress; by which body only any errors of this sort, that may have been made in the treaty, can now be corrected.

I am, &c., &c.,

ELBERT HERRING.

To Col. WILLIAM WARD, Choctaw Agent, &c.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, December 29, 1831.

SIR: To guard against speculations and impositions upon the Indians, as well as the government, you will not issue any certificates of valuation, or other evidence of claim for reservations, which have been filed with you, and are to be paid for by the United States under the provisions of the late treaty; but will forward the official book or register kept by you of all such claims, with the proofs submitted to you in conformity to the treaty in support of them, to the department for its information and further directions thereon.

To enable the department to decide who are entitled to reservations under the treaty as "orphan children," you are also required to report, at the same time, the ages of all orphans in whose behalf claims to reservations may have been filed with you agreeable to the provisions of the treaty.

Very respectfully, &c.,

LEW. CASS.

To Col. WM. WARD, Indian Agent.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, June 30, 1832.

SIR: In answer to your letter of the 26th instant, I have the honor to enclose a report from the Bureau of Indian Affairs, by which you will perceive that no relief can be granted in the case of Mrs. Graham, presented by you.

Very respectfully, &c.,

LEWIS CASS.

Hon. F. E. PLUMMER.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office Indian Affairs, June 29, 1832.

SIR: I have the honor to report upon the request of Mrs. Susannah Graham, communicated to the department by the Hon. Mr. Plummer on the 28th instant.

Mrs. Graham's name was returned to this office by Major Armstrong as a head of a family who wished to become a citizen under the 14th article of the treaty of 1830. As such, she would be entitled to a section of 640 acres, and each of her two unmarried children would be entitled to a section of 320 acres. Of these sections they would be entitled to receive a deed in fee simple, if they resided upon, and cultivated them, for five years after the ratification of the treaty.

Mrs. Graham's present request is, that the government would release her from this engagement to become a citizen, and permit her to take a reservation under the 19th article of the treaty.

That article granted a section of 640 acres to heads of families, (not to exceed 40 in number,) who, during the year 1830, had in actual cultivation fifty acres or more, with a dwelling-house thereon. It granted nothing to other members of the family. It appears that not more than ten or eleven persons have taken reservations under this article, and Mrs. Graham is in all respects within its provisions. To entitle herself to all the benefits of them, however, she should have signified her wish to do so prior to the 1st of January, 1832, which she did not do, and, of course, has lost her right, if her request be not granted, to relinquish to the United States, but may sell to individuals, with the consent of the President.

If the government possess the power, under the treaty, to release Mrs. Graham from her engagement to become a citizen, I think it would be for the public interest to permit her to take a reservation under the 19th article, as she requests.

I have the honor, &c., ELBERT HERRING.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, June 28, 1832.

SIR: In answer to your letter of the 24th inst., I have the honor to enclose a report of the officer in charge of the Bureau of Indian Affairs relative to the claim of David W. Wall to a reservation of land granted to him under the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek, which expresses the views of the department upon the subject.

Very respectfully, &c., LEWIS CASS.

Honorable F. E. PLUMMER.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office of Indian Affairs, June 28, 1832.

SIR: I have the honor to state, in relation to the case of Daniel W. Wall, presented by the honorable F. E. Plummer, that, by the second article of the supplement to the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek, a section of land was allowed to the said Wall, to include his then residence and improvement.

It appears by a letter of Wall's father, that D. W. Wall had no building or improvement on any land; that he was, at the date of the treaty, teaching school temporarily in the southeastern section of the nation, but that his permanent residence was in his father's house. If it be taken for granted that he, the said D. W. Wall, is, at all events, under the treaty, entitled to a section of land, then the only question is, as to its location. It cannot include his improvement, because he has none; nor can it include his residence, because that is with his father; to whom, by the same treaty, there is an allowance of land to include his own residence. It results, therefore, in order to give the provision effect, that the section must be located on some unimproved and unoccupied land; and to have the location adjoin that of his father, with whom his son resides, would perhaps best comport with the spirit of the provision. But, as it may have been represented to the commissioners, as an inducement to this reservation, that D. W. Wall had made improvement on land occupied by him, it is respectfully submitted that the department decline acting on this matter, and that the claimant be referred to Congress for the ascertainment of his rights.

I have the honor, &c., ELBERT HERRING.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

Extract of a letter from Noah Wall to the Honorable Frederick Plummer.

"In the second article of the supplement, a section and a half of land is granted to the name of Thomas Garland, a person not to be found in the nation, and the grant evidently intended for Thomas Wall, but, by mistake, put down as Thomas Garland. Proof, at any time, can be obtained of the above fact, and that there is no such person as Thomas Garland; and that Thomas Wall, whose name was omitted, is the identical person for whom the grant was intended."

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, June 28, 1832.

SIR: In answer to your letter of the 24th inst., I have the honor to enclose you a copy of the report of the officer in charge of the Indian Bureau, and to state that the instructions have been given to place the name of Amelia Trahern on the register, on the production of the certificate referred to in the report.

I have, &c., LEWIS CASS.

Hon. F. E. PLUMMER, House of Representatives, United States.

DEPARTMEMT OF WAR, Office of Indian Affairs, June 28, 1832.

SIR: The Hon. Mr. Plummer has presented to the department his correspondence with you on the subject of Amelia Trahern's right to a reservation under the last Choctaw treaty.

Upon the facts stated by you her right is acknowledged, but to supply the omission of her name on the register you transmitted, and to put the department in possession of a sufficient voucher, you are directed to forward a certificate stating that her name was omitted, and ough , in your opinion, to be inserted in the register of orphan Choctaw children.

Very respectfully, ELBERT HERRING.

To Col. WILLIAM WARD.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office of Indian Affairs, June 27, 1832.

SIR: In obedience to your direction to report upon the case of Amelia Trahern, presented by the Hon. F. E. Plummer, I have the honor to state that, although the register of names of orphan Choctaw children to be provided for by the Choctaw treaty of 1830, forwarded to the department by Gen. W. Ward, does not contain the name of Amelia Trahern, yet there is reason to believe, from the letter of Gen. W. Ward, of the 24th of May last, to the Hon. Mr. Plummer, and herein enclosed, that the name of Amelia Trahern ought to have been inserted in that register.

It appears from the letter of Gen. Ward that he was requested to enter the names of three orphans of the name of Trahern, one male and two females, which he did on his memorandum book. That Mackay, an interpreter, went afterwards through the nation, by Gen. Ward's order, to take down the names of parents and children, and their ages, and that he reported only two orphans of the name of Trahern; and, being asked why the name of Amelia was not on his register, he replied that she was sixteen or seventeen years of age, and that he did not think her entitled to the provision of the treaty. It further appears that Gen. Ward was told that both her parents were dead, and that he, Ward, knew that her father had a wife when he died, who was not the mother of Amelia; and that he was acquainted with Wesley Trahern, the father of the three children named in Mr. Plummer's letter, of whom Amelia was one.

I am of opinion, from this explanatory letter of Gen. Ward, that the name of Amelia Trahern was improperly omitted, and ought to have been inserted in the aforesaid register transmitted to the department.

I am of opinion that Peggy Trahern was the second or subsequent wife of Wesley Trahern; and that provision for her and her two fatherless children, Letha and the boy, was made by the second article of the supplement to the aforesaid treaty, and that Amelia was the daughter of the said Wesley Trahern by a former wife; that both her parents were dead; and that she is entitled to a quarter section of land under the nineteenth article of the said treaty.

The name of Amelia Trahern ought, however, to appear on the aforesaid register, or there should be a certificate by Gen. Ward that the name was omitted, and ought to have been inserted in said register. Gen. Ward should, therefore, be written to for such a certificate.

I have the honor to be, &c. ELBERT HERRING.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON CITY, June 26, 1833.

SIR: Mrs. Susan, alias Susannah Graham, of the Choctaw nation, has, as appears from your letter to me of the 10th of March last, enclosing a report from the Bureau of Indian Affairs, signified her intention of removing, and becoming a citizen of the States according to the provisions of the 14th article of the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek, and is entitled to a reservation of land under said article. She now prefers to take an unconditional reservation under and by virtue of the nineteenth article of said treaty.

I therefore request you to inform me whether she can at this time take a reservation of one section of land under the nineteenth article of the treaty aforesaid. The register will show that she had in actual cultivation, during the year 1830, more than fifty acres of land, with a dwelling-house thereon. I send you the register herewith, which you will please retain, as it belongs to your department.

Most respectfully, your obedient servant,

F. E. PLUMMER.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON CITY, June 24, 1832.

SIR: I take the liberty of referring to you so much of the enclosed letter of Noah Wall (see X,) as relates to a reservation of land granted to D. W. Wall by the 2d article of the supplement to the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek made with the Choctaws, and respectfully request your opinion thereon. It appears that he had no improvement of his own. Can he make his location, under the provisions of the treaty, adjoining his father's reservation?

Most respectfully, your obedient servant, F. E. PLUMMER.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON CITY, June 24, 1832.

SIR: On the 5th of April last, I addressed you on the subject of the business of Amelia and Letha Trahern, who claim one quarter section of land each, under and by virtue of the nineteenth article of the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek held on the 27th day of September, 1830, with the Choctaws.

By the report of the officer in charge of the Indian Bureau, enclosed in your reply of the 9th same month, I learn that the register of the names forwarded to the War Department by Col. Ward, agent for the Choctaws, contains the name of Letha, but not the name of Amelia Trahern.

I now take the liberty of enclosing to you a correspondence on the subject between Col. Ward and myself, and request that the name of Amelia Trahern may be placed on the register, or on file in the War Department, as an orphan, under the article of the treaty before referred to, entitled to a quarter section of land. You will discover from the letter of Col. Ward that Amelia Trahern comes within the provisions of the 19th article of the treaty, and that she filed her application within the time specified. The agent had no authority to strike her name from the list, nor had he, Mackay, any authority to decide that she was not an orphan, and did not come within the provisions of the treaty because 16 or 17 years of age. I presume that it is unnecessary to say anything more upon the subject.

Most respectfully, &c., F. E. PLUMMER.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office of Indian Affairs, April 7, 1832.

SIR: In reply to the inquiry of the Honorable F. E. Plummer, I have the honor to state that the register of the names of orphan Choctaw children to be provided for by the Choctaw treaty of 1830, transmitted to the department by the Choctaw agent, Col. William Ward, contains the name of Letha Trahern, but does not contain the name of Amelia Trahern.

I have, &c., ELBERT HERRING.

To the Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, April 9, 1832.

SIR: Your letter of the 5th instant in relation to reservations of Choctaw lands in favor of Amelia and Letha Trahern has been received, and, in answer, I have the honor to enclose a report of the officer in charge of the Indian Bureau, which furnishes the information requested.

Very respectfully, &c., LEWIS CASS.

To the Honorable F. E. PLUMMER, House Representatives, United States.

WASHINGTON CITY, April 5, 1832.

DEAR SIR: I take the liberty of requesting you to inform me whether the agent of the Choctaws has forwarded to the War Department any returns of the application of Amelia and Letha Trahern to obtain a reservation of land, as orphans, under the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek. Peggy Trahern and her two fatherless children, who are provided for in the supplement to said treaty, and referred to in the letter of Mr. Herring, (of the War Department,) under date of January 11, are not the persons to whom I refer.

Most respectfully, your obedient servant,

F. E. PLUMMER, Com. of Public Lands.

Honorable LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, March 10, 1832.

SIR: The enclosed report from the Bureau of Indian Affairs will give you the information called for by your letter of the 23d ultimo.

Claims of Susan Graham and Ann V. L. S. McIlvaine.

Very respectfully, &c., LEWIS CASS.

To the Honorable F. E. PLUMMER, House Representatives, United States.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office of Indian Affairs, March 10, 1832.

SIR: In obedience to your direction to report on the claims of Susannah Graham and Ann V. Lewellen to reservations of land under the late Choctaw treaty concluded at Dancing Rabbit creek, which claims were presented by the Honorable F. E. Plummer, I have the honor to state that, on the register made by the agent, Colonel Ward, and transmitted to this office, of the names of the Choctaw Indians, who had legally signified their intention to remain and become citizens of the States according to a provision of the said treaty, the names of Susannah Graham and Ann V. Lewellen are returned; and that, on the said register, each of them is represented as having a child. It is apprehended, therefore, that by virtue of the said report of the agent, contained in the said register, that each of them, the said Susannah Graham and Ann V. Lewellen, is entitled to a full section of land under the 14th article of the said treaty.

I have, &c., ELBERT HERRING.

To the Honorable LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office Indian Affairs, March 12, 1833.

SIR: Having been instructed by you to report on the subject of reservations of land allowed to James L. McDonald and Robert Jones by the treaty concluded at Dancing Rabbit creek, I have the honor to state, that, by the second article of the supplement to the said treaty, there was allowed to each of them, the said James L. McDonald and Robert Jones, a section and a half of land, with permission to them to locate one section each, and one section jointly, on any unimproved and unoccupied land in the Choctaw country.

The treaty was ratified on the 24th day of February, 1831; and, since that period, James L. McDonald has died intestate.

After the ratification of the treaty, each of them had the right to locate for himself a section of land on any unimproved and unoccupied land in the Choctaw territory; and that right is still vested separately in Jones and the legal representatives of McDonald. The remaining section, which they were authorized to locate jointly, belongs equally to Jones and the legal representatives of McDonald; and they have the concurrent right to locate and then divide it.

I have, &c., ELBERT HERRING.

To the Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

Extract of a letter from Elbert Herring, Esq., Commissioner of Indian Affairs, to Col. Wm. Ward, dated March 13, 1832.

"I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 8th ult., and also a copy of the register of names of orphan Choctaw children."

CHOCTAW AGENCY, February 8, 1833.

SIR: I have the honor to receive your letter of the 29th December respecting the issuing certificates for Indian claims to reserves for land in the Choctaw nation: this request shall be rigidly complied with. In no instance except three or four, have I given any certificate or sanction to any sale of Indian lands, and those for common land, well known, and at the request of the vender. I have some time since returned a copy of the register of the names of orphan Choctaw children, with such remarks as I was able to obtain from the best source, to do justice to all interested; but the ages of the children could not be had, as Indians know nothing about their ages. After the chiefs and captains had given in their numbers, one of the interpreters took the names and went throughout the nation, and corrected every error that he thought had been made, and certified it on oath that he had faithfully discharged this duty.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

W. WARD, Agent C. N.

To the Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, February 21, 1832.

SIR: The several memorials and petitions of the Choctaws upon the subject of reservations and stolen property, which you have presented to the department at their request, have been placed on file in the Office of Indian Affairs, and a proper disposition of them will be made at the next session of Congress.

I am, sir, &c., JOHN ROBB, Acting Secretary of War.

To Major F. W. ARMSTRONG, Agent for Choctaws, West.

WASHINGTON CITY, February 23, 1832.

DEAR SIR: I beg leave to trouble you again on the subject of the claims of some of my Indian friends and constituents to land, under the late treaty with the Choctaws.

I find, on an examination of the return made to the War Department, the name of Susan Graham registered among the "names of Indians owning farms;" that she had in cultivation one hundred and ten acres, valued at six hundred and forty dollars, &c. (See form of return, page No. 1, which I herewith send to you for your inspection.) Is this such a registration of her name, and such a signification of her intention to become and remain a citizen of the States, as will entitle her to a reservation of land under the provisions of the 14th article of the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek? If it is not, be pleased to inform me what she must do in order to secure to her a reservation under said article in case she neglected to signify her intention within six months from the ratification of the treaty. Can it be done without a special act permitting her to do so? She is an intelligent and good woman, but a poor widow, and thinks that the agent and the leading men of the nation do not intend to do her justice. She did make application to register her name within the six months, but thinks that it will not be returned; and that it is the intention of Leflore and Ward to confine her to the provisions of the cultivation clause in the 19th article of said treaty.

The name of Ann V. L. L. McEllyn is also registered on the same page, with this memorandum under the head of "general remarks:" "Settlement made in the spring, 1830. Since the treaty lived with her mother." It is true, I believe, that she has lived herself in the house with her mother, Susan Graham; but her hands (negroes) have been, ever since the spring of 1830, actually on, and cultivating, the land under her directions and control. There is also a mistake made in the spelling of her name: her name is "Ann V. Llewellyn." Will these facts, or either of them, exclude her from the benefit of the 14th article of the treaty? Mrs. Llewellyn also signified to the agent, within the time prescribed, her intention of remaining and becoming a citizen; but anticipates the intention of the agent, and others, to confine her to the cultivation clause, or exclude her entirely from the land provisions of the treaty.

I respectfully ask your opinion on these points, at the request of the Committee on Public Lands, to whom the subject has been referred, who will be governed in their report according to the opinions you may express.

Most respectfully, your obedient servant, F. E. PLUMMER.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office Indian Affairs, January 21, 1832.

SIR: Accompanying this letter, I send copies of the abstracts prepared by Major Armstrong, showing the number and position of the Indian reservations made agreeably to the treaty of September 27, 1830, with the Choctaw tribe of Indians. The value of these reservations, and of the other property, was estimated together, nor are there any means by which this office can ascertain the separate value of each.

No evidence exists in this office of any contract having been made for the sale of any of these reservations; nor has any such contract been confirmed or rejected; nor has any license or authority been given to any person or persons to make purchases of said reservations. Copies of all the papers on file in this office, which relate in any manner to this subject, are herewith enclosed.

Very respectfully, &c., ELBERT HERRING.

To his Excellency LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office Indian Affairs, January 17, 1832.

SIR: Many inquiries have been lately made at this office for the purpose of ascertaining whether certain persons had signed their intention of citizenship, conformably to the provisions of the treaty with the Choctaws at Dancing Rabbit creek on the 27th September, 1830.

Will you have the goodness to forward to this department a register of the names of all those persons who have duly signified such intention?

With much respect, &c., ELBERT HERRING.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office of Indian Affairs, January 11, 1832.

SIR: In reply to your several communications, I beg leave to state that the agent, Col. Ward, has not forwarded to this department the names of those persons who have, in due time, signified their intention of citizenship under the 14th article of the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek. He will be instructed to forward to this office the names of all those who have signified such intention; and it is highly probable, from the representations of those persons on whose behalf you have addressed the Secretary of War, that their names will be among the number.

With respect to your inquiries as to Amelia and Letha Trahern, minors and orphans, I find that, in a supplement to the said treaty, the following provision was made for them: "And there is given a quarter section of land each to Peggy Trahern, an Indian woman residing out of the nation, and her two fatherless children."

It is believed that to entitle a person to a conveyance in fee under that treaty on the expiration of five years after its ratification, he must not only have signified his intention of citizenship, but must also have actually resided upon the land during that period.

With great respect, &c., ELBERT HERRING.

To the Hon. F. E. PLUMMER, H. R., U. S.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, January 4, 1832.

DEAR SIR: Misses Amelia and Letha Trahern, natives and citizens of the Choctaw nation, Mississippi, request to know whether their names have been forwarded to the War Department for the purpose of obtaining a quarter section of land each, under, and by virtue of, the 19th article of the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek, held September 27, 1830. They are both minors and orphans. Please to address me on the subject.

Most respectfully, your obedient servant, F. E. PLUMMER.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, January 4, 1834.

DEAR SIR: Mrs. Susan Graham, a widow, of the Choctaw nation, registered her name with the agent within six months after the ratification of the treaty of "Dancing Rabbit creek," for the purpose of entitling her to a section of land under the provisions of the 14th article of that treaty. She is apprehensive from some cause, that it has not been entered of record, nor forwarded to the War Department. Please inform me on this subject.

Most respectfully, your obedient servant, F. E. PLUMMER.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON CITY, December 3, 1832.

SIR: Mr. William Ott, of the Choctaw tribe of Indians, Mississippi, claims, as he informs me, a half section of land under and by virtue of the provisions of 19th article, (cultivation clause,) of the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek, and requests to know whether his name is registered according to the provisions of the treaty in such case required, and on file in the department. Please give me the desired information.

Most respectfully, your obedient servant,

F. E. PLUMMER.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office Indian Affairs, December 11, 1832.

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 3d instant to the Secretary of War, respecting a claim to land by William Ott, one of the Choctaw tribe of Indians.

William Ott's name is registered as entitled to three hundred and twenty acres of land, according to the provisions of the treaty of 28th September, 1830, with that tribe, and is on file in this office.

I have the honor to be, &c.,

ELBERT HERRING.

Hon. F. E. PLUMMER.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, August 6, 1832.

SIR: A communication has been received, signed by Hawkins, Folsom, and the Pitchlynns, in which they remonstrate against a construction which has been given to the clause of the nineteenth article of the treaty, which refers to the location of quarter sections. That construction requires the reservations to be bounded by quarter section lines, to be contiguous and adjoining, and to include that part of the improvements which contains the dwelling house. The persons above named seem to think that the treaty does not require the reservations to be bounded by quarter section lines of survey. You will perceive that their error originates in overlooking the sentence, "each of said class of cases shall be subject to the limitations contained in the first class." The department, therefore, considers the construction objected to, to be the true one, and not open to doubt. But, as it is farther represented that many of the reservations are so near to each other, that this rule cannot be applied without depriving some of their just rights, the matter is referred to you.

You will please to report your opinion upon this clause of the treaty, and also to state whether so much inconvenience or injury will result from the interpretation herein given to it as will render it expedient to carry it into effect. Meanwhile, the Choctaws will be referred to you for the ultimate decision of the department.

I am, sir, &c., JOHN ROBB, Acting Secretary of War.

To Major FRANCIS W. ARMSTRONG, Indian Agent, &c.

CHOCTAW AGENCY, October 19, 1832.

SIR: Your letter of the 28th June I had the honor to receive some time since, respecting the claim of Amelia Trahern to a reserve of land as an orphan under a provision of a treaty with the Choctaws in the year 1830. I have to observe that Wesley Trahern had two wives. He, Wesley, is dead; and his first wife, by the name of Delilah, is also dead. They had, at the time of making the late treaty of 1830, several children living: the three youngest was by the names of Amelia, Letha, and Washington: the oldest, Amelia, was about sixteen or seventeen years of age when the interpreters registered the names of the Choctaw orphan children; and he supposed her, (as he has since told me,) not to come under the class of orphans, is the reason that her name is not found on the book returned by me to the Office of Indian Affairs. These children of Trahern are all yet single, and dependent upon their friends for support in a great measure. Wesley Trahern, the deceased father of Amelia, Letha, and Washington, before his death, intermarried with the second wife, whose name was Agnes, who since has married a man by the name of Foster.

I am requested to state to the Department of War that the names of Tobbee or Tob-bch-ub-bee, James his son, A-nov-a-hah, and Phi-le-ke-chub-bee, say that they applied in August or September, 1831, to have their names registered as citizens, and have the benefit of a provision in said treaty of 1830. The book in this office does not show any entry to that effect.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your most obedient servant,

W. WARD, Agent C. N., E. Mississippi.

P. S.—Peggy Trahern is no way connected with Wesley Trahern, deceased, nor with his two wives, Delilah, deceased, or Agnes, who survived him. W. W.

ELBERT HERRING, Esq., Washington City.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Office Indian Affairs, November 3, 1832.

SIR: Your letter of the 19th ultimo, mentioning the reason why the name of Amelia Trahern was not inserted in the list of Choctaw orphans transmitted to the department, has been received.

The application for reservations of land by Tubbee and others, whose names are mentioned in your letter, cannot be granted. The treaty requires that each head of a family, being desirous to remain and be a citizen of the States, should be permitted to do so by signifying his intention to the agent within six months from the ratification of the treaty, and that he should therefore be entitled, &c.

This appears to have been omitted. They represent that they signified such intention. You say that the books of your office make no mention of the fact; nor have you expressed any opinion or belief of the truth of their assertion. No good reason is perceived for the interposition of the department in their behalf.

With much respect, &c., ELBERT HERRING.

To Col. WILLIAM WARD, Choctaw Agency, Miss.

CHOCTAW AGENCY, January 20, 1832.

SIR: I herewith enclose to the Department of War three registers of the three Choctaw districts—claims to reserves of land, as allowed by the three chiefs, and Major Armstrong, special agent for that object. Copies of Major Armstrong's books were left with me, that all those who wished to relinquish their claims to government might have an opportunity to do so by the first of this inst. You will observe that all who signified their wish to relinquish, it is written opposite their names under the column headed "relinquished." I retain a true copy of the original, made out by Armstrong for me, which can be forwarded to the west when required. I have been as particular in this business as possible, and I trust you will find no errors upon comparing these registers with the returns filed in the War Office by Major Armstrong.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your most obedient servant,

WM. WARD, U. S. Agent Choctaws.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

I do hereby certify that the foregoing register of Choctaw orphan children was taken by me, by order of the Choctaw agent, and that I have faithfully attended to this duty, to the best of my knowledge, throughout the nation. It is to be observed that the names of the orphan children and parents are in separate columns, and the sexes; but the age of the children could not be ascertained, as Indians know nothing about their ages. All this duty was done previous to the 23d of July, 1831.

Given under my hand, this 17th day of December, 1831.

Indians will scarcely ever tell their names, nor do they know anything about their ages.

M. MACKAY, U. S. Int.

I do certify that Mr. Midn. Mackay, a sworn interpreter for the Choctaw nation, has reported to me the foregoing names as orphan children in the Choctaw nation at the time a treaty was entered into at Dancing Rabbit creek in the month of September, 1830. Also, said Mackay was strictly charged by me to perform this duty according to a provision in said treaty respecting orphans. All of this business to be done previous to the 23d July, 1831.

Given under my hand, this 17th day of December, 1831.

W. WARD, U. S. Agent C. N.

It is to be observed that the captains in each district made out lists of the orphan children at the payments of the annuities. But this business I well knew required much accuracy, so as justice might be done to the government as well as the Indians. Therefore, I gave up the papers as made up by the captains to Middleton Mackay, a sworn interpreter, to go throughout the nation, and make due and diligent inquiry of all who might come within the provisions of the treaty, and register the names of all orphans, and their parents, and ages, and sexes, with the place of residence in this nation. Mr. Mackay has returned the foregoing list of names, stating to me it was impossible to get the ages of Choctaw Indians, and that he had done everything in his power to accomplish this work.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

W. WARD, Agent C. N.

Hon. LEWIS CASS, Secretary of War.

23D CONGRESS.] No. 1231. [1ST SESSION.

ON APPLICATION OF THE TRANSYLVANIA COLLEGE, OF KENTUCKY, AND THE PENDLETON ACADEMY, OF THE STATE OF ALABAMA, FOR GRANTS OF LAND FOR THEIR BENEFIT.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES APRIL 17, 1834.

Mr. CLAYTON, from the Committee on the Public Lands, to whom was referred the petition of the Trustees of Transylvania College, of Kentucky, and that of the Trustees of Pendleton Academy, of the State of Alabama, praying for a donation of lands for the encouragement of their respective institutions, reported:

That the disposition of the public lands for such an object, however laudable, cannot be justified either by the Constitution or the manner in which they are held by the government. The only method by which Congress can "promote the progress of science and useful arts," is "by securing, for a limited time, to authors and inventors, the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries." It cannot be denied that the donation of the public lands to seminaries of learning would be to promote the progress of science, and consequently in a way very different from that prescribed in the above clause of the Constitution. By the express specification of the manner and cases in which science and the useful arts shall be encouraged, it is entirely obvious that every other mode is excluded. And this would be very apparent if, instead of an application for a donation of lands from a college, it should come from an inventor of some useful instrument calculated to advance the useful arts. It will be seen, by the clause of the Constitution referred to, that science and the useful arts are placed upon the same footing, and if it is allowed to depart from the prescribed method of promoting the progress of the former, the latter may with equal right claim a similar indulgence, and the committee believe no one is prepared to admit that the public lands could be given away to inventors, however useful their discoveries might be. It may be said that the Constitution had reference to the authors of writings. This idea is refuted, not only by the generality of the expression, "the progress of science," which comprehends the subject in its most unlimited sense, but by the well-known history of this particular clause of the Constitution as found in the journal of the convention. The proposition to clothe Congress with the power to charter a university was thrice presented and rejected by the convention; and after referring that subject, as well as the one relating to the encouragement of the useful arts, to a committee, all that could be obtained was the power as it now stands in the Constitution, and which the committee have before quoted; and this, in their opinion, is too plain to admit of a doubt that the Federal Government has any jurisdiction over the subject of science. Besides this view of the subject, the committee are of opinion the government is further restrained from a disposition of the public lands in the manner required by the petitioners, from its solemn engagements made with the States from which it obtained its cessions of the public lands. In the conveyance made by the State of Virginia of her territory northwestward of the river Ohio, (and substantially in the cessions of lands made by North Carolina and Georgia,) there is to be found the following stipulation: "That all the lands within the territory so ceded to the United States, and not reserved for, or appropriated to, any of the before-mentioned purposes, or disposed of in bounties to the officers and soldiers of the American army, shall be considered a common fund for the use and benefit of such of the United States as have become, or shall become, members of the confederation or federal alliance of the said States, Virginia inclusive, according to their usual respective proportions in the general charge and expenditure, and shall be faithfully and bona fide disposed of for that purpose, and for no other use or purpose whatever." In this stipulation the object and intention are so plainly expressed that it is scarcely necessary to call the attention of Congress to them. If the public lands form "a common fund" for the use and benefit of the States according to their usual respective proportions in the general charge and expenditure, and shall be disposed of for that and no other purpose, how can Congress make partial donations of a common fund for the benefit of seminaries of learning, intended, and so expressly stated, to be disposed of for the sole and exclusive purpose of benefiting the several States in the general charge and expenditure of the government, and that, too, in unequal amounts to some States, and not to others? It appears to the committee that such a proposition cannot seriously be contended for. If the public lands were all sold and reduced to a common fund, in money, lying in the treasury for the objects expressed in the above-quoted agreement, every one would see at once that Congress would not draw the money from that place for the purposes sought by the petitioners; and if they would not, in money, it is not perceived how it can be done while this common fund remains in lands. If a single acre can be used for that purpose, the whole can, and thus the fund would be diverted altogether from its palpably expressed object. And this is not all; if any part of it can be given to one or two seminaries of learning, the whole can to the same, to the exclusion of all the other States. It is no good answer to this objection to say that Congress must take care to distribute the public lands equally among all the literary institutions throughout the United States; this would be most notoriously a departure from the contract of the ceding State; and when once Congress shall substitute its discretion for the express terms of the agreement, it must be plain to every mind that there can be no limits to that discretion, save a sense of its own notions of propriety, most evidently forming no part of the inducements to the cessions of land made by the States to the Federal Government. It must be obvious, too, that if they had the right to change the terms of the contract, it is wholly impracticable to make an equal and impartial distribution of the lands among all the various institutions, high and low, intended to diffuse the benefits of education.

The committee are aware that something is claimed for these applications from the force of precedent, but they cannot for a moment believe, if they have presented a correct view of the subject, that it will be seriously contended that the plain and positive stipulations of a contract, and the still higher and more solemn obligations of the Constitution, shall be made to yield to a practice certainly founded in error, and perhaps without due consideration. Nor can any sanction be drawn from the example of a certain disposition of lands within the new States, where the public domain is situated, for the benefit of schools, inasmuch as such disposition was evidently predicated upon the provision in the Constitution which vested Congress with the "power to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory belonging to the United States." Nothing could so much contribute to the population of the new States as the institution of schools. The means of education certainly furnished the strongest motive to the purchase of the public lands, and a donation for that object in different parts of the territory came properly within those needful "rules and regulations," well calculated to enhance the value of the residue, and was alike due to the condition of the new States that were entirely without the means of offering such an indispensable inducement to their early settlement. This is a regular system in reference to the new States organized from the Territories; and though one of the applications is from a new State, it does not fall within that system; a departure from which would entitle not only the other new States, but the old ones also, to similar donations. Under these opinions, the committee ask to be discharged from the further consideration of the said petitions, and all of a like nature since referred to them.

23D CONGRESS.] No. 1232. [1ST SESSION.

ON PRE-EMPTION TO LANDS IN THE STATE OF OHIO.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES APRIL 17, 1834.

Mr. CAVE JOHNSON, from the Committee of Private Land Claims, to whom was referred the petition of Barbary Wilson, reported:

That the petitioner asks the right of pre-emption to a place upon which she resides, and has resided for the last eight years, upon the military reserve, on the Maumee river, in the State of Ohio. The committee does not think a precedent should be set of allowing any privilege or advantage to individuals, who have settled themselves upon lands of the United States, reserved from sale for the use of the government, and have during the present session rejected other similar applications, and they see no reason why the present application should not share the same fate.

23D CONGRESS.] No. 1233. [1ST SESSION.

ON CLAIM FOR PERMISSION TO LOCATE A MILITARY LAND WARRANT IN ALABAMA OR MISSISSIPPI.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES APRIL 18, 1834.

Mr. CLAYTON, from the Committee on the Public Lands, to whom was referred the petition of Samuel Armstrong Bailey, praying permission to locate a military land warrant in the State of Alabama or Mississippi, have had the same under consideration, and reported:

That the petitioner exhibits a military bounty warrant for two hundred acres of land, issued by the Secretary of War, on the 20th day of February, 1834, to Rebecca Frances Bailey, wife of the petitioner, as sole heir at law of Edward Lloyd, who was a lieutenant in the South Carolina line in the revolutionary army. The petitioner states that said Edward Lloyd died many years ago, after having placed his papers in the hands of a Senator of the United States from Georgia, for the purpose of obtaining the warrant; that the warrant was not obtained during his life; that his only child, being then an infant, knew nothing of the claim, nor did it ever come to her knowledge until since her intermarriage with the petitioner, to wit, within a few years. The petitioner resides within a very short distance of the public lands in Alabama, and not very distant from those in Mississippi, but from five to six hundred miles from the land districts in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois; for the purchase of the lands in which the scrip to which he would be entitled by law in exchange for said warrant is receivable. Under these circumstances, he prays to be allowed to locate his warrant in Alabama or Mississippi. Your committee, considering the request altogether reasonable, report a bill accordingly.

23D CONGRESS.] No. 1234. [1ST SESSION.

APPLICATION OF THE POLISH EXILES FOR A GRANT OF LAND FOR SETTLEMENT.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES APRIL 22, 1834.

To the Representatives of the people of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

The undersigned, Poles, selected by the two hundred and thirty-five placed on the hospitable shores of these United States by order of the Emperor of Austria, venture to address your august body, for such relief as men placed in our peculiar situation may lay claim to.

As long as we had a country that we could call our own, we resolutely fought for her independence, until the overwhelming power of Russia forced us to take refuge in the Austrian and Prussian provinces, asking only for a free passage into France. In the month of April last, the Austrian government, having promised us liberty and protection, suddenly, and without notice, placed us in confinement in the city of Brunn, in Moravia, answering our protests with assurances that, when assembled, we should be sent into France. After three months' confinement, the Austrian government gave us the choice either of returning to Russia; or of embarking for the United States, with the Government of which an arrangement had been made, as we were informed, for our protection and support. As lovers of freedom and of free institutions, we accepted the alternative of living among a free people, although in so doing we had to give up all hopes of the land of our love, of our habits, of our laws, and of our language. Arrived at Trieste, we were there confined for three months, until finally we were embarked on board of two Austrian frigates, and, after a navigation of four months and ten days, landed at New York, in these United States, where we now find ourselves placed in the most critical situation, being ignorant alike of the language and of the customs of the country, and destitute of everything but the means of a few days' support.

Although pilgrims in a foreign land, with nothing but the sad recollection of the past, and hopes for the future, we wish to live a life of active industry, and to become useful to the country of our adoption. Since Providence, in its inscrutable wisdom, has deprived us of the land of our birth, we wish to plant in these United States a second Poland, where our countrymen, the still unconquered sons of adversity, may congregate and prosper.

With these views, we respectfully solicit of your august body a grant of land, under such provisions as will enable us to live by our industry, to rally round us such of our countrymen as may visit these shores, and to become of use and of service to the people of these United States.

And for which aid and assistance, as in duty bound, your petitioners will ever pray.

LEWIS BANEZAKIEWIEZ,
MARTIN ROSIENKIEWIEZ,
DR. CHARLES KRAITSIR,
Committee of the Polish Exiles.

NEW YORK, April 9, 1833.

Some notes concerning the situation of the Polish exiles.

1. The Poles, who were scattered in the different countries of Europe, and who are now transported to these United States, cannot be considered as other emigrants; the reasons of their leaving their home, their situation, and their views for the future, being totally different from those of any other people. They are compelled, by the utmost rigor and perfidy of the Russian government, to say farewell to their sweet home; they cannot trust to the most solemn promulgations of amnesty, which never have been kept faithfully; they had no other choice than to return under the reign of the knout, in the mines of Siberia, in the Muscovite regiments, in the provinces of the Caucasus, or to go to France. This latter country having been precluded to them by the policy of the allied courts, they were sent, by the Austrian and Prussian governments, to this country. Two Austrian ships have already landed two hundred and thirty-five of them, and a third man-of-war (corvette Lipsia) is now on her passage to New York, with fifty or sixty persons. Three Prussian ships, with near seven hundred Poles, destined to New York, New Orleans, and some third port, stopped at Havre, Cowes, and Portsmouth, and it is very doubtful if they will arrive. The private credits, and those of the Prussian government, allowed to them, are already retired, and it is not known if the latter would be renewed or not, in case they arrive.

The petition presented to Congress can, therefore, not be prejudicial to those Poles who shall come later to this country, the time of their arrival not giving any privilege or prerogative to those who are already in this free country.

Forty dollars have been paid to every Pole on board of the Austrian frigates, (four dollars in Malta, three in Gibralter, and thirty-three in New York.) It would be of the greatest importance, and a true benefit, that the resolution of Congress should be known to them soon, in order that they may begin their settlement before the summer—their finances and the season requiring a great economy of time.

The views of the petitioners are, to be of use to the country of their adoption, to the great cause in whose defence they are suffering, to those of their countrymen who should, in progress of time, become victims of oppression. They wish to save the sacred fire of patriotism, of liberty, and of human dignity, under the guidance of the country of Penn, Washington, and so many prototypes of true humanity. They will show to Europe that their presence is only to be feared there, where there is tyranny and degradation of mankind, and that the calumniations of the servile are the most infamous weapons plunged in the heart of Poland.

2. More than half of the two hundred and thirty-five are officers of different degrees, the highest of which is that of major. The minority have been private soldiers. Fifty were in the army before the revolution; the others took up arms in the revolution, and are in consequence more exposed to the resentment of the monarchical governments. The majority are natives of the Polish-Russian provinces, viz., of those which have been taken into possession by Russia in the first division of Poland. The minority are from the kingdom of Poland, created in the Congress of Vienna. The greatest hatred of the Autocrat falls upon the inhabitants of these provinces, which he likes to call his conquests.

Some are above and near sixty years of age; some from seventeen to twenty years; the greater number between twenty-six to forty. Some have been wounded, so that they cannot work as they would. One only has his wife with him; many others left their families at home; some are widowers, but have children.

Almost all the privates and some of the officers of lower degree have been farmers. The majority have lived in the country, and have seen agricultural and similar occupations, and are now willing to work. Some of the young were students when the revolution broke out, and were the most zealous in the exploits of the patriots, as the history of the Polish struggle shows.

They want encouragement to accommodate themselves to a new mode of living; but they feel the most ardent desire to be active in any mode consistent with the customs and institutions of their new fatherland, and their own habits.

3. If the Constitution of these United States would allow the conferring upon settlers the privileges of American citizenship, it would be the most energetic means of encouragement to them to become useful in their new home.

4. The committee, which will occupy itself with the cause of the Polish exiles, will, without doubt, take into consideration that their critical situation requires some speedy arrangement, notwithstanding the explanations and elucidations of several points. The Polish deputation will endeavor to furnish every explication within its power. It would be important to have at least one member upon the committee, who could speak the French language, the knowledge of the English of one of the deputies (Kiewiez) being very trifling, and the two others (Banczakiewiez and Rosienkiewiez) being entirely destitute of it.

5. Belonging to the Poles, who are out of Poland in different countries of Europe, their fate seems to deserve greater pity than that of those who are in this free and happy country. We presume that the state of things in Europe will sooner or later induce many of them to come and join us here—flying from the perfidious and sanguinary policy of the royal conspirators—the artifices and machinations of their spies, agents provocateurs, (fortunately unknown beings in these United States,) and other spiders of the Augean-stable governments. The emeutes, partial insurrections and plans to form new kingdoms in the land of marmottes, are works of the secret policemen of the Holy Alliance and consorts, with a view to compromise those who lent their ears to such chimerical projects, and to have a pretext to persecute the innocent, unhappy, and quiet patriots and liberals; to pollute the sacred cause of liberty in the eyes of cowards, and of the credulous. We think that, in consequence of such and similar commotions, there will be found many weary and tired of their precarious and provisory state of existence, and that they will direct their eyes to these quiet and hospitable shores, where liberty, equality, and humanity are dwelling in spite of their enemies. They will rally around us as brethren, and show that we not only have been dealt with inhumanly in respect to our home, our goods, and families, but that our honor and reputation have been blackened by the everlasting hostilities of the anti-national conspirators.

We cannot give the exact number of the Polish exiles now in France, England, and other countries, but we are of opinion that it amounts to several thousands in France, (perhaps seven thousand,) and about five hundred in England, not counting those who are in Algiers in the French service. In Portugal there may be about five hundred; in different parts of Germany, occupied differently and under false names, about five hundred: some in Switzerland, in Hungary, in Turkey, and Egypt; some in Sweden, &c.

The late Polish army being dissolved, the military conscription made by ukases, by the unchecked will of the Emperor of Russia, there are more than one hundred thousand men of the so called kingdom of Poland, distributed in the Russian regiments on the frontiers of China, Tartary, and Persia, in Wallachia and Moldavia.

Many thousands are transplanted to the interior of Russia, in Astrachan, Siberia, Kamtschatka; many in prisons, or treated in the most inhuman manner, being called not by their names, but by numbers, as so many cattle.

Thousands of children have been transported to the interior, under the pretext of giving them a convenient education, in order to make a new generation—"the present being lost!" (words of the Emperor Nicholas, spoken at Modlin to a deputation of Warsaw, last fall.)

The whole amount of the expatriated Poles, (viz., exiles, deported, transplanted, &c.) is about one hundred and fifty thousand men.

We abstain from speaking of the confiscations, of the different punishments of other kinds, of the means of demoralization and humiliation of our beloved country. These are things too well known to the civilized world to need further explanation.

23d Congress.] No. 1235. [1st Session.

ON CLAIM TO LAND IN LOUISIANA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES APRIL 22, 1834.

Mr. Ashley, from the Committee on the Public Lands, to whom was referred the petition of Henry Stoker, reported:

That, under acts of Congress of the 3d March, 1823, and 26th May, 1824, the petitioner, Henry Stoker, assignee of Alexander Calhoun, claims six hundred and forty acres of land, situate in that part of the State of Louisiana formerly known as the neutral territory, between the Rio Hondo and Sabine river.

Stoker submitted his claim to the board of commissioners appointed, under the acts aforesaid, to examine and adjust private land claims within said district, and adduced evidence sufficient to establish his right to the quantity of land above-mentioned; but in reporting their proceedings to Congress, the commissioners recommended a restrictive clause in the confirmatory act, inasmuch as it had been represented to them that the claim of Stoker might embrace the ground upon which the military works and building at Fort Jessup is situated. Congress, accordingly, when acting on the report of the commissioners, suspended the claim of Stoker, in which situation it has remained ever since.

It appears, from the petitioner's own statement, that his claim embraces the military establishment at Fort Jessup; and it appears also, from abundant evidence, that the petitioner, or the person under whom he claims, was in quiet possession of the aforesaid tract of land, when the same was taken possession of by the United States, and that he is yet in possession of a part of the tract, and has in every particular complied with the requisites of the several laws under which he claims.

Under these circumstances, the committee are of opinion that the right of the individual claiming should not be longer withheld; that as the land claimed by him is found desirable for public purposes, and as he is willing to receive in lieu thereof the same quantity elsewhere, the prayer of the petitioner ought to be granted; a bill, accordingly, is herewith reported for his relief.

23D CONGRESS.] No. 1236. [1ST SESSION.

ON CLAIM TO LAND IN MISSISSIPPI.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES APRIL 25, 1834.

Mr. CAGE, from the Committee on Private Land Claims, to whom was referred the petition of William R. Harmer, reported:

The petitioner alleges that in the winter of 1831, he emigrated from the State of Tennessee to the State of Mississippi, wishing to purchase lands, and not being acquainted with the manner of taking numbers, &c., he applied to the Hon. William Parker, a highly respectable and intelligent gentleman, resident in the section of country where he was desirous of making his location, to take the numbers of an eighth of land upon which the petitioner now resides, to wit, section 33, township 14, range 1 East, and the E. half of the aforesaid S. W. one-fourth. Instead of getting the desired numbers, he had given him corresponding numbers, but in range 1 West. The petitioner states that the land thus entered by mistake is of no value, being subject to inundation; that the mistake was discovered too late to be corrected under the provisions of existing law in reference to such mistakes. The petitioner states he is a man in delicate health, in moderate circumstances, with a large family of children. He asks to be confirmed in his title to the lands upon which he resides, and which is the same he supposed he had entered. The fact in relation to the mistake made in the entry is fully proven by Judge Parker, who furnished the numbers, &c. The committee are of opinion that the petitioner is entitled to relief, and, therefore, report a bill.

23D CONGRESS.] No. 1237. [1ST SESSION.

ON THE APPLICATION OF THE POLISH EXILES FOR LAND FOR SETTLEMENT.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE APRIL 29, 1834.

Mr. POINDEXTER, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the petition of Lewis Banczakiewicz, and others, acting as a committee for and in behalf of two hundred and thirty-five Poles, transported to the United States by the orders of the Emperor of Austria, reported:

The committee do not admit the justice or policy of granting any portion of the public domain to emigrants from foreign countries who voluntarily seek an asylum on our shores from the arbitrary governments of Europe.

Neither the usages of civilized nations, or the principles of our free institutions, require of this government more than is due to the rites of hospitality and the protection of the laws, to the inhabitants of the old world who come among us to enjoy the blessings of liberty, and partake of the general prosperity and happiness of this highly favored country. These have been uniformly extended, and in no instance denied, to foreigners of every nation, besides the privilege of becoming naturalized citizens according to the liberal system established by law for that purpose.

To justify a departure from this general rule in any particular case, facts and circumstances appealing forcibly to the benevolence of the nation ought to be clearly demonstrated as the basis on which the exception is founded. The committee have attentively considered the peculiar condition of these unfortunate exiles from their native land, in connection with the strong claims which they seem to present for relief, and have unanimously agreed to recommend their case to the favor of the Senate. The history of the recent revolution in Poland is so well known and understood, that any attempt to recapitulate the events of that glorious and arduous struggle in the great cause of human liberty may be deemed superfluous and unnecessary. These petitioners constitute a small remnant of that gallant army who engaged in the desperate and unequal conflict with the overwhelming power of the Russian empire, and who firmly resolved that Poland should be free, or be blotted for ever from the map of nations. They bravely fought for the independence of their country, to which they were bound by every feeling of patriotism and affection; they won many battles by prodigies of valor never surpassed in any age or country; they stood undismayed by the powerful enemy against whom they had to contend, and confidently appealed to the sympathies of the civilized nations of Europe to sustain them in a cause so just; but their appeals were made in vain, and their hopes were destined to end in cruel disappointment. This short and bloody war terminated in the overthrow of a persecuted, brave, and generous people, contending for their long-lost liberty, and the restoration of their ancient rights, as one of the great family of independent nations. Overpowered by numbers, and driven by repeated defeats to the verge of despair, the noble chivalry of Poland retired from the contest, and bade farewell to freedom, country, and everything dear to the heart of civilized men. These petitioners, it appears, sought refuge and protection in the provinces of Austria and Prussia, asking only a passage into France, which they allege was promised them by the Austrian government. They assembled at the city of Brünn, in Moravia, to receive their passports according to previous assurances given them, when they were suddenly arrested, thrown into close confinement, and, after an imprisonment of three months, the alternative was presented to them of returning to Russia, or of embarking on board an Austrian vessel for transportation to the United States of America. They accepted the latter proposal, and were removed to Trieste; again imprisoned three months, and finally embarked on board two Austrian frigates prepared for the purpose; and, at the expiration of a voyage of four months and ten days, were landed in the city of New York, at which place their petition is dated. These facts are set forth by the petitioners, and the committee have no reason to doubt their accuracy. The question then arises whether this government ought to extend its beneficence to these petitioners, and grant to each of them a few acres of land for actual cultivation, on which they may find a new home, where, by honest industry, they may earn a comfortable subsistence for themselves and their families, free from the persecutions of their inexorable oppressors?

The committee believe that both principle and precedent combine to recommend the adoption of such a measure, under suitable modifications and restrictions. The emigrants from France, in the year 1817, who were expelled from their country soon after the downfall of the Emperor Napoleon, received a grant of four contiguous townships of land in Alabama on the most favorable terms, amounting nearly to a donation. Many similar grants are to be found on our statute book, made to individuals and associations for useful or benevolent purposes. Again: in the year 1812, Congress, actuated by like feelings and considerations, appropriated the sum of fifty thousand dollars to the sufferers by an earthquake at Venezuela. But without regard to these cases, in which the general principles of legislation were departed from, the committee perceive in the circumstances under which these emigrants ask of Congress a grant of land enough to warrant the conclusion at which they have arrived in favor of the prayer of the petitioners. Poland, so often the theatre of sanguinary wars, originating in violations of solemn compacts on the part of those powers by whose combined arms that ill-fated country was conquered and partitioned, made a last desperate and expiring effort to regain her freedom and independence. The surrounding nations looked with cold indifference on the struggle, evidently prepared, if necessary, to render their aid to the Emperor of Russia in the subjugation of the Polish army. The result, though for some time suspended by the valor of that small and inadequate force, was at no period of the conflict doubtful. The army was dispersed, the country desolated, the fugitives who escaped the general slaughter were denied the hospitality of neutral States, and could find no resting place on the territories of the crowned heads, whose despotic rule they had resisted in asserting the natural and inherent right, as freemen, to govern themselves. Expelled from their own country, imprisoned in Austria and Prussia, refused permission to enter France, they were left to choose between despotism, and perhaps the gibbet, by returning to Russia, and involuntary transportation to these States, where they now enjoy, for the first time, the protection of the laws, and the rights and immunities which belong to the human race wheresoever they may be cast by the dispensations of divine Providence. Humbled by misfortunes; deprived of a country and a home; destitute of the ordinary means of subsistence; in a strange land, whose language they do not speak or understand, and with whose customs they are wholly unacquainted, these petitioners throw themselves on the liberality and clemency of a magnanimous people, and a free government, for a habitation where they may repose in peace and safety, and where, by the labor of their own hands, they may be enabled to rescue themselves from their present wretched condition of want and dependence. The committee think that, in granting the prayer of the petitioners, this government will manifest a proper regard for the sufferings of the unfortunate of all countries who may be cast on our shores; a comity due from one portion of the human family to another, which ought to be acknowledged and felt by all; and thereby exhibit to the civilized world a glowing contrast between the arbitrary rulers who oppress and persecute these exiled patriots and fallen defenders of liberty, and the chivalry of a free people who receive them with a friendly welcome, and provide for their immediate necessities. The noble example may not be lost in its effects on the great cause of free principles. The history of our own glorious struggle for liberty and independence, and of the distinguished foreigners who mingled in the conflict, is well calculated to urge the claim of the petitioners to the relief which they ask at our hands. Shall the countrymen of Pulaski, of De Kalb, and of Kosciusko, supplicate in vain the descendants of the patriots of the revolution for succor and support, when the tyrants of Europe refuse them a resting place because they are the soldiers of liberty? The committee think not, and, in this opinion, they confidently rely upon the cordial co-operation of the Senate, and of the great body of the American people. The committee, therefore, without entering into the question of pecuniary assistance, which they respectfully leave to the sound discretion of the Senate, unanimously concur in recommending that a donation of one entire township of land, to be located under the direction of the President of the United States, in the State of Illinois, or Territory of Michigan, be granted to the two hundred and thirty-five Poles, and divided among them in equal proportions, for actual habitation and cultivation; for which purpose they report a bill.

Andrew T. Perry.....	Sparta, (Alabama) ...	29,755 57	....	Suit ordered April 28, 1828, against the principal and his sureties, in the southern district of the State of Alabama, for the recovery of $29,755.57. The attorney of Alabama advised by letter, dated December 4, 1828, that Perry, the principal, had absconded with his property to the State of Mississippi. Judgment rendered against the principal in the district of Mississippi at April term, 1829, for $32,507.95, and instructions given to marshal to levy on negroes, &c., in the possession of one James Bush, a brother-in-law of Perry, the principal. The marshal declined levying on the negroes in the possession of Bush, and supposed to belong to Perry, without the assurance of indemnity, &c. This assurance the late agent of the Treasury did not feel authorized to give. He, therefore, in order to adopt some course to ascertain the right to the property in question, recommended to the district attorney by letter, dated August 12, 1829, to file a bill in chancery, &c. The marshal, in his return for October, 1829, advises that he has levied upon personal property in the hands of Bush, and also a tract of land, &c. The district attorney advises by letter, dated January 10, 1830, that he has filed a bill in chancery; that a levy was made on the judgment against Perry on property in the possession of Bush, and that a bond was given for the trial of the right of property; and that he has little doubt but that it can be proven that the property in Bush's possession was purchased with money received by Perry for the United States, &c. The district attorney, in his return of the district court for January term, 1831, advises that the bond for the trial of the right of property was quashed, and execution issued against Andrew T. Perry, returnable to June term, 1831. Same proceedings in the case of James Bush. Execution for $32,507.95 in the hands of John Campbell, marshal of Mississippi, per his receipt, dated February 1, 1831. No report yet received from the marshal.

23d Congress.] No. 1239. [1st Session.

ON CLAIM TO LAND IN OHIO.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES APRIL 30, 1834.

Mr. Cave Johnson, from the Committee of Private Land Claims, to whom was referred the petition of James Brewer, reported:

That the petitioner alleges, that on the 30th of January, 1832, that he applied to the register of the Land Office at Zanesville, for the purchase of the southwest quarter of section No. 14, township 8, range 3. That he was a stranger to the register, and the mode of transacting the business, and followed the directions of the register, and paid two hundred dollars in cash, the price of the land, and received the duplicate receipt of the receiver. Some months afterwards, he learned that the validity of his purchase was questioned, because the payment was made in land scrip, and declared void on that account by the Commissioner of the General Land Office; and that the same quarter section has been since sold to John Beninger. He says he was interrogated by the register at the time of his purchase, and another person, who he supposed, to be a public officer or clerk, whether the land was occupied, and that he informed him that Beninger lived on the land, and says there was then no law in existence giving a right of pre-emption to occupants. He avers he paid the register in cash as directed by him. That he never owned any land scrip, and heard nothing of land scrip when the entry was made; and concludes that the scrip was substituted by the register, or with his knowledge, or by his connivance with the supposed clerk, whose name he has since learned is Charles C. Gilbert, a speculator in scrip. He also alleges that there is a "pretended affidavit" in the register's office, in which he is represented to have sworn there was no resident on the land. He alleges that he never read it or heard of it at the time, and that it must have been manufactured by Gilbert. He says he signed several papers without reading them, supposing them to be the common papers signed when purchases are made. He alleges he applied for redress at the General Land Office, and could neither get his land or money.

The deposition of Michael Felter is taken, who knew the register, Thomas Flood, and that Flood was present during the whole of the transaction between Brewer and Gilbert, who he also supposed a clerk; and that Brewer paid one hundred and ninety dollars in silver, and two five-dollar notes, which were received in payment of the land; and that papers were signed without being read, which he supposed the common papers at the time of sale, but that no affidavit was made, and details the conversation particularly as to the settlers, and substantially as stated by the petitioner. The deposition of James Brewer accompanies the petition, swearing to the facts contained. A copy of the affidavit is also produced, by which the said Brewer purports to have sworn that no person resided on the land before "C. C. Gilbert, president of Zanesville." A receipt is also produced for the money, signed "B. Vanhorn, receiver."

Upon this statement of facts before the committee, they called upon the Commissioner of the General Land Office, to ascertain what had been done in relation thereto at the Land Office, and it seems the affidavits had been submitted to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, and an examination made by him into the conduct of the register at Zanesville, which satisfied him that no improper conduct was imputable to the register, Thomas Flood. The committee have also examined the statements of Flood and Gilbert, and the receiver, and come to the conclusion that no improper conduct can or ought to be imputed to Thomas Flood, the register. They think it probable that a coloring has been given to the transaction in the affidavits submitted to them, of which it is not properly susceptible, and that no steps ought to be taken against the register in consequence of said statements.

The committee is also of opinion, that the petitioner has no claim against the United States, either for the land purchased by him or the money. That Beninger, the occupant, was entitled to the right of pre-emption under the act of Congress of the 29th May, 1830, and that the question was properly settled at the Land Office; but that he is entitled to the scrip paid by him for the land. That if he has been injured, it has been the result of this contract with Gilbert, with which the government should in no way be connected.

23d Congress.] No 1240. [1st Session.

ON CLAIM TO LAND IN MISSOURI.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES APRIL 30, 1834.

Mr. Cave Johnson, from the Committee of Private Land Claims, to whom was referred the petition of Adam C. Wood, reported:

The petitioner alleges, that on the 26th of July, 1827, at the sale of land at Franklin, Missouri, he purchased and paid for two eighty-acre tracts of land, particularly described in the petition, at one dollar and twenty-seven cents per acre; and also alleges, that the officers of the government refuse him a patent. Upon inquiry at the Land Office, it appears that the two tracts of land were sold on the 25th of July to Joseph Dulaney, for upwards of four dollars per acre, but the land not being paid for by Dulaney, on the next day the tract of land was offered again for sale, in consequence of the failure of Dulaney to pay, and was upon the second sale sold to Delany for one dollar and twenty-seven cents, who is a near neighbor, and as the register supposes, a relative of Dulaney. The register also informs the department, that a bargain had been made, and three hundred dollars given to prevent bidding at the sale of the land against Woods, and names the individuals who can prove the contract and the payment of the money.

Under these circumstances, a patent has been refused to Woods, unless he pays the amount for which the land sold at the first place; and notice has also been given him, that the money paid by him would be refunded upon proper application.

Under these circumstances, the committee is of opinion, that the decision made by the officers of the government, refusing to issue a patent, was correct; and that no patent ever should issue to the claimant until there is a payment to the government the amount of the sale on the 25th of July, or until an investigation be had into the conduct of the parties concerned in the purchase, and clear and satisfactory proof of the proper conduct of those individuals.

23D CONGRESS.] No. 1241. [1ST SESSION.

ON THE MESSAGE OF THE PRESIDENT, RETURNING WITH HIS OBJECTIONS THE BILL FOR THE DISTRIBUTION OF THE PROCEEDS OF THE SALES OF THE PUBLIC LANDS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE MAY 2, 1834.

Mr. CLAY, from the Committee on the Public Lands, to whom was referred the message of the President of the 4th December, 1833, returning, with his objections, the bill which had originated in the Senate, and had passed both Houses of Congress at the preceding session, entitled "An act to appropriate, for a limited time, the proceeds of the sales of the public lands of the United States, and for granting land to certain States;" and to whom was also referred a new bill, with the same title, introduced into the Senate at the present session of Congress, reported:

That the committee has examined and considered the message of the President with all the respect and attention due to a co-ordinate branch of the government; and being, after mature and deliberate consideration, unable to coincide with the President in all his reasoning and conclusions, the committee requests the indulgence of the Senate in submitting the views and opinions which it entertains on the several matters presented or discussed by the President.

The committee, in the first place, must express its regret that a bill which had been passed by the last Congress should have been retained by the President until the commencement of the present. By the Constitution, the President is invested with power to negative any bill which shall have passed both Houses of Congress; but this power, which was conferred not so much for legislative purposes as to enable the Executive branch of government to protect itself against encroachments which might possibly be attempted upon its lawful authority, is limited and qualified by the express provisions of the Constitution. According to these, when the President does negative a bill, he is required to return it, and, if it again pass each House by a majority of two-thirds, it becomes a law, notwithstanding the President's negative. By retaining this bill, and not returning it to the Congress which passed it, the qualified veto of the President was converted, in effect, into an absolute veto. Congress has lost all power over the bill; the last Congress having ceased to exist cannot act upon it; and the present Congress cannot act upon it, because it did not pass it. By thus retaining a bill, its passage into a law may be defeated by the President, although, if he were to return it to the Congress which passed it, with his objections, it might be again passed by a constitutional majority of two-thirds; and such the committee believes would have been the case if the bill in question had been returned by the President to the last Congress.

The framers of the Constitution, anticipating the possible attempts of a chief magistrate to defeat the passage of bills which had passed both Houses of Congress, by retaining them an indefinite length of time, prescribed a period within which they should be returned by him, or become laws, without his approbation. "If any bill" (says the Constitution) "shall not be returned by the President within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress, by their adjournment, prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law." If it should be argued that the bill in question, having been presented to the President on the second of March, 1833, and the session closing on the third, Congress had, by its adjournment, prevented its return within the period limited by the Constitution, two answers present themselves: 1st. It was not an adjournment, but a dissolution of Congress. The termination of the alternate, or, as it is usually called, the short session of Congress, is fixed in the Constitution. It is the end of the Congress; it is on that day dissolved. The day never comes by surprise or unexpectedly, but is known at the commencement of the session, and throughout the whole progress of it. It cannot therefore be said, in the language of the Constitution, that Congress, by their adjournment, prevented the return of this bill. That provision of the Constitution must be understood to refer to cases of adjournment depending upon the will of Congress, and to have been designed to guard the President against the effects of a sudden and unforeseen adjournment ordered by Congress itself. A consideration giving additional strength to this ground is derived from the fact of a change of the presidential incumbent. This bill was presented to the President the day before the expiration of his official term; and, constitutionally, he had no right to communicate this message to the Senate. Suppose he had been succeeded by another, who would have had the right to the possession of the bill? Not the old President, because he was out of office; not the new, because he was not in office when the bill passed; and neither of them, therefore, could have returned it to the Senate, with or without an accompanying message. On the third of March, 1817, the day of Mr. Madison's final retirement from the office of President, the bill setting apart the bonus of the Bank of the United States for internal improvements was presented to him. Although it was a highly important bill, involving a grave and much controverted constitutional question, short as the time was for a due consideration of it, he examined and returned it with his objections, probably, among other reasons, because he knew that his successor could not act upon it.

2d. This bill had passed at a previous session of the Senate (1832–3) in the shape in which, with one modification, it was presented to the President. Copies of the bill, prior to its passage, at both sessions, had been laid before the President. He had treated the subject, and demonstrated his possession of a knowledge of the bill in his message at the opening of the session in December, 1832. When, therefore, the bill was presented to him for his approbation, on the 2d of March, 1833, he must have been familiar with it.

The committee, therefore, thinks that, under all the circumstances of the case, the bill ought to have been returned to the last Congress. By withholding it, the President deprived that Congress of its constitutional right to reconsider the bill, and determine whether it ought not to pass, after giving due weight to his objections.

Passing from this view of the subject, which the committee thought it proper to present in respect to the constitutional rights of the legislative and executive branches of the government, it will now proceed to consider more particularly the specific objections to the bill contained in the President's message.

The President "is fully sensible of the importance, as it respects both the harmony and union of the States, of making, as soon as circumstances will allow of it, a proper and final disposition of the whole subject of the public lands." This bill, however, he thinks does not effect that object; it contemplates an arrangement which is not permanent, but limited to five years only; allows of alterations within that time by Congress; and furnishes no adequate security against the continual agitation of the subject.

It is difficult to conceive of any plan, other than that of a total abandonment and surrender of the whole public domain, which would preclude occasional legislation by Congress in respect to it. Such a relinquishment the President indeed ultimately proposes; but the committee believes that neither the interests of the Union would be promoted by, nor are the opinions of the people prepared for, a surrender, immediate or remote, of the vast public domain of the United States, because of any inconvenience, real or imaginary, resulting from the occasional legislation of Congress. The President objects to the temporary character of the act; and yet, towards the close of his message, when he appeals to the people of the new States, and holds out the prospect of a reduction of the price, he says: "It is true the bill reserves to Congress the power to reduce the prices, but the effect of its details, as now arranged, would probably be forever to prevent its exercise." The committee is at a loss to comprehend how Congress should be forever restrained from reducing the price of the public lands by a temporary bill, the too brief period of whose existence, in the opinion of the President, constitutes a serious objection to its passage. Especially since, within the short period of five years to which it is limited, there is an express reservation of the right of Congress at any time to reduce the price.

The bill proposes, upon just and equitable principles, to divide among the several States the proceeds of a property common to them all, for a period of five years. If its practical operation shall be found to realize the expectations which it holds out, it will be competent to Congress to continue it, from time to time, with or without modifications. And it is only upon the presumption of its reconciling itself, by experience, to the public sense of justice and expediency, that the President, in the quotation made from his message as to one of its features, can anticipate its permanent operation.

The President next proceeds to trace, historically, the right of the United States to the public domain. This had been several times previously done by committees of the Senate, and particularly by a committee which reported the bill on the 16th day of April, 1832, that first passed the Senate for dividing among the several States the proceeds of the public lands. That report of the committee comprised a full exposition of the right of the United States to the public domain, whether situated within the limits of the original thirteen States, or acquired by the treaties of Louisiana and Florida; and also of the principles on which it was proposed to divide the proceeds of the sales of the public lands among the States. And as your committee concurs in the leading facts and principles in that report, it begs leave to refer to it, to annex, and to make it a part of this report, to be published with it.

The Senate will bear in mind that much the most extensive portion of the public domain was acquired by treaty. Over the disposition of the right of soil thus obtained, there is no control or limitation upon the powers of Congress contained in the treaties themselves; and Congress is entirely untrammeled by them as to any disposition of it which may be deemed expedient. But the argument contained in the message almost wholly excludes that larger part of the public domain, and is restricted to the consideration of the powers of Congress in respect to that portion of it which is contained within the ancient limits of the United States.

After having deduced the title of the United States to that part of the public lands which seems principally to have engaged the President's attention, from the deeds of session and other public acts and documents, the message comes to three conclusions:

"1. That one of the fundamental principles on which the confederation of the United States was originally based, was, that the waste land of the west within their limits should be the common property of the United States.

"2. That those lands were ceded to the United States by the States which claimed them, and the cessions were accepted, on the express condition that they should be disposed of for the common benefit of the States, according to their respective proportions in the general charge and expenditure, and for no other purpose whatsoever.

"3. That, in execution of these solemn compacts, the Congress of the United States did, under the confederation, proceed to sell these lands, and put the avails into the common treasury; and, under the new Constitution, did repeatedly pledge them for the payment of the public debt of the United States, by which pledge each State was expected to profit in proportion to the general charge to be made upon it for that object.

"These are the first principles of this whole subject, which, I think, cannot be contested by any one who examines the proceedings of the revolutionary Congress, the cessions of the several States, and the acts of Congress under the new Constitution. Keeping them deeply impressed upon the mind, let us proceed to examine how far the objects of the sessions have been completed, and see whether those compacts are not still obligatory upon the United States.

"The debt for which those lands were pledged by Congress may be considered as paid, and they are consequently released from that lien."

It is perfectly true that the waste land of the west was an object of great interest and solicitude with several of the States, and especially the State of Maryland, during the revolutionary struggle; that they contended that what might be won by common sufferings, sacrifices, and exertions, ought to be common property; and that the States within whose limits those waste lands were situated, yielding to the voice of reason and justice, and actuated by a noble spirit of union and harmony, finally made the various cessions which have been referred to by the message. These cessions constituted the United States a trustee for the whole of them in the management and disposal of the common property. It ought to be regarded as a sacred and inviolable trust; and all the considerations growing out of these lands, which threatened to distract the councils, and to paralyze the efforts of the original States, even in the midst of the war of independence, ought still to be allowed to have their full force in dissuading Congress from making any alienation of this common property which will not do justice to every member of the Union.

The committee, therefore, concurs entirely with the message in the position that these lands were ceded, and that the cessions were accepted, on the condition that they should be disposed of for the common benefit of the States, according to their respective proportions in the general charge and expenditure, and for no other purpose whatever. It also agrees with the message that, both under the articles of the confederation and under the present Constitution, the avails of the proceeds of the sales of the public lands have generally gone into the public treasury: that they have been pledged to the payment of the public debt; and that the public debt may be considered as now paid, and the lands consequently liberated from the lien.

But the committee cannot agree with the message that the power of Congress over all the public lands remains under the present Constitution exactly the same as it was under the articles of confederation. As to those which have been acquired by treaties with foreign powers, the authority of Congress to dispose of them is unaffected by the articles of confederation, or the deeds of cession, and depends upon the third section of the fourth article of the Constitution. And as to the residue, the States that executed the deeds of cession being also parties to the Constitution, and having adopted it as separate and distinct communities, were competent to extend the powers of Congress, the common trustee for all the States, over the trust property they had previously conveyed, if they thought proper.

By the articles of confederation, contributions were made by the several States of specific sums, apportioned among them to the purposes of the general government. And the clause, in several of the deeds of cession, which provides that the ceded lands shall be for the use and benefit of the States composing the Union, according to their usual respective proportions in the general charge and expenditure, clearly refers to those contributions which furnished a distinct and intelligible rule by which the proportion of each State in the general charge and expenditure could be ascertained. By the new government, contributions were no longer to be made by the States; but the treasury was to be supplied by taxes, direct and indirect, levied upon the mass of the community. The taxes which have been accordingly levied, have been chiefly upon consumption; so that it is impracticable to ascertain what amount is now in fact contributed by the people of each State towards the expenditure of the general government. And as the amount of contribution cannot be ascertained, it is impossible to say whether each of the States composing the Union does derive benefit from the public lands in proportion to its charge in the general expenditure. And it is far from being certain that, in the actual appropriation which has been made of the proceeds of the public lands, there has not been a constant departure from the rule prescribed in the deeds of cession.

There may be ground for difference of opinion whether the change of government in the particular which has been noticed, induced the framers of the Constitution to enlarge the power of Congress, and whether they have, in fact, enlarged it over the public lands which had been previously ceded by some of the States. But, as to all other territory and property of the United States, Congress possesses ample power to regulate and dispose of it. It is expressly provided by article IV., section 3d: "The Congress shall have power to dispose of, and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory and other property of the United States, and nothing in this Constitution shall be so construed as to prejudice any claims of the United States, or of any particular State.

This power to dispose of all the public domain, except that ceded by the States is full and complete, and depends upon the sound discretion of Congress. The practice of the government demonstrates, indeed, the common belief, that the power of Congress to dispose of the public land, whether ceded by States or acquired from foreign nations, is unrestricted. Grants have been accordingly made of portions of it for almost every conceivable purpose. More than eight millions and a half of acres have been granted for education; upwards of two millions for internal improvements in particular States; several for military bounties; and large quantities have been bestowed, in gratuity, for seats of government, on private charities in particular States, and private individuals. The right of pre-emption has been also conferred and continued to large classes of individuals.

The President himself was supposed to entertain the opinion that there was no restriction on the power of Congress over any part of the public domain. In his message of December 4, 1832, at the opening of the session of Congress, speaking of the public land, he says: "It is in the discretion of Congress to dispose of them in such way as best to conduce to the quiet, harmony, and general interest of the American people."

After this clear admission of the unqualified power of Congress over the subject, the committee has seen with surprise the assertion in the message that the bill begins with an entire subversion of every one of the compacts by which the United States became possessed of their western domain. The first section of the bill allows to the seven new States twelve and a half per cent out of the net amount of the sales of the public lands made within their respective limits prior to any distribution among the twenty-four States. The message treats this allowance to the new States as a deduction of one-eighth from the whole amount of the proceeds of the public lands in all parts of the United States; but the allowance is expressly confined to sales within the new States, to the exclusion of sales made in the several territories, that is, Ohio, and each of the other seven States, is, by the provision of the first section, to receive twelve and a half per cent upon the net amount arising from sales within their respective limits.

This extra allowance is deemed by the President to be contrary to the terms of the deed of cession. In what respect he does not allege, but it is presumed that he refers to the stipulation contained in those deeds for a perfect equality among the several States. As each State was to be entitled to equal benefit in the lands ceded, subject only to the condition that it should be according to its usual proportion in the general charge and expenditure, the message considers that rule to be violated by assigning to the new States twelve and a half per cent, prior to the general distribution. The President is supposed to insist upon absolute equality among the old and the new States; and that no one of them should obtain more than a fair and just proportion of a common property.

But how are these principles to be reconciled with the plan brought forward by the President in his message of the 4th of December, 1832, and again presented in his message under consideration?

According to that plan, he recommends that the public lands be no longer regarded as a sort of revenue; that the price be reduced so low as merely to reimburse the expense of the survey and the sale of them; and that, at no very distant day, the whole of the unsold lands should be relinquished to the new States, and all the machinery and control of the general government forever withdrawn from the new States.

If Congress may grant the whole of the public lands to the new States, it may certainly grant one-eighth part of them, or one-eighth part of their proceeds, unless the logical rule be false that the major includes the minor. If it be consistent with the terms of the deeds of cession, so emphatically dwelt on by the President, to surrender forever the public lands to the new States within which they are respectively situated, it can hardly be deemed repugnant to the same deeds to assign them, for a short period, one-eighth part of the net proceeds of the lands situated within their limits.

The message seems to consider the extra allowance to the new States as involving a new principle, unsanctioned by the practice of the government, and as a gratuity which cannot be granted without manifest departure from the principles of equity which should regulate the disposal of the public lands or their proceeds among all the States. But with great deference the committee is unable to agree with the message in either respect.

1. As to the practice of the government. It has been already stated that Congress has granted to the new States, for purposes of education, upwards of eight millions of acres of the public lands, being a quantity which exceeds, by more than a fourth, all the public lands ever sold by the federal government. It has also granted to several States lands for seats of government; and to some of the new States upwards of two millions and a quarter of acres for internal improvements. And by the compact with each of the new States, five per cent of the net proceeds of the sales of the public lands, within their several limits, is reserved to every one of them for purposes of internal improvement. If these various grants, displaying both the liberality and the justice of Congress towards the young members of the national family who have established themselves in the wilderness, do not violate the deeds of cession, or transcend the duties of Congress, how can it be justly contended that the extra allowance in question is forbidden?

2. But this extra allowance is not a gratuity. The apportionment of the proceeds among the several States is on the basis of the state of the population as ascertained by the census of 1830; and the bill proposes to observe that rule in the distribution during the whole period of five years to which its operation is limited. But as the increase of population in the new States is in a ratio much greater than in the old, it is evident that a strict compliance with that rule would operate unjustly upon the new States, especially in the latter years of the term. The increase of population in Illinois, for example, is at the rate of eighteen and a half per cent per annum. Near five years having elapsed since the census was taken, the population of that State is now about 92½ per cent., that is, almost double what it then was. The population of the State of Delaware, on the contrary, has increased only about three per cent during the same five years; the ratio of its increase from 1820 to 1830 having been, for the whole ten years, only six per cent. The State of Illinois, therefore, would receive only about one-half of what it is justly entitled to if it were restricted to the state of its population in 1829.

Again; the extra allowance to the new States is to be expended on education and internal improvements. The United States being a great land proprietor in each of the new States, is bound, upon principles of equity and fairness, to contribute towards the improvement of the moral and physical condition of the new States, which will necessarily tend to enhance the value of the property of the United States. And, in making the extra allowance, the bill proceeds in perfect conformity with the principles by which the general government has hitherto invariably acted in granting to each of the new States lands for schools, and five per cent of the net proceeds of sales within their respective limits for objects of internal improvement.

The committee therefore must confidently, but respectfully, dissent from the assertion in the message that, in making this extra allowance, the bill begins with an entire subversion of every one of the compacts by which the United States became possessed of their western domain.

The bill is charged by the message with a violation of the deeds of cession, in adopting, as the rule of distribution, the federal representative population, instead of the respective and usual proportions of the several States in the general charge and expenditure. The rule which the bill adopts is plain, practicable, and intelligible. It admits of easy ascertainment and easy application. Taxation and representation go hand in hand; and, in assuming a rule deduced from representation, there is no reason to believe that it will operate unequally in respect to the taxation to which the people of the United States are liable.

A division among the States according to their respective and usual proportions in the general charge and expenditure is wholly impracticable, because it is not possible to ascertain under the present Constitution, and under the established modes of collecting a public revenue, what amount of the general charge and expenditure is contributed by any State. That clause in the deeds of cession, as before remarked, was inserted in reference to the articles of confederation, by which the contribution of each State was fixed and known. Revenue is now collected, not from States in their sovereign character, but from the mass of the community, according to their consumption. Consequently, it is altogether impracticable to ascertain how much of that revenue is paid by the citizens of any one State. It may be argued that since it is impracticable, it is most proper that the proceeds of the public lands should go into the common treasury, and be thence disbursed in the common expenditure. But it is far from being certain that the principle of equality stipulated in the cessions, is not violated to a greater extent by such an appropriation than it possibly can be by a division according to representative population. How is it known that each State, when the proceeds of the lands pass into the general treasury, is, in their subsequent disbursements, benefited according to the exact measure of its due proportion in the general charge and expenditure?

In considering the power of Congress over the public lands acquired by deeds of cession from several of the States, the committee thinks it useful to examine, first, the terms of the deeds themselves; and, secondly, the provision in the Constitution.

1. As the cession from Virginia was by far the most important, and as the terms of the deed made by that State to the United States, do not materially vary from those contained in the deeds of other States, the committee will inquire whether there is anything in those terms which can be fairly interpreted to prohibit the passage of the bill. The only clause deemed essential in the inquiry is the following condition contained in the deed, to wit: "That all the lands within the territory so ceded to the United States, and not reserved for, or appropriated to, any of the before-mentioned purposes, or disposed of in bounties to the officers and soldiers of the American army, shall be considered as a common fund for the use and benefit of such of the United States as have become, or shall become, members of the confederation, or federal alliance of the said States, Virginia inclusive, according to their usual respective proportions in the general charge and expenditure, and shall be faithfully and bona fide disposed of for that purpose, and for no other use or purpose whatsoever."

This deed created a trust in the United States which they are not at liberty to violate. But the deed does not require that the fund should be disbursed in the payment of the expenses of the general government. It makes no such provision in express terms, nor is such a duty on the part of the trustee fairly deducible from the language of the deed. On the contrary, the language of the deed seems to contemplate a separate use and enjoyment of the fund by the States individually, rather than a preservation of it for common expenditure. The fund itself is to be a common fund for the use and benefit of such of the United States as have become, or shall become members of the confederation or federal alliance, Virginia inclusive. The grant is not for the benefit of the confederation, but for that of the several States which compose the confederation. The fund is to be under the management of the confederation collectively, and is so far a common fund; but it is to be managed for the use and benefit of the States individually, and is so far a separate fund under a joint management. Whilst there was a heavy debt existing, created by the war of the revolution, and by a subsequent war, there was a fitness in applying the proceeds of a common fund to the discharge of a common debt, which reconciled all; but that debt being now discharged, and the general government no longer standing in need of the fund, there is evident propriety in a division of it among those for whose use and benefit it was originally designed, and whose wants require it. And the committee cannot conceive how this appropriation of it, upon principles of equality and justice among the several States, can be regarded as contrary to either the letter or spirit of the deed.

A fund may be common to various copartners in the collection, control, and government of it, and yet the use and actual enjoyment may be separate and individual. Entertaining this view, the committee thinks it would be a departure from the obligations of the trust to cede, as the message proposes, the whole trust property to particular States, to the exclusion of others. The committee, on the contrary, thinks it the duty of Congress to retain the control of the fund, and to administer it for the use and benefit of the several States composing the Union.

2. But if any doubt existed as to the right of Congress, under the deeds of cession, to divide the proceeds of the common property among the several States, it must vanish when we consider the provisions of the Constitution. The parties to the Constitution were the same as the parties to the deeds. And the adoption of the Constitution was as much the separate act of each State as was the execution of the several deeds of cession. The Constitution, too, followed the execution of the deed by Virginia, and that of every other State but one; and if there be any incompatibility between them, the Constitution, being, in point of time, the last act, must control the operation of the previous deeds.

The language of the Constitution is explicit: "The Congress shall have power to dispose of, and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United States; and nothing in this Constitution shall be so construed as to prejudice any claim of the United States, or of any particular State." The power to dispose of the territory and other property of the United States is confided to the sound discretion of Congress without restriction. To guard against the effect of the change of government from a loose confederacy to an intimate Union, it is declared, in the latter part of the cited clause, that nothing in the Constitution shall be so construed as to prejudice any claims of the United States. And, as the States which ceded the western lands had ceded them with certain reservations, and they or other States might have claims of a territorial, jurisdictional, or pecuniary nature, under the confederacy, which it was apprehended, without an express reservation, might be affected by the change of government, it was further declared that nothing in the Constitution should be so construed as to prejudice any claims of any particular State.

Whether, therefore, the authority of Congress is traced to the deeds of cession or to the Constitution, the committee deems it fully competent to the passage of the bill.

The bill is equally unfortunate in being obnoxious to the objections of the message whether it omits or imposes any restrictions upon the power of the State legislatures as to the subsequent appropriation of the fund which it proposes to distribute. The extra allowance to the new States is required to be expended on objects of education and internal improvement. As has been already shown, this restriction is in conformity with a principle coeval with the land system, and which has been steadily adhered to throughout the whole period of its existence, by which the sixteenth section of every township is expressly set apart for education; and in conformity with every compact entered into between the United States and each of the new States, by which five per cent upon the net proceeds of the lands in the several new States is assigned for purposes of internal improvement. The committee thinks that it may safely rest the defence of the specification of the objects to which the extra allowance is to be applied upon the invariable practice of the government.

But if the part of the bill which limits the legislatures of the new States in the appropriation of the extra allowance to the laudable purposes of education and internal improvement, could not conciliate the approbation of the President, it might have been reasonably hoped that the other part of it, containing no restriction whatever upon the local legislation, would have at least commanded his assent. But he objects to the restrictive clauses because they are restrictive, and to the unrestricted clauses because they are unrestricted. The President apprehends that the Maysville and Lexington Turnpike Road Company, the appropriation to which, several years ago, did not meet his concurrence, might possibly derive some aid from the land fund if the legislature of the State in which that road is situated were left unrestrained in the application of its proportion of that fund. There are some who would feel that if any part of the fund were directed to such a destination, it would only be to repair a wrong unintentionally committed by the President. But the appropriation to that object to which the President applied the veto, rested upon grounds totally distinct from the principle of the present bill. That appropriation was made upon the principle that Congress had the power to apply any money in the public treasury to internal improvements. This bill is based on the ground that Congress has broader power over the land fund, either under the deeds of cession, or under the Constitution, than it possesses over public revenue collected by general taxation.

The objection to the distribution among the States, upon principles of equality, of the proceeds of the public lands, was hardly to be anticipated from a chief magistrate who had recommended such a distribution of the surplus revenues of the general government, without regard to the source of their origin. The committee is not prepared to assent to such a distribution, the constitutionality of which, to say the least, is questionable. But a division of the land fund, if not enjoined by the spirit of the various deeds of cession, stands upon peculiar ground, totally distinct from that on which a division of a surplus of revenue, arising from ordinary sources of taxation, can be placed.

The message imputes to the bill the object of creating a surplus for the purpose of distribution. But is that an accurate representation of the case? The bill finds in full operation a land system, approved by long experience, which nets to the government an annual sum of more than three millions of dollars. This sum may be expected constantly to augment. The general government, just liberated from national debt, no longer stands in need of this sum, unless it should become necessary by wasteful and extravagant expenditure. The general government is in possession of ample sources of revenue, and in the exclusive possession of that, the most ample of all, arising from foreign imports. The States want the land fund, and it is proposed to divide it among them according to the just and equitable rule of federal representative population. The bill imposes no new tax, creates no new revenue, opens no new channel. It proceeds upon an existing state of things, which it does not disturb, otherwise than by dividing among the States equitably, in their individual character, what is not wanted in their aggregate condition.

But the message objects that the general government would remain subject to the incidental expenses of the machinery of the land system. The bill, however, only proposes to divide the net produce of the public lands which come into the public treasury, subject, of course, to a deduction for some charges. If the general government should continue to pay out of the common treasury a portion of those charges, such as the salaries of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, &c., it would be no more than what is done in analogous cases. The salaries of commissioners appointed under treaties with foreign powers to distribute sums stipulated to be paid by them to individual claimants for wrongs committed upon the high seas or elsewhere, are always paid out of the public treasury. And, besides, the small amount which the general government would continue to pay during the period to which the continuance of the act is limited, for the benefit of the people of the several States, would come out of a common treasury supplied by the same people in their collective character.

The committee perceive, with unaffected surprise, the imputation contained in the message, of a tendency in the bill under consideration towards consolidation. Congress being the common trustee for all the States of a fund created for their benefit, and for no other purpose, the bill presents an equitable scheme for the division of that fund among the declared objects of the trust. If that scheme had been assailed upon the ground of its fostering a spirit of separation and disunion, there would have been at least more plausibility in the charge. The message supposes that the States, by receiving their several annual dividends, will be tempted into profuse expenditure, will rely for their pecuniary resources upon the general government, and will ultimately lose their distinct local characters. But it is to be observed that in the distribution itself, the States, as such, in their separate and sovereign characters, are expressly recognized; and that the sum, although considerable if expended on suitable and proper objects, is not likely to dispense with the necessity of each State carefully cultivating ordinary sources of revenue. It may be safely affirmed there is much greater danger of a wasteful expenditure of the fund if retained in the hands of the general government, which does not want it, than if it be transferred to the hands of the several State governments, which do need it, and whose habitual economy is commended in the message. It was never deemed by any one that the annual supply of arms made by the general government to the several States tended to lessen their power, or to augment that of the federal government.

The committee believes that a mutual dependence of the two systems of government upon each other has the happy effect of strengthening the bond of common union. And, among the many considerations in favor of the bill, it is perhaps the most important, that its direct and inevitable influence will be to impart additional strength to the Union. The public lands will then form an adamantine chain connecting the States together, and each will be powerfully interested in the preservation of that Union which, for hundreds of years to come, may annually distribute among all its sovereign members a vast fund, which, if the Union were dissolved, would be forever lost in the commotions and convulsions that would certainly ensue.

The message implies an unmerited distrust in the capacity and integrity of the State governments, and assumes for the federal authority a superiority of discretion, which the committee thinks, without meaning anything derogatory, it has not always displayed in the economical disbursement of the public revenue. The bill is, besides, limited to a short time; and if it should be found to realize any of the apprehended mischiefs, it may be suffered to expire altogether, or be subjected to such modifications as experience shall indicate to be expedient. To guard against the possibility of a misapplication of the distributive share of any State to objects of a minor or trivial nature, the bill contains a clause which was left out of that passed at the last session, by which a specification is made of the purposes to which the fund shall be appropriated. No State will venture to violate this restriction, because it will apprehend that Congress may refuse to continue to allot its dividend in consequence of such violation.

Almost the entire argument of the message against the bill is applied to that portion of the public lands ceded by the several States to the United States, and situated within their original limits, and is founded upon the supposed repugnance of the provisions of the bill to the conditions contained in the deeds of cession. The committee cannot agree that any such repugnance in fact exists. On the contrary, it conceives that the contemplated distribution is conformable both to the spirit and letter of those conditions. But there is no pretence for alleging any want of power in Congress to distribute the proceeds of that portion of the public lands which have been acquired by treaties with foreign powers. The treaties themselves impose no limitation as to the disposition of the soil itself, or the proceeds of the sale of it. And the constitutional provision which has been adverted to comes and covers these lands, and invests in Congress an unrestrained power of disposition, according to its sound discretion.

The message states that the total expenditure, incident to the public domain, has been $49,701,280; and the total receipt up to the 30th September, 1832, has been only $38,386,624, from which the inference is drawn that the amount taken out of the treasury has not been replaced. Why the 30th September, 1832, was selected by the message, the committee cannot conceive, unless it was for the purpose of recommending the relinquishment of the whole public domain as a useless and unprofitable burden, or for the purpose of holding on to it as a source of revenue until the treasury was reimbursed the sum which it had cost. If the President had called upon the Commissioner of the General Land Office for the returns of the proceeds of the public lands up to the 30th September, 1833, he would have discovered that their amount was $48,398,571.34, according to a report of that officer laid before the Senate—more than ten millions exceeding the amount stated in the message. This is independent of 4,452,760 acres of land actually patented for services during the late war; of 2,290,937 acres granted for roads and canals in several States; of upwards of nine millions granted and set apart for schools, academies, and universities, and of numerous other grants for various purposes. For the greater part, if not all of these appropriations of the public lands, they ought to be fairly credited.

The public domain, then has more than redeemed the cost of its acquisition and management. But there is still another view of this subject that ought to be presented. The argument in the message is almost exclusively directed to that portion of it which is situated within the ancient limits of the United States; and it is from the terms of the deeds of cession that the message attempts to deduce a restriction upon the power of Congress. There is no color for that restriction as it respects the territory acquired under the treaties of Louisiana and Florida. In regard to that, as already remarked, the power of Congress to dispose of it, unrestrained by the treaties themselves, results entirely from the clause in the Constitution which has been hereinbefore referred to. As to the public lands within the ancient limits of the United States, if there be deducted from the $49,701,280, the twenty millions which Louisiana and Florida cost, it will leave only $29,701,280 chargeable to those lands—less indeed than that sum, for a portion of that expenditure of $29,701,280 was on account of the public lands in Florida and Louisiana. The total amount which has been received, in money, from the lands comprehended within the original boundaries of the United States, according to the before-mentioned report of the Commissioner, is $43,729,718$\frac{12}{100}$, leaving those lands creditor by the sum of $14,028,428$\frac{12}{100}$, without including in the account any grants of land for objects just alluded to.

The message argues that the distribution proposed by the bill is unjust towards the old States, since it first sets apart one-eighth for the new States, and then divides seven-eighths only among all the States. Each of the old States, therefore, the message contends, will receive its proportion of but seven-eighths instead of the amount of the whole proceeds. The committee believes that it has stated sufficient grounds of justification upon which that previous allowance to the new States is to be defended. But it was not prepared to find the same message dissuading the old States from agreeing to the distribution proposed on the allegation of partiality to the new States, and urging upon the new States to dissent from it also, because it was unjust towards them. If the bill gives the new States more than a fair proportion of a common fund, without sufficient considerations, that cannot be an objection both with the old and the new States. But whilst the message labors to prove that one class of States will receive too much, and another too little, instead of correcting the alleged injustice by proposing some equal division, it recommends that the class which it deems too partially favored shall eventually receive, and the injured class shall finally renounce forever, the whole interest in the common property.

The message supposes that it could not have been contemplated by the deeds of cession, that the United States should continue, during a long period of time, to retain the right of soil to large tracts of land within the limits of new States. But the deeds do expressly provide that these lands shall be held for the common benefit of all the States, and for no other purpose; and they must continue so to be held, whether the time is long or short, unless Congress is prepared openly to violate express conditions of the cessions. And why should they not be so held? What injury is done to the new States by the common government holding lands for the benefit of all within the limits of some? Past experience has demonstrated none. If these lands were held up at exorbitant prices, and the settlement of the new States were retarded improperly, the case would be altered. But the price is extremely moderate, within the reach of every ordinarily provident person, and the new States are populating with unexampled rapidity, as is demonstrated in the report of the Committee of Manufactures, and the table accompanying it, hereinbefore referred to. If it were true that the minimum price of the public lands is too high for one portion of them, it is equally true that it is below the value of another portion of them. And it would be wrong to reduce the price of those which are already low enough, for the sake of those of inferior quality, which, perhaps, would not sell at any price. It might be expedient to discriminate, if it were practicable, as to the price of lands in different States. There are large bodies of poor pine, sandy lands in the southwestern States, of which there is none in the northwestern States, that probably never will sell at the minimum price, if at any price. But a discrimination between the different States would be invidious, and is impracticable. And, after all, no great mischief is done by not offering, at reduced prices, worthless lands, which nobody would be much disposed to buy at any price. In the State of Ohio, all the public lands have been sold but about five millions of acres. In the State of Illinois, more than nineteen-twentieths of the whole territory are believed to be arable land; and it will undoubtedly sell, without any reduction of price, in reasonable time, according to the demands of a growing population. Would it be right to reduce the price of this good farming land, because there happens to be in Alabama or Mississippi large tracts of pine barren which will possibly never sell at any price?

Nor does the fact of there being a large quantity of land remaining in the market, surveyed and unsold for a long time, authorize the inference that it is unsold because the price is too high. It has not been sold, because the government, by constantly bringing more and more land into the market, exposes an aggregate supply far exceeding the wants of the population, rapid as has been its increase in the new States. This will be manifest from one or two facts. The total amount of all the public lands which had been sold up to the 30th of September last, that is to say, during a period of about forty-five years, since the commencement of the present Constitution, was only 31,028,436 acres and $\frac{87}{100}$ of an acre. This, on an average during the entire term, is about 700,000 acres annually. The total quantity surveyed and unsold, according to the report of the commissioner, is 104,206,822 acres and $\frac{46}{100}$ of an acre. To this there will be additions constantly made, as the Indian title shall be extinguished. If the progress of future sales were to be no greater than that of the past, it would require a period of more than 135 years to sell what is now actually in market, without including new districts that may be exposed. But as these sales depend upon the wants of the population, and as these are regulated by the increase of it, the probability is, that the quantity annually sold, in future, will be much greater than the annual average of that which was sold during the term above mentioned. But making liberal allowances in this respect, many years must elapse before the quantity now actually in market is disposed of. The true policy of the government, in regulating the price of the public lands, seems to be so to fix it as, whilst the industrious poor may easily acquire a home, a spirit of inordinate speculation may be repressed. Both these objects are believed to be attained by the reasonable and moderate rate at which the government now offers the public domain.

Entertaining the views and opinions which have been herein exhibited, the committee finds itself unable to concur in the plan of disposing of the public lands which the President proposes; and it agrees in the general principles of the bill which has been referred to it. A brief contrast between the two schemes will enable the Senate better to judge of their respective merits.

The President conceives that the cessions of the public lands to the United States were upon the express conditions that they should be considered by the United States as a common fund for the use and benefit of all the sovereign members of the Union. He objects therefore to the grant to the new States of one-eighth of the proceeds within their several limits, prior to a general distribution of the whole fund. Nevertheless, he proposes himself an immediate reduction of the price of the public lands; that they shall cease to be regarded as a source of revenue for the use and benefit of the United States, or any of the individual States; and, finally, that, after a few years, this vast common property shall be wholly surrendered to those new States to which Congress cannot, in his opinion, consistently with the terms of the deeds of cession, grant one-eighth part of the net proceeds.

The bill assumes, as a basis; that all the public lands not included within the acquisition of Louisiana and Florida were obtained upon the conditions specified in the deeds of cession. It supposes that whether the proceeds of the lands are brought into the common treasury, or distributed, upon terms of just equality, among the several States, the spirit and object of the deeds of cession are fully answered. The bill proceeds upon the principle that the United States cannot abandon the trust which the deeds created, and which they deliberately accepted, without a manifest violation of duty, and without absolute injustice to the old States. It does not propose, therefore, a surrender of the trust property to the new States, but contemplates the general government continuing to perform all the duties incident to the trust; and retaining the control over the property for the benefit of the several States, when the proceeds of sales of it are wanted by them, and not by the general government, and for the benefit of the general government in the event of war. And this mutual use of the fund is limited to a short period, to test, by experience, its expediency. The bill assigns to the new States, prior to the general division of the fund which it authorizes, one-eighth part of the proceeds arising within their respective limits, upon considerations which the committee deems satisfactory, and according to established precedents. And, finally, whatever diversity of opinion may exist as to the power and duties of Congress growing out of the language of the deeds of cession, no objection can be raised from that source as to any disposition, under the terms of the Constitution, which Congress may think proper to make of the proceeds of that largest portion of the public lands acquired under the treaties of Louisiana and Florida.

The bill provides for a distribution of the fund arising from the sales of the public lands during the last year. Such would have been its operation if the President had approved it; or if, returning it to the last Congress with his objections, it had been passed notwithstanding those objections. As Congress was deprived of an opportunity of passing upon the bill after it had been submitted to the President, by his withholding it, the committee thinks it just to give it the effect which it would have had if passed at the last session. The gross proceeds of the public lands during the last year are understood to be upwards of four and a half millions of dollars; but the precise amount will be ascertained when a call which has been made for it shall be answered. The committee therefore reports the bill, distributing that sum after proper deductions shall be made exhibiting the net amount; and it reports the following amendments.

A BILL to appropriate, for a limited time, the proceeds of the sales of the public lands of the United States, and for granting land to certain States.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That from and after the thirty-first day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and thirty-two, there be allowed and paid to each of the States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Alabama, Missouri, Mississippi, and Louisiana, over and above what each of the said States is entitled to by the terms of the compacts entered into between them, respectively, upon their admission into the Union, and the United States, the sum of twelve and a half per centum upon the net [amount*] proceeds of the sales of the public lands which, subsequent to the day aforesaid, shall have been or may be made within the several limits of the said States; which said sum of twelve and a half per centum shall be applied to some object or objects of internal improvement or education within the said States, under the direction of their respective legislatures: Provided, That the sum so allowed to the said States, respectively, shall be in no wise affected or diminished on account of any sums which have been heretofore, or shall be hereafter, applied to the construction or continuance of the Cumberland road, but that the disbursements for the said road shall remain, as heretofore, chargeable on the two per centum fund provided for by compacts with several of the said States.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That after deducting the said twelve and a half per centum, and what, by the compacts aforesaid, has heretofore been allowed to the States aforesaid, the residue of the net proceeds of all the public lands of the United States, wherever situated, which shall have been or may be sold subsequent to the said thirty-first day of December, shall be divided among the twenty-four States of the Union, according to their respective federal representative population, as ascertained by the last census, to be applied by the legislatures of the said States, to such objects of education, internal improvement [colonization of free persons of color*], or reimbursement of any existing debt contracted for internal improvements, as the said legislatures may severally designate and authorize: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be construed to the prejudice of future applications for a reduction of the price of the public lands, or to the prejudice of applications for a transfer of the public lands, on reasonable terms, to the States within which they lie, nor to impair the power of Congress to make such future disposition of the public lands, or any part thereof, as it may deem expedient.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That the said several sums of money, for the year one thousand eight hundred and thirty-three, shall be paid at the treasury of the United States, on the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four, and hereafter, half yearly, during the continuance of this act, to such person or persons as the respective legislatures of the said States may authorize and direct.

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That this act shall continue and be in force until the thirty-first day of December, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-seven, unless the United States shall become involved in war with any foreign power; in which event, from the commencement of hostilities, this act shall cease and be no longer in force: Provided, nevertheless, That if, prior to the expiration of this act, any new State or States shall be admitted into the Union, the power is reserved of assigning, by law, to such new State or States the proportion to which such State or States may be entitled upon the principles of this act, and upon the principles of any of the compacts made as aforesaid, with either of the seven States first mentioned.

SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That until the said thirty-first day of December, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-seven, there shall be annually appropriated for completing the surveys of said lands, a sum not less than eighty thousand dollars; and the minimum price at which the public lands are now sold at private sale shall not be increased; and in case the same shall be increased by law within the period aforesaid, so much of this act as provides that the net proceeds of the sales of the public lands shall be distributed among the several States, shall, from and after the increase of the minimum price thereof, cease and become utterly null and of no effect, anything in this act to the contrary notwithstanding.

SEC. 6. And be it enacted, That whenever, for two successive years, it shall appear to the Secretary of the Treasury, that the net proceeds of the sales of the public lands, within any land district now established, or which may hereafter be established by law, shall not be sufficient to discharge the salaries of the officers employed by the United States within such district, he may discontinue such offices, and the lands contained in such district remaining unsold, shall, in such case, be annexed to the adjoining district.

SEC. 7. And be it further enacted, That there shall be granted to each of the States of Mississippi, Louisiana and Missouri, the quantity of five hundred thousand acres of land; to the State of Indiana, one hundred and fifteen thousand two hundred and seventy-two acres; to the State of Illinois, twenty thousand acres; and to the State of Alabama, one hundred thousand acres of land, lying within the limits of said States, respectively; to be selected in such manner as the legislatures thereof shall direct, and located in parcels, conformably to sectional divisions and subdivisions, of not less than three hundred and twenty acres in any one location on any public land subject to entry at private sale; which said locations may be made at any time within five years after the lands of the United States in said States, respectively, shall have been surveyed and offered at public sale, according to existing laws.

SEC. 8. And be it further enacted, That the lands herein granted to the States above named, shall not be disposed of at a price less than one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, until otherwise directed by law; and the net proceeds of the sales of said lands shall be faithfully applied to objects of internal improvement within the States aforesaid, respectively; namely: roads, bridges, canals, and improvement of water courses, and draining swamps; and such roads, canals, bridges, and water courses, when made or improved, shall be free for the transportation of the United States' mail and munitions of war, and for the passage of their troops, without the payment of any toll whatever.

RELATIVE TO THE AMOUNT AND DISTRIBUTION OF THE PROCEEDS OF THE SALES OF THE PUBLIC LANDS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE MAY 5, 1834.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, May 5, 1834.

SIR: In obedience to a resolution of the Senate of the 28th of April last, directing the Secretary of the Treasury "to report to the Senate the gross amount of the proceeds of the sales of the public lands, and the number of acres which have been sold during the year 1833, including the last quarter of the year; and distinguishing the amount received, and number of acres sold in each State and Territory," and also "to report to the Senate the manner in which has been ascertained at the Treasury, from time to time, the 'twentieth part of the net proceeds of the lands lying within the said State [Ohio] sold by Congress from and after the thirtieth day of June next, [1802] after deducting all expenses incident to the same;' which, by the compact with Ohio, was set apart for laying out and making public roads, and the manner in which the like allowance made to other new States has been ascertained at the treasury, showing, specifically, the deductions made from the gross amount to ascertain the net proceeds," I have the honor herewith to transmit a report from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, to whom the resolution was referred.

I have the honor to be, sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

R. B. TANEY, Secretary of the Treasury.

Hon. MARTIN VAN BUREN, Vice-President of the United States and President of the Senate.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, May 3, 1834.

SIR: In obedience to a resolution of the Senate of the United States, passed on the 28th ultimo, in the words following, to wit:

"Resolved, That the Secretary of the Treasury be directed to report to the Senate the gross amount of the proceeds of the sales of the public lands, and the number of acres which have been sold during the year 1833, including the last quarter of the year, and distinguishing the amount received, and number of acres sold, in each State and Territory.

"Resolved, also, That he report to the Senate the manner in which has been ascertained at the treasury, from time to time, the 'twentieth part of the net proceeds of the lands lying within the said State [of Ohio,] sold by Congress from and after the thirtieth day of June next, [1802] after deducting all expenses incident to the same,' which, by the compact with Ohio, was set apart for laying out and making public roads; and the manner in which the like allowance made to other new States has been ascertained at the treasury, showing specifically the deductions made from the gross amount to ascertain the net proceeds,"—and which you have referred to this office, I have the honor to submit the accompanying tabular statement, affording the information sought for by the first clause of the resolution.

In reference to the second clause of the resolution, I have to present the following statement of facts:

Prior to a period in the year 1822, it appears to have been the then recognized practice to exhibit on the face of the reports on the audited quarterly accounts of the receivers of public money the amount of the one-twentieth part of the net proceeds of the public lands applicable to the laying out of roads. The principle on which this amount was ascertained appears to have been based on the purchase money of lands sold, (not the moneys actually paid by purchasers) less the amount of the expenses of the land offices. On such remainder was calculated the one-twentieth part, constituting the three and two per cent funds, stated in the official report on the audited quarterly accounts as a separate and independent item. To illustrate the principles involved in this view of the net proceeds, I would remark that it implied both that the lands sold from quarter to quarter would ultimately be paid for, and that the payment of the five per cent fund was to be in advance of the actual receipts into the land offices.

The operation, virtually, was as follows:

Purchase money of land sold during the quarter	$
Deduct purchase money of lands heretofore charged, which have reverted to the United States for non-payment, agreeably to the original contract, during the present quarter,
Remainder	$
To which add cash received at the land offices on account of purchase money of the lands reverted, as above
Add interest received this quarter on lands heretofore sold, being part of the revenue actually accrued from the public lands
Forming gross proceeds	$
From which deduct the following items of incidental expenses, &c.:
Register's salary and commission for the quarter
Receiver's do do do
Contingent expenses of the registers' and receivers' offices during the quarter, viz., books, paper, and other articles of stationery
Examining land offices
Discounts allowed on annual installments of the purchase money paid in anticipation of the periods of payments prescribed by law
Leaving net proceeds	$

This practice, however, never led to any practical result, and, after the passage of the relief law of 2d March, 1821, authorizing land debtors to complete payment by relinquishing part of their lands to the government, this mode of exhibition in the official reports on the quarterly accounts of the receivers of public moneys was discontinued.

From the earliest periods, commencing with the admission of Ohio into the Union as a State, whenever payment on account of the three per cent fund was desired, it appears to have been an invariable practice to require from the land bureau of the Treasury Department prior to the year 1812, or from the General Land Office subsequent to its organization in that year, an estimate of the amount of the fund accrued up to date. Such estimates appear to have been based on the gross amount of moneys actually received at the land offices, deducting therefrom the salaries of the register and receiver, the contingent expenses of their offices, consisting of books, paper, and other articles of stationery; repayments to individuals for lands erroneously sold; the expenses of advertising sales of public lands, paid at the land offices by order of the department, and the annual expenses of examining the land offices. The estimates here alluded to appear to have been made from time to time, commencing with the earliest periods, (anterior, as well as posterior, to the organization of this office,) from the monthly returns of the registers and receivers of the land offices, as called for by the head of the department, and embracing the latest periods to which those returns had been rendered, and which, in the ordinary operations of business, must necessarily be prior to the periods when the regular adjustment of the quarterly accounts of the receivers of public money, embracing the same periods of time, could take place.

It is here to be remarked that prior to 1812, when this office was organized, only a small portion of the quarterly accounts of the receivers of public moneys had been adjusted, and it is to be presumed that, from this circumstance, the practice originated of requiring estimates of the fund alluded to, based on the monthly returns. The practical effect of these estimates seems to have been a safe and certain check to overpayments, to the States on account of the fund of three per cent, rather than a definite settlement. The account with the States seems always to have been regarded as an open account, liable to be affected by future corrections rendered necessary by deficiency of returns from the district land offices, or any other cause existing at the period when the estimate was called for.

In the year 1822, the Secretary of the Treasury ordered that, in addition to the expenses incident to the district land offices, the surveying expenses should also be deducted, in order to form the net proceeds. Accordingly, it appears that the three per cent fund was stated for each State, from the commencement to the 30th September, 1823, wherein the under-mentioned items were deducted from the gross, in order to form the net receipts, viz:

First. The expenses of the public surveys and of the surveyors' offices as far as could then be ascertained or estimated up to date.

Second. The expenses incident to the district land offices, composed of the following items, viz:

Salaries and commissions of the register and receivers. Books, papers, and other articles of stationery allowed to the land officers, and charged in the receivers' accounts.

Expenses incident to the annual examination of land offices.

Expenses of advertising land sales, and repayments to individuals on account of lands erroneously sold.

The statement so formed appears to have governed the payments to the States up to that date.

Subsequent to 1823, and up to the present period, the practice has been discontinued of charging against the fund the expense of the public surveys, and of the surveyors' offices, and the net proceeds have been ascertained by deducting from the gross receipts into the land offices only the second class of items above enumerated.

I have the honor to be, with great respect, sir, your obedient servant,

ELIJAH HAYWARD.

ON CLAIM TO LAND IN MICHIGAN.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES MAY 14, 1834.

Mr. C. JOHNSON, from the Committee on Private Land Claims, to whom was referred the petition of Thomas B. Clarke for a patent for a certain tract of land in Michigan Territory, reported:

That the tract of land, for which the petitioner prays a patent may be granted to him, was confirmed to James Cisni by the commissioners of land claims in the Territory of Michigan, under the act of Congress of 11th May, 1820, as may be seen by reference to the printed report (No. 42) of the Committee on Public Lands, made to the House of Representatives January 2, 1828, pp. 286, 287. In accordance with this confirmation, and agreeably to the manner pointed out by law, on the 2d July, 1831, a certificate was issued by the register of the land office at Detroit, in favor of James Cisni aforesaid, that he might receive his patent for this tract from the United States. On an examination, however, of the surveys of the General Land Office, it was found that this tract, as confirmed, would interfere with lands reserved many years before for military purposes, and no patent was issued, and none can issue, without the authority of Congress, to give which, as it is understood the land is not needed for military uses, the committee report.

ON APPLICATION FOR A DONATION OF LAND FOR THE INVENTION OF THE STEAM SNAG BOAT.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JUNE 5, 1834.

Mr. ASHLEY, from the Committee on the Public Lands, to whom was referred the petition of Henry M. Shreve, praying compensation for the invention of the steam snag boat, reported:

That it appears, from official reports and other information in possession of the committee, that the petitioner is the inventor of the snag steamboat; that it was contrived and constructed expressly for the purpose of removing snags and rocks from, and improving the navigation of, the principal rivers of the valley of the Mississippi; that it has been tested by the experience of five years, and minutely examined and approved of by some of the most experienced officers of the corps of engineers. Capt. Delafield, of that department, describes it as a splendid piece of machinery, the power of which is such as to raise the largest and most firmly planted snags, "as an invention that answers the purpose admirably well." Capt. Delafield states that one snag raised by the Heliopolis, while he was on board, contained sixteen hundred cubic feet of timber, and could not have weighed less than sixty tons. The first snag boat was constructed in 1829, the second in 1831, and the success with which they have been employed in improving the navigation of the Mississippi, Ohio, Arkansas, and Red rivers, is so fully tested by reports made to the chief engineer, that the committee are constrained to view the invention as one of great importance to the government. It is a labor-saving agent of immense power, by the aid of which, the petitioner has recently demonstrated, by actual experiment, that the great Red river raft may be speedily removed and demolished. When this great work shall be accomplished, the navigation will be as good through what is termed the line of the raft as it ever has been below it, and the river may be ascended by steamboats of the first class upwards of eleven hundred miles. In a military point of view the improvement of the navigation of Red river may be pronounced a work of great importance. That stream constitutes the only water communication with a considerable portion of the northwestern part of the State of Louisiana, the Arkansas, the northeastern frontier of Mexico, and the southwestern territory of Missouri, to which the government is now removing the aborigines of the country. Fort Towson is on Red river, distant about eleven hundred miles from its mouth. By proper improvement this stream may be made navigable for small steamers several hundred miles above Fort Towson, and may be ascended in large keel-boats and barges nearly to the Rocky mountains. In the region through which it flows, military posts will have to be maintained for ages, to keep the Indian tribes in check, and to ensure harmony among them, as well as to preserve a good understanding with Mexico. In the transportation of supplies and munitions of war to Fort Towson, the government has encountered difficulties almost insurmountable, and at one time the troops at that post were left destitute of their regular provisions and clothing during a whole season, owing to the impossibility of passing the great raft. The present price of freight from Natchitoches to Fort Towson is three cents per pound. When the raft shall be removed, it is believed the price of freight from New Orleans to Fort Towson will not exceed seventy-five cents per hundred pounds. The committee are persuaded these facts will not only convince the House that the destruction of the raft is highly desirable in a military point of view, but that it will add some eight or ten millions to the value of the public domain on the waters of Red river, and eventually be productive of incalculable agricultural and commercial advantages.

This is an imperfect view of the general advantages which must follow the removal of the great raft, a work which the committee believe could not have been commenced with a prospect of success, without the aid of the snag boat, and the energy and skill of the inventor. Other improvements have been made and are in progress, in which the snag boat has proved itself a valuable, and, the committee may say, an indispensable agent. Although the commerce of the Mississippi and Ohio rivers has increased about one hundred per cent since 1829, it is supposed the losses on those rivers have not exceeded, in the last five years, one-third of the aggregate amount of those sustained in the five years immediately preceding. Similar results must follow the improvement of the Red river, the Missouri, Upper Mississippi, Arkansas, and all their numerous tributaries navigable for steamboats, and in the course of these operations many millions of acres of valuable lands will be reclaimed, thereby contributing largely to the national treasury, as well as to the health and convenience of the adjacent country.

The Missouri river is now navigated by steamboats from its mouth to the Yellow Stone, a distance of nineteen hundred miles, and is navigable to the great falls, six hundred miles above the Yellow Stone. This noble stream flows through one of the most salubrious, and, for seven or eight hundred miles, fertile regions on earth. The Yellow Stone is one of its principal tributaries, and, with some inconsiderable improvement, would be navigable for steamboats five or six hundred miles, almost to the eastern base of the Rocky mountains. The Missouri also receives the Osage, Gasconade, Grand river, Kansas, Platte, and many other important navigable streams, that are destined, ere long, to add an incalculable amount of the products of the soil, and of the mines of the vast region through which they meander, to the trade and commerce of the country.

The principal obstructions in the navigation of those rivers are such as may be easily removed by the agency of the steam snag boat, and at a moderate expense.

With this view of the general advantages derived, and to be derived, from the invention and use of the snag boat, and in consideration of the valuable services of the inventor as superintendent of the improvement of the navigation of the Mississippi, Ohio, Arkansas, and Red rivers, who could not, situated as he was, being in the service of the United States when said boat was constructed, avail himself of the benefits of the law granting to inventors of useful machines the exclusive right of using the same, and of vending to others the use thereof, the committee respectfully recommend to the House the passage of an act granting to the petitioner the right of pre-emption to eighteen sections of the public lands lying on the line of the aforesaid raft, on Red river, and for that purpose report the accompanying bill.

23d Congress.] No. 1246. [1st Session.

ON APPLICATION FOR A GRANT OF LAND FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF A ROAD FROM VINCENNES, INDIANA, TO CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JUNE 5, 1834.

Mr. Duncan, from the Committee on the Public Lands, to whom were referred several petitions from citizens of Illinois, asking aid from Congress in the construction of a road from Vincennes to Chicago, in that State, reported:

They are fully convinced of the importance of the construction of great and leading roads, such as that asked for by the citizens of Illinois; and the policy of the government, heretofore, warrants them to believe that Congress has taken the same view of the subject.

In a government like our own, founded and resting on the intelligence of the people, nothing can be of more importance than giving facility to the transportation of the mail, and general intercourse of the community. We only want to know each other to remain united, free, and independent. The national resources and individual prosperity, in a commercial country like this, depend on safe and certain intercourse between the producing and consuming portions of the world; without it, the diligent cannot secure riches, nor the husbandman rejoice over the blessings of fruitful seasons, however richly they may fill their storehouses, or crown the labors of their hands. In adorning and beautifying a country, and in making the people prosperous and happy, permanent, straight, and well-made roads are of the highest importance; and, in the opinion of the committee, it is the duty, the interest, and should be the pride of this government to contribute its just share (as it owns most of the territory) in the accomplishment of so desirable an object. But if these considerations shall not be deemed conclusive, your committee respectfully suggest that it is for the pecuniary interest of the United States to make such grants.

What private individual, conversant with the sale and settlement of large tracts of land, does not know that roads are of primary necessity; and that, in proportion as he brings his lands to be accessible, in the same degree are they rendered salable and increased in value? And who, owning six-sevenths of all the lands in any State, regarding his own interest, would hesitate for a moment, with a single eye to gain, to construct, or assist in constructing, important commercial roads, as the best means of securing it? But it has been said by some of our ablest statesmen, an opinion fully concurred in by your committee, "that the public lands ought to be employed, or used, to build up and sustain great and prosperous communities;" most, if not every other civilized country in the world, have so disposed of their public domain. In the first settlement of America, the British, Spanish, and French governments made liberal grants of lands to those who would improve and cause them to be settled; by this policy, they soon saw the wilderness turned into cultivated fields, and found ample remuneration for the value of the lands so granted, in the addition of their power, and the new resources of commerce and wealth which immediately flowed back upon them from this extensive country.

Your committee will not here stop to draw a contrast between the policy pursued by the United States and that of other countries, in the disposition of their public domain; but it becomes their duty to say that it would be unwise in a government, as it would be in an individual, to hold large districts of land exempt from all tax, without making some remuneration to the State or citizens that improved them, equivalent at least, to the benefit received. Your committee have understood that the citizens of the State of Illinois are more heavily taxed than those of any other State in the Union: one of the governors of that State, in a message to the legislature, says, that their tax was then eight times as high as in Kentucky; which excessive tax your committee are informed, and believe, has been partly caused by the laying out, marking, and constructing numerous great roads, bridges, &c. Your committee have ascertained there are only about four or five million acres of land subject to taxation in that State, while there are over thirty million acres, held by the United States, exempt from all tax; the tax on thirty million acres of public land now held by the United States in that State, at the same rate that the citizens of Illinois are taxed, would produce $450,000 per annum, which shows that Illinois loses very large sums annually by the surrender of their right to tax the public land.

The burden thus thrown upon a young community, contending, as they have in many cases to do, with the savage warriors of the forest, and encountering all the privations and hardships incident to the settlement of a new country, should be alleviated as far as is considered just, in proportion to the benefits received by this government. All the grants of land, and the percentage on the sales, secured to the State under the act of admission, are, as will readily be seen, far, very far short of what is due to the State, for the surrender of its right to tax, or for the improvement they make on, to say nothing of the value they give to, the public lands.

By the act of March 2, 1827, Congress granted to the State of Indiana one section for every mile of a road from the Ohio river to lake Michigan, in addition to the road covering one hundred and twenty feet in width; and like grants have been made to other States.

The State of Illinois contains about forty-two millions of acres of land, and less than seven millions are owned by individuals, leaving the United States owner of over thirty millions of acres of the fairest portion of the habitable globe. Can it be anything else than justice to this young and flourishing State to help her on with the improvements which she has begun, under circumstances peculiarly embarrassing on account of the vast extent of territory over which these roads are to be made; and from the comparatively small part of it which is liable to be taxed, the expense of such improvements, as has been shown, falls heavily upon the people, both in a tax upon their labor, and the treasure of the State; and thus, while she is stimulated to persevere in her expenditures, the government will, as it has, reap a rich and certain gain in the sale and increased value of its lands!

The great highways are already established or pointed out by the keen eye of private adventure and the local legislature. And at no time can the several roads traversing the State be so well laid out and established as now, before private investments shall be made, and local jealousies arise, conflicting with the public interest.

In every extremity of the State settlements are now making; and if the great commercial points are connected by straight and permanent roads, the intermediate spaces will be rapidly filled up, and the land sold to enterprising people, at a high price.

Your committee therefore report a bill, according to the prayer of the petitioners, to grant the State of Illinois one hundred and twenty feet of ground, as the right of way, from a point opposite Vincennes to Chicago, together with a grant of one section, to be located by the State, for every mile in length of said road, to assist in its construction; and for the same reasons, your committee are of opinion that the United States should contribute the same quantity of land to the construction of all the great public highways to be constructed in the State; amongst which, the following are a part of those already indicated:

From a point where the national road crosses the Wabash river, to the Mississippi river, at a point north of the mouth of the Illinois river. From Golconda, on the Ohio, by Jonesborough, to the Mississippi river. From Lower Alton to Chicago. From Chicago to Galena. From Vincennes to St. Louis. From Alton to Galena. From some point on the Ohio river, by the seat of government of the State, to intersect the road from Alton to Chicago. From the Ohio river, to intersect the road from Vincennes to Chicago. A letter from the Honorable Z. Casey, dated May 1, 1834, addressed to the chairman of the committee, is made part of this report.

HALL OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, May 1, 1834.

SIR: Permit me, through you, to call the attention of the Committee on the Public Lands, to the subject of a memorial which, some time since, I had the honor to present, and have referred to that committee, from the citizens of several counties on the Wabash, in relation to the improvement of the great post route, from the bank of the Wabash river, opposite Vincennes, Indiana, to Chicago, Illinois, passing through the county seats of Crawford, Clark, Edgar, Vermillion and Iroquois, in the latter State. This road has been surveyed, marked, and established by the State; its whole length is about 230 miles, much of which passes through very extensive and unsettled prairies, and over various streams and bottoms of difficult passage, and a considerable part of it through extensive and growing settlements, but scattered and far between, and also through some ten or more flourishing towns and villages.

This road, the whole way, runs nearly parallel with, and close to, the eastern boundary of Illinois, and the settlements and towns in Indiana contiguous to the line are equally numerous and flourishing with those in Illinois. The locality and growing importance of Chicago has already made it, and so it must inevitably ever continue to be, the great northern depot for the whole of that section of country.

It is there that the produce from a most extensive and fertile country must necessarily be carried, to be shipped further north and northeast, and it is from there that this extensive country will, and in a goodly degree does already, commence the land carriage of the chief, if not the whole of the merchandise. Hence the great importance of this road being made a good one, will be most readily perceived, not only for the transportation of the mail, but for the convenience of trade. And it ought not to be forgotten, or slightly passed over, that at least nine-tenths of the land on and adjacent to the road yet belongs to the government. In consequence of the very extensive prairies, and the newness and sparseness of the settlements, it is wholly out of the power of the inhabitants so to improve the road as to make it ever reasonably passable for the great objects, as above stated.

In conclusion, I beg you to make a careful examination of the memorial itself, as fully explaining the views of those best acquainted with the subject, and whose prayer I consider not only reasonable, but just, and do most earnestly hope the subject will receive a favorable consideration from the committee, and that a liberal appropriation, in land, will be made for an object so desirable as I know this one to be.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant, Z. CASEY.

Hon. C. C. CLAY, Chairman of the Committee on the Public Lands.

ON APPLICATION FOR PRE-EMPTION TO CERTAIN LOTS IN PERRYSBURG, OHIO.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JUNE 5, 1834.

Mr. LEAVITT, from the Committee on the Public Lands, to whom was referred the petition of sundry inabitants of the town of Perrysburg, in the State of Ohio, praying for a right of pre-emption to certain lots in said town, reported:

That said town of Perrysburg was laid out by the United States, under the authority of an act of Congress, passed on the 27th of April, 1816; that in July, 1817, a public sale of the lots in said town was held at Wooster, in said State, and many of them were then sold, under the credit system then existing in relation to public lands; and that subsequently a number of said lots reverted to the United States, by reason of the failure of the purchasers to make payment therefor according to law, and were afterwards adjudged to be properly subject to taxation by the State of Ohio, and were placed on the tax list for that purpose. It also appears that these lots, or a part of them, have been sold under the laws of said State, for the taxes and penalties which had accrued thereon, and that the purchasers at such tax sales have obtained titles, pursuant to the laws of Ohio; but as the validity of these titles is questionable, the petitioners pray that they may be quieted, by granting them permission to enter and pay for the same, at the same rate at which they sold at the original sale, in July, 1817. The committee believe that the prices then bid for said lots were equal to their full value at that period, and for many years after, and that it is but just and reasonable that the purchasers thereof, at the tax sales, should have a pre-emption right to the same, at those prices. They have accordingly reported a bill for that purpose.

23d Congress.] No. 1248. [1st Session.

ON CLAIMS TO LAND IN MISSOURI.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE JUNE 6, 1834.

Relating to the land claims of Michael Butcher and others, being a petition to the intendant general of Louisiana, and the testimony adduced before the commissioners for settling land claims in Missouri; transmitted to the Senate, with a report from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, on the 22d June, 1834.

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

The petition of Sebastien Butcher and Peter Bloom, of the county of St. Genevieve, in the State of Missouri, for themselves and the heirs and legal representatives of Bartholomew Butcher and Michael Butcher, deceased, respectfully represents:

That in 1797, your petitioners and the said Bartholomew and Michael Butcher emigrated to Upper Louisiana, and have resided from that time until the present, in what is now the State of Missouri. That on the 11th of June, 1802, the said Bartholomew, Michael and Sebastien Butcher, and Peter Bloom, petitioned the intendant at New Orleans, for a grant of 1,600 arpens of land, to be taken at a place therein mentioned, or if vacant land could not be there found, then to take the quantity lacking in the king's domain; and that Don Pierre Delassus de Luziere, commandant of the post of New Bourbon, recommended to the said intendant of Louisiana the confirmation of said grant of land, a copy of which said grant of land is hereunto annexed, in the handwriting of said Luziere, and marked No. 1. Your petitioners further state, that the original of said petition and recommendation has been filed with the board of commissioners for the adjustment of private land claims in Missouri, and that a certified copy of the testimony laid before said board of commissioners, in this behalf, accompanies this petition. Your petitioners further represent, that since their said testimony was filed before the said board of commissioners, the said Mary Ann Laplante, whom your petitioners consider as a material witness in their favor, has departed this life, as will appear by the depositions of John V. Valle and John R. Lalumandiere, hereunto annexed, marked . Your petitioners further state, that, being unlearned and illiterate men, they had supposed, and always took it for granted, that the claim here exhibited was a concession; and they aver that such grants were always considered as concessions, and passed from hand to hand as such, during the Spanish government, as will appear from the depositions of Messrs. Valle and Lalumandiere, hereinbefore referred to, and the testimony taken before the said board of commissioners. Your petitioners further state, that the said board of commissioners have decided, as they are informed, that their said claim is not by them considered as a concession, and therefore the said board do not consider themselves authorized to adjudicate upon it. Your petitioners state, that from the time of the said grant to the present, they have enjoyed possession of said land as other persons holding under concessions, and (being, as before stated, unlearned men), had no doubts but their claim rested on the same basis as other concessions. Your petitioners therefore pray, that the government of the United States will grant to them their said claim of land, or, at least, permit them to present the same before the said board of commissioners, to be adjudicated upon the same as if their claim was what they had always heretofore understood it to be, a regular concession. And your petitioners will pray, &c.

S. BUTCHER.
PETER BLOOM.

To his lordship the intendant general of the Province of Louisiana, in his mansion at New Orleans:

Michael Butcher, Bartholomew Butcher, and Bastien Butcher, and Peter Bloom, supplicate very humbly, and have the honor to represent, that having resided, since several years, under the domination of his Catholic Majesty, and having never obtained any land from the government, they would wish to make and improve a plantation as well as a grazing farm; to this effect they have made researches for a tract of land suitable to their views, and have found one situated at about six miles from Mine a la Motte, on the road which leads to St. Genevieve and New Bourbon, at a place where there is a spring, which is at about a half mile from the land of Mr. Robert Friend; the said tract consisting of sixteen hundred arpens in superficie. For these motives, the said petitioners apply to your lordship, praying that you may be pleased to grant to them the above-mentioned tract of land, consisting in sixteen hundred arpens in superficie, at the place hereabove described, for them, their heirs and assigns; and, in case the aforesaid quantity of arable land was not to be found in the place hereabove described, to authorize them to take what would be wanting in a vacant place of the king's domain; the said land, now solicited for, not being granted to any person, which fact can be certified, if needed, by the nearest neighbors, as well as by the surveyor of this district. In so doing, the petitioners shall never cease to pray for the conservation of your days.

Done at New Bourbon, June 11, 1802.

We, captain, civil and military commandant of the post of New Bourbon, of Illinois, do certify to my lord the intendant of Louisiana, that the petitioners are very honest individuals, exercising in a perfect manner the profession of masons, who have been of the most precious utility to the inhabitants of these districts since their arrival, as much for the construction of houses and chimneys free of catching fire (a l'abry du feu), as for the erecting of furnaces to smelt lead. We do certify, besides, that the greatest part of the said mason work being finished, and the said petitioners having the intention of leaving this country, we have united our endeavors to those of Don Francois Vallé, commandant of St. Genevieve, to prevail upon them to remain, to which they have consented, upon the promise we have made to them to employ ourselves near his lordship the intendant, in order to have the concession which they solicit granted to them, to form thereon a plantation. The said land has not been granted to any person, and is, evidently, a part of the king's domain.

Michael Butcher, Bartholomew Butcher, Bastien Butcher, and Peter Bloom, claiming 400 arpens of land, situate, water of the river St. Francis, district of St. Genevieve, produced a petition to the intendant, together with a recommendation from P. D. Delassus de Luziere, commandant of New Bourbon, dated 15th December, 1802. A plat of survey, dated 23d February, 1806, certified 23d February, 1806. It is the opinion of the board that this claim ought not to be granted.

Michael Butcher, Bartholomew Butcher, Bastien Butcher, and Peter Bloom, claiming 1,200 arpens of land, situate on the waters of Big river, district of St. Genevieve, produce to the board the petition and recommendation, as in the foregoing claim, a plat of survey, dated 25th February, 1806, certified 28th February, 1806. It is the opinion of the board that this claim ought not to be granted. See book No. 5, page 352.

December 14th, 1832, F. R. Conway, Esq., appeared pursuant to adjournment.

Sebastien Butcher, and the heirs and legal representatives of Bartholomew Butcher, Michael Butcher, and Peter Bloom, claiming 1,600 arpens of land, (See Book No. 5, page 352, Record Book D, pages 46 and 47,) produce a paper purporting to be their petition to the intendant general of Louisiana, and a recommendation to the same, of Pierre Delassus de Luziere, commandant of New Bourbon, dated 15th June, 1802; also, a paper purporting to be a plat and certificate of survey, dated 25th February, 1806, by Nathaniel Cook, deputy surveyor.

The following additional testimony was taken in the foregoing case, in compliance with a resolution of this board of the 10th of October last.

The claimants state that, by virtue of their said claim, they located 400 arpens thereof about six miles from Mine a la Motte, as in their petition prayed for. That finding no other vacant land at that place of value for cultivation, they located the remaining twelve hundred arpens at a place on the waters of Grand or Big river, agreeably to the tenor of their said petition, and the plat of survey herewith shown to the board of commissioners. The petitioners further state, that the plat of survey for the said four hundred arpens, so located near Mine a la Motte, is now in the land office at Jackson, so that they can now produce it, but believe the same is on record in the office of the recorder of land titles in St. Louis.

Joseph Pratte, being duly sworn in this behalf, deposeth and saith that he has seen the recommendation of the said Luziere, late commandant of the post of New Bourbon, annexed to the petition of the said claimants for a grant or concession of sixteen hundred arpens of land; that he is well acquainted with the handwriting of said Luziere; and that the said recommendation, dated June 15th, 1802, and the signature thereunto affixed, are in the handwriting of the said Luziere. This deponent further saith that he is well acquainted with the handwriting of Ant. Soulard, late surveyor general of Upper Louisiana, and that his signature to the plat of survey here shown, is, as this deponent verily believes, genuine, and written by himself. This deponent further saith, that he is fifty-seven years of age, and has resided in St. Genevieve and vicinity, in what was formerly Upper Louisiana, all his life; that he is well acquainted with the nature of Spanish concessions, and requests and recommendations of commandant of posts, of which latter class the claim here shown appears to be one. That after the year 1799 or 1800, (as near as he can recollect,) the commandants did not give concessions, but recommendations to the intendant general at New Orleans, (as in this case,) and that said recommendations were uniformly considered of equal validity with concessions, and were passed and transferred from hand to hand as such, and that it was the uniform custom of the intendant general at New Orleans to grant and confirm all such claims.

This affiant further saith, that he has no doubt that the claim here shown would have been confirmed by the said intendant, under the usages and custom of the Spanish government; that he has known the said Sebastien (or Bastien) Michael, and Bartholomew Butcher, and Peter Bloom, to have come to the country in the year 1797; and that it was the custom of the government to give lands to persons of their description when applied for, and he has never heard that they received any other lands than those in the present claim mentioned.

J. PRATTE, } Land Commissioners.
L. F. LINN, }

John Baptiste Vallé, sen., being duly sworn in this behalf, deposeth and saith that he has seen the recommendation of the said Luziere, late commandant of the post of New Bourbon, annexed to the petition of the said claimants for a grant and concession of sixteen hundred arpens of land; that he is well acquainted with the handwriting of the said Luziere, and that the said recommendation to the intendant general, and the signature thereunto affixed, are in the handwriting of the said Luziere. This deponent further says that he was well acquainted with Antoine Soulard, late surveyor general of Upper Louisiana, and that his signature to the plat of survey here shown, this deponent believes to be genuine, and written by said Soulard. This deponent further says that he is now seventy-two years of age, and has resided in St. Genevieve, in the district (now county) of St. Genevieve, all his life; and is well acquainted with the manner of granting concessions by the Spanish government in Louisiana, and he always considered incipient titles of the kind here shown, as much entitled to a confirmation as any other, and that, frequently, lands granted by the said Spanish government were not surveyed until several years after they were granted and confirmed.

J. BAPTISTE VALLE.

And as a witness in this behalf, Mary Ann Laplante personally appeared before Lewis F. Linn, one of the commissioners appointed to settle and finally adjust the land claims in Missouri, and authorized by the said board of commissioners to receive testimony in this behalf, who being duly sworn, deposeth and saith, that she is about fifty-eight years of age; that she came from France to Upper Louisiana in the family of Mr. Luziere, late commandant of the post of New Bourbon, and has resided in St. Genevieve and New Bourbon ever since the said Luziere came to the country; that sometime before the change of government, (she thinks about the year 1802,) she was in the office of the said Luziere, (he being then commandant of the post of New Bourbon,) and saw Mr. Luziere writing a paper, which said Luziere then told her was a concession or grant of land to Bartholomew Butcher, Michael Butcher, Sebastien (or Bastien) Butcher, and Peter Bloom, which grant or concession said Luziere informed the witness was for four hundred arpens for each of said persons, for that, as those persons were such good stone masons, it was a great object to the people and the government of the country to have such good workmen and peaceable subjects retained in the country. This affiant being now blind cannot, of course, say whether the grant or concession, or recommendation, now shown to the commissioner, is the same she saw Mr. Luziere write. See Book No. 6, page 76.

November 27th, 1833. The board met pursuant to adjournment. Present, L. F. Linn, A. G. Harrison, F. R. Conway, commissioners. Sebastian Butcher, Bartholomew Butcher, Bastian Butcher and Peter Bloom, claiming 1,600 arpens of land.

The board, although not considering themselves authorized by the provisions of the act of Congress to take cognizance of this claim, regarding it to be a meritorious claim, respectfully recommend it to the examination of Congress for confirmation.

23D CONGRESS.] No. 1249. [1ST SESSION.

CLAIM FOR IMPROVEMENTS MADE ON CERTAIN LANDS IN INDIANA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE JUNE 10, 1834.

Mr. BIBB, from the Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the resolution to inquire into the expediency of granting indemnity to Samuel and James Smith, of Indiana, for improvements made by them on certain property of the United States under a lease given to them by the trustees of the United States, reported:

That the president, directors, and company of the Bank of Vincennes, the State Bank of Indiana, were in arrear to the treasury of the United States, in the sum of $128,308, and, to secure the payment thereof, conveyed and assigned over to John Badollet, John C. Harrison, and Robert Buntin, lands and tenements, including a steam distillery, appurtenances, and fixtures, and notes, &c., in trust that they, or a majority, should sell and collect, and apply the proceeds to the payment of the debt due the United States, with legal interest thereon. The deed of trust contained an authority to the trustees, or a majority, to demise and lease the whole, or any part of the said lands, lots and houses, until such time as a sale or sales thereof could be made, and receive and take the rents, issues, and profits thereof; the rents and profits, and proceeds of sales of the property, to be paid into the public treasury of the United States until the debt should be extinguished.

The trustees, in the fall of the year 1827, agreed with James and Samuel Smith for the repairs of the tenement known as the steam distillery, then in a dilapidated condition, and for such alterations as to put the distillery in a state for useful and successful operation; the improvements and repairs to be compensated by a lease of the steam mill tenement for a time proportionate to the costs of the repairs and improvements. James and Samuel Smith, in pursuance of this agreement, took possession of the tenement, and made expenditures in repairs to the value of two thousand three hundred and eighty dollars ten cents. In making this arrangement, the trustees certify they were moved by the consideration that the steam mill tenement being untenanted, was going to decay, and they saw no probability of effecting a sale of the property in that dilapidated state.

After this agreement, and after the repairs were progressing by James and Samuel Smith, the trustees entered into an agreement with William H. Neilson for a conditional sale and purchase of a tract of about eighty acres, including the steam mill and the buildings near the same, as appears by articles signed and sealed by the trustees and said Neilson, bearing date on the 21st June, 1828. The trustees therein covenanted to put Neilson into immediate possession of the steam mill and buildings, and to continue him in the possession thereof for one year, to commence from the first day of July, 1828. Neilson covenanted to pay for the year a rent of two hundred dollars on the 1st day of July, 1829. The trustees covenanted to remit the rent, if Neilson should, "at any time previous to the 1st day of October next, (1828) make purchase of the said steam mill; otherwise, the same to be exacted and paid at the time above mentioned." It appears by the articles signed and sealed by the trustees, bearing date on the 27th December, 1828, annexed to the former agreement, that said Neilson "did, previous to the 1st day of October last, (1828) purchase of the trustees the property mentioned in the foregoing article, viz., the steam mill and the square of ground whereon the same is situate, together with the residue of the tract known as the steam-mill tract, adjoining the borough of Vincennes on the northeast, containing two arpens in width by forty in depth," for the sum of six thousand dollars.

The trustees covenanted to deliver to Neilson a deed for the premises, with general warranty, and Neilson covenanted to execute his obligations to the trustees for the payment of the price of six thousand dollars by six equal annual installments, the first installment to become due on the 1st day of January, 1830.

It appears by the certificate of the trustees, and by the articles themselves, that in the sale, and in the conveyance to Neilson, no mention or reservation was made of the right of James and Samuel Smith to the possession of the steam mill, according to the previous agreement between the trustees and Smith, of the year 1827, and the repairs and expenditures in pursuance of that agreement.

Furthermore, it appears that the trustees adjusted the expenditures of James and Samuel Smith at two thousand dollars, and did, by a writing under their hands and seals, bearing date on the third day of June, 1830, execute to said James and Samuel Smith, for and on behalf of the United States, and as trustees of the property so deeded in trust, a lease for the tenement used as the steam distillery for and during the term of ten years, beginning on the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and twenty-eight, "for and in consideration of the sum of two thousand dollars by them (the Smiths,) expended on said premises; and the said James and Samuel Smith do agree to leave said distillery in good running order, with eighty tubs, and the necessary apparatus for working the same," &c.

The said Neilson sold the tenements purchased by him, including the distillery, to Morrison and Hunter, who threatened to dispossess James and Samuel Smith by law. They assigned their lease in 1830, to H. D. Wheeler, who abandoned the lease in 1831, in consequence of the claim of Neilson and his vendee; and Wheeler, the assignee of James and Samuel Smith, has successfully resisted the payment of the sum stipulated for the purchase of the lease, on the ground that they, the assignors, had no interest in the premises pretended to be assigned.

The trustees account for the delay in executing the lease to Smiths, by reason of the absence of Mr. Harrison, one of the trustees, connected with a delay in ascertaining the amount of the expenditures for repairs. They say, moreover, that the Smiths have received no compensation for their expenditures, except the short time of their occupation, from the date of their agreement in 1827, until the sale to Neilson in June, 1828, which time was occupied in making repairs; and from June, 1828, until the abandonment of the lease in 1831, the Smiths are bound to Neilson and his assignees for the rents and profits.

The committee cannot forbear to remark, that the trustees have managed this affair with the lessees, James and Samuel Smith, in a very awkward and confused manner. The idea seems to have prevailed that the trustees could not make a valid lease to endure beyond the time when a purchaser of the fee simple and inheritance should proffer an acceptable proposition; and this error has led the parties concerned into difficulties. The deed gives to the trustees an express power to "demise or lease the whole or any part of the said lands, lots, and houses, until such time as a sale or sales thereof can be made;" next, a power is given to them, whensoever thereto requested by the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States, to "sell and dispose of, for cash or on credit, on such terms, and in such parts or parcels, as to them shall seem most advantageous, all or any part of the lands, tenements, or hereditaments." And in the declaration of uses and trusts, the trustees are directed to "apply all and every the sum or sums of money, or other proceeds to be raised or paid by the rents or sales of the said lands," to the proper use of the United States. Under these powers and trusts, the trustees were to apply rents as well as sales to the uses and purposes of the trusts. The trustees had power to make a lease for a certain definite term, so as to invite a good tenant and a fair rent. They were under no necessity to insert a clause that the lease should cease as soon as a purchaser in fee should desire to make entry upon the premises; not the duration of the lease, but their discretion to lease or sell, was intended to be regulated by a bid for the fee simple. They were authorized to lease, and authorized to sell in fee, to receive the rents and apply them, or to sell the leasehold, with the accruing rents, together with the remainder, to a purchaser, and apply the purchase money. But after having made a sale of the fee simple, they had no longer a right to make a lease. If they had executed to James and Samuel Smith a lease for ten years, and then sold to Neilson in fee, the purchaser must have taken the estate subject to the lease. But, by suffering the agreement for the lease to remain in parol and in fieri, by covenanting with Neilson to deliver him immediate possession, and by delivering to Neilson a deed in fee, and afterwards executing a lease to the Smiths, the trustees made themselves responsible to Neilson for immediate possession, and responsible to the Smiths in case he was deprived, by their acts, of the benefit of the agreement for repairs.

It seems that the trustees intended to make the most of the property for the benefit of the United States; that their agreement with the Smiths was fairly intended to prevent the distillery and buildings from going to ruin, and to induce a better price from a purchaser. The mistake about their powers, and the manner of conducting the lease and the sale, have led the parties into perplexity, and the lessees to loss. But the United States have received the benefit of the expenditures of James and Samuel Smith for repairs. If the trustees had paid for these repairs, they would have been justly entitled to deduct them from the proceeds of sales, and the balance only would have been due to the treasury. As they did not pay, but have subjected the lessees to the loss, and the treasury is to receive the benefit of the sales, your committee deem it expedient that James and Samuel Smith should be remunerated for their expenditures in improving the property under their agreement with the trustees.

They accordingly report a bill for the relief of James and Samuel Smith, of Indiana.

23D CONGRESS.] No. 1250. [1ST SESSION.

ON CLAIM TO CERTAIN LANDS IN MASSACHUSETTS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE JUNE 10, 1834.

Mr. BIBB, from the Committee on the Judiciary, to whom the petition of sundry persons claiming as the heirs of Silence Elliot was referred, reported:

That the petitioners desire to be authorized to prosecute suits against the United States in the circuit court of the United States for the district of Massachusetts for the recovery of lands conveyed to the United States, and also that the statute of limitations may not be interposed as a bar. These petitioners, about thirty-two in number, present their claims as having originated many years ago—how long, is not stated; they say one John Haskins took out letters of administration upon the estate of Silence Elliot, from the judge of a court of probate who had no jurisdiction to grant them; whereby, they say, the said Haskins was not the administrator: yet, acting as administrator, he took possession of all the lands belonging to her, the said Silence Elliot, lying in the city of Boston, and sold the same, as he said, for the payment of her debts, procured the lands to be purchased at the sale on his own account, and held them until his death, since which the heirs of said Haskins have sold and conveyed many of the lots to individuals, and several to the United States, in the year 1817. That they instituted various suits against individuals, in one of which suits a verdict and judgment final, in the highest judicial tribunal of Massachusetts, has been rendered in favor of the petitioners; and all the other opposing tenants have compromised, and the suits have been amicably adjusted and withdrawn.

That they presented their petition to the Congress for leave to institute suits against the United States to try their title during their session of 1829 and 1830, which was rejected; since the rejection the term of forty years allowed by the statute of limitations, within which time their suits might have been instituted, has expired, to wit, on or about the 2d of August, 1830.

The committee have not been furnished with the record of the adjudication of Massachusetts, or any information as to the particular points litigated in the case which was adjudged. It is not pretended that any other than Haskins obtained letters of administration from any other court. Upon what fact or point the objection to the jurisdiction of the court of probate is now placed to oust that jurisdiction, and place it in another court, is not disclosed. When the lots were sold, whether then unimproved or improved, what length of time has elapsed since the letters of administration were granted by the court of seeming jurisdiction, does not appear. Certainly the cause of action accrued upwards of forty years past, and that is all that is certainly known about the case. The petitioners invite the Congress to dispense with the general rules that a government is not to appear as a defendant and wrongdoer before her own courts of justice, and also with the limitation of forty years, merely because a single individual defendant has failed in his defence, and others have bought their peace.

The committee do not think that the success of the petitioners in a single action, when the nature of the demand and defence is so little understood, is a sufficient reason for departing from settled rules and safe policy. They do not think it expedient for the government to put its title and possession, now incontrovertible, into controversy, when that controversy is to hang upon transactions of more than forty years' standing; nor to subject the lots to litigation after such long sleeping upon their supposed rights, when the delay is not explained nor excused; more especially when the claim of the petitioners appears to be founded in a technical nicety, too subtile to strike the vision of the court, and the actors of that day. The committee, therefore, recommend the following:

Resolved, That the prayer of the petitioners is unreasonable, and that it be rejected.

The foregoing claimants appear to have been residents of that part of Louisiana situated east of Pearl river, west of the Perdido, and below the thirty-first degree of latitude, on the 15th of April, 1813, and on that day, and for ten consecutive years previous thereto, to have been in possession of the tract claimed: it is therefore recommended for confirmation for the quantity contained in a league square, to include such lands as may have been heretofore confirmed under this title. The foregoing claimants appear to have been residents of that part of Louisiana situated east of Pearl river, west of the Perdido, and below the thirty-first degree of latitude, on the 15th April, 1813, and on that day, and for ten consecutive years previous thereto, to have been in possession of the tracts claimed. It is the opinion of the undersigned, that, although the foregoing claimants have no written evidence of claim, they are entitled to a league square of land under the law, provided they had that quantity in possession; but, as they do not prove what the foregoing tracts contain, they are recommended for confirmation for such quantity as Congress may think proper to give. All of which is respectfully submitted.

23d Congress.] No. 1252. [1st Session.

ON THE CONDITION OF THE LAND OFFICES, AND CONDUCT OF THE REGISTERS AND RECEIVERS THEREOF, DURING THE YEAR 1833.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE JUNE 13, 1834.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, June 12, 1834.

SIR: In obedience to a resolution of the Senate dated the 29th ultimo, directing the Secretary of the Treasury to communicate to the Senate "copies of the several reports made by the agents appointed to examine into the condition of the land offices for the sale of the public lands, and the conduct of the several registers and receivers during the year 1833, together with the documents and other evidence annexed to said reports," I have the honor to transmit duplicates and copies of the reports received from the several agents employed in the examination of the land offices, together with the documents and other evidences appertaining to the same.

In addition to the reports herewith transmitted, I would respectfully refer the Senate to that of J. A. Howard, Esq., showing the result of a further examination of the land office at Indianapolis, which is already in the possession of the Senate.

I have the honor to be, respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

R. B. TANEY, Secretary of the Treasury.

LAND OFFICE, Huntsville, Ala., July 27, 1833.

SIR: Immediately upon my arrival at this place, I made known my appointment, by delivering your letter of introduction; and, as you informed me that the object of my mission was "to ascertain facts," I carefully abstained, agreeably to your instructions, from a disclosure of motives. I shall now proceed to state the result of my investigations upon all the matters to which my attention was directed by your instructions, commencing with an account current and inventory of the cash in the receiver's hands.

The receiver at Huntsville in account with the United States.

DR.

To sales of lands from 30th June to 27th July	$2,194 06

By balance due 30th June	$179 28
By balance due 27th July	2,014 78
	$2,194 06

The above balance was exhibited to me by the receiver as follows:

In forfeited land scrip	$652 16½
In Alabama State Bank notes	1,360 00
In specie	2 62½
	$2,014 78

I examined with care the ledger, journal, and register of receipts of the receiver's office, and compared the entries made in each with those made in the others, and satisfied myself of their accuracy; and I also found these books severally made up and posted to this day. I made a comparison of such a number of entries in the register of receipts with the register's entries of certificates of purchase, as convinced me of their strict accordance with each other. The entries in the register of certificates, journal, and ledger, have been made up to this day, and the tract books have been opened in the numerical order prescribed by the General Land Office, and the instructions relative to quarter-quarter sections have been complied with. I made a comparison between the tract book and township plat sufficient to satisfy me of their accordance with each other, and all the books and papers are in good order, and the entries made in a neat and legible hand. The furniture of the two offices, belonging to the government, consists only of two pine desks, worth about twelve dollars; but the officers have, at their own cost, supplied all the requisite furniture. Against the general conduct and character of the register and receiver I heard no complaints.

Since November, 1830, the receiver has purchased twenty-five or thirty tracts of land, all of which have been regularly returned to the General Land Office in his own name, and in no other way has he any interest, directly or indirectly, in public lands. The register being absent, I could obtain no certain information from him in relation to his purchases, but the receiver assured me that if the register owned any land it was duly entered according to law, and in his own name.

The permanent residences of the register and receiver are at Huntsville, but I found that when either of them was absent, the other acted in the double official capacity; they are also partners in trade. And I would respectfully suggest whether such a combination of interests and action is not calculated to destroy that wholesome check upon the conduct of registers and receivers which was contemplated by the act of Congress creating the two offices?

Respectfully submitted, &c. CHARLES BIDDLE.

Hon. ELIJAH HAYWARD, Commissioner of General Land Office.

LAND OFFICE, Tuscaloosa, Ala, August 5, 1833.

I examined with great care the ledger, journal, and register of receipts of the receiver's office, and compared the entries made in each with those made in the others, and satisfied myself of their accuracy; and I also found these books severally made up and posted to this day. I made a comparison of such number of entries of receipts with the register's entries of certificates of purchase, as convinced me of their strict accordance with each other. The entries are completed in all the before-mentioned books up to this day, and the tract books have been opened in the order prescribed by the General Land Office, and the law relative to quarter-quarter sections has been complied with. I made a comparison between the tract book and township plat sufficient to satisfy me of their accordance with each other, and all the books are in remarkably neat order, and the entries made in a neat hand. The office furniture of both offices consists of a large writing-desk and two small cases worth about twenty-five dollars. The receiver has an iron chest, private property. Against the conduct and character of the register or receiver I heard no complaints. Neither of those officers have ever been remotely interested in any land purchases, except in their own names, regularly returned with the quarterly returns to the General Land Office. They both reside in the town of Tuscaloosa.

Respectfully submitted, &c. CHARLES BIDDLE.

LAND OFFICE, Demopolis, Ala., August 12, 1834.

SIR: Owing to delays in transportion, or from some other cause, the books and stationery intended for the office have not yet arrived. I found, however, in use, a temporary register of receipts, and a temporary register of entry of certificates: these I scrutinized with great care, and compared the entries together, and found them all to correspond. I then deemed it necessary to compare each of those entries with the entries on the plats, and found them all correct.

The office furniture for the offices has been recently purchased, and cost the sum of seventy-five dollars and fifty cents. I beg leave to call your attention to the annexed letter from the register and receiver, asking for some additional furniture. They have not been engaged directly or indirectly in the purchase of lands. Against the conduct and character of the register and receiver I heard no complaint. As there was neither legder, nor journal, it became necessary to examine the register of receipts, in order to ascertain the amount due to the United States, which was found to be as follows:

Sales of lands from 15th July, 1833, when the office commenced, until 31st July, 1833, inclusive	$6,391 36
Sales of lands from the 1st to the 5th of August	1,300 58½
Sales of lands from the 6th to the 9th of August	844 54
	$8,536 48½

This sum of $8,536.48½ was exhibited to me as follows:

1. Forfeited land scrip	$158 70
2. Notes of the Bank of the United States	1,470 00
3. Notes of the State Bank of Alabama	4,320 00
4. Notes of the Mobile Bank	861 00
5. Draft of State Bank upon New York	1,500 00
6. Draft of the United States' Bank upon Mobile	154 03
7. Receiver's account for contingencies	72 75
		$8,536 48½

All of which is respectfully submitted by your most obedient servant,

CHARLES BIDDLE.

Hon. E. HAYWARD.

The register and receiver of the land office at Demopolis would beg leave to call the attention of Col. Biddle, to the following facts:

The torn and defaced state of the maps greatly retards the examination of them, and is calculated to create mistakes in making entries. Many tracts of land are marked with the letter P., which is the mark of entry, and nothing appears on the abstract of sales furnished by the officers at St. Stephen's to show that such tracts have been entered; yet, in some instances, individuals have exhibited to us the receiver's receipts for tracts in that situation. It is but justice to the present officers at St. Stephen's to make known that most of the tracts in that situation appear to have been entered previous to their appointment to the office, yet it is probable the register at St. Stephen's can afford some information on the subject.

A list of such tracts will be forwarded to Col. B. at St. Stephen's.

Two tract books have been received from the General Land Office, the forwarding of which has not been announced by the Commissioner.

The abstracts of sales furnished by the officers of the land offices at Cahawba and St. Stephen's are deficient in some items necessary to enter the tract books, viz., "rate per acre," "amount of purchase money," "number of register's returns," "number of receipts," "number of certificates of purchase," "date of patent," "volume and page of, when recorded."

A copy of Clarke's Compilation of Land Laws has been promised by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, but not yet furnished.

The necessity of furnishing this office with an iron chest, for the safe-keeping of moneys, must appear obvious, when it is recollected that the situation of the office is on the bank of a navigable river, often frequented by numbers of boatmen, whose character for outrage and dishonesty is so well known; the resistance of two officers against an attack from a dozen such characters would not be sufficient for the protection of the public money. Other offices have been furnished with a similar one. A fire-proof chest would cost about one hundred and twenty-five dollars.

This being a new office, it became necessary for the receiver to procure office furniture; in doing so, it will be perceived that "he has had an eye to the strictest economy."

LAND OFFICE, Cahawba, Ala., August, 1833.

SIR: After presenting your letters of introduction to the register and receiver, I proceeded to execute your orders, and annexed you have a statement of the results of my investigation and inquiries.

The following is an account current with the receiver:

The receiver at Cahawba in account with the United States.

DR.

Sales from 1st to 16th August, for scrip	79 87
	$18,959 75

CR.

By balance due 16th August, 1833,	$18,959 75

The foregoing balance was exhibited to me by the receiver as follows, to wit:

1. Notes of the State Bank of Alabama	$9,725 00
2. Notes of the Bank of Mobile	2,265 00
3. Notes of the Bank of the United States	2,630 00
4. Checks drawn by State Bank upon Mobile	305 00
5. Certificate of dep. at the Branch Bank, Mobile, credit of U. G. Mitchell, (but not as rec'r)	2,400 00
6. George M. Rivers' check on State Bank	100 00
7. Alexander Pope & Sons' check on United States Bank at Mobile	61 87
8. William P. Molett's check on United States Bank at Mobile	300 00
9. William Hendricks' draft at sight on Gale and Bowen, Mobile	200 00
10. William Hendricks' draft at sight on Gale and Bowen, Mobile	400 00
11. Jno. W. Willis' draft at sight on Turner and Lewis, Mobile	300 00
12. A certificate of forfeited land scrip	79 87
13. Specie	193 01
	$18,959 75

You will perceive in this list several private drafts and checks which I refused to take any notice of, until assured that they were received bona fide in payment for land, and not then until I ascertained that the receiver was a very wealthy man, and with perfect understanding as to his individual responsibility.

I examined with care the ledger, journal and register of receipts of the receiver's office, and compared the entries made in each with those made in the others, and satisfied myself of their accuracy, and I also found these books regularly made up and posted to the 1st July last. I made a comparison of such a number of entries in the register of receipts with the register's entries of certificates of purchase, as convinced me of their strict accordance with each other. The entries in the register of certificates, journal, and ledger, have been posted up to the 1st of July, and the tract books have been opened in the numerical order prescribed by the General Land Office, and the law relative to quarter-quarter sections has been complied with.

I made comparison between the tract book and township plats sufficient to satisfy me of their accordance with each other. The maps are bound, but not canvased. They have paper pasted on the backs, and are so bound as to prevent them from being canvased, unless rebound which cannot be done in Alabama. Indeed, experience has taught the people of the south that those mischievous insects, the cock-roach, are more destructive to canvas-bound books than any other.

There should be cases made for the preservation of the paper of this office. They are now well labeled and neatly tied in bundles, but are placed on shelves unprotected from dust or insects. I have heard nothing prejudicial to the character or conduct of the register or receiver. The annexed list will show the extent to which they have purchased public lands.

The furniture consists of two desks and one iron chest; the desks are worth about $40, but the iron chest was received by the receiver from his predecessor, and its value unknown. All of which is submitted by

Your most obedient servant,

CHARLES BIDDLE.

LAND OFFICE, Sparta, Alabama, August, 1833.

SIR: Upon my arrival at this office I proceeded, agreeably to your instructions, to inquire into the manner in which its affairs have been conducted; and I now lay before you the result of that investigation.

The following is an account current of the receiver:

The receiver at Sparta in account with the United States.

January 1.	To balance	$241 64
March 31.	To sales this quarter	2,098 23

June 30.	By salaries, &c., the two quarters ending this day	$544 19
August 22.	By balance	3,547 99
		$4,092 18

As the receiver had made no deposit to the credit of the government during the whole of the present year, and as he contemplated removing to another part of the State, I most strenuously urged upon him the propriety, and, indeed, necessity, of immediately placing to the credit of the treasury, in the Branch Bank of the United States at Mobile, the balance due. This was accordingly done, after deducting the probable expenses for the quarter ending the 30th September, 1833. The deposit was for $3,232.13, of which you were apprised by mail.

In the receiver's office no entry has been made in the ledger since 31st December, 1832. The journal is made up to 30th June, 1833. The register of receipts is made up of a few sheets of paper stitched together, from which the entries are copied into the journal. In the register's office, the register of certificates is made up to the 23d August, 1833; the ledger to the same period, and the journal to the 9th of the same month.

Under these circumstances, and finding the receiver's books so loosely kept, I compared them with those of the register, and was pleased to find no discrepancies. The tract books have been opened in the numerical order prescribed by the General Land Office; and the law relative to quarter-quarter sections has been complied with. I made a comparison between the tract book and township plats, sufficient to satisfy me with their accordance with each other. Against the general conduct or character of the register or receiver I heard nothing, although I regret to say that the books of the receiver are not so well kept as some others. The furniture of the two offices consists of two old book-cases; worth about ten dollars. The township plats are, most of them, pasted on cotton cloth; and a few are not pasted at all: some are in half binding, and some have nothing but paper covers.

Your most obedient servant,

CHARLES BIDDLE.

Hon. E. HAYWARD.

LAND OFFICE, St. Stephen's, Alabama, September, 1833.

SIR: Agreeably to your instructions, I have examined the condition of the register and receiver's offices in this place, and now beg leave to report the result of that examination.

I shall first state an account current between the government and the receiver:

The Receiver at St. Stephen's in account with the United States.

DR.

1833. June	30.	To balance, as per account rendered	$4,917 06
1833. July	31.	Amount of sales this month	1,196 93
1833. August	31.	do do	110 48
			$6,224 47

CR.

1833. August	31.	By contingent expenses	$22 80
		Balance	6,201 67
			$6,224 47

The foregoing balance of $6,201.67 was exhibited to me as follows, viz:

1. A certificate of payment made by James S. Duval, on the 29th May, 1833, at the Treasury of the United States at Washington city	$799 00
2. Notes of the Bank United States	4,575 00
3. Notes of the State Bank of Alabama	350 00
4. Notes of the Bank of Mobile	395 00
5. Certificate of deposit in Branch Bank, Mobile	78 35
6. Specie	4 32
Total	$6,201 67

I examined with care the ledger, journal, and register of receipts of the receiver's office, and compared the entries made in each with those made in the others, and was satisfied of their accuracy. The journal and ledger are posted to 30th June, 1833, and the register of receipts is made up to this day. I made a comparison of such a number of entries in the register of receipts with the register's entries of certificates of purchase, as convinced me of their strict accordance with each other. The entries in the register of certificates is made up to the 31st July, and those in the journal and ledger to the 30th June, 1833; and the tract books have been opened in the numerical order prescribed by the General Land Office, and the law relative to quarter-quarter sections has been complied with. I made a comparison between the tract book and township plats, sufficient to satisfy me of their accordance with each other. The furniture consists of a pine desk and book-case, valued together about fifteen dollars. Most of the township plats are in a torn and defaced condition; and although new ones were supplied about one year ago in place of many of the worst of them, yet they have never been pasted on canvas nor bound, nor are the entries transferred from the old to the new ones; in fact, they remain in the office precisely as they were received. The register's office at St. Stephen's is the repository of very valuable papers to the citizens south of the 23d degree of latitude, embracing Spanish grants and titles to property of immense value. These papers are now very insecurely kept in the back room of a frame store-house, and appear to attract but little attention from those in whose custody they are placed.

The receiver has purchased no land. Annexed is a list of that purchased by the register.

All of which is submitted by your most obedient servant,

Hon. E. HAYWARD. CHARLES BIDDLE.

1830. July 29. John B. Hazard, fractional section 7, T. 15, R. 1 east, 58 acres, at $1.25, $72.50.
John B. Hazard, S. W. subdivision, No. 2 of fractional section 8, T. 15, R. 1 E., 106 acres at $1.25, $132.50.
John B. Hazard, S. E. subdivision, No. 3 of fractional section 8, T. 15, R. 1 E., 112 acres, at $1.25, $140.00.

1831. July 25. John B. Hazard, S. W. division D., section 29, T. 7 R. 1 west, 110 acres, at $1.25, $137.50.

The above are the only tracts of land purchased by the register of the land office at St. Stephen's since the year 1829.

LAND OFFICE, Tallahassee, Florida, October, 1833.

SIR: Upon my arrival at this place, I presented your introductory letter to the register and receiver of public moneys, and proceeded to an investigation of all the matters contained in your instructions; the result of which I beg leave now to communicate.

The following is an account current of the receiver with the government:

The receiver of Tallahassee in account with the United States.

DR.

1833. June 30.	To balance as per account forwarded to Washington	$4,929 01¾
1833. Sept. 30.	To sales since 30th June	3,330 68¾

CR.

1833. May 27.	By cash deposited	$200 00
1833. May 30.	By cash deposited	106 17
1833, July 27.	By cash deposited	96 10
1833. Sept. 30.	Cash paid R. Butler	1,145 00
	Cash paid R. K. Hall, Esq.	3,125 00
	Expenditures	250 00
	Commission account	70 41
	Balance	3,267 02
		$8,259 70

The above balance of three thousand two hundred and sixty-seven dollars and two cents was exhibited to me as follows:

1.	Notes of the United States' Bank	$250 00
2.	Notes of Mobile Bank	100 00
3.	Notes of Bank of Florida	2,770 00
4.	In specie	147 00
		$3,267 02

Annexed is a paper marked a, containing a more particular account of the items credited in this account current.

The register's office has been negligently kept, as you will believe, when I state that, although the register of certificates is made up to 30th September, 1833, and the journal of entries up to 30th June, 1833, yet the journal has never been added up since 1st June, 1828.

The entries in the ledger of sales are up to the 30th September, 1833; but no additions have been made since 30th June, 1828, with a few exceptions, and they are noted in pencil marks. The register's son (who is de facto register) promised me that these omissions should be promptly supplied, and should not occur again. The tract books have been opened in the numerical order prescribed by the General Land Office. I made a comparison between the tract book and township plat; and, having early discovered one error, I was induced to occupy much time in further investigation, and I believe, with that one exception (which was promptly corrected,) the tract book and township plat are in accordance with each other. Two desks, worth about thirty dollars, is the furniture of the register's office, and one desk and one iron chest, worth about one hundred and ten dollars, is the furniture of the receiver's office. Against the character or conduct of the register or receiver I heard nothing.

All of which is submitted by your obedient servant,

CHARLES BIDDLE.

Hon. E. HAYWARD.

LAND OFFICE, St. Augustine, Florida, October 30, 1833.

SIR: Immediately after my arrival at this place, your letter of introduction made me acquainted with the register and receiver of public moneys, and I proceeded to an examination of the condition of their offices. It is with much regret that I am compelled to state that the receiver's books and papers are in a very confused situation. In the ledger there are neither debits nor credits entered in his account with the United States since December, 1831; but as no sale of public land appears to have been made since that period, and as he admits having received his salary from Washington, and as he assures me that his account was fully adjusted at the seat of government last summer, I must presume that you have been satisfied of the accuracy of his statements. The last sale which appears upon the receiver's books was made 9th November, 1831; but it appears by the books of the register that a sale was made of 160 acres a few weeks since, but no entry is yet made of it by the receiver. The first sale made at this office was to Reuben Charles, of 80 acres, at one dollar twenty-five cents per acre. The amount of this sale has never been credited to the United States on the ledger, although the receiver assures me that it has been accounted for to the government; yet he has no voucher to prove the fact. The circumstances above stated will account for the absence, in this report, of any account current or account of moneys on hand at this office. But as the salaries payable to the register and receiver exceed six times the amount of sales of the public lands at this office, I presume that the Treasury Department will always hold a sufficient pecuniary check upon the receiver. The total amount of sales at this office, since its establishment, has been one thousand five hundred and sixty-eight dollars and fifty-five cents, being in payment for 1,255 acres of land. With a knowledge of this fact, it will not be difficult to adjust the receiver's account since the commencement of his official career.

There having been but twelve sales of land, I deemed it proper to examine all of them through all their stages in the books, papers, and plats, in both offices. I found six of them on the journal which did not correspond with those on the register of receipts—the errors I had corrected.

With regard to the register's office, as I have stated above that I examined every entry of land through all its stages, it is only necessary to say that I found them all perfectly correct, and the books and papers kept in a manner highly creditable to that officer.

The receiver's furniture is a pine table, worth about three dollars; and the register's a pine table and a book-case, worth about ten dollars.

Against the general conduct and character of the register and receiver I heard no complaints.

All of which is submitted by your most obedient servant,

CHARLES BIDDLE.

Hon. E. HAYWARD.

WASHINGTON, Arkansas Territory, September 19, 1833.

SIR: I have the honor of enclosing you my report to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, dated this day.

I remain, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

V. M. GARESCHE.

Hon. WILLIAM J. DUANE, Secretary of the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, Arkansas Territory, September 19, 1833.

SIR: On my arrival at this place, I found the land office shut. The register, Samuel M. Rutherford, had resigned, and was at Little Rock; and the receiver had gone, it was supposed, to Natchez, to make a deposit. No agent being left, it was out of my power to look at the papers and books, and going through the examination of the office; but, as far as my information goes, the receiver and late register have given, in their original capacities, no ground for complaint.

Finding myself still very weak, I concluded that I should stop at the hot springs, and spend there a week; which proved of little utility, from the constant rains experienced, which so deluged the country as to stop all communication between Little Rock and this place. I reached here with much difficulty, and I could almost say at the risk of my life. On the road to Ouachita, (or Monroe, as it is called here,) the bridges have all been swept away, and the country overflowed, so as to make it doubtful whether I shall not be forced to return to Little Rock, go down the Arkansas river, and proceed through the State of Mississippi. The return of the receiver is very uncertain, and cannot take place before twelve days at soonest. The weather is not yet settled, and if the rains, which have been incessant for a fortnight, set in again, I shall find myself completely blocked up here. I do not suppose that it is your wish I should waste so much time on a single office, and will therefore, after to-morrow, attempt the road to Ouachita.

Information of various kinds, which I am recommended by your instructions to obtain, oblige me to have, on the subject of the lands, frequent conversations with the country people, and I am thus put in possession of knowledge which, although of a different nature from that sought after, may sometimes prove useful. I have found that the people in the vicinity of the hot springs are very desirous of having that part of the country surveyed; and, above all, to see the claims to these hot springs well established, that the premises may be placed on a respectable footing, and become a point of attraction alike to the fashionable and invalid. The whole country around would be thereby greatly benefited. Different competitors lay pretensions to the prize; but in this present state of uncertainty, none is willing to go to the expense of making that place one of general resort. The short and imperfect analysis I made of the waters did not show them to be different from common water, except in the small quantity of lime held in solution, and in their being saturated with carbonic acid, the gas of which bubbles up on the surface: they may, therefore, be drank with safety, although heated to 150° of Fahrenheit. The country all around abounds in minerals. In Magnet cove, fourteen miles from these springs, I have picked up native iron and loadstones, specimens of which I have with me. Tin, I am told, has also been found in the hills. This is a district for a mineralogist to visit. The people, aware of the natural advantages of the soil, are desirous that surveys should be made with a view to entering the land and making permanent establishments. I have recommended presenting a petition; but, from what I have seen, the surveyor general should be allowed a greater number of assistants—cries for surveys are made from every quarter, and yet the work is going on at a snail's pace, very, very far indeed from meeting the exigencies of the community. I consider this a very important point, and beg leave to call to it the attention of the department. In the meantime the best sections of land become the prey of hungry speculators, who under the mask of public good and feeling for the poor settler, are doing their utmost efforts to have a petition signed praying for a law, "granting pre-emption rights to those that have or may settle upon unappropriated lands." I enclose you the petition to which they invite the signature of every individual, interested or not. Its second paragraph makes it evident that the views of those who framed the petition are to obtain the choice lands at a minimum price, make partial settlements, and retail them out at an advance. The poor settler would derive no benefit from the passage of such a law; for, with their means of obtaining speedy information from Washington, these wily speculators would soon purchase from the ignorant the very titles which they pretend to secure. I have now traveled eight hundred miles through this Territory, and can certify that, in no instance whatever, have I heard the class of poor settlers complain of the present laws. The object of most of them, in settling upon unsurveyed lands, is to enjoy a wider range, and possess the lands without paying for them. When a sale, however, is made of these, they generally get paid for their improvements, and then go and recommence in another quarter. To this nomad and numerous class of settlers, the passage of the wished-for law would be of no avail. The only part of it that deserves attention, is that which would secure the settler against floating claims. But the New Madrid claims have, I believe, been all located, and the location of the remaining, Lovely, is rendered almost impossible: those last, indeed, have been a great curse to the country, and have fraudulently wrested from the United States vasts tracts of land. I conclude by expressing a wish that the proposed law may not pass, and that the authors of the petition find, (to use their own words,) no protection under its tail.

I have in this report gone beyond the limits assigned me; but it is difficult to abstain from touching upon subjects that have such a close connection with my duties. I always place much reliance upon your indulgence.

I remain, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant, V. M. GARESCHE.

ELIJAH HAYWARD, Esq., Commissioner of the General Land Office.

LITTLE ROCK, September 7, 1833.

SIR: I have the honor to remit a duplicate of the report of my examination of the land office at this place, together with the documents appertaining thereto.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant, V. M. GARESCHE.

Hon. WM. J. DUANE, Secretary of the Treasury.

LITTLE ROCK, Arkansas Territory, September 7, 1833.

SIR: Having set out from Fayetteville earlier than I intended, I arrived here on Sunday, the 1st instant, and commenced my examination on the 2d. It has lasted longer than usual, from the circumstance of the books not being made up by the agent of the late receiver. The balance due by Archibald Yell was also differently stated between the present officers and the sureties of the late receiver, and was made to amount to two hundred dollars, or thereabouts. No one seemed disposed to make up the books, the ledger being in arrear from July, 1832. I thought I was not overstepping the limits of my duty in putting that part of the office in order. I have, therefore, posted the ledger, closed on the books the old commission, incidental expenses, cash and sales of land accounts, opened one to Archibald Yell, late receiver, and left it debtor in the sum of $474.95, whilst the United States' account stands creditor in the like amount. When payment is made, these two accounts will be closed by the present receiver by making his cash account debtor to Archibald Yell, and the United States debtor to cash for the amount there was deposited. I enclose you the account current furnished the sureties of Archibald Yell. The references to the journal are with a view to their being able to compare on the books. I beg leave to refer you to my notes and remarks contained in the said account.

I arrived here as the present receiver was making his monthly return. The balance on hand consisted of:

$100	00	in a note of the Bank of New Orleans.
20	00	do Union Bank of Louisiana.
10	00	do Bank of Louisiana at New Orleans.
5	00	do New Orleans Canal Banking Company.
20	00	do Planter's Bank at Natchez.
100	00	in a note, }
10	00	do } of the Bank of Maryland, at Baltimore.
390	00	in five's, }
675	00	notes of the United States' Bank and branches.
78	75	in forty and twenty-franc gold pieces, taken at 93¾ c. the five francs.
12	28	silver.

The register of receipts was brought up to the day, the journal to the 31st of July, and ledger to the 30th of June. He is in the habit of posting his ledger every three months only, his instructions to the contrary notwithstanding. His first cash entries in the journal were not entered according to form, although correct as to result. He does not appear to understand book-keeping much, (which, by the bye, very, very few officers do,) and consequently, although correct in the ledger, the accounts in that book have very little reference to the entries in the journal. This voluminous, costly, and time-losing system of book-keeping of the land officers ought to make way for one much more simple and equally clear, or more so; for which I will take the liberty of presenting a report so soon as I have gone through my present mission, which I hope to terminate towards the middle of December next.

All the books have been minutely examined from January last, and, although the errata are stated at foot, I beg leave to draw your attention more particularly to two errors, as I suspect you will find them, in the quarterly return and abstract for July, and they might lead to a wrong issuing of the patents. June 13, No. 430, William Wilson of Pulaski county, E. ½ of S. W. quarter section 4, township 1, north, R. 12 west; instead of E. ½ of the S. W. quarter, he had it S. E. quarter, and the error ran through all the books. The second is this: July 3d, No. 436, Abijah Davis, Pulaski county, N. W. quarter of the N. W. quarter of section 1, township 2, south R. 16 west. In all the books, instead of township 2 south, he had it 1 north.

The books had no doubt been compared by the two officers, but the fact is, that the ear, fatigued by the monotonous repetition of the rhumbs, becomes callous, and can scarcely distinguish any. For this and other reasons I never suffer the officers to assist me in my investigations, the eye, in this case, being a surer detector than the ear.

The register's register of certificates was up to the day, the journal to the 31st of July, and the ledger to the 30th of June, he not posting but every three months. All three books I found without any error, excepting that the section, townships, and ranges of Nos. 400, 429, 448, and 461, were not mentioned on any of them. Mr. Smith, the register, writes rather a bad hand, but I believe he is very correct.

It appears that Carl Sandherr, No. 452, had applied for N. W. ¼ of S. W. ¼ of section 35, 1 north and 14 west, and 453 N. E. ¼ of N. W. ¼ of section 34, 1 north and 14 west. This is the way I found it entered on the plats, although in all the books of the receivers and registers the township had been corrected to south. In the application the correction had also been made from north to south. It turns out, nevertheless, that all the corrections are wrong, and that, as I have been informed by the receiver, the tracts purchased actually stand in township one north. Of this I have no evidence, but it would perhaps be proper to delay issuing the patent until this matter was cleared up.

The townships north have not yet been opened on the tract books. These tract books are opened in irregular series as usual. The township plats are pasted on canvas, and have a pasteboard cover; they open very clumsily, otherwise they are in good order. The office is neat, the papers in good order, and the officers, as far as I can judge, fully competent. The office is in town, although the officers live on the skirts of it—it extends one mile. The receiver keeps the money at his house, and the register also keeps at his house all his books, with the exception of the plats. This is one of the reasons why my examination has taken up more than my customary time.

The present register has entered at Batesville the ground on which he lives, to wit: E. ½ of S. W. ¼ of section 10, 1 north, 12 west.

My examination has ended to-day, making six days. I leave to-morrow for Washington, if I can complete my writing. I have drawn one hundred dollars from this office.

I remain, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

V. M. GARESCHE.

P. S.—I enclose a list of the furniture of the land office.

Errata in the receiver's books.

416. In the journal 76 acres instead of 76.04.

448. N. W. ft. qr. of section, the number of the section and the word township omitted in the journal.

449. In the journal, township 4 south should be 4 north.

376. In the journal, 149 acres, $186.50 should be $186.25.

Examiner of the land office in Arkansas Territory.

Little Rock, Arkansas Territory, Sept. 3, 1833.

Nos. 1, 2, 7, 9, 18. The details of these numbers may be found out by referring to his return. I thought it useless to copy details already admitted, and to which you can still have reference.

No. 17. I have taken upon myself to correct this charge, which embraces compensation for going and coming.

No. 20. This charge could not be tolerated; his commission being out, he could not, of course, be entitled to any salary; you will decide if he deserves a compensation. It is to be observed that it was not Mr. A. Yell, but his agent, that conducted the office, and received, as I am informed, one-half of the salary and perquisites.

Nos. 21, 22, are not detailed in the journal; they stand as I have copied them. You will decide on the justice of allowing compensation for depositing such a paltry sum as $360, especially when the balance due was $834.95, the better half of which was retained and is still due, and the money deposited arose from sales made when the commission was out.

No. 23 is stated with its journal date. Nos. 19, 21, 22, although under a prior date, refer to this deposit.

Sir: I have the honor of forwarding to you copies of my reports to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, one dated Batesville, in this Territory, the 15th instant, and the other dated this day, and from this place.

I remain, very respectfully, sir, your most obedient servant, V. M. GARESCHE.

Hon. William J. Duane, Secretary of the Treasury.

BATESVILLE, Arkansas Territory, August 15, 1833.

SIR: I have now closed a laborious examination which I have extended back as far as the 17th December last, when the present receiver entered upon the duties of his office. The cash account, as will be seen presently, exhibits a deficiency of $202.96\frac{3}{4}$. The journal not being paged, that is not referring to the ledger, and the ledger not indexed, and the accounts, when carried forward, not pointing out often to the page to which they had been transferred, have added new difficulties to my task. I had to close on the journal and ledger the accounts left open by the late receiver. I made him debtor to the United States for the balance of the cash account, made United States debtor to cash for the deficit, and, under the date when the amount was reimbursed to the United States, made cash debtor to the late receiver, thereby closing all the accounts on the books, and correcting also some errors arising from the imperfect state of the accounts. The two present officers being new in office, you must expect to find the discrepancies numerous: the list at foot exhibits a great number, but very few of any importance. In December 30, 1832, the account of incidental expenses in the receiver's journal sums up $565.62, when it should be $557.98. In the ledger the same account sums up again $565.62, but should be (notwithstanding an additional item) $563.63: this difference you will find out by referring to the return of last December. The incidental expenses of June last amounted, in both books, to $659.61, although the ledger has an item of $1.26 more than the journal: it is the addition of the first book that is right. His last return (if the copy he gave me be true) is erroneously stated. He states, for instance, the balance in his hands from last account (when the cash and United States' account in his ledger made it only $6,862.24,) to be $6,884 $90\frac{3}{4}$

		$8,308 $85\frac{3}{4}$
By so much deposited in the bank at St. Louis	$2,522 27
By do do Natchez,	4,000 00
		6,522 27
		$1,786 $58\frac{3}{4}$
Amount of money found in the chest		1,584 62
Deficit		$202 $96\frac{3}{4}$

It is well, however, to remark that the deficiency might be only apparent; for, in making up the account from the very beginning, this is the way I find it stands:

Sales of lands in December last	$422 23
Sales of lands in April last	2,116 $56\frac{1}{4}$
Sales of lands in May last	990 $88\frac{3}{4}$
Sales of lands in June last	4,413 $81\frac{1}{4}$
Sales of lands in July last	1,423 95
	$9,367 $44\frac{1}{4}$

By incidental expenses in December	$565 62
By incidental expenses in June	659 60
By deposits in St. Louis and Natchez, as above	6,522 27
		$7,747 49
		$1,619 $95\frac{1}{4}$
Existing balance		1,584 62
Real deficiency		$35 $33\frac{1}{4}$

The foregoing account will show that the receiver is not very expert at keeping books. His journal was made up to 30th June, and his ledger to 31st March. Books and papers, as far as he was concerned, were in good order.

I have found that the following were not entered in the township plats:

No. 589. William Looney, N. W. front, quarter W. of 11, Point river, section 18, T. 20, R. 1 W. 139.67 acres. This tract is said to be bounty land, and the one he intended to have entered, and to which he had pre-emption right, was the N. E. quarter. A full explanation of the circumstances, says the register, was given in the abstract of April: he has therefore deferred entering the tract until he receives your decision on the subject.

No. 597. William P. Morris, S. W. front, quarter of section 26, T. 13, R. 6, 53.71 acres. The tract intended to be entered was the N. W. front quarter: this, too, has not been entered on the plat waiting for your decision. The abstract of last April makes mention of it.

No. 639. John Patterson excess of Spanish confirmation, No. 45. In book of certificate for Spanish claims, it appears that he has located, July 1st, the S. W. front, part of section 20, $131\frac{45}{100}$ acres, but it should be N. W. front part.

No. 648. The E. $\frac{1}{2}$ of N. E. front quarter of section 4, T. 20, R. 1 E. had been subdivided by the surveyor into two parts of 80 and $87\frac{64}{100}$ acres; but the exact half of the two tracts has been permitted to be entered by the register, and they wait for your confirmation before they mark it on the plat.

Very few entries, I find, have been made on the tract books. They were open in broken series, and all the different parts of each section had already been written down by the former register, in rather a coarse hand, leaving no intermediate space for the entry of quarter-quarter sections, for which the present register has opened a separate book on the same plan as the register of certificates. Several of the tracts want copying in the tract books: this remissness, however, is obviated by inserting the number of the certificate for the tract purchased in the plat. The plats were bound up in eight volumes, pasted on canvas, and in good order, with the exception of one volume much mouldy. The ledger and journal had no entries made therein since June. That part kept by the former register is much blotted and full of erasures.

The present register permits the entry of the first quarter-quarter section to be made without affidavit: he thinks himself authorized to this course by the tenor of the law. I expressed a different opinion. He permits the entry of any number of fractionals, without any injury to their claim, upon two quarter-quarter sections.

Enclosed is a list of the furniture in both offices, and of the errata, which are numerous, but which I have all corrected, or seen corrected, before I left the office.

The moneys in the hands of the receiver consists:

In specie	$69 62
Notes of the United States' Bank and branches	1,385 00
One note of the Consolidated Association, New Orleans	20 00
One note of the New Orleans Canal and Banking Company	10 00
Planters' Bank, Natchez	100 00

V. M. GARESCHE.

ELIJAH HAYWARD, Esq., Commissioner of the General Land Office.

FAYETTEVILLE, Arkansas Territory, August 24, 1833.

After going, at Batesville, through the examination of the land office, which lasted four days, I hastened to this place, which I reached on the 21st instant. My task was here an easy one, for but one sale had taken place of which return had already been made. The office has but 36 plats delivered by the register in Batesville, and those not of the sections in demand. Considerable sales will no doubt be made soon as the surveyor can furnish the surveys of the lands in the vicinity of this place. This town is admirably well situated, and is surrounded by rich bottom lands. It has an abundance of excellent water, its situation is elevated and salubrious, and Cantonment Gibson offers an excellent market for its produce. It would be necessary, in the first instance, to confirm to this town its present site, which is now appropriated for the use of schools, and give these another location, and then put up the land at public sale—the whole of it would soon be entered at high prices.

The officers have sent an order to Little Rock for their books, and, in the meantime, have made temporary ones. The plats are pasted on canvas, but not yet bound; there will be some difficulty. Messrs. Ball and Leiper appear intelligent men, and no doubt will conduct the business with fidelity and impartiality. They are zealous supporters of the administration, and very popular. They stand in need of the necessary furniture for the preservation of books and papers; nothing of the kind can be procured here. I have advised sending to Cincinnati for it, from whence it might be shipped in pieces, and put up here. From what I have seen in Batesville, I must continue recommending a large table for the display of the plats—the strongest possible binding cannot preserve them in shape when placed upright. Another article of absolute necessity is an iron chest. If you approve of the purchase, and I believe it cannot well be dispensed with, I will procure one in New Orleans that will cost from forty to fifty dollars, and have it sent on forthwith. On the receipt of this, your authorization to that effect would meet me at New Orleans in due time.

This examination, if it may be called one, has not, of course, taken up more than one day. I shall set out for Little Rock as soon as my horse and myself have sufficiently rested, for I have not yet recovered from the effects of the cholera. I shall be probably in Little Rock on the 4th of next month.

I remain, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

V. M. GARESCHE.

BATESVILLE, Arkansas Territory, August 14, 1833.

NEAR LEBANON, Ohio, August 8, 1833.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit, herewith, a duplicate of my report to the Commissioner of the General Land Office relative to an examination of the United States' land offices at Fort Wayne, in the State of Indiana, made under the appointment of the Secretary of the Treasury of the 15th of May last, and in conformity with the instructions of the Commissioner of the General Land Office of the 3d of June.

I have the honor to be, with very great respect, your most obedient servant,

JAMES B. GARDINER, Examiner.

Hon. WM. J. DUANE, Secretary of the Treasury.

WARREN COUNTY, Ohio, August 8, 1833.

SIR: In obedience to your instructions of the 3d of June last, I proceeded in the first place to Fort Wayne in the State of Indiana, and entered upon the examination of the United States' land offices at that place on the 27th of the same month, and closed on the 2d of July.

The state of the public funds in the hands of the receiver was as follows:

In bank bills	$3,665 00
In specie	3,041 30
In revolutionary bounty land scrip	100 00
In Certificate of deposit in the U. S. Branch Bank at Cincinnati, dated June 8th, 1833	10,710 00
In Treasury warrant in favor of Gen. John Tipton for claims under the Pottawatamie treaty (counted as money)	2,490 00
	$20,006 30
Amount of sales of land from June 1st to 29th, 1833	20,432 92
Leaving a balance in the receiver's hands of	$426 62 to be applied to paying register and receiver's fees, &c.

The Treasury warrant in favor of General Tipton had been presented to the bank for deposit, but was rejected for want of proper endorsement, which has been since supplied.

For a "particular description" of the funds in the hands of the receiver, I beg leave to refer to the accompanying document, marked a.

The books were found posted as follows:

Register of receipts up to May 31st, 1833.
Journal of receipts up to Jan. 1st, 1833.
Ledger of receipts up to May 1st, 1833.

The penmanship in the register and ledger was, for the most part, very respectable. That in the journal was not so good, nor had that record been kept with as much care and accuracy. The descriptions of entries are abbreviated in nearly as many instances as in the register of receipts.

In a comparison of the register of receipts with the register of certificates for April, May and June, I detected the errors and discrepancies noted in the paper marked b. I found that the officers were not in the habit of comparing these books at any time; and gave them specially in charge, that the department strictly required it to be done at least monthly.

I requested that all the books might be brought up during the examination, which was nearly all completed before I left Fort Wayne; and I have good reason to hope that no future delinquencies will occur.

The office papers were not in very good order, but the confusion was partly attributable to the files having been recently broken in order to restore copies of such records as had been burnt in the Treasury Department.

The receiver is much in want of a good desk, of the proper construction. The only public furniture he now has consists of an old bureau, such as are made for family use, and a very contracted book-case, badly partitioned. The two articles are worth about six or eight dollars each.

The purchases of lands made by the receiver, as directed to be ascertained, will be found in the paper marked c. I have no evidence, nor have I any reason to believe, that any of these purchases were made with the public funds.

As far as my observations and inquiries have extended, I am inclined to believe the receiver does not traffic in scrip, nor assist in facilitating its exchange with the purchasers of the public lands, although I think he is much too eager in engaging in land speculations; still, his character stands fair, and he appears to be an accommodating and gentlemanly officer. He frequently exchanges the public money with the citizens of his vicinity, as he himself informed me; but that he does this in detriment to the public service, or in contravention of the rules of the department, I have no knowledge. He particularly exchanges all the specie he can for such paper as will pass in deposit at the bank.

I would take this occasion, however, respectfully to suggest that the old rule, (which I am told has been abolished,) of requiring the receivers to note on the back of their receipts the precise kind of funds received, would be the surest safeguard against speculations in exchanges of the public money, and more effectually lead to the detection of a fraud, which I fear is sometimes practiced of receiving scrip in payment of an entry after the money has been actually counted and received by the receiver.

The receiver resides with his family at Fort Wayne, and attends personally to the duties of his office.

Register's office.

In comparing the tract books with the township plats in the office of the register, I found much difficulty. The former are not numerically arranged, except here and there a few leaves together, and are much blotted and defaced. Without a glossary, or index, it is almost impossible to find a particular entry without much trouble and long research. And what is worse the entries do not correspond with the plats, in a great many instances; so numerous, indeed, that I considered it useless to note them, but made the corrections as I examined. Many tracts marked "sold," on the plats, are not to be found on the tract books; although I have sometimes found them, after a tedious search, on the register of certificates, being convinced, from their local situation, that they must have been long since sold. The omissions to make up the entries on the plats are very numerous, and may often occasion double sales.

The sections are divided and subdivided on the tract books in the order of offering lands at public sale, so that the name of a person who purchases a quarter section must be written twice on the tract books instead of once; and, moreover, the space which might be saved by a larger entry than an eighth of a section, and appropriated to the entry of a quarter-quarter section, is lost. The latter description of entries are now very frequent, and there being no "miscellaneous tract book" kept, the interlineations render the present tract book almost unintelligible to a stranger.

I think it my duty, therefore, to recommend that entire new tract books be procured, and the whole of the present entries revised and transcribed. I am confident the government would be a gainer by it now, as it must be done at some future time. It will preserve the identity of the entries, which may yet be ascertained, but which will in a few years become extremely uncertain, if not entirely obliterated. In such a case additional spaces should be left for the entry of quarter-quarter sections.

To give you a more correct idea of the deranged and confused state of the tract books, I enclose transcripts of two explanatory notes found pasted in the books, without which it would be extremely difficult even for the register himself to ascertain former entries, or to make new ones.

I would not be understood as censuring the present register for the derangement of the tract books; as I believe it may, for the most part, be attributed to the neglect or incompetency of the first incumbent of the office, or rather his proxy, as I understand he never attended personally to the duties of his office—a delinquency too frequent at many other offices, and which calls loudly for the efficient correction of the department.

The present register, however, is chargeable with several of the omissions of entries on the plats, as they occurred within his time, and were still occurring. It has not been, I conceive, a willful neglect on his part; but has arisen from a mistaken conception which he entertained, and probably imbibed from his predecessor, that the township plats were of little value as authority. Other registers, I find, have entertained a like opinion, however erroneous. I have endeavored to impress upon them the importance of the plats, as the highest authority in the office, for the certainty of the location of a tract, the proper subdivisions of fractional sections, &c.; and that, in place of putting it off to a more leisure time, not a moment should be lost in making the entry on the plat as soon as the application and receipt were received from the receiver's office. No crowd of business, nor any excuse whatever, should delay it.

I would here take the liberty to remark, however, that I perceive what I consider to be a material error in the present mode of marking up the township plats. Some registers mark the letter S on the tract entered. Others write "AP." meaning, as they say, "applied for," while some occasionally write out the word "sold" in full. Either of these marks might be a sufficient designation to denote the sale of a tract. But suppose, in comparing the books, we find a tract marked "S," or "AP," or "sold," on the plat, and it does not appear on the tract book, (and this is frequently the case,) what reference is there to any one of the other books by which the fact of the sale can be ascertained? None. And a search might be made in an office of much business for hours and days before it could be known whether the plat or the tract book were in error. I have therefore suggested that, in addition to the letter S, the number of the receiver's certificate of payment should be marked in the plat on the tract sold; and then reference would extend to the register of certificates, and all other books of the office with ease and certainty. I have no authority to direct that such addition should be made, but have advised registers to ask your instructions on the subject.

I perceive that, in numerous instances, the selection of canal lands had not been designated on the tract books, and in some, imperfectly so, and were made in pencil marks on the township plats.

Ninety-two township plats are bound in one book, and not canvased. The others were partly canvased when I arrived, and finished during the examination. The plats designed for the new office at La Porte were canvased at the same time.

The register is in the practice of keeping a book called a blotter, in which entries are made in the first instance, and then transferred to the township plats and tract books at leisure. By this blotter, all the comparisons are made when made at all, and transcripts are taken from it, and carried through all the books of record. Hence it is, that frequently through inadvertence, or carelessness in copying, the tract book does not agree with the register of certificates, nor that with the ledger, nor the ledger with the journal, nor the journal with the plats. The blotter is the test of accuracy for any book in the office. I paid no attention to it as official authority, but endeavored to impress upon the register the indispensable necessity of making his plats and tract books the first and best authorities for reference.

In comparing the register of certificates with the receiver's register of receipts, I often found discrepancies which I could not reconcile nor correct without resort to the blotter; (the receiver also takes his blotter for his surest guide,) because I was well aware the plats and tract books had been marked from the blotter. The errors, &c., noted in the register of certificates will be found in the paper marked d. The book itself has been badly kept for the most part, and much of the writing is in a very inferior style.

The journal has been wretchedly kept, with few exceptions, ever since the first opening of the office. The abbreviations are almost as numerous as in the register of certificates, where figures and initials are permitted. The writing, too, is highly discreditable—it would disgrace a blotter. The register permitted a small boy, his nephew, to learn to write in the journal, and the penmanship is such as never ought to disfigure a public record. I found several material errors in this book, which were corrected at the time.

The ledger has been much better kept than either of the other books; it is passably good.

The register is no speculator; he has purchased no lands within his district for himself, nor in trust for others. He has had no participation in facilitating exchanges of scrip, and discountenances all traffic of the kind. Though a little too peevish and petulant for his station, he is a man of good moral character and honest intentions. He resides with his family at Fort Wayne, and is generally to be found at his office.

I recommend a new desk for the register's office, surmounted by a frame containing apartments for the large books. The present furniture consists of an old and very clumsy desk, too small and badly constructed, and a small book-case, merely sufficient for keeping the office files. Both articles may be worth twenty dollars.

Very respectfully submitted,

JAMES B. GARDINER, Examiner.

To the Hon. ELIJAH HAYWARD, Commissioner of the General Land Office.

NEAR LEBANON, Ohio, August 12, 1833.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith, a duplicate of my report to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, relative to the examination of the United States' land offices at Crawfordsville, in the State of Indiana; made under the appointment of the late Secretary of the Treasury, of the 15th of May last, and in conformity to the instructions of the Commissioner of the General Land Office of the 3d of June, together with the accompanying documents.

I have the honor to be, with great respect, your most obedient servant,

JAMES B. GARDINER, Examiner.

Hon. WILLIAM J. DUANE, Secretary of the Treasury, Washington.

WARREN COUNTY, Ohio, August 12, 1833.

SIR: I have the honor to submit the following report of my examination of the United States' land offices at Crawfordsville, Indiana, made in pursuance of your instructions of the 3d of June last. The examination was commenced on the 6th, and closed on the 11th of July.

The accompanying account current, marked a, will show the amount and the particular description of funds in the hands of the receiver:

From this, it will be seen, that the balance due on the 31st of May, when the last monthly account was transmitted, was	$17,347 96
Amount of sales from June 1st, to the 8th of July, was	15,912 13
Making a total debt of	$33,260 09
To meet which, the receiver is properly credited with cash, in bills and specie	$9,586 44
Military bounty land scrip	4,516 66⅔
Certificate of deposit in Branch Bank United States at Cincinnati, dated June 10th	17,521 23
Sundry vouchers exhibited	1,872 26
	$33,496 59⅔
Leaving a balance in favor of the receiver of	236 50⅓

At the time I arrived, the receiver was on the point of transmitting his funds to Cincinnati for deposit, and his monthly account to Washington. But, pursuing the letter of my instructions, I conceived it my duty to examine the funds on hand, and the state of the office, precisely as I found it; and the result, as relates to the funds, was creditable to the officer.

As relates to the books of receiver.

The register of receipts was brought up to January 1st, 1833, by Israel T. Canby, and to the 30th of April by the present receiver.

The journal was brought up to June 1st, 1832, by I. T. Canby, and to the 15th September, same year, by the present receiver.

In the ledger, the cash account was brought up to October, 31st, 1832, by I. T. Canby, and to the 8th of January last, by the present receiver.

In same book, the account of sales of land was brought up to October 31st, 1832, by I. T. Canby—no entries in it by the present receiver.

All the books were kept in proper style, and the penmanship very good. A few errors were found in each, and corrected at the time. The proper comparisons had been neglected for some months.

The book of correspondence was well kept, and the papers filed in good order.

The receiver informed me of the refusal, by the department, to allow him for clerk hire, in bringing up the records (neglected by his predecessor), to the time he assumed the duties of the office. I would respectfully remark, that it seems to me but reasonable that a suitable allowance should be made. Considering it important, however, that the books should be posted in proper order, without delay, I advised the receiver to employ an extra clerk if necessary, and cause the work to be done as soon as practicable; and that, by presenting a fair charge for the same, perhaps the department would reconsider its first decision.

A new desk is much wanted, with a frame and partitions on the top for the large books, which are now exposed to dust and abuse. It would cost about thirty dollars in Crawfordsville. The only furniture now in the office, belonging to the United States, is an old fashioned book-case, not properly constructed for a land office, and having no apartments for the large books.

The receiver resides with his family at Crawfordsville, and gives his daily personal attention to the duties of his office.

He has no participation in facilitating the exchange of scrip, nor will he suffer the traffic of speculators to be carried on in his office.

He is yet inexperienced in the details of office, but appears to be anxious and industrious in acquiring information. His clerk is highly competent.

He sustains a fair moral character; is of an obliging disposition; and I have no doubt of his fidelity to the government.

No other funds than "United States' paper" and specie are receivable for lands at Crawfordsville. This appears to be a hardship on purchasers, who are compelled to sacrifice about five per cent on Ohio, or any other bank notes they may bring to the office. The merchants of the village exact that much discount. I respectfully suggest the expediency of some new instructions to the receiver on this subject.

Register's office.

I found the books in this office posted as follows:

Register of certificates, up to December 31st, 1832.
Journal, up to October 12th, 1832.
Ledger, cash and stock account, up to October 31st, 1832.
Ledger, same added, up to June 1st, 1832.
Ledger, sale of public lands, up to August 31st, 1832.
Ledger, same added, up to March 1st, 1831.

The whole of the records being so very far behind, and the entries numerous, it was found impossible to have them posted during the time of examination, and I did not attempt it. The style of penmanship throughout all the books is very good; but the errors are very numerous, owing to carelessness in transcribing, and a total neglect of comparisons.

The erroneous and injurious practice of relying solely upon a blotter as the first and best authority, and of neglecting to make the entries in the township plats and tract books at the time of sale, has always prevailed in this office. Hence I found many instances of omissions in the plats, and also in the tract books. I instituted various comparisons: 1st. The tract books with the township plats; 2d. The register of certificates with the plats; 3d. The same with the tract books; 4th. The same with the ledger; 5th. The ledger with the journal; 6th. The journal with the register of certificates. The errors and discrepancies thus noted, will be found in the paper marked b.

During the months of January and February last, (as is known to the department) no public business was done in the register's office in consequence of the removal of the receiver. Here was abundant time to have brought up the books of the register, and made the necessary comparisons.

In marking up the township plats, a pencil has been frequently used instead of ink. The consequence is they are daily becoming obliterated. In many instances, the canal and other reserved lands have not been designated on the plats nor tract books.

The tract books are generally in numerical order; but have not been kept as clean, nor as neatly as they should have been. There are many evidences of gross carelessness and inattention. The entries of quarter-quarter sections have been made by interlineation, instead of a "miscellaneous tract book," as directed by the department.

The connected map of the district is old, and much defaced; a new one is wanted.

The register being absent when I arrived, was sent for by his son, and came to the office in three or four days after I commenced its examination. He resides at Delphi, forty miles from Crawfordsville, and does not pretend to give his personal attention to his duties. The business has always been done by his son, H. B. Milroy, and clerks. It is notorious that the register utterly refuses to reside at his office: says he "will give it up first;" and that he does not visit Crawfordsville oftener than six or eight times in the course of a year.

Your instructions direct me to "inquire, in a guarded and unsuspicious manner, into the respective characters of the registers and receivers in the vicinity of their several land offices, and report thereon as to their official conduct as gentlemen of honor, probity, impartiality, and fidelity."

This was a delicate task; but I did not feel myself at liberty to disregard it.

It is with much pain, therefore, that I am compelled to say, the character of General Samuel Milroy, derived from sources entitled to full credit, is that of an arbitrary, overbearing, passionate, and reckless man, exceedingly abusive of whomsoever he may dislike, and by no means calculated, as a public officer, to win the good-will and affections of the people to the government for the mildness, patience, and impartiality with which the public service is performed. My own personal observation has convinced me that this delineation is not exaggerated; and I feel bound, in the faithful discharge of this unpleasant part of my duty, to state some items of the conversation of Gen. Milroy with myself, altogether gratuitous and unsolicited. He showed me a letter from the late Secretary of the Treasury to the President, dated the 8th of April last, (a copy of which had been furnished him,) in which he said the Secretary had stated "lies," and repeated the epithet "liar" frequently, as applied to that gentleman in his official capacity. He said Messrs. Tipton and Hendricks, the United States' senators from Indiana, had acted "rascally" in keeping back $10,000 placed in their hands for safe-keeping by the agent of the commissioners under the Pottawatamie treaty, which had been advanced in the first place by Israel T. Canby to said agent. And he said many other things highly abusive of the public and private character of these gentlemen, which it is not material here to state.

After furnishing me, at my request, with a list of the lands entered by himself and the other securities of Dr. Canby, General Milroy asked me, "what does the department mean by requiring this schedule? Do they think of removing me? It looks something like it." I assured him I acted simply from instructions, without authority to draw any inferences from them. He then became quite boisterous and very much impassioned, and said, "If they," (meaning, I supposed, the Executive,) "attempt to put me down, I will show them I have friends. I will rally the whole Pennsylvania delegation, and put them down."

To myself General Milroy was respectful, polite, and obliging. But his language towards many eminent public men, in relation to the affairs of Dr. Canby, (whose conduct he took much pains to extenuate,) was such as to lead me to consider him a very rash and abusive man.

On the subject of scrip, I find that H. B. Milroy, the acting register, has frequently exchanged it with purchasers, and received a compensation therefor from the speculators in that paper. About one per cent has been the common fee. The register himself informed me that he had received a package of scrip from a member of Congress, and, "not wishing to meddle with it" himself, had given it over to his son to exchange; but that was the first and only time he had touched it.

During the months of January and February last, whilst the sales were suspended, H. B. Milroy received money in deposit from persons wishing to purchase lands to the amount of $16,000, as he himself informed me, and made out applications for the several tracts intended to be secured in this way. He made use of the public chest for the secure keeping of this money, a great portion of which was in specie. When the office was again opened on the 4th of March, $10,000 of this amount was paid in scrip, as appears by the receiver's books.

In accordance with my instructions, I called upon General Milroy for a list of all the lands he had purchased for himself, or in trust for others, since the year 1829, and he handed me the accompanying schedule, marked c. He had previously informed me that four or five tracts had been purchased for him in his son's name, "for the purpose of avoiding the trouble of making application to the surveyor general, as required by law." These, I understand, are still held in the name of his son, and have not been levied upon.

Defalcation of I. T. Canby.

My instructions, after premising that "the government will probably sustain a considerable loss by the great defalcation of Israel T. Canby, late receiver at Crawfordsville," further say: "You are therefore requested to ascertain, as near as you can conveniently, the value of the real and personal property which has been seized or levied upon by the marshal of the State as the property of the said Canby, and each of his securities, residing or holding real estate in Indiana, and also such other property as they or either of them may possess, not levied on; and also what real estate either the said Canby or either of his securities have conveyed, and to whom, and particularly as to their respective connections, since the month of August, 1832; for which purpose it may be necessary for you to confer with the district attorney, the marshal, and the district clerk, at Indianapolis, or with one or more of them."

It has not been in my power to perform this duty to any considerable extent. When about to go from Crawfordsville to Rockville, forty miles west, where the district attorney resides, I was informed he was at Bloomington, sixty or seventy miles south of Indianapolis, which latter place it was my duty to visit as soon as practicable. The marshal, I understand, resides at Madison, on the Ohio river; and the district clerk at Jeffersonville. Had it not have been for urgent reasons which influenced my immediate return home from Indianapolis, (of which you are already apprised,) I should have seen the district attorney at least, and endeavored to prosecute my inquiries as you directed. On my return to Indiana, I design to renew my investigations on this subject, unless otherwise instructed.

I am directed to report facts; and it is probably improper to make any statement to you based on information derived from common report or public opinion. I think there can be no doubt however, that the sale of Dr. Canby's chattel property at Crawfordsville was very injudiciously made. There was a village combination to dissuade from and prevent bidding. The register and his son, (as I am respectably informed,) openly proclaimed in the streets, that "no gentleman would bid on the property." The goods were put up in lots much too large for common purchasers; and were principally bought in, at nominal prices, for Dr. Canby's maiden sister, who was his housekeeper.

Soon after Dr. Canby came to Crawfordsville, he brought on a store of goods, which cost $12,000. The store was kept in the name of his sister. He afterwards sold out to John Wilson, (one of his sureties,) and one Isaac B. Vance. Vance sold back his part to Canby, and the latter transferred the whole to said Wilson, who kept the goods at Crawfordsville until the appearance of the marshal, when he removed them to Rob Roy, in Fountain county, where it is said the store still remains.

Dr. Canby, after thus disposing of the first, brought on a second assortment of goods, and sold them to one Miller, (one of his sureties,) and H. B. Milroy, the acting register. These goods were removed, two or three months ago, to Delphi, where the register resides, and are still kept under the firm of "Milroy & Miller." I am told that Gen. Milroy has control of this store. It is a matter of general notoriety.

A third assortment of goods was brought on by Dr. Canby to Rob Roy, and sold under the firm of "Canby & Piatt." The goods, or part of them, I learn, are there yet.

I do not vouch for any of the foregoing facts, further than to say they were derived from gentlemen of the first standing, are fully believed by Col. Pollock, the receiver, who has the best opportunities of forming a correct opinion; and though often mentioned, I have never heard them contradicted. Gen. Milroy acknowledged to me, that the goods sent to Delphi belonged to his son and Mr. Miller; but said his son had offered to deliver the goods up to the district attorney, who did not think it his duty to receive them. Mr. Ramey, (who was Dr. Canby's clerk,) and is now clerk to the receiver, and who lately married Gen. Milroy's daughter,) informed me that the goods were delivered by Dr. Canby to young Milroy and Mr. Miller, without any inventory whatever having been taken, and that they had cost about $12,000.

Gen. Milroy stated to me that he had long known that Dr. Canby was in the habit of borrowing money of the receiver at Indianapolis to complete his deposits. And that of $21,000 received by Canby from November to January last, (the whole of which he kept,) he knew a part of it went to pay the receiver at Indianapolis; and the balance, he supposed, to pay his other debts. From the whole tenor of General Milroy's conversation, I was led to believe that he had, for two or three years, been apprehensive of Canby's defalcation. Indeed, he told me that, as early as 1829, he "was well convinced that Canby must be making use of the public moneys."

In the accompanying list, marked d, you have the entries of lands made at Crawfordsville by the securities of Doctor Canby, as far as I could ascertain, which are in addition to those entered in the name of H. B. Milroy for his father. Not having been able to confer with Gen. Howard, the district attorney, I could not tell what property had been already seized, nor further prosecute my inquiries as to what may remain. I am led to the conviction, however, by information from respectable sources, that much property has been kept out of the reach and knowledge of the government officers. And I feel bound to express to you my decided opinion that the property already taken will waste and lessen rather than increase in value; and, for various other good reasons, I consider it my duty to suggest that no time should be lost in bringing to sale the property now under levy. I am constrained, from the knowledge I have acquired on the subject, to express my want of confidence in the sincerity of the plea for delay set up by some of the sureties.

Very respectfully submitted, JAMES B. GARDINER, Examiner.

To the Hon. ELIJAH HAYWARD, Commissioner of the General Land Office.

The foregoing are all the lands I could find entered at Crawfordsville, Indiana, in the name of any of the securities of Israel T. Canby, late receiver.

J. B. GARDINER, Examiner.

LEBANON, Ohio, March 14, 1834.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit, herewith, a duplicate copy of my report to the Commissioner of the General Land Office relative to the examination of register's and receiver's offices at Jeffersonville, in the State of Indiana; together with my account current with the United States.

I have the honor to be, with great respect, your most obedient servant,

JAMES B. GARDINER, late Examiner.

Hon. ROGER B. TANEY, Secretary of the Treasury.

JEFFERSONVILLE, Indiana, December 28, 1833.

SIR: I have the honor to state that, under the authority of the Secretary of the Treasury, and in obedience to your special instructions, I entered upon the examination of the United States' land offices at Jeffersonville, in the State of Indiana, on the 21st inst., and closed the same on the 27th.

A statement of the funds in the hands of the receiver, with an account of his disbursements since the first of October, will be found in the accompanying account current, marked a. By this it will be seen that the register has made an equal balance with the United States, which he has the power of doing at any time, owing to his immediate vicinity to the city of Louisville, where his deposits are directed to be made. The particular description of the moneys on hand will be found in the same document.

The books of the receiver were thoroughly examined, and carefully compared with each other, and with the register's "register of certificates;" and they proved to have been correctly and neatly kept, and were posted up to the day of commencing the examination.

Although it appears from the books that upwards of sixteen thousand dollars in scrip have been received at the Jeffersonville land office during the present year, yet I am satisfied, from all the information I could collect on the subject, that the receiver has not participated in facilitating exchanges of scrip with purchasers, nor in any manner assisted speculators in that paper, who are continually hovering around his office. Indeed, it seems he has used every means in his power to prevent impositions upon purchasers and the government, and has asked advice of the Secretary of the Treasury as to what means he shall adopt to guard against the encroachments of speculators.

In answer to interrogatories which I put to the receiver on the subject of exchanges of scrip, he replied in the accompanying notes marked b and c.

The receiver has purchased no lands on his own account, nor in trust for others. Nor has he, as far as I can discover, loaned any of the public moneys to any person whomsoever. His character stands fair as an officer and a gentleman; and he has the reputation of being very courteous and accommodating to purchasers.

The public furniture in the receiver's office consists of two book-cases, worth twelve dollars, one pine table, two dollars, and the common iron chest.

Register's office.

The books in this office were brought up to the day of examination. The penmanship is good, and the entries generally made with accuracy. The register is assisted by his son, who is a very capable and attentive clerk.

I was astonished to find that no entries had ever been made in the township plats from the commencement of the office! The predecessor of the present incumbent had a high reputation for competency; and, having held his office for more than twenty years, the present register, who had no previous experience in the manner of keeping land office books, very naturally inferred (as frequent examinations of the office had taken place during the time of his predecessor,) that the entries on the plats were not necessary. It seems that the instructions of the General Land Office on this subject, in the circular of the 25th of May, 1831, were inadvertently kept by the receiver, and had not been seen by the register at any time.

I conceived it my duty to direct that all the plats should be marked up as soon as practicable, beginning from the first opening of the office. It will be a task of long and tedious labor; and it will be the prerogative of the department to decide whether any and what compensation shall be allowed to the present register for supplying the omissions of his predecessor.

The numbers of the certificates of purchase have never been entered in the journal by either the former or present register.

The residence of purchasers has always heretofore been omitted in the applications. It will be inserted hereafter.

With the foregoing exceptions, the books and papers were all in good order; and I was pleased to perceive a cheerful readiness on the part of the register and his son to improve by every suggestion which I conceived it my duty to make.

I have been very strict in my scrutiny relative to what participation the register may have had in facilitating exchanges of scrip; and I cannot discover that he has ever been guilty of any willful or improper transaction of the kind. Indeed he is a man, of all others, the least capable or desirous of meddling in such speculations. Though poor, he is quiet and contented with his situation, and is the very reverse of being either avaricious or intriguing. I have no doubt that both he and his son, from an excess of good nature and credulity, have sometimes been imposed upon by the arts and importunities of holders of scrip; but neither of them have ever profited by it, nor have they, in my opinion, been actuated by the most remote expectation of gain. The answer of the register to my interrogatories on this subject will be found in his letter marked d.

The register resides at his office. He sustains the character of an honest and honorable man; and, as an officer, he is attentive, obliging, and well esteemed in his district. He has purchased no land for himself, nor in trust for others.

The public property in the register's office consists of two book-cases, valued at twenty-two dollars, two pine tables at four dollars, and one pine desk at two dollars. A good and convenient writing desk is much wanted.

I directed the tract book to be rebound, and the large volume of the land laws to be put in plain strong binding.

I have further the honor to say, in thus terminating my duties of examiner of land offices in the State of Indiana, that I have invariably endeavored to discharge my delicate trust with fidelity to the government, and kindness and courtesy to the incumbents.

In my report of the examination of the Vincennes offices, I inadvertently omitted to state that I had drawn the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars ($250) of the receiver of Vincennes, under the authority of the Secretary of the Treasury, for which I gave duplicate receipts, as directed.

I transmit herewith, my account in full against the United States as examiner, together with the amount received by me. All which is very respectfully submitted,

JAMES B. GARDINER, Examiner.

To the Hon. ELIJAH HAYWARD, Commissioner of the General Land Office.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit, herewith, a duplicate of my report of the examination of the Vincennes land offices.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your most obedient servant,

JAMES B. GARDINER, Examiner.

Hon. R. B. TANEY, Secretary of the Treasury.

VINCENNES, Indiana, December 16, 1833.

SIR: I have the honor to state that, under the authority of the Secretary of the Treasury, and in obedience to your special instructions, I commenced the examination of United States land offices at Vincennes, in the State of Indiana, on the 10th inst., and closed the same on the 16th.

On counting the public funds in the hands of the receiver, I found the result as stated in the accompanying account current, marked a. By this it will be seen that the small balance of $24.99 is in favor of the receiver. The particular description of moneys in the hands of the receiver will be found in the paper marked b.

The books of the receiver were found posted up to the following periods:

Register of receipts to December 6, 1833.
Journal to November 14, 1833.
Cash account in ledger to November 11, 1833.
Sales account in ledger to November 11, 1833.
Expense acct. in ledger to September 30, 1833.

The whole were subsequently posted to the time of closing the examination, with the exception of the expense account in the ledger, which must necessarily remain open until the close of the quarter.

Comparisons were instituted, according to your instructions, which proved the books to have been very correctly kept. The penmanship is plain and neat, and the books generally free from blots and interlineations.

No scrip was found in this office, nor could I hear of any in the town, which sufficiently proves that neither receiver nor register are at all concerned in facilitating the speculations in this paper, so frequent at some other offices. I was very particular in my inquiries on this subject, and am well satisfied that no improper transactions in scrip have ever been perpetrated at either of the offices in Vincennes.

The furniture of receiver's office consists of one double writing desk, with apartments for books, old and worn, worth about $10; one paper case, with folding doors, $8, and a common iron chest.

The book case is without doors, and the books exposed to flies and dust. An improvement in the furniture, to the amount of twelve or fifteen dollars, is essential to the convenience of the officer, and I respectfully recommend that the receiver be instructed to make the same.

The receiver resides at his office, and gives his daily personal attention to his duties. His character stands fair as a private and public man, and his amiable and obliging disposition renders him a very popular and valuable officer.

Register's office.

The several books in this office were found posted up to the time of commencing the examination. They are all kept with remarkable neatness and accuracy. The venerable register is assisted by his son, (a very competent and obliging clerk,) and both give their daily personal attention to the duties of the office. The character of the register is altogether unexceptionable, and has been well known to the government for the last thirty years. I consider him among the best officers in the service of the department.

The register's ledger is filled up, and a new book required.

No new furniture is required by the register, although most of that in his office is his own private property. The public desk and book-case are of little value, say fifteen or twenty dollars.

Very respectfully submitted,

JAMES B. GARDINER, Examiner.

Sir: I have the honor to transmit, herewith, a duplicate copy of my report to the Commissioner of the General Land Office relative to the examination of the United States' land offices at Indianapolis, in the State of Indiana, made under the appointment of the late Secretary of the Treasury of the 15th of May, and in conformity with the subsequent instructions of the Commissioner.

I have the honor further to state that I received of James P. Drake, esquire, receiver of public moneys at Indianapolis, three hundred dollars, ($300) under the authority of the department, for which I gave him duplicate receipts as directed.

I have the honor to be, with great respect, your most obedient servant,

JAMES B. GARDINER, Examiner.

Hon. William J. Duane, Secretary of the Treasury.

Warren County, Ohio, August 17, 1833.

Sir: In compliance with your instructions of the 3d of June last, I have the honor to submit the following report of my examination of the United States' land offices at Indianapolis, Indiana, which was commenced on the 13th, and closed on the 25th of July, ultimo.

I entered the receiver's office on Saturday afternoon, much fatigued and somewhat unwell.

The funds found in the public chest were as follows:

Three bills United States' Bank, of $50.....	$150 00
One bill United States Bank, of $20.....	20 00
One bill Bank of Urbana, of $3.....	3 00
Silver	380 00
Gold	120 25
Total cash on hand.....	$673 25

The receiver said that was the whole amount of money on hand, and that the sales for July, so far, corresponded therewith. On going from the hotel to the office with me, before I counted the funds, the receiver said I would have "but a small job of it," (the counting,) as they had sold but six or eight tracts that month, on account of the harvesting, &c. I merely looked to what date the several books had been posted, and made no further examination in the receiver's office that day.

On again entering the office of the receiver on Monday, to my surprise he presented me with military bounty land scrip, amounting to $1,592.50, filled up in his own handwriting, for which he said sales had been made in July. I asked for and obtained a list of said sales, which will be found in the accompanying document, marked a.

On my arrival at Indianapolis the register was absent and the receiver informed me he had gone to Cincinnati to make his (the receiver's) quarterly deposits. I found this could not have been the case, as the only deposits made, or to be made for the quarter, ending the 30th of June, had been effected on the 17th of May, and 12th of June, as you will perceive by reference to the statement, marked b, taken from the receiver's books.

The balance due the United States on the 30th of June, which is called "new account," and to be carried to the quarter ending the 30th September next, was $3,922.44. This money was not found in the office. The receiver said the register would deposit for him $5,000 in the bank at Cincinnati, while he was there, and he would be able to present me with the cashier's certificate before I closed the examination. I asked the receiver if the register had been sent for, or written to, or otherwise notified of my arrival; he assured me he had not. The register's clerk, on being questioned, said the same.

On the 19th of July the register arrived from Cincinnati. Mr. Dowling, a respectable gentleman of Terre Haute, came in the same stage in company with the register, and was informed by Mr. St. Clair, while at Cincinnati, that he was very anxious to get on, as he had heard of my arrival and my business. On the morning of the 20th, the receiver presented me with a certificate of a deposit of $5,000 made to his credit in the United States' Branch Bank at Cincinnati. Before I left Indianapolis, the receiver borrowed $5,000 of a gentleman of that place. James Blake, esquire, a partner of Mr. Nicholas McCarty, is my informant; but expressed an aversion to being known as such on account of his connection. For what purpose this money was borrowed I know not. I have conceived it my duty to submit the foregoing facts to the department without comment.

It will be seen that, during the quarter ending June 30, the sum of $33,822.22 was received in military bounty land scrip, and the sum of $3,922.41 in the first thirteen days of July. The whole of this scrip, I understood, was relinquished by Mr. Nicholas McCarty, a merchant of Indianapolis, who received it on speculation from Philo Hale, of Washington city.

I asked the receiver how it was possible Mr. McCarty contrived to see so many of the purchasers of the public lands, and ascertain precisely the range, township, section, and part of section, for which relinquishments were necessary to be made? He replied that Mr. McCarty did not know, but merely signed his name in blank, and he, (the receiver,) filled up the relinquishments for him, after the "applications" were received from the register's office. He said "Mr. McCarty is making a princely fortune." I discovered that the relinquishments on the scrip, then in the office, (received in July,) were all written by the receiver.

As relates to the books, they were found posted as follows:

Register of receipts up to May 31st, 1833.
Journal up to May 31st, 1833.
Ledger up to June 30th, 1833.

The penmanship in all the records is good, but several errors were found, produced, no doubt, by the constant neglect of comparison. The papers are well filed, and the office kept in good order.

The register of receipts and journal were posted up to the 30th June, at my request, during the examination.

There is no "index" to either of the books as required by the department.

In addition to what is before said relative to the participation of the receiver in aiding and facilitating the traffic in scrip, I addressed him the accompanying note, marked c, and received his reply in the note marked d, which are respectfully submitted to the consideration of the department.

In further pursuance of your instructions, I embraced in the same note, (c,) an inquiry as to what lands the receiver had purchased in his own name, or in trust for others; and what advances he had made to purchasers, &c. His note, (d,) also embraces that subject.

I also inquired of the receiver, verbally, relative to his advances of money to Israel T. Canby, not knowing the subject had been investigated by the Secretary of the Treasury. He replied in writing, enclosing a copy of his letter to the Secretary. (See document marked e.) It will be seen he does not state the amount of premium paid him by Dr. Canby.

Much is said in Indianapolis, and indeed throughout the State of Indiana, as far as I have been, relative to the speculations of General Drake in the funds of his office. Some persons came to borrow money at the office while I was engaged in the examination. The receiver or his clerk would take them out to the platform in front of the office, and hold private conversation, which I did not hear. Neither do I know whether the funds those persons wanted to borrow were public or private. The fact, however, is notorious in Indianapolis, that it is a common practice with merchants and other business men of the place to go about, just before the end of a quarter year, and industriously gather up all the money they can obtain, and frequently borrow from others, saying that they only wanted it for a few days, "until the receiver returned from Cincinnati." I would not, I trust, be so unmindful of what is due to the department and to my own character as to encumber my report with a detail of this kind, based upon the light and officious gossip of a village, or if I had the most distant doubt of the truth of the facts here stated. But my information has been carefully and cautiously derived from gentlemen of the highest respectability in public and private life, friends and opponents of the administration, who all stated their personal knowledge of the fact that the receiver is in the constant habit of lending sums of money, of various amounts, to numerous persons, returnable temporarily every quarter, and receivable again in a short time after the commencement of a new quarter. This state of things is talked of publicly everywhere, and never to my knowledge, contradicted. I do not know what percentage is exacted; but it is not an uncommon occurrence, at and in the neighborhood of Indianapolis, to borrow money on good security at rates ranging from forty to sixty per cent; and I have heard of instances of even a higher premium being given in cases of urgent necessity. The receiver acknowledged to me that he was a joint partner with Benjamin J. Blythe, of Indianapolis, in an extensive loan office at that place, in which he had invested $10,000 of his own money. During my stay, large bags of silver were frequently seen passing between McCarty's store and the receiver's office, as I am informed by Mr. Cain, the postmaster, and other respectable gentlemen; but for what purpose I know not.

The receiver is extensively concerned in various kinds of business; is the partner in the principal hotel, and interested in the contract for building the State house, besides other engagements to a large amount. His partner, Mr. Blythe, is in the practice of entering lands for other persons, and taking a lien upon the tract at fifty per cent interest. General Drake has, undeniably, an interest in the profits thus accruing to the firm. But I have no positive evidence that the public funds are used for this purpose.

The receiver appears to be an accommodating, gentlemanly man; and his character stands fair, with the exception that it is almost universally said and believed that he transacts a large business on the use of the public moneys.

In the receiver's office there is a good book-case, worth about twenty-five dollars, and a very badly constructed desk, unfit for use, worth, perhaps, six or eight dollars. I respectfully recommend a new desk as necessary, with a frame on top, and partitions for the large books which are now kept upon the tables, and exposed to dust and other injury.

Register's office.

The books in this office were found posted as follows:

Register of certificates up to June 12th, 1833.

Journal up to March 31st, 1833.

Ledger up to May 31st, 1833.

The whole were brought up to the 30th of June, at my request, during the examination.

The register was absent until the 19th of July, when he arrived from Cincinnati.

Comparisons were commenced between the tract books and township plats, in a promiscuous manner. But the errors, omissions, erasures and discrepancies, were so numerous, and the books so wretchedly blotted and disfigured, that a thorough comparison and correction, extending back to the first opening of the office, seemed to be essential to the security of purchasers, and absolutely necessary to prevent future double sales, and ensure a correct prosecution of the business of the office. This was accordingly undertaken, and occupied several days of tedious and laborious examination of 17,323 entries. The schedule, marked f, will show the errors, omissions, &c., and will enable you to judge of the propriety of the course adopted.

The tract books are very badly kept; not numerically arranged; nor is there any "index" to guide one in search of entries made. They abound with blots, erasures, and double entries, scratched over, and could not be used by a stranger to the office without much previous trouble and labor. The small tract book is much worn, the leaves loose and the cover broken. The large one is not much better. By re-binding, the leaves could not be placed so as to arrange the townships numerically; for, in several instances, even a part of a section is carried over a hundred leaves or more, with a note on the margin in these words, "See back of book." Parts of sections, with the entries in them, are scattered over several leaves in the "back of the book," where it is almost impossible for any one uninitiated in the mysteries of such confusion to find them out.

I can suggest no method by which these tract books can be rectified and made fit for use. The eight feint-ruled lines are all filled up throughout the books with descriptions of eighths of sections, beginning at the northeast in the manner of offering the lands at public sale—(the same as stated in relation to the tract books at Fort Wayne.)

I therefore conceive it my duty to recommend that new tract books be procured, and the whole of the existing entries transcribed. This is the only possible way by which a numerical arrangement can be effected. And indeed it is the only course to save the present and future entries from inexplicable confusion, and prevent the frequent occurrence of double, triple, and even quadruple sales.

In examining the other books I found evidences of great carelessness, and a total want of comparison with each other. The comparison of blotters with the receiver, and the register of certificates with the register of receipts, is all that has ever been attempted. The journal is a literal transcript of the register of certificates! The abbreviations are precisely the same.

Entries are not made on the day of sale, as directed by the department; nor does the receiver hand over the applications and receipts "from day to day," as required. They are retained for the purpose of completing relinquishments of scrip: and this, I have reason to believe, has often been done after the purchase money has been paid, and the purchaser has departed from town. It could not have been otherwise at times, as the register's clerk has told me of instances of forty entries having been made in a day, for which he exchanged scrip; and the receiver acknowledged to me, as before stated, that the relinquishments were all written by himself for Mr. McCarty.

The township plats were canvased several years ago, and are yet in tolerable order as to preservation.

The office papers are generally well filed, but not secure from dirt and dust, nor are they kept under lock and key. There is no public desk in the office, nor any other public furniture, except a pretty good book-case, worth about twenty-five dollars. A large desk, with apartments for patents, and a frame on top with partitions for the large books, is much wanted.

The office is kept in the second story of a large mercantile store, and purchasers have to pass through the counting-room to go up stairs to the register's office. Besides, there is now a man stationed in the said counting-room, by Mr. McCarty, as he himself informed me, to "catch purchasers as they came in," for the purpose of exchanging scrip, as the register's clerk has ceased to act as his agent since my arrival. The keeper of the store, (a Mr. Harrison,) also acts as scrip agent for Mr. McCarty. This, to say the least of it, is exposing innocent and ignorant men to delay, annoyance, and imposition, and is a reflection upon the dignity which ought to characterize a public office of so much importance. It ought to be removed to a more convenient and less objectionable situation.

Thomas H. Sharp, the register's clerk, informs me he has done all the business of the office since June, 1831. The records are all in his handwriting since that time. He has been made notary public, he says, for the sole purpose of swearing purchasers of quarter-quarter sections, from each of whom he exacts twenty-five cents as a fee.

On the subject of participating in exchanges of scrip, or suffering it to be done in his office, I addressed the register the note marked g, and he replied in the note h, enclosing the note marked i from his clerk, Mr. Sharp, to himself: all which are respectfully transmitted for your examination. These papers speak for themselves. They require no explanation from me, and it is not my province to comment.

It is generally said at Indianapolis, that the register is absent from that place about two-thirds of his time. It is certain, however, he gives but little personal attention to the duties of his office. He appears to be an amiable, gentlemanly man, and I believe his character stands fair. He does not seem to possess such energy and business habits as his official duties require. He depends solely upon his clerk on all occasions; and the clerk, it will be seen, has made large sums of money by lending himself to a gang of hungry speculators upon the necessities of the poor and age-worn soldier, and converting an office of the general government into a machine to cozen and defraud those for whose sole benefit its bounty was bestowed.

Very respectfully submitted, JAMES B. GARDINER, Examiner.

To the Hon. ELIJAH HAYWARD, Commissioner of the General Land Office.

BROWN'S HOTEL, Indianapolis, Indiana, July 22, 1833.

SIR: In the further prosecution of my duties here, I am instructed to ascertain whether you, or any clerk in your employ, have been "engaged as agent for the holder or holders, owner or owners, of military bounty land scrip for the sale, exchange, or transfer of the same at your office, or in facilitating the reception thereof, for public lands, when otherwise the purchase money would have been paid in cash."

I am further required to obtain your written statement, embracing all facts within your knowledge relative to this subject, as far as the transactions may have taken place within your district.

You will therefore please to state in your reply to this note—

1st. Whether you have had any agency or participation whatever in facilitating the exchange of scrip for money, in the purchase of lands within your district, either gratuitously or for a compensation?

2dly. Whether any clerk in your employ has been, at any time, engaged as agent for the owners or holders of scrip, either gratuitously or for a compensation? and if for a compensation, to what amount? or whether such clerk, while in your employ, has had any concern or participation, either in or out of your office, in aiding or advising, or in any manner interfering in exchanges of scrip; and if so, in what manner, and for how long a time?

3dly. Whether any exchanges of scrip, by other persons, have been made within your office; and whether any overtures, bargains, or agreements of any kind have been had there for that purpose between the holder or holders of scrip, or their agent, and persons, or their agents, designing to purchase public lands?

I am also instructed to ascertain whether you have, in any instance, advanced money to purchasers; at what premium or interest; to whom; to what amount; and under what circumstances; and whether you have made purchases of lands in trust for others, within your district, or been in anywise concerned therein, directly or indirectly, gratuitously or for a compensation; and if so, by whom, and for whom such purchases have been made; for what tracts; for what amount of money; and under what circumstances?

To the inquiries of this paragraph, you will also please reply in writing.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your most obedient servant,

JAMES B. GARDINER, Examiner.

LAND OFFICE, Indianapolis, July 22, 1833.

SIR: In reply to your letter of interrogatories of this date, I have to state that, in the winter of 1830, and some time in the year 1831, (not knowing at that time that it was incompatible with the regulations of the department,) Mr. Nicholas McCarty, of this place, purchased or procured a quantity of military bounty land scrip, (the precise amount of which I do not know,) and requested me to present it for him to purchasers of public lands for the purpose of exchanging it for cash, saying, at the same time, that he would satisfy me for any trouble I might be at in effecting the exchange, for which, I think, he paid me one-half per cent for the amount so exchanged, which was small. At that period I ceased all agency in the exchange of scrip for cash with purchasers of public lands.

Subsequently, in the months of April and May, 1832, the Hon. Joseph Duncan, of Illinois, forwarded to me, (without my consent,) three or four thousand dollars of military land scrip, requesting that I would get the cash for it. I was absent when the scrip arrived, and Mr. H. Parke, who kept the office for me, exchanged it for him. I think Gen. Duncan paid Mr. Parke one or two per cent for effecting the exchange. In the month of January last, Willis Morgan, esquire, of Kentucky, (without my knowledge or consent,) forwarded to me, from Washington city, one thousand dollars of scrip issued to him, together with a power of attorney authorizing me to dispose of the same. I sold the scrip to Mr. McCarty for the best price I could get, and assigned it, as attorney in fact for Morgan, to him; and did not charge anything for my trouble. The above exhibits the extent of my participation in military bounty land scrip, and of clerks in my employ, as far as I can now recollect.

Since receiving a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury of the 14th of May last, stating that the department would not approve of receivers having any agency in purchasing or exchanging scrip, neither myself nor any clerk in my employ has, in any instance, participated in any manner in the purchase or exchange of scrip. There have been no exchanges made by other persons within my office, nor overtures or agreements of any kind had there for that purpose, between the owners or holders of scrip or their agents, and persons and their agents designing to purchase public lands.

That you may have a correct idea relative to the scrip transactions within this district, I will inform you that Mr. N. McCarty, merchant of this place, procures from a number of scrip dealers in Washington city large amounts of scrip, and that Mr. Sharpe, clerk in the register's office, has exchanged it for him with land purchasers: hence the great quantity of scrip received at this office.

The loans which I have made to purchasers of public lands are numerous, and principally in small sums, from twenty-five cents to ten dollars, for which I took no memorandum except due-bills or notes, which have chiefly been redeemed. These loans have been made mostly to persons who come to enter land, and had some counterfeit money. For such loans I have never charged either interest or premium. I have also loaned to Alexander Fowler ninety-seven dollars, to John B. Harman one hundred dollars, to John Trester one hundred dollars, to —— Blake one hundred dollars, and to Jonas Priest one hundred dollars, for which they paid me interest at the rate of twenty per centum per annum. The lands purchased by some of the above-named persons were intended for speculation.

The following is a list of lands purchased by me in the district of lands subject to sale at this place, to wit: In 1830, October 20th, certificate No. 11,541, the east half of the northeast quarter of section No. 35, in township No. 18, north of range No. 7, east, containing 80 acres. Same year, October 28th, entry No. 11,579, the east half of northwest quarter of section 27, township 18, range 7, containing 80 acres.

Same year, October 29th, entry No. 11,594, the east half of northwest quarter of section 32, in township 17, range 3, containing 80 acres. 1832, February 9th, entry No. 13,963, the west half of the northeast quarter of section 27, in township 18, range 7, containing 80 acres.

I have purchased no lands within this district in trust for others ; nor have I been in anywise concerned therein, directly or indirectly, either gratuitously or for a compensation.

I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

J. P. DRAKE, Receiver.

Col. JAMES B. GARDINER, Examiner.

LAND OFFICE, Indianapolis, July 24, 1833.

SIR: In reply to your inquiry relative to loans made by me to Doctor Canby, late receiver of public moneys at Crawfordsville, I refer you to the accompanying copy of a letter from me to the Secretary of the Treasury in reply to a similar inquiry. In addition to which I will state, that I received a letter from the United States' district attorney (Mr. Judah) while at Crawfordsville, and immediately after having investigated the charges preferred against Dr. Canby, in which he stated that the charges were unfounded, and not sustained by the testimony.

I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant, J. P. DRAKE, Receiver.

Col. JAMES B. GARDINER, Examiner.

LAND OFFICE, Indianapolis, May 24, 1833.

SIR: Your letter of the 10th instant, requesting me to state the particulars relative to accommodations made by me to Doctor Canby, late receiver of the public moneys at Crawfordsville, has been received.

I take pleasure in frankly stating to you the substance of all the transactions in the way of loans from me to Doctor Canby.

About one year previous to his removal from office, I loaned him, I think, about two thousand dollars. In the month of November last, I loaned him one thousand two hundred dollars ; and in the month of December last, I loaned him one thousand one hundred and fifty dollars. The last-named sum was paid off the latter part of December last, and the other sums previous to that time. These loans were not made to enable him to conceal his defalcations from the department. He assured me that he was abundantly able to meet the demands of the department.

During last summer Doctor Canby forwarded to me three thousand dollars for Gen. Johnson, of Bellville ; and, previous to that time, he sent one thousand dollars for Mr. Sheets, of Madison.

Perhaps it may have been thought that these last-named sums were paid me for loans previously made to Doctor Canby, and were the grounds of the intimations referred to in your letter of the 10th instant, which was not the case.

I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant, J. P. DRAKE, Receiver.

Hon. LOUIS MCLANE, Secretary of the Treasury.

BROWN'S HOTEL, Indianapolis, Indiana, July 22, 1833.

SIR: In the further prosecution of my duties here, I am instructed to ascertain whether you, or any clerks in your employ, have been "engaged as agent for the holder or holders, owner or owners, of military bounty land scrip, for the sale, exchange, or transfer, of the same at your office, or in facilitating the reception thereof for public lands, when, otherwise, the purchase money would have been paid in cash."

I am further required to obtain your written statement, embracing all facts within your knowledge relative to this subject as far as the transactions may have taken place within your district.

You will therefore please to state in your reply to this note,

1st. Whether you have had any agency or participation whatever in facilitating the exchange of scrip for money in the purchase of lands in your district, either gratuitously or for a compensation?

2d. Whether any clerk in your employ has been, at any time, engaged as agent for the owners or holders of scrip, either gratuitously or for a compensation? And if for a compensation, to what amount? or whether such clerk, while in your employ, has had any concern or participation, either in or out of your office, in aiding or advising, or in any manner interfering in the exchanges of scrip; and if so, in what manner, and for how long a time?

3d. Whether any exchanges of scrip, by other persons, have been made within your office? and whether any overtures, bargains, or agreements, of any kind, have been had there for that purpose between the holder or holders of scrip, or their agents, and persons or their agents, designing to purchase lands?

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your most obedient servant,

JAMES B. GARDINER, Examiner.

LAND OFFICE, Indianapolis, July 22, 1832.

SIR: I have received your note of this day, making inquiries whether I have been engaged in the exchange or purchase of military bounty land scrip, as agent or otherwise.

As to your first interrogatory, I have to answer that I have had no agency or participation whatever in facilitating the exchange of scrip for money, either gratuitously or for a compensation, directly or indirectly, except five hundred and fifty dollars which was sent to Gen. Drake, the receiver, by Gen. Duncan, of Illinois, which was assigned to me, (why, I do not know, as I was not consulted.) At the request of the receiver's clerk, I made blank assignments of the scrip, and handed the same back to him; but had nothing to do in the exchange of the same, nor did I receive any compensation for the transaction.

As to your second interrogatory, I would state that Mr. Sharpe, my clerk, has exchanged scrip to a large amount; but as I never interfered or participated in such exchange, and was therefore unable to give anything like a correct statement of his dealings therein, I requested him, by note, to give me a detailed statement of his transactions in the same; which is herewith submitted as part of my answer. My former clerk, V. C. Hanna, exchanged a small amount for the Hon. Mr. Hendricks, in 1830 or 1831, say five hundred dollars; and, also, a small amount for N. McCarty; what amount I do not know, or what compensation he received.

In answer to your third, I say that I know of no other persons making any exchanges of scrip in my office, overtures, bargains, or agreements of any kind, having been had for that purpose, between the owners or holders of scrip, or their agents, and persons or their agents, designing to purchase public lands. I would further state that the proceeds arising from the exchange of scrip have never been offered to any clerk in my employ, at any time, in lieu of any compensation they would otherwise have received; but have uniformly paid them a fixed and stated salary.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

A. ST. CLAIR, Register.

Col. JAMES B. GARDINER, Examiner.

INDIANAPOLIS, July, 22, 1833.

SIR: In reply to your note of this day, I would submit the following statement of the amount of military land scrip that I have received and exchanged; who from, and for what premium, viz:

Amount of military land scrip received and exchanged, and from whom, &c.	Am't received for exchanging.
From N. McCarty, of this place, agent for Philo Hale, Hon. Thomas Ewing, Henry Stanbery, and others, from the 1st of September, 1831, to 27th July, 1832, the sums of 60,000 dollars	$431 48½
From same, from 27th July, 1832, to the 17th instant, the sum of 98,800 dollars	753 73
From Henry Clark, Thomas Ewing, and H. Stanbery, from 1st of September, 1831, to 28th January, 1832, the sum of 11,756 dollars	235 12½
From A. W. Harrison, of this place, agent for the Hon. Jonathan McCarty, February, 1833, 300 dollars	3 00
From Homer Brooks, of this place, 2,800 dollars, May, 1833	43 50
From Hon. William Hendricks, 437 dollars, June, 1833	4 25
From Henry Hurst, clerk of the district court in this State, 400 dollars	6 00
From Thomas Johnson, of this county, 200 dollars, some time in 1832	2 00
	$1,479 09¼

I also exchanged for N. Palmer, of Jefferson county, Indiana, 200 dollars; Colonel Pepper, sub-agent Pottawatamie Indians, 300 dollars, and a small amount for the Hon. Wm. Hendricks; for which exchanges I received no premium.

I have no memorandum or recollection of further dealings in scrip of any kind, but it is probable that I have exchanged other small amounts which, I think, could not amount to more than 2,000 dollars.

In answer to your further inquiry, I have it to say that, some time prior to the ninth of June, 1831, (the time at which I commenced writing in the register's office,) you made a proposition to me to clerk in your office, at which time you offered me a stated salary, which I accepted, and have continued to receive up to this time, without any change whatever; and further, that the exchange of scrip has never been mentioned by you, or considered by me as a part of the compensation of my services, or have you received from me the first cent of the proceeds of the scrip.

Yours, &c.,

THOS. H. SHARPE.

ARTHUR ST. CLAIR, Register.

NEW ORLEANS, January 16, 1834.

SIR: I have the honor of remitting you a copy of my report of the examination of this office, the original of which has been addressed to the Commissioner of the General Land Office.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

V. M. GARESCHE.

Honorable R. B. TANEY, Secretary of the Treasury.

NEW ORLEANS, January 16, 1834.

SIR: I arrived in this city on the 5th instant, and commenced my examination on the next day, and concluded, after various interruptions, on the 15th, not including, however, more than seven working days, during which time I inspected all the books from 4th January, 1831, to the present day. My reason for going as far back as the time when my predecessor, Mr. King, had left off, was the little business transacted in the office during that time. The examination might have taken up less time, but these things are not done so expeditiously in town as in the country on account of their late breakfasts—four hours and a half in the morning, and one in the afternoon, is all the time that can be usefully employed; the weather has been so bad as to make it dark at 5 o'clock, and the cold so great (there being no fire in the office,) as to benumb the fingers; the officers, too, would be absent when some important document or information was requisite. You may easily suppose that, in a city like this, a salary of five hundred dollars (the commission on sales amount to nothing,) cannot support and keep within doors an individual who, out of that, has to pay a rent of four hundred dollars. I have, myself, lost a number of days from the difficulty of finding them at the office. The examination being closed, I signed on the journals of both offices, a certificate of my having examined all the books from the 4th of January, 1831, and seen all the errors corrected. This measure, for which I had no precedent, appears to me necessary, since it is right that every examiner should bear the reponsibility of his own investigation, and at the same time apprise his successor where his labors ended. This course, which I hope you will not disapprove, I mean to follow for the future.

The books in both offices were neatly kept, the papers well labeled. The register, in addition to his present furniture, wants a press for the preservation of the papers of the adjusted land claims under the law of the 4th January, 1832; also, a large table, both valued at thirty dollars.

The late receiver kept his books in a mercantile form, that is, did not reproduce in his journal the details of his register of receipts, nor in his ledger those already consigned in his journal. The register of receipts showed the number of the section, township, and range, in which the purchased tract laid, but was silent as to the subdivision of that section. You must have perceived, also, that each officer, in coming into office, commenced a new series of numbers: the present one was about doing the same when I advised him to go on with the numbers of the register, and preserve the same identity in both offices. The register keeps no ledger and tract books. His reason for not opening the latter is, that new surveys are to be made of the old districts, which of course would render useless any book commenced at this moment. His journal hardly deserves the title: it is more properly a sales' book, in which all the subdivisions of the register of certificates are consigned in writing, and in regular series, which is not the case with the last-mentioned book; the former register having appropriated a separate page for each tract sold under a different law—a confusion which the officer himself is sometimes at a loss to dispel. The plats are neither bound nor pasted on canvas, nevertheless in good order: but how can it be otherwise, considering the little business transacted in the office? Subjoined is the errata list, account current, and list of furniture.

Although my health has been very bad, I have still gone on when I thought myself sufficiently strong to encounter the fatigues of traveling, but I am now so delicate that very little exertion brings on fever and hemorrhage. The way to Augusta is long and dreary; the rains that have prevailed for two months past have overflowed the country, swelled the creeks, and even made swimming parts of the road that never were known to be under water before; the accommodations, too, are of the roughest kind, and the cabins wide apart. There is, therefore, a physical impossibility for me to visit that office, which, I assure you, I very reluctantly give up. I will probably to-morrow proceed up the river, and examine Washington and Mount Salus, after which I will return home. Quiet and a moderate exercise will, I hope, restore me to my wonted health.

The register wishes to know whether he is entitled to fees on the delivery of the final certificates? I think not.

I am very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant, V. M. GARESCHE.

ELIJAH HAYWARD, Esq., Commissioner of the General Land Office.

ALEXANDRIA, Louisiana, October 6, 1833.

SIR: I have the honor of enclosing a copy of my report to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, dated 6th instant.

I have been detained at this place, by a severe bilious fever, of which I am so far recovered as to hope, in a very few days, to take up again my line of march. I regret my detention the more as I expected to be present at the sales of lands which are shortly to take place in the State of Mississippi; my presence would not, perhaps, have been without some advantage to the treasury.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

V. M. GARESCHE.

The Hon. WILLIAM J. DUANE, Secretary of the Treasury.

OUACHITA, Louisiana, October 6, 1833.

SIR: My examination of this office commenced on the 27th ultimo, and closed on the 5th instant, making eight days, deducting Sunday. The enclosed account current with the receiver exhibits a deficiency of $798.17½. No voucher has been placed before me respecting the amount of bills, $5,627, which stand to the credit of his account, and are said to be on their way to New Orleans. In making this remark, I do not wish to be understood as casting any suspicion on his veracity, but only to place the business in its true light, as I understand a correspondence has taken place between the honorable Secretary of the Treasury and him on the subject of the deposits. I would further remark that the small bills are generally sent to the credit of his own account, until the amount becomes sufficiently respectable, when it is transferred to the credit of the United States. Mr. Friend's departure for Alexandria, in the adjoining parish, will prevent me from giving the description of the notes which form the $409.56½ of the sales of the 28th ultimo, and also included in my account of the sales made on the 3d of this month, $1,754.55¼. The receiver's handwriting is so far from being legible that my examination was thereby protracted more than usual. At his office my investigations were pursued as far back as the 1st of April; at the register's partly only in April. I found that in the hands of these gentlemen, in common with most of the officers of the land offices I have visited, the journal and ledger, from the manner in which they are kept, are worse than useless. Ignorant of the art of book-keeping, they do not make their entries according to established forms, or, if they do, these entries have no reference to those in the ledger, which therefore becomes a mere account current book. In general, the sum of their monthly abstract of sales is written under the closing column in the ledger and journal, whether it corresponds or not. After I had corrected the mistakes it became my duty to sum up all the columns in the different books of both offices, making an aggregate of about sixty pages. I had also to page the books, and make the monthly and quarterly entries in both journals, open the accounts in register's ledger, and teach them to post from one book to another. I hope that there will be now no excuse for the former errors. There are few offices, indeed, where I had not to assume the same professorship, for, simple as it is, few seem to understand it. From what I have stated, the numerous discrepancies, of which you have a list below, and the great business done at this office, you will not consider it, I hope, strange, that I should have devoted eight days to this labor. Another circumstance which did not a little contribute to this delay is, that, in comparing the registers of certificates and receipts together, I never referred to the applications, except where the books did not agree, supposing that, where they did, the entries must of course be correct. I have, however, found instances of their agreeing together, and yet be at variance with the applications; and instances, also, where the applications were filled up wrong, as you will presently see. I had in that case to go back to the receiver's office, and correct on his books, perhaps, the corrections previously made. This will for the future make me alter the course of my examination, which I shall begin from the applications, instead of comparing the books together.

I beg leave to draw your attention to the following errors, viz:

1,348 is a tract of land sold, 5th ultimo, to Jacob Resser, situated in the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter of section 26, township 12, range 8 east, and yet the same individual had already located the same land before, by entering on the 30th August last No. 1,338, being the west half of northwest quarter of the same section, township, and range. The application must therefore be wrong.

1,301, 1,302, are two tracts of land sold on the 16th August last to Blundell and Smith, and stated in the application to be in township 4, range 3 west. But this township, being on the right bank of Red river, belongs to the district of Opelousas. Township 6 is probably meant, VI. being mistaken for IV.

The township plats are pasted on canvas, but not bound: they are preserved, however, in good order, in large portfolios. It would, perhaps, be better to send them already bound to those offices located in small towns where no binding can be done; for now, without suspending the business of the office, it becomes impossible to have them removed for the purpose. There is in this office but one tract book, and it contains unsalable townships: no entry, therefore, has been made therein. The office of the register contains but one small desk, not sufficient for all the papers, which are now kept in trunks and boxes, too much accessible to mice. I still recommend a large table being allowed him. The officers have but an incomplete copy of the acts of Congress of 1831: they stand in need of the laws that have subsequently been enacted on the subject of the lands. The receiver ought to have an iron chest, of the value of about $50. You will see the necessity of it when you consider the magnitude of the business done at the office, and its remote situation from the place of deposit.

It appears that the applications received in Mr. Hughes' time are not to be found.

The township 16, in range 14 east, has, I think, been entered previous to its being offered at public sale: it had been marked as unfit for cultivation in former plats; but a subsequent survey having proved it to be one of the best in the State, some persons in the State of Mississippi availed themselves of the early knowledge they had of the circumstance to enter it, which was permitted, perhaps, in the supposition of its being useless land. They came with the new plat in their pocket, and I am not certain that the old and new assistant surveyor had not something to do with it. The surveyor general, Dunbar, it is true, sent early information; but private interest traveled faster than the mail. The petition, a copy of which I transmitted you from Washington, Arkansas, (and which it is said received its birth in the State of Mississippi,) may, perhaps, have some connection with this transaction.

Now that we are upon this subject, I must animadvert upon a fact which took place on the 25th of November, 1830, and which, perhaps, is not a solitary instance of the frauds committed at public sales. On the day above alluded to, a sale of public lands took place, and the tracts under Nos. 435 to 444, and 446 to 448, inclusive, were bidden for at rates from $3.50 to $6, but were entered after the sale at $1.25. Several persons can certify to the fact, and amongst others, William N. Anderson, esquire, who now lives near Little Rock, and who was, on that day, officiating as crier or clerk. I am told that it is not an unusual thing for people to bid up at public sales for lands which they do not intend to enter, and on the next day, when the land has been forfeited to them, their friends come in, and secure it at $1.25: thus may the best lands be sacrificed, and a door open to a very extensive fraud. My duty was to point out the evil; with you is left the remedy.

This little place suffers a great deal under the pressure of two heavy claims to the north and south of it. I allude to Bastrop and Maison Rouge's. It is time that Congress should decide upon the merits of these claims, which comprise some of the best lands in the neighborhood, and reduce to a state of nullity a place which otherwise might be thriving.

The receiver lives in town; the register about 5½ miles from it, but has been, as I am informed, very punctual in his attendance upon the office. He is generally esteemed. Below is a list of the lands entered by these two officers. You have also the account current with the receiver, and a list of the furniture belonging to the United States in this office.

I met here, on my arrival at this place, the receiver of public moneys at Washington, Arkansas; he was on his return from Natchez, where he had gone to make a deposit.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

V. M. GARESCHE.

ELIJAH HAYWARD, Esq., Commissioner of the General Land Office.

OPELOUSAS, Louisiana, December 3, 1833.

SIR: I have the honor to address you the duplicate of the report of my examination of the land office at this place, the original of which has been forwarded to the Commissioner of the General Land Office.

I remain, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

V. M. GARESCHE.

Hon. R. B. TANEY, Secretary of the Treasury.

OPELOUSAS, Louisiana, November, 1833.

SIR: My last report, dated the 16th ultimo, mailed at Alexandria, seventy miles north of this place, had an endorsement from Doctor Hale, stating the reasons of my detention at the latter place. One day, however, after leaving my bed, I was mounted on my horse, anxious to encounter the intricacies of the office at this place. My progress was slow; after giving one day to repose, I commenced my examination on the next. But whether I was not in a situation to leave Alexandria, or that the fatigue of riding was too great for me, or my mental labors more than I could meet, true it is that a relapse has been brought on; and that, after five days, I was confined to my bed by fever and a violent hemorrhage. I trouble you with all these details to explain my apparent inactivity. My examination, which commenced on the 26th ultimo, and finished on the 3d instant, contains nineteen working days.

The account with the receiver exhibits a deficiency of $294.79½, as the annexed statement will prove. I was, of course, very particular in my information about his character, which rather too long a sojourn in this place gave me an opportunity of obtaining. It is fair and honest, and this little flaw must be attributable to mixing [for the want of a public iron chest] United States' moneys with his own; nothing, therefore, ought to be inferred against his probity from the above deficiency, and my defence of his character is nothing more than what I think him entitled to. My indagations on the books extended as far back as the first of January last; not that there was any necessity for ranging so wide, but the temporary absence of the receiver, who had the journal and the ledger in the country, left me an opportunity of which I took advantage. Every book of the register's was in fine order, and without any other discrepancies but the two noted at foot. The journal and ledger were in arrear from the 31st of July last. The papers of the office are kept in praiseworthy order.

From the chaotic state in which the business of the office was left by his predecessor, it was hardly to be expected that he would be able to draw forth clearness and order; but, from what I have witnessed, I remain convinced that his exertions have been, and are still, very arduous to elicit all light possible from such a state of darkness; and, if I may judge from the officers whose offices I have already visited, very few would have had the talents, and still less the patience, to persevere in this herculean task. In permitting the entry of lands that were not, and will not yet, for a long time, be surveyed, a door to innumerable difficulties has been opened, that will, for a long time yet, require such a man as Mr. King at the head of this office; for, the want of vouchers from his predecessors leave him no clue through such a labyrinth. The exhibit, therefore, should not be regarded as a balance sheet of the affairs of the office, but only as a true statement of their situation at the time, subject to such emendations as the receipt of new vouchers or information may occasion. It was in that light, I believe, that it was viewed by your predecessor, if I judge from his letters, which Mr. King has submitted to my inspection. He tells me that he has given you such information about Johnson and Bundie's cases as he hopes will prove satisfactory. In case they should not be explicit enough, I will add one more. To begin in order, we shall first dismiss Reed and Johnson's case. The former [Reed] was the original settler and pre-emption claimant; but Johnson came one day to the office, and stated that Reed had assigned to him his pre-emption right; and, although he produced no proof of the transfer, he was, nevertheless, allowed to file his application. Reed coming subsequently, denied the assignment, paid the money, and entered his claim. The receipt was, by the former officer, enclosed in the application made by Johnson, and, when referred to Messrs. King and Todd for the purpose of making the exhibit, the first paper which came to their notice was Johnson's application, and the endorsement on the enclosed receipt corresponding exactly with the description of the tract in Johnson's application, was considered without any further investigation as Johnson's own receipt: hence his name placed on the list; but when, after some time, the receipt, being open, discovered Reed to be the real purchaser, his name was substituted for Johnson's, leaving still the description of the tract the same as before.

Now, to understand Wm. Bundie's case, it is necessary to lose sight of the marginal numbers, 155, 156, &c., which have reference only to the books of this office, and consider none but the documental numbers, 208, 210, &c. It follows that Wm. Bundie became purchaser on the 21st November, 1818, of four tracts of land, for which he paid 80 dollars on account of each—receipts Nos. 208, 210, 211, and 212, making 320 dollars. Of these four tracts, three were assigned, viz., Nos. 210, 211, 212, the two first to Geo. King and J. Dupre, and the third to Geo. King, these gentlemen having advanced the money; these three tracts are fully described. The first of the four tracts, No. 208, is not described—that was paid with Wm. Bundie's own money. When the four tracts were forfeited, the amount of the tract under No. 208 was refunded to the widow of Wm. Bundie, and that of the other three to the assignees.

In answer to one of the solutions required from this office by your instructions, I send you here, enclosed, a "list of all the tracts paid for in full, of which no description, or only a partial one, has been heretofore given, and which still remains imperfect." The want of surveys "is the reason why the proper designation of the tract cannot be given."

There is in the register and receiver's office no evidence on file of payments made to Garrard and Lessassier, but receipts come in occasionally, which are immediately transmitted to the General Land Office; the last of these was forwarded on the 24th of July last. Garrard and Lessassier kept no books—their documents consisted of memorandums or scraps of papers; so at least I have been informed. Here, enclosed, is a list of the receipts which are probably still afloat.

In answer to your query "whether the original applications are on file in the register's office, in those cases where the name, &c.," I say that the applications are on file, but contain a local description only of the tract, as no surveys had been made at the time.

I should be satisfied could I flatter myself that I had answered, in an intelligible manner, your different inquiries respecting the outstanding accounts of this office; I may be allowed to hope, however, that I have shed some light on the subject.

The receiver's "register of receipts" was up, and very correct. His journal, (besides the errata at foot,) from April 3d, 1832, to September 30, 1833, contained only the dates of the sales, the names of the purchasers, and the amount carried out in the column of dollars and cents; the description of the tract was left blank. The quarterly entries, such as "incidental expenses to cash," "commission account to cash," "United States to cash," were regularly filled up. But here, after making "cash Dr. to sales of public lands," he invariably makes again "cash Dr. to United States," (instead of to "sales of public lands,") for the amount on hand, placing thereby, twice, the same amount to the debit of cash. It is true that, no entry being made in the ledger, he had no means of discovering the error; but this is another proof, had we not enough of those, of what I have repeatedly said, of the necessity of simplifying the system. It is very seldom that the journal and ledger bear any analogy or reference to each other. Again, the accounts of "incidental expenses" and "commission" were not made creditor to the United States. From 30th September to 18th November of the present year, no blank has been left. In the "register of receipts," some of the columns were left without being summed up—no entry has been made in the ledger since 31st December, 1829, from the receiver, I suppose, not understanding the mode. I have written for him very detailed instructions on the subject, as it appears the form was not explicit enough.

Before I close this report, I may be pardoned if I again speak of that very meritorious officer, Valentine King. No one, except he was acquainted with the English, French, and Spanish languages, could fill up this office. The number of persons inserted in the Spanish claims who seek information, either personally or by correspondence, is such as to take up his time from daybreak till very late at night. His patience and industry are unbounded, and when it is considered that the duties of his office have made him abandon his profession as a lawyer, and that his salary, not exceeding $650 per annum, is far from affording maintenance to his numerous family, living in this county being very expensive, and that compensation is granted for the sales at auction of public lands, a task far less laborious, one cannot but wish that he should receive some extra compensation commensurate with his daily labors, and those of winding up the very intricate business of his predecessors—a work which no one can duly appreciate that has not seen, as I have, all the books of information that he is compiling every day. Mr. Garrard, assisted by a number of clerks and ignorant translators, received a salary of $2,000 per annum for the same labors which Mr. King has been, for eleven years, performing alone. In justice to Mr. King, I must say that he has never hinted anything on the subject, except that, trifling as the emoluments are, the loss of the office would be a serious one to him.

The complaints against the surveyors are general throughout the country, either for inaccurate surveys or the want of them. Those planters located on the Indian claim of the Bayou Bœuf have had, it appears, their lands subdivided differently from the established custom, which is, that, wherever a water course makes a bend inside, the front has its side lines radiating in the shape of an angle, the apex of which is on the other side of the bayou, and, wherever the bend makes outside, the apex is in the rear. Contrary to this method, however, the surveyors have drawn their lines parallel, thereby taking from one to benefit another. If ever a department required a very strict inspection exercised over it, it is assuredly the surveyor's.

I have omitted stating that the tract books were opened in the usual form, with an ingenious index, which made it very easy to find out the different townships. Most of the plates were bound up in one volume, with a pasteboard cover, except about one dozen or more that were loose. Some of the plates are not pasted on canvas, and, on account of the binding, have to be folded in two, which does not contribute a little to injure them. Upon the whole, however, they are in tolerable good order.

Mr. King entered, on the 24th of November, 1830, lots Nos. 5 and 8, sections 19, township 2 S., range 3 E., containing 295.90 acres, $169.87\frac{1}{2}$.

Mr. Sterb, receiver of one of the new offices in the State of Mississippi, I am told, is far from deserving the confidence of the administration; and people are surprised to see him fill up an office of so much responsibility.

Mr. Rogers, the receiver, lives six miles out of town.

It would not, perhaps, be difficult to obtain from Garrard, the amount of what he owes, which is, I think, about 15,000 dollars, with interest. Mr. Joseph Andrews was unaccountably released from his security to make room for two securities in a state of insolvency, and whose income this year has, perhaps, exceeded $50,000. This Mr. Jos. Andrews has received, it is said, $10,000 from Garrard—his condition, when he became security, being that all the money should be deposited in his hands. On his being released, he had the above sum, for which, it is said, he gave Garrard his obligation. The truth of all this might be known by putting Garrard on his oath. Garrard has some little property that might pay the balance of his debt. Joseph Andrews is Lessassier's father-in-law and his security. Why is he let alone?

The ledger was so far in arrear, that the little knowledge the receiver has in keeping these books, together with the omission in the journal of a number of the quarterly entries, would have made it a work of immense magnitude, if not of total impracticability. I have, therefore, undertaken it, and have brought it up to the 30th of September last. I have not, however, copied twice in the ledger the details of the journal, according to the mode recommended to the offices—a work superfluous, and which would have required the labor of several months. Each entry of the journal has been posted in the ledger in globō, with due references to the dates and folios of the journal, where all the details wanted may be found. There was, as I have already stated, four years to make up, and all the columns of the journal to sum. I have been seven days at this, which are comprised in the nineteen of my examination.

My convalescence is a tedious one—I am still bloated all over with occasional fevers. My duplicate to the Hon. the Secretary of the Treasury, which I intended to mail at St. Helena, will apprise you of the resumption of my labors.

I remain, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

V. M. GARESCHE.

OPELOUSAS, Louisiana, December 3, 1833.

NEW ORLEANS, January 6, 1834.

SIR: I have the honor of remitting you a copy of my report of the examination of the land office in St. Helena, Louisiana, the original of which has been addressed to the Commissioner of the General Land Office; and also a second report for Opelousas.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant, V. M. GARESCHE.

Honorable R. B. TANEY, Secretary of the Treasury.

ST. HELENA, La., December 30, 1833.

SIR: On the 24th inst. I arrived at this place. I wrote immediately to Mr. P. Childress, the receiver, who was then at Covington, desiring his presence at the office. This gentleman arrived on the morning of the 28th, and the examination commenced forthwith. Mr. C., however, left me next morning, having to make his deposit at New Orleans, and fearing that the rains which had prevailed for a long time, and which now redoubled in violence, should stop all communication. My examination was continued next day (Sunday,) till very late in the night, and concluded. Mr. Childress not having brought his funds with him, I could not test the accuracy of the balance of his account. I have stated none myself, since it would have been a mere repetition of the one he has forwarded, and which is duly entered in journal and ledger.

The two officers kept their offices under the same roof. The papers are carefully put up and labeled, and receiver's journal and ledger neatly written; not so the register of receipts—that might have had more care bestowed upon it. The register's journal and ledger I did not find in the office. The plats are not made up into books, and not even pasted on canvas. The practice in this office, is to consider a fractional, less than 80 acres, as equal in point of privilege, when entered, to a quarter-quarter section.

The absence of one of the officers, and the resignation of the other, has prevented me from taking an account of the furniture.

A list of the errata is below; amongst those is one that requires particular attention; it is contained in certificate No. 180. Application No. 180 was made for a whole fractional section, containing 179.89 acres, and amounting to $224.86¼; it was so entered originally in all the books of both offices. Subsequently the alteration in the number of acres was made in some of the books, and that in the sum was made in all—19.89 acres, $24.86¼, being substituted for the original figures. The cause appears to be this: in making the entry on the tract books, they found that an individual had already entered 160 acres of that same tract; therefore after entering the 179.89 acres, it was altered to the quantity necessary to make up the balance. The first entry, bearing date 6th November, 1829, was made by Matthew J. Neely; but, on reference to the register of certificates, I saw the sale made to Neely marked "illegal, and not confirmed." If so, Walker Aills, the last applicant, becomes entitled to the whole section, and the alteration is erroneous. The whole transaction might perhaps have been elucidated at once, had I (but I thought of it too late), perused Mr. Penn, the receiver's account, and ascertained if Mr. J. Neely had had his money returned. If the error does exist, it will throw $200 more to the debit of Mr. Penn, and his account will stand thus:

Balance on the 30th June, 1833, as per ledger	$728 04¼
Error as stated above	200 00
Sales No. 185, 186, 187, entered in the journal, but not in the ledger, and amounting together to	300 65
	$1,228 69¼
Contra.
By his and the register's salary from 1st to July,	7 72
	$1,220 97¼

Another subject to which I beg leave to draw your attention, is this: The last sales made in this office are to John Kellian of this parish. By referring to the plat you will find that the section has been so subdivided by the surveyors, that a front of about one mile on a navigable stream, without a corresponding depth, has been made into one lot, reducing, of course, to nothing the value of the lands in the rear, which consisting, as I believe, of pine woods, and deprived of a front on the river, must forever be unsalable, inasmuch as the object of the purchaser being to sell wood to the steamboats which go up for the purpose, will, after exhausting the stock on his land, depredate on those belonging to the United States. All these pine lands situate on water courses are valuable not only for the above object, but also for the making of pitch and tar, which sell very advantageously in New Orleans, say the latter at fifty to seventy-five cents the five-gallon keg. Steam saw-mills might also be erected, and find a very good market in New Orleans. The poverty of the soil is no obstacle to these undertakings. Public rumor states, that one, Alexander Lee, owns in township 7, range 9 east, a tract of land (surveyed in the name of widow May), said to contain six hundred acres, but which, comprising a large bend of the water course on which it is situated, does actually contain upwards of seventeen hundred, the survey being incorrect.

The frequent absence of Mr. Penn whilst he held his commission gave general dissatisfaction; it is therefore to be lamented that he should stand candidate for Congress; for, as he has made himself unpopular by his negligence, it is likely we shall suffer another defeat there, he being the Jackson candidate.

I remain, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

V. M. GARESCHE.

OPELOUSAS, Louisiana, December 15, 1833.

SIR: Since writing my report of the 3d instant, I have discovered that the quarterly balances in the receiver's ledger disagreed with his memoranda in the margin of his journal, the difference being $72.89½. That officer having gone to New Orleans to make his deposit, left me without the means of ascertaining the origin of this discrepancy; and, indeed, had he been present, I do not know that I would have derived any advantage from it, as he had preserved no copy of his returns, but merely stated with a pencil the amount of the balance in the margin of his journal. Deprived of the facilities of discovering where the error lies, I transmit you a copy of his cash account as it stands in the ledger, beginning where its balance disagrees with that of the returns, and leaving off where that error is constituted, and runs without any difference through all the subsequent balances to the present day. This difference proceeds either from inaccurate additions, or from some item in his returns not entered in his journal.

The receiver who lived in the country has taken a house in town, to which he is moving.

I remain, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

V. M. GARESCHE.

V. M. GARESCHE.

Opelousas, Louisiana, December 15, 1833.

New Orleans, January 20, 1834.

Sir: I beg leave to lay before you a copy of my correspondence with James B. Hullin, Esq., cashier of the Mechanics' and Traders' Bank of this city, on the subject of making that institution a depository for public moneys accruing from the land offices. The proposed arrangement offers so many advantages that it is to be wished it might be speedily carried into effect. Unable to appreciate, but with due respect, however, for the motives which conduced to the present choice, it is with much diffidence that I submit my views on the subject, overstepping, as I do, the limits assigned to me in my instructions as examiner of land offices. The economy resulting to government from the proposed plan in reducing the traveling expenses of the depositor is one of the least advantages to be obtained. You are certainly aware of the danger attending an officer, who, being periodically known to absent himself for the purpose of making his deposits, may one day be waylaid and robbed. Why the attempt has not yet been made is to me a matter of surprise. It is true that the risk falls upon the officer; but does it not behoove government to afford him as much security as possible? The communication between both banks of the river at certain times becomes impossible; the sickness, too, that prevails at New Orleans during the summer months is a great subject of terror. Public moneys, meanwhile, accumulate in the hands of the receiver, and may inspire criminal temptations. I know that an officer gave once as an excuse for not having made his obligatory deposit, the fever that was then raging in New Orleans. He was answered that, fever or no fever, the government required him to comply with his duty. But it is probable that, in similar circumstances, his conduct would not be different; because it is supposed that life is a paramount consideration. Now, if from motives of interest and convenience we pass to those of a political nature, the reasons are still more urgent. The Commercial Bank is in the hands of our worst enemies: it is presided by Mr. Clay's brother-in-law, and the Union Bank has for a leading director Mr. Poindexter's son-in-law. These moneyed institutions exercise indirectly a great influence during elections; for all banks have now been converted into political engines, and we, by the existing arrangement, furnish our enemies with additional weapons. The Mechanics' and Traders' Bank, which I now recommend, is, on the contrary, a republican institution, got up to rescue the honest mechanic from the grasp of the opposition, and grant him facilities which he can enjoy without the sacrifice of his elective franchise. The Mechanics' and Traders' Bank has two millions capital, the Commercial Bank three, but the obligation on the part of the latter to furnish the city with water, an enterprise which it is said will cost them one million of dollars and upwards, and whose advantages are very doubtful, reduce the capital of both banks to the same level.

Vidalia being on the western bank, opposite Natchez, would receive the deposits of the office at Little Rock, whilst Opelousas would receive those of the offices at Washington, Arkansas, Ouachita, and Opelousas.

I remit you, herewith, a copy of their constitution: you will see that there is a clause, (the 14th section,) which makes directors liable in their private capacities for any excess of issues over the amount stipulated by the charter.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant, V. M. GARESCHE.

Hon. R. B. Taney, Secretary of the Treasury.

Copy of a letter addressed to James B. Hullin, Esq., cashier of the Mechanics' and Traders' Bank.

New Orleans, January 13, 1834.

Sir: My motive for addressing you is, that the conversation we had on the 7th instant should be fully understood by all parties, so that it might be submitted to the Secretary of the Treasury in somewhat of an official shape.

It is necessary that I should again repeat that the contemplated arrangement does not form part of my instructions, nor am I authorized to propose it. But the advantages it will offer to the land offices on the western bank of the river Mississippi, and the saving which must therefore result to government, inspire a well-grounded hope that the change may be effected. However, of the motives which led the Secretary of the Treasury to choose the Commercial Bank for his deposits I am not qualified to judge: they might be such as to postpone the accomplishment of our plan, or lay it aside altogether.

The necessary condition on your part, in receiving the public moneys, would be that all deposits made either at Opelousas or Vidalia should be credited to the United States at New Orleans as soon as a certificate to that effect from the cashier would reach you through the receiver of the land office. If this has been our understanding, be pleased to acknowledge it, otherwise correct the errors of my memory.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

V. M. GARESCHE.

Copy of a note addressed to V. M. Garesche, by James B. Hullin, Esq., cashier of the Mechanics' and Traders' Bank at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, January 17, 1834.

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your note under date of the 13th instant, in which you make the inquiry, whether the institution would engage to become the depository for the receipt of funds accruing from the receivers of public moneys, or other fiscal agents of the United States' Government, on the other side of the Mississippi river? In reply, I am directed to inform you that this institution will receive such deposits at its branches at Opelousas and Vidalia, and will pass the same to the credit of the government at the mother bank here, on a notice given of said deposit by letter.

And I am further instructed to say that the Mechanics' and Traders' Bank will perform the said service free of any charge.

I am, very respectfully, JAMES B. HULLIN.

And, provided further, that it shall not be lawful for the said corporation directly or indirectly to deal or trade in buying or selling any goods, wares, merchandise, or commodities whatsoever; or buying and selling any stock created under any act of the United States, or any particular State, unless in selling the same when truly pledged by way of security for debts due to the said corporation.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, &c., That the stock of the said corporation shall be two millions of dollars, and that the shares of said company shall be fifty dollars each.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, &c., That thirty days after the promulgation of this act, subscriptions for the capital of said company shall be opened at New Orleans under the superintendence of the commissioners, or a major part of them, appointed by this act, and shall continue open every day from the time of opening the same, Sundays excepted, between the hours of ten o'clock in the morning until two o'clock in the afternoon, for the term of twenty days: the directors, or a majority of them shall immediately thereafter proceed to take an account of the subscriptions, and, if any more than the amount of two millions shall have been subscribed, the said directors shall deduct the amount of such excess from the largest subscription, in such a manner as that no subscription shall be reduced in amount while any one remains larger; and in case of such deduction, the said directors shall cause the lists of such apportioned subscriptions to be made out, that the subscribers may thereby ascertain the number of shares apportioned to them respectively; but in case five thousand shares be not subscribed during the twenty days, the books shall remain open until five thousand shares shall be subscribed; at that time the bank may go into operation, and the books remain open until the whole stock is subscribed for: the time when, and the house where the subscription books will be opened, shall be advertised by the board of directors, in English and French, in at least two of the newspapers published in the city of New Orleans, for twenty days previous to opening the same.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, &c., That subscriptions by citizens domiciliated in any of the parishes in which the branch of this bank at Opelousas is authorized to make loans, for three hundred thousand dollars of the capital of said company, shall be opened at Opelousas, in the parish of St. Landry, thirty days after the promulgation of this act, under the superintendence of Guy H. Bell, Alphonse Desmare, Jonathan Harris, John L. Garrett, and Adolphe Garrigues Flaujac, or the major part of them, and shall continue open every day from the time of opening the same, Sundays excepted, between the hours of ten o'clock, A. M., until two o'clock, P. M., for the term of twenty days. The said commissioners, or a majority of them, shall immediately thereafter proceed to take an account of the subscription, and if any more than the amount of three hundred thousand dollars shall have been subscribed, the said commissioners shall deduct the amount of such excess from the largest subscriptions, in such a manner as that no subscription shall be reduced in amount while any one remains larger; and in case of such deduction, the said commissioners shall cause lists of such apportioned subscriptions to be made out, that the subscribers may thereby ascertain the number of shares apportioned to them respectively. The time when and the house where the subscription books will be opened, shall be advertised by said commissioners, in English and French, in the Alexandria Gazette, the Opelousas Gazette, and Teche Courier, for twenty days previous to opening the same.

SEC. 5. Be it further enacted, &c., That in case the whole of said sum of three hundred thousand dollars is not subscribed for on the books at Opelousas, that then, at the expiration of thirty days, the books shall, by the commissioners aforesaid, be transmitted to the directors in New Orleans, and the remainder of the said sum shall be placed on the books in the city, to be subscribed for under the superintendence of the directors.

SEC. 6. Be it further enacted, &c., That the State treasurer shall be authorized to subscribe for the State for any number of shares not exceeding in the whole the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, for the payment of which he is hereby authorized to apply any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated; and that said bank or company shall loan the State the amount so subscribed by it, (if required,) at the rate of five per cent per annum on the bonds of the State, executed by the State treasurer, and approved by the governor, payable to the bank at such time, and in such amounts, not exceeding one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, as the treasurer and governor may think advisable. And further, that the Mechanics' Society of New Orleans shall have the right to subscribe for, and to hold, any number of shares not exceeding ten thousand dollars, any law to the contrary notwithstanding.

SEC. 7. Be it further enacted, &c., That the amount of shares to be subscribed for, shall be paid for as follows, viz. upon each and every share at the time of subscribing five dollars, and the residue thereof shall be paid in such installments, and at such times, as may be required by the president and directors of said company: provided, that no more than five dollars on each share shall be demanded at any one time, and that the whole amount of its capital be paid in at the expiration of two years from the passage of this act; and provided also, that at least thirty days' notice shall be given of such requisition in at least two newspapers published in the city of New Orleans, and in one of the newspapers published in Alexandria, Natchitoches, Opelousas, Monroe, St. Martinsville, and Franklin, if any be there published, in English and French; and if any such subscriber shall fail or neglect to pay any installment thus required to be paid up to the one-half of the amount of each share, for the period of ten days next after the same shall become due and payable, the stock on which it is demanded shall be forfeited to the company, and a new subscription shall be opened to make up such deficient shares, or the company may sell the same in order to complete the whole number of shares: and that no stockholder shall be entitled to a dividend whilst in arrears for any portion of the stock which may have been required to be paid in.

SEC. 8. Be it further enacted, &c., That the privilege of subscribing for two hundred thousand dollars of said stock shall be exclusively given to the mechanics of this State, and that books shall be opened to receive such subscriptions for three days prior to their being opened for the general subscribers: but, in the event of the whole or any part of it not being taken during that time, it shall then be placed on the general subscription book, and be taken up as specified in section three of this act; the stock so subscribed for under the privileges given to the mechanics of this State shall not be transferable for one year, nor until the whole amount of the stock shall be paid in, and that no one shall be permitted to avail himself of the benefits of the privilege herein granted, without furnishing proof to the commissioners or directors of the trade or calling in virtue of which he claims the privilege of subscribing.

SEC. 9. Be it further enacted, &c., That the stock, property, and affairs, of said bank, shall be managed and conducted by thirteen directors, (who shall be citizens of this State, and holders of twenty shares of the stock,) and of which the secretary of state and the president of the Mechanics' Society of New Orleans for the time being, shall be (ex-officio) directors; and it is further enacted, that Jedediah Leeds, James McKenna, John Wilcox, Maurice Cannon, Nicholas Sinnott, James B. Hullen, Jesse Cowand, John D. Bein, Maunsel White, Evariste Blanc, James Hopkins, John G. Greeves, and George W. White, shall compose the first direction, beginning at the passing of this charter, and ending on the first Monday of February, 1834; and that, from and after the first appointment of directors, that an annual election for eleven directors shall be held at the banking house on the first Monday in each January; and public notice shall be given by the directors then in office, not less than thirty days previous to the time of holding such elections, by an advertisement to be inserted in at least two of the newspapers, in English and French, printed in the city of New Orleans, and the said election shall be made by such of the said stockholders of the said corporation as shall attend for that purpose, whether in person or by proxy: provided, that no person or persons shall be entitled to vote on any share which shall not have been held by them three calendar months previous to the said election being held. The number of votes to each stockholder shall be according to the number of shares he shall hold, in the proportions following: that is, for each and every share not more than twenty, one vote; for every five shares above twenty, and not exceeding one hundred, one vote; and for every ten shares above one hundred, one vote; provided, that no person, copartnership or corporation, shall be entitled to a greater number than two hundred votes in person, nor by proxy a greater number than three hundred votes; and that no person or persons shall vote by proxy who shall be in the city at the time, or within ten miles thereof, except female minors or persons interdicted; and provided further, all elections for directors shall be by ballot, and the eleven persons who shall have the greatest number of votes shall be directors; provided, at least five of the eleven are mechanics, or traders engaged in vending exclusively the productions of the mechanics of this State; and if five of the eleven highest are not mechanics or traders as aforesaid, the five who are mechanics or traders as aforesaid so voted for at the said election having the greatest number of votes, shall be declared duly elected directors of said bank; and six other stockholders having the greatest number of votes shall also be considered as duly elected directors; and if it shall happen at any election that two or more persons have an equal number of votes, then the said directors in office at the time of such election, or a majority of them, shall proceed to ballot, and by a plurality of votes determine which of the said persons so having an equal number of votes shall be the director or directors for the ensuing year, so as to complete the whole direction, who shall take their seats at the board upon the first Monday of February in each year; and so soon as may be thereafter shall proceed to elect, by ballot, one of their number to be president, who shall receive such compensation for his extraordinary services to said company as the directors may deem reasonable, but that no director shall be entitled to any emolument whatever.

Sec. 10. Be it further enacted, &c., That if any director shall remove out of this State, or cease to be a stockholder, his office shall be considered as vacant; and whenever any vacancy or vacancies shall happen among the directors by death, resignation, or otherwise, such vacancy or vacancies shall be filled for the remainder of the year in which they shall happen, by such person or persons as the remainder of the directors for the time being, or a majority of them, shall appoint; provided, however, that two partners shall not be eligible at the same time as directors of said company, nor shall a director of any bank, or his partner, be a director of this company; and further, that if any director, or the cashier, shall fail or become insolvent after his election or appointment, he shall thereby become incapable to serve in that capacity, and his place shall be supplied in the manner prescribed by this section and the 9th of this act.

Sec. 11. Be it further enacted, &c., That in case it should any time happen that an election for directors should not be made on any day when pursuant to this act it should have been made, the said corporation shall not for that cause be deemed to be dissolved, but it shall and may be lawful to hold such election on such other day, not exceeding twenty days, of which public notice shall be given; and until such election be made, the directors and president of said company for the time being shall continue in office.

Sec. 12. Be it further enacted, &c., That a majority of the directors for the time being, the president to be one, shall constitute a board for the transaction of business, (discounts excepted,) and for discounts not less than five directors, of whom the president to be one, shall constitute a board. A majority of the directors shall have power to make and prescribe such by-laws, rules and regulations, not repugnant to the Constitution or laws of the United States, or of this State, as to them shall appear needful and proper, and shall have the power of appointing so many officers, clerks, and assistants for carrying on the said business, and with such salaries and allowances, as to them may seem meet.

Sec. 13. Be it further enacted, &c., That no transfer of the stock of said corporation shall be valid or effectual until such transfers shall be entered or registered in a book or books to be kept for that purpose; and further, that no transfer or transfers shall take place before two installments on each and every share to be transferred shall have been paid; and that no power given to transfer any shares of the capital stock on which the said installments have not been paid, shall be valid for the purpose of transferring such shares.

Sec. 14. Be it further enacted, &c., That the debts due from said company shall never exceed twice the amount of its capital paid in, exclusive of sums due on account of deposits, nor shall there be due to it at once more than twice of its capital paid in: in case of such excess, the directors under whose administration it shall happen shall be liable for the same in their separate and private capacities; but this shall not be construed to exempt the said corporation, or any estate, real or personal, which they may hold as a body corporate, from also being liable for, and charged with, such excess; but such of the said directors who shall have been absent when the said excess was contracted, or who may have dissented from the resolutions or act whereby the same was contracted, shall not be liable; provided further, that nothing in the by-laws, rules, and regulations of the said corporation, shall ever be so construed as to prevent any director from making known to the general assembly, the governor, or the attorney general of this State, any violation of this act on the part of the board of directors of the said bank.

Sec. 15. Be it further enacted, &c., That the bills obligatory and of credit under the seal of the said corporation, which shall be made to any person whatever, shall be assignable by endorsement thereupon under the hand of such person or his assignee; and all bills or notes which may be issued by order of the said corporation for the payment of money to any person whatever, or his order, or to bearer, though not under the seal of the said corporation, in like manner, and with the like force and effect, as upon any private person if made by him, and shall be assignable or negotiable as if made by such private person; provided, however, that no such bill or note shall be made or issued of a less sum than five dollars.

Sec. 16. Be it further enacted, &c., That the cashier, clerks, and other officers who may be appointed by the directors of said company, shall give bond, with one or more securities to the satisfaction of the said directors, in such sum as the directors may determine, with a condition for the faithful performance of their duties to the said company.

Sec. 17. Be it further enacted, &c., That half-yearly dividends shall be made of so much of the profits of said company as shall appear to the directors advisable; and once in every three years the directors shall lay before the stockholders at a general meeting, for their information, an exact and particular statement of the affairs of said corporation, and of the surplus profits, if any, after deducting losses and dividends.

Sec. 18. Be it further enacted, &c., That the president and directors of said company shall keep a book in which all the proceedings of the board shall be entered and recorded, as well as the number of votes, including the ayes and nays on every question, (when the same shall be demanded by a member of the board,) with the names of the voters. Any three or more of the stockholders may, within one month preceding each election, examine the said book at a convenient time, on application made by them for that purpose to the president or cashier of said company, and the legislature shall have the power at all times to appoint a committee to examine the said bank, and all the affairs of the said company—more particularly the amount of specie on hand, the amount of its notes in circulation, that of its deposits, and that of the debts due to it, for the purpose of ascertaining the true situation of the said company, and to report the same to the legislature; who may thereupon call a general meeting of the stockholders to consider the said report, and authorize them to remove from office any director or directors, and to appoint others in their stead for the residue of the year.

Sec. 19. Be it further enacted, &c., That no more than fifty per cent of the capital paid in shall ever be owing to said company on the pledge of its own stock, and no more than four-fifths of the par value of any share of the said stock shall be lent by the said company on the pledge of such share.

SEC. 20. Be it further enacted, &c., That the said company shall not at any time suspend or refuse payment, in current money of the United States, of any of its notes, bills, or obligations, or of any moneys received upon deposit by said company; and if the said company shall at any time suspend or refuse payment as aforesaid, the holder of any such note, bill, or obligation, or the person or persons entitled to demand and receive such moneys as aforesaid, shall be entitled to receive interest thereon from the time of such suspension or refusal until the same shall be fully paid, at the rate of ten per centum per annum.

SEC. 21. Be it further enacted, &c., That an office of discount and deposit shall be established in the town of Opelousas, in the parish of St. Landry, with a capital of three hundred thousand dollars, which may be loaned on mortgages or negotiable notes to persons residing in the parishes of St. Mary, St. Martin, Lafayette, St. Landry, Avoyelles, Rapides, Natchitoches and Claiborne. And for the management of said office, the president and directors of the parent bank in New Orleans shall appoint five or seven directors, at their discretion, to serve for one year, who shall be citizens of the State, and domiciliated in some of the before-mentioned parishes, three of whom shall constitute a quorum to transact business, and shall choose from among themselves a president; and shall be subject to all such regulations and rules as may be adopted by the board of directors of the mother bank for the government of the said office, not inconsistent with the provisions of this charter.

SEC. 22. Be it further enacted, &c., That there shall be appointed by the board of directors of the mother bank, a cashier for the aforesaid branch, who shall furnish such security as may be required by the bank.

SEC. 23. Be it further enacted, &c., That at least one hundred and fifty thousand dollars of the capital of the aforesaid branch shall be furnished on or before the first day of the month of March, in the year eighteen hundred and thirty-four and the remainder in one year thereafter.

SEC. 24. Be it further enacted, &c., That whenever the said office of discount and deposit shall not yield in one year after receiving the full amount of its capital, except the first, a net interest of six per centum per annum upon the capital invested therein, the said interest may be withdrawn by the mother bank.

SEC. 25. Be it further enacted, &c., That the said corporation is hereby invested with all the rights and privileges usually exercised by a bank, may deal in exchange, discount notes or bills of exchange, or drafts, at a rate of interest not exceeding six per cent per annum on all discounts at a lesser date than four months, and seven per cent per annum for all discounts of a longer date than four months; and further, that the said corporation shall have the like privileges granted to it in making loans on mortgage, taking security, and enforcing the payment thereof, as are now accorded by law to the Bank of Louisiana, provided, they charge no more than seven per cent per annum; and the cashiers of said bank and its branches are respectively authorized to receive and execute acts of pledge of the stock of any incorporated company, or of other rights and credits, from any person or persons who may borrow money from said bank, and such acts of pledge shall be as solid and binding, and have the same force and effect against the persons so borrowing, and all other persons and corporations, as if said acts had been made and executed before a notary public.

SEC. 26. Be it further enacted, &c., That an office of discount and deposit of the said bank shall be established at the town of Vidalia, in the parish of Concordia, with a capital of two hundred thousand dollars, which sum shall be loaned in the parishes of Concordia, Catahoula, Ouachita, and Carroll, two-thirds on mortgage, and one-third on negotiable paper, in proportion to the State tax paid by each of said parishes, for three months after the entire capital of said office of discount and deposit shall have been received; after which time, any moneys which shall not have been loaned according to such proportions of taxes paid, may be loaned without regard to the above rule of distribution; and, for the management of the business of said office, the president and directors of the mother bank in New Orleans shall annually appoint five directors, three of whom shall form a quorum, at their discretion, and who shall serve for one year; the said president and directors shall also appoint a cashier and such other officers as they may deem necessary, and may require from them such security as they may think proper.

SEC. 27. Be it further enacted, &c., That at least seventy-five thousand dollars of the capital of the said office of discount and deposit shall be furnished on or before the first day of March, in the year eighteen hundred and thirty-four, and the residue of the capital of said office shall be furnished within one year thereafter; and in case the said branch shall not, in any one year except the first, after receiving the full amount of its capital, pay an interest or profit of six per centum per annum on its capital, then and in that case the said branch may be withdrawn by the mother bank.

SEC. 28. Be it further enacted, &c., That all mortgages given to the said branch bank may be executed before the parish judge of the parish in which the property so mortgaged shall be situated, and a certified copy thereof shall be forwarded to the mother bank within thirty days after the execution of the same.

SEC. 29. Be it further enacted, &c., That if any person having obtained a loan from said company, secured by mortgage on immovable property, shall apply for, and obtain judicially or otherwise, a respite from his creditors, the right to compel payment, by obtaining an order of seizure and sale of the said mortgaged property, shall not be thereby impaired or delayed.

SEC. 30. Be it further enacted, &c., That if any person having obtained a loan from said company, secured by mortgage as aforesaid, shall make a surrender of his property to his creditors, the said mortgaged property shall not thereby pass, except upon payment of the debt due to the said company, and secured thereon; but it shall be lawful for said company to proceed by an order of seizure and sale against the said property, in the same manner as if no surrender had been made; and the surplus only of the proceeds of sale, after paying the debt due to said company, interest, damages and costs, shall be paid over to the syndics, assignees, or trustees, of the estate of such debtor.

SEC. 31. Be it further enacted, &c., That the bank shall pay to the State an annual tax of three thousand dollars into the treasury in quarterly payments, and shall be exempt from any other tax imposed by or under the authority of the State.

SEC. 32. Be it further enacted, &c., That no person shall be allowed to subscribe for stock in this bank but citizens of this State, for thirty days after opening the books of subscription.

SEC. 33. Be it further enacted, &c., That if more than $200,000 be subscribed under the privilege granted in the eighth section of this act, that then such excess shall be reduced to that amount by reducing the largest subscriptions in such manner as that no subscription shall be reduced in amount whilst any one remains larger.

SIR: Pursuant to the instructions of the Commissioners of the General Land Office, I have the honor to transmit you a duplicate copy of my report of the examination of the land office in this city.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

V. M. GARESCHE.

To the Hon. the SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 28, 1833.

SIR: I have this day concluded my examination of the land office in this city. I found that the balance of public moneys in the hands of the receiver was fourteen hundred and twenty-two dollars and six cents, ($1,422.06.) You have at foot a copy of the account I have made out. The several books were duly posted, and the office kept with all the neatness that could be wished. An inventory of the furniture has been made out, a copy of which I transmit. At the register's office I also found the books posted up to the day, with the exception of the journal; that did not go any farther up than the 6th of April last. All the entries were, however, made on the ledger, being taken from the other books. Indeed, the journal does not form an indispensable link in the chain of books, being unlike, in that particular, to those used by merchants: it is a mere repetition of the register of certificates. Books and papers I found in very good order; the township plats were posted on canvas, and bound in four volumes; the entries made in a legible manner, and the whole very little injured or defaced by use. The tract books were opened in the required form. In some instances, however, I found the series interrupted, an irregularity which might have been avoided had they left the necessary blanks for those townships, the surveys of which had not been completed. This, of course, throws some confusion into the examination, inasmuch as no reference has yet been made to those books and pages where the entries are to be found. In referring to your circular of the 25th May, 1831, article 31, I find that, to remedy this defect, it is recommended to form a special index for each of the tract books. Before reading the paragraph, I had requested that a marginal note should be made where such vacancies occurred, pointing out to the book and page wherein the series had been re-established, which was done partially. This mode, which answers every purpose, appears to be more simple than the other. I have since, notwithstanding, read the article 31 to the register, and he is now left to pursue the course which he deems best calculated to promote clearness and dispatch. I must observe that the register and receiver are not in possession of your circular of the 25th of May, 1831. It would, perhaps, be proper to send them each a copy. This document, which points out to them their several duties, is of so much importance that I would recommend your sending to me a dozen copies at Little Rock, to be distributed to those offices that are without them.

To enable me, as far as practicable, to ascertain whether the same person had entered more than an half quarter section in quarter-quarter sections, (contrary to the interdictions contained in the proviso of the act of the 5th of April, 1832,) I have made a list of all those that have in this office entered land in quarter-quarter sections; so that, by comparing it with similar lists made in the other offices, I may perhaps discover if any fraud of this kind has been committed. The information to that effect received by you, arises perhaps from the understanding given to the law by the register. He has submitted to me his doubts and perplexities, but I had no authority nor instruction to interfere, and only promised to lay the matter before you.

The practice at this office has been to consider the fractional parts, made so by a water course or confirmed grant, as not requiring an affidavit from the purchaser, and not excluding him therefore from the privileges granted by the act of the 5th of April, 1832. For instance, can an individual who has purchased a fractional part, containing 5 acres more or less, be allowed to enter two quarter-quarter sections under the new law? Another question: Can the same individual be allowed to enter as many of those fractional parts as will amount to two quarter-quarter sections or 80 acres, admitting that affidavits are required for fractional parts? Here is again another case: An individual comes to enter an half quarter section, say 80 acres, but some natural obstacle interfering, he, instead of the 80 acres, finds a lesser quantity, say 45 acres, must he produce an affidavit, or is this to be considered as an half section which leaves him the privilege of two quarter-quarter sections more? If not, what are in a fractional half quarter, the quantity of acres that will constitute a quarter-quarter? Is it anything short of 80 acres? or is the mean between 40 and 80 (say 60 acres), to be assumed? I believe that a case has occurred of an application being made to enter the whole of a fractional part containing 66.75 acres, which was granted, although the same person had entered two quarter-quarter sections previously. I am afraid the whole of this exposition is obscure, and would require being exemplified by diagrams. On these different questions, the register has taken the advice of Judge Wash, who has been of opinion that the late law was not intended to take away privileges, but to confer new ones; therefore, as under the old law a person was allowed to enter as many fractional parts as he chose, the same course must still be pursued, and no oath required for the same.

In making an inventory of the furniture belonging to the United States, in the register's office, I found several articles, the property of the register, in use, and necessary for the preservation of the public papers. I have made out a list of them, with the present value thereof; you will decide as to the propriety of allowing him the amount. The papers under the credit system are now laying on the floor; the register has, he tells me, been allowed to have a box made for them.

The register lives one mile out of town; he has made it known to the President, and has been assured, he says, that it would be no objection to his holding the office.

Dr. Merrit, the receiver, is now very sick from two attacks of the cholera. He has been elected mayor of the city, but his election is contested on the ground that he holds an office under government; this matter is now before the Supreme Court.

It is to be regretted that the two branches of the land office should not be united under the same roof. I have been witness how much is lost in going from one office to the other, the officer having himself frequently to accompany the applicants part of the way. The offices now, it is true, are not very distant from each other, but were they to change hands, and be placed at the opposite extremities of this wide extended town, it would present serious difficulties to the applicants. Why should not the land officers be authorized to administer the oaths under the act of the 5th of April, 1833? It would tend much to expedite the business. These officers are already invested with certain notarial powers, inasmuch as an assignment can be made before either of them.

Having now completed my examination, I intend to take passage in the steamer Yellowstone, to Lexington, from thence to Fayette, and across to Palmyra. By the time I get there, the latter place will be, I hope, sufficiently purified of the cholera, which has committed great ravages there. It is now in this place, and increasing every day.

I am, respectfully, sir, your obedient servant, V. M. GARESCHE.

SIR: I enclose, herewith, a duplicate of my report, dated this day, to E. Hayward, Esq., Commissioner of the General Land Office.

I remain, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant, V. M. GARESCHE.

HON. WILLIAM J. DUANE, Secretary of the Treasury.

PALMYRA, Missouri, July 23, 1833.

SIR: My examination of this office, which commenced on the 20th, terminated on the 22d, which makes two days on account of Sunday intervening. The account at foot with the receiver will show a balance in his favor of $3,514.12, (three thousand five hundred and fourteen dollars and twelve cents,) proceeding from the funds of a college at this place, being left with him to be deposited in bank, for which they will draw on him occasionally, as their wants may direct. The register and receiver are both residents in town, and bear a good moral character. The books of Mr. William Blakey, the receiver, were upwards of one month in arrear, that is to say, the journal and ledger; they were, however, brought up before I left. His excuse is the cholera, of which his eldest son died, and which enjoined to all the citizens the duty of assisting the sick—a very laborious duty, indeed, for the plague has proved very fatal here, and has carried off one-fifth of the population. The register's journal and ledger were still more in arrear, the first being made up to the 30th September, 1832, and the other to the 22d of June, same year. The other books were up. His reasons are numerous, and being too long to insert in this report, he will, I believe, detail them at length in a letter he intends to address you. The principal heads are these: His having to keep the late receiver's books besides his own. The press of business—the sales having, during that period, amounted to nearly four hundred thousand dollars. His office being open at all hours for the transaction of business, which left him no time to bring up his books. Some spells of indisposition; and, finally, the cholera. He promises to have them all up in a few days. They, the receiver and register, were moreover ignorant of that part of the instructions that enjoins the entries being made in all the books from day to day. It will be well to send them each a copy, also to state the hours of office. I have taken upon myself to advise stated hours; that, being servants and not slaves of the public, you could not but approve of any plan that would tend to promote regularity in the office; remarking, however, that I had no authority for suggesting this plan, and that it was given under my individual responsibility. The two offices are kept under the same roof, but will be divided as soon as Mr. William Wright has the building put up.

I suppose that you are aware of the late receiver, Mr. Green, having retained the journal and ledger of office. I am told that his sureties, (strange to tell,) continue to speak of him as being a very respectable man; indeed, public opinion attaches a portion of blame to the sureties themselves.

I enclose a list of the furniture found in the office, and beg leave to remark that a large table, on which tract books and plats may be displayed, is an object of primary necessity for their preservation, and recommend allowing the purchase of one. The books were opened in due form, the plats pasted on canvas and bound, and both arranged in regular series. Their construction of the law of the 8th of May, 1832, is the same as at Fayette.

The practice of marking the tract sold with the letters A. P. makes the map look very confused—it is the custom at Fayette as well as Lexington. At this office they use the letter S, but affix to it the number of the certificate; which latter practice dispenses referring to the tract books.

The present register purchased at public sale, conjointly with Moses D. Bates, 2d of August, 1831, No. 3,374, E. ½ of N. E. ¼ of section 1, township 60, range 6, W., 77.85½ acres; and has had assigned to him by W. Blakey, the present receiver, August 4th, 1831, the following tracts:

No. 3,444.	E. ½ of S. E. section	27, township 55, range 10,	86.97½	acres.
3,445.	N. ½ of S. E. section	34, township 55, range 10,	341	acres.
3,446.	N. W. ¼ of S. E. section	33, township 55, range 10,	160	acres.
3,447.	E. ½ of S. W. section	27, township 55, range 10,	86.97½	acres.

At foot is a list of the errors found in the books.

I remain, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

V. M. GARESCHE.

SIR: In conformity with the instructions received from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, I have the honor to forward a duplicate copy of my report from this place.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

V. M. GARESCHE.

The Hon. the SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY, Washington.

LEXINGTON, Missouri, July 10, 1833.

SIR: I arrived at this place the 7th instant, which, being Sunday, was necessarily consecrated to leisure. The next day I presented my credentials, and immediately entered on my duties. The amount of public moneys in the hands of the receiver is $5,957.12, (five thousand nine hundred and fifty-seven dollars and twelve cents,) as will be evinced by the annexed account. I found papers and books in the most perfect order, and posted up. His office, as well as the register's, cannot be called very neat, but in that respect they are in unison with the whole town, whose twenty houses, (whatever may be their comforts within,) bespeak more of poverty outside than anything else. Below is the list of the furniture I found in this office and at the register's. At the register's the books were posted up, but not written with the same neatness as the receiver's: there was, however, no room for reprimand. The township plats were pasted on canvas, but not bound, which here cannot be done; but they were covered with coarse canvas, which, although less handsome than binding, will sufficiently answer the purposes of preservation. The lands entered are marked on the plat, (instead of the number of the certificate, which at all times serves as a reference,) with the letters A P, "applied for, paid," but they say they have a precedent for it, and I believe, also, permission from Washington. In speaking of the register, I said they: the truth is, that residing two or three miles out of town, he employs his nephew, a middle-aged man, in the office. His predecessor, who he says was very incorrect, has, it seems, marked on the plats as sold lands, which he suspects are still public property. They could not be pointed out to me, nor can they ascertain whether their suspicions are right: in this dilemma they reject applications to enter these lands. I have advised him to make out a list of all such, and transmit it to you, who probably have the means of coming at the truth. Now, if instead of A P, the number of the certificates had been written down, how easy it would have been to know at once. The surveyor general has made but little progress in subdividing the parts that are susceptible of it. The tracts being mostly situated on the banks of rivers, are often applied for. In ascending the Mississippi, the traveler wonders that fine bottom lands should not be taken up; and the banks at this moment present a view very little different from what they were when the abode of the Indians. Townships on the north and south of the river are still unsurveyed, and settlers in the meantime are cutting down its timber. It were to be wished that the plats might be sent to this office. The schedules of fractional parts have been furnished above twelve months ago to the surveyor general, but no return made. That gentleman, I am told, found the business of his predecessor very much in arrear, and, no doubt, has difficulty enough in meeting the exigencies of the several offices.

Here the interpretation of the law of the 5th of April, 1832, is, that any fractional part, considered less than an half-quarter, must, however small its dimensions, be taken as a quarter-quarter. This is no doubt the intention of the law.

The tract books have been opened as required, but the series are more broken up than at St. Louis, and no index to give you the clue: the books being but few, the additional trouble created by the interruption, is, after all, but trifling.

They keep at this office an alphabetic table of all those that enter quarter-quarter sections, to know, at any moment, if applicants do not extend their privileges to undue bounds: a very excellent plan, which ought to be followed by all registers. In comparing my list of entries at St. Louis with the entries here, I have not been able to detect any fraud. I see sometimes the same name, but the bearers of it are from different counties. Is it so, or merely a deception? It is difficult to know. To oblige applicants to take the oaths in the county in which they reside, would, perhaps, be the means to check the evil, if it exists.

A part of my duty, the execution of which I find difficult, is that which relates to the "tracts which the registers or receivers may have purchased for themselves or in trust for others; also the sales of such tracts, to whom, when, and for what sum or sums; and also in what instances this may have been done in the name or names of any of their family or connections, either by blood or marriage," &c. To obtain the desired information it would be necessary to examine the register of certificates from the year 1829, and even then it would answer only when the entry had been made in their own name. The present receiver has entered a tract on the 6th of December, 1831, E. ½ of S. E. quarter, section 22, township 51, S. W. range 27, 80.09 acres, $100.35. He and the present register bear excellent characters.

In both offices, papers and books were carefully put up and preserved. I have this afternoon completed my examination, and will avail myself of the earliest opportunity of going to Fayette, which may not offer for three or four days.

I have forwarded the Treasury Department a copy of my first report, and will continue to do so, if my time permits.

I remain, respectfully, sir, your very obedient servant, V. M. GARESCHE.

SIR: I have the honor of remitting you a copy of my report to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, dated this day.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant, V. M. GARESCHE.

Hon. WM. J. DUANE, Secretary of the Treasury.

JACKSON, Missouri, August 5, 1833.

SIR: I have this day concluded my examination of this office, which commenced on the 2d, making three days, on account of an intervening Sunday. Mr. John Hays, who professes to live in town, resides, notwithstanding, from sixteen to eighteen miles out of it, and very seldom comes to the office. If report says true, it is less from negligence than utter inability to fulfill its duties. His deputy, also, is not a constant attendant, and the public service suffers materially from this state of things. One Abraham Hunter, who you will perceive purchased seven hundred and twenty acres of land on the 26th of last month, had to wait two days before he could obtain his receipts, Mr. Hays not having left a sufficient number of blanks signed. There is little doubt, I believe, of his having three years ago loaned the public moneys, namely, about one hundred thousand dollars, to one —— Scott, of this place, which sum has not been returned to him yet. The amount has, however, been made good to the United States, and I found on my arrival the cash account right, a statement of which you have below. Balance resulting in favor of the United States, ($6,329.12,) six thousand three hundred and twenty-nine dollars and twelve cents. The journal and ledger of this office were not made up later than to 31st May. The journal contained many blanks, and pages 75 and 76 were left entirely so, against which, of course, I protested: everything else was correct. In his account rendered last April, there was a charge of fifty dollars for so much reimbursed to David Walker, of Perry county, who, on the 16th of January last, entered No. 1,401, S. W. qr. of S. E. qr. of section 36, T. 34, R. 11, and who, on the 29th of April, exchanged it for No. 1,506, S. W. qr. of S. W. qr. of section 36, T. 34, R. 11 E. In these two instances the United States have been credited for the amount, and in the April report debited for No. 1,401 returned. All this is correct, and I should not have noticed it, had I not found that the entry still existed on the plats and tract books, and that no voucher from your office could be found authorizing the exchange and erasure.

My examination of the register's office has exhibited the following delinquencies, viz: The register of certificates was made up to 29th June only, and the journal and ledger to 29th May. The register of certificates has the following erratum: May 14, No. 1,518, George Davidson of Wayne county, should be Ripley. The township plats have been bound in volumes containing each range separately, and pasted on canvas, except a few too much disfigured, which the register tells me he has written to have replaced. Two or three ranges were pasted on canvas, but without binding and loose, from the difficulty of getting them bound together at a reasonable price. Each plat had a reference to its corresponding folio in the tract book. These were, as usual, in rather broken series. Books were wanting for the western ranges, except range No. 1, and 2 township of range No. 2; but where the practice exists, (as is the case in this office,) of writing the number of the certificate on the tract entered, little or no inconvenience results from the want of tract books. The entries in these did not extend beyond 30th of June. The cholera is again made the excuse for these arrears, although this disorder has been trifling here as to quantity and quality. I have witnessed nowhere any difficulty in interlining the entries of quarter-quarter sections in the tract books, the space between the faint lines being sufficient for the purpose. If I did not always report the fact, it was to avoid the monotonous repetition of so unimportant an item.

Mr. Bullitt, the register, is a very gentlemanly man, and well fitted for the office, if you pass over the little foible of occasional intemperance: of this, however, I have had no proof during my stay.

Jacob Hays Neely, of Cape Girardeau, step-brother to the present receiver, has last year made the following entries, said to be on account of the receiver himself. February, No. 1,100.55 acres; June, No. 1,131, $117\frac{67}{100}$ acres; in August, No. 1,153, $32\frac{54}{100}$ acres; October, No. 1,205, $39\frac{77}{100}$ acres.

I subjoin the inventories of furniture in both offices.

I have drawn one hundred dollars from this office.

I remain, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant, V. M. GARESCHE.

BATESVILLE, Arkansas, August 11, 1833.

SIR: In my last communication from Jackson, Missouri, I neglected stating the nature of the balance in the hands of the receiver: for this omission I claim your indulgence.

It consisted in specie	$629 12
In notes of the United States Bank, or its branches	5,700 00
	$6,329 12

Since writing my report, I have been told that it was not Hays, but his clerk Garner, that had disposed of the public moneys, and that Hays had obtained judgment for $600.

This fact, which does not exonerate Hays as a public officer, relieves, however, his private character from the charge of fraud. In these election times, every man's opinion savors more or less of politics, and one must be cautious how he receives his impressions.

The country from Jackson, Missouri, to this place is a ridge, no part being fit for cultivation except a few tracts along the water courses. To obtain a farm of one hundred and sixty acres of arable land, it would perhaps be necessary to enter two sections or more: nobody will naturally do it. They therefore settle on the United States' lands, improve these spots susceptible of culture, and cut down the timber. I have not in the whole route found a solitary instance of people owning the land they occupied. All this ridge land will never be located until the United States put it up at public sales, and sell it for whatever it will bring. In the meantime, the settlers in the vicinity cut down the timber, and will render the country a real waste. That most of the western part of the territory is such as I describe, there can be little doubt, from the accounts I have had, and from what I have surveyed, when placed on the summit of a ridge from whence the eye could embrace an extensive portion of the country. The southern part of the State of Missouri, although of the same nature, has good timber on it, and lofty pines; but, as you advance further south, the limestone foundation has but a very thin stratum of vegetable mould on it, and in a great many places none at all, or sand. Easterly the soil is alluvial, or consisting of undulating land: the roads, such as they are, are almost impassable, and the whole country very sickly.

All that I state may be considered superfluous, and out of the limits of my duty; but if I have overstepped those, it was from the, perhaps, misconceived opinion that an officer of the government is bound to communicate every kind of information that he possesses and deems useful. Therefore, my wish to be so is the excuse I offer for trespassing upon your time.

I arrived this morning, Sunday, and will begin my examination of the land office to-morrow.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

V. M. GARESCHE.

SIR: I herewith enclose a copy of my report of the examination of this office, addressed to Elijah Hayward, Esq., Commissioner of the General Land Office.

I remain, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant, V. M. GARESCHE.

Hon. WM. J. DUANE, Secretary of the Treasury.

FAYETTE, Mo., July 17, 1833.

SIR: After being detained a few days at Lexington by an attack of the cholera, which fortunately was not severe, I reached this place on the 15th, and spent two days in the examination of its office, the two branches of which are located under the same roof. I have here to remark that, although I have spent only two days out of the six allowed me, it must not be inferred that I have been remiss in the execution of my duties. The junction of the two offices gave me greater facilities, and in these little towns where business begins at 5 or 6 A. M., and closes after sundown, as much can be done in one day as would be done in two in St. Louis, for instance. My course of proceeding, in which I deviate somewhat from your instructions, is this: After examining the receiver's office in the manner pointed out by you, I take a copy of the register of the receipts for two months past, (this trouble is saved when the two offices are kept together,) which I then compare with the register of certificates: this last I compare again with the township plats, then with the tract books, and finally with the journal. The journal I compare with the ledger. Here sometimes I receive the assistance of some of the gentlemen; but my examination of the other books is done minutely by myself alone. After devoting the same attention to my other researches, the surplus of my time is occupied in desultory investigation through the books and papers; trifling discrepancies, after seeing them corrected, I have heretofore passed over without taking any more notice of them when not found in the principal books. In this I may have been wrong, and mean to be more correct for the future, thinking it better to be fastidious than to disregard an object which may possess importance, though unfelt by me.

In register of receipts, No. 6,664 was marked N. W. of N. W. qr., instead of N. W, of N. E. qr. In tract book No. 6,227 was under date of June 15th, instead of 17th. These little errors I have never considered of sufficient importance to trouble you with a list of them.

The receiver's books were made up, but the register, Mr. H. L. Boone, had his journal and ledger brought up only to April 6th last. His excuse is that he has had, for the last six months, a great deal of sickness in his family, which has obliged him to sit up day and night. I have been told this was actually the case. Everything else was in very good order; township plats pasted on canvas, not bound, but covered with strong leather; tract books opened in due form, and provided with indexes. Here let me remark that one or two large tables, six feet by three or four, are essentially necessary for the preservation of the plats, which, being large and heavy, if not laid down flat, and open on a large surface, would very soon tear and get out of order. Any one who has attended to the transactions of a land office must have been struck with the necessity of such tables. I would therefore recommend furnishing them to those offices that are without.

By comparing my lists with the register of certificates, I do not find that any individual has been guilty of entering more than 80 acres in quarter-quarter sections.

Below is an account current with the receiver, showing a balance of $621.39 (six hundred and twenty-one dollars and thirty-nine cents) in his hands ; also inventories of the furniture in the office.

The principle on which they act in this office is, that entering a fractional does not interfere with the privilege of the two quarter-quarter sections.

U. Sebree, the receiver, lives about four miles out of town. I found him, however, at his post on my arrival. He attends, I am told, regularly, and has, he says, made the fact of his living out of town known at Washington.

I have already, in my last report, imparted to you my difficulties in being able to find "the tracts which the receiver or register may have purchased for themselves or in trust for others; also the sale of such tracts, to whom, and for what sum or sums, and also in what instances this may have been done in the name or names of any of their families or connections either by blood or marriage, &c." I would be thankful if you would send me some additional instructions on the subject, forthwith, to Little Rock, Arkansas, for I must confess at present my inability to perform this part of the service.

I remain, sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

V. M. GARESCHE.

Hon. R. B. TANEY, Secretary of the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, Mississippi, February 1, 1834.

SIR: My examination of this office commenced on the 27th ultimo, and terminated on the 31st, making four days; during which I inspected the register of certificates and township plats from the 6th December to the 25th ultimo, which includes Nos. 2,000 to 2,139; and tract books from 1st November last to 30th December, including Nos. 1,863 to 2,083. The tract books were not entered beyond that period, being the practice of the register to enter only after the month is up. None of the books contained any error, with the exception of two trifling ones in the dates. Papers, and everything else, I found in very good order. The register has, as yet, made little progress in the copy of his maps, having only eighteen unfinished ones: he expects to have them all ready by next August. He keeps no ledger or journal. I was glad to find that he was dispensed by a letter from Mr. Moore, dated last April.

The receiver's last quarterly balance was	$6,184 69
To which add the sales up to 25th January last	7,633 98
Balance due to the United States	$13,818 67

This balance is not, however, in his power; but what has become of it he was unable, or rather unwilling, to state; but he promises that it will be placed in the Planters' Bank at Natchez, to the credit of the United States, before I have time to reach Washington city. The present scarcity of money might perhaps disappoint his expectations. My inquiries were insufficient to procure any further information on the subject. His register of receipts was examined from the 5th December to 25th January; this includes Nos. 2,000 to 2,139; the journal and ledger from 1st of November to 31st of December or from Nos. 1,863 to 2,083. The entries on the journal did not extend any further. The sales were entered in the ledger to the debit of the "cash account," and credit of "sales of public lands," up to the day of examination. You have below the "errata list," and an inventory of the furniture in both offices.

I subjoin the statement of lands purchased by the receiver, as furnished by him. This species of information, it is evident, cannot be obtained except by a direct application to the parties themselves: so, at least, it appeared to me, and to some confidential gentlemen of the bar whose advice on the subject I solicited. No part of my instructions have given me more trouble. Some officers have denied the government a right to interfere with their private concerns—their purchases and sales being made according to law. To come to a knowledge of the facts by indirect means would have been both tedious and uncertain. I regret much that I was deprived of your advice on this and some other parts of my instructions previous to my departure.

My short ride from Natchez to this place has brought on my former complaint (hemorrhage); being, therefore, unable to proceed by land, I intend going by water to Vicksburg, and there take the stage to Mount Salus.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant, V. M. GARESCHE.

ELIJAH HAYWARD, Esq., Commissioner of the General Land Office.

WASHINGTON, Mississippi, January 30, 1834.

Since my appointment as receiver of public moneys, I have purchased, jointly and in my own name, the following tracts of land in the State of Mississippi, viz:

Lots 2, 3, and 4, in section 18, township 4, range 4 west, 315.14 acres; purchased by Thomas Lewis and Thomas Barnard, per receipt No. 1,236, and since sold.

Lot No. 4, section 2, township 16, range 2 east, 95 acres; purchased by Thomas Lewis, per receipt No. 1,075.

Northwest quarter of section 6, township 3, range 4 west, 162.31 acres; purchased by Thomas Lewis, per receipt No. 2,011.

I have also purchased other lands in Louisiana, jointly and in my own name, the most of which have since been sold. The absence of my receipts, which I have deposited in the General Land Office, by the hands of Dr. H. G. Doyle, for the purpose of obtaining the patents as soon as practicable, renders it impossible, at this time, for me to designate the lands alluded to; but a reference to the last-named receipts will show the quantity entered, and the part or parts to which I am entitled. These lands are all situated in township 16, range 14 east, district north of Red river.

THOMAS LEWIS, Receiver of P. M., Washington, Mississippi.

In addition to the above statement, I will observe, that the lands still retained by me in Louisiana are, lots 5 and 6, fronting on the Mississippi, and an undivided half of section 29, township 16, range 14 east.

WASHINGTON, Mississippi, February 1, 1834.

ZANESVILLE, Ohio, Sept. 30, 1833.

SIR: I have the honor to inform you that I arrived in this town on Friday night, the 20th of this month, after traveling sixty-four miles from Marietta, over as hilly a country as I ever passed. On Saturday morning I visited the receiver's office, and required an exhibit of the whole amount of cash in his hands for the sale of public lands, and, after counting the funds I ascertained the true balance due, as appears from the enclosed statement. I then examined the books and papers as they were presented by the receiver. I do most conscientiously believe that Mr. Van Horne, the receiver, is a most valuable young officer. He is exceedingly promising as a man of business, and I judge from a thorough examination of the books and papers. I believe him to be truly faithful, and he reflects much honor on the government. He appears to be a great favorite of the people. His books are nearly and neatly posted, and they are correct and well kept. His general conduct as an officer is much approved. He has a good brick office adjoining his dwelling, and sleeps in it to guard the funds of the United States. He was polite, and offered every facility in my examination. The books are well bound, and his papers filed, labeled, and placed in good cases, and kept from the dust, and everything neat and in good order. A schedule of property in this office belonging to the United States is as follows, to wit:

One writing desk, valued at	$7 00
One iron chest, valued at	25 00
One book case, valued at	10 00
	$42 00

The receiver appears to be much harassed by the purchasers that have been permitted to enter land at the register's office improperly. I have had much trouble, and was detained much longer than I expected at Zanesville, in consequence of the charges mentioned in your letter of instruction, against Thomas Flood, as the witnesses live a long distance from each other, and when I shall finish this unpleasant business, correctly, I know not. I have taken all the testimony that I can collect, which I presume will be sufficient to enable your honor to make up a correct opinion. The register has a good clerk, and his books are kept generally neat and legible, and the books and papers are all well bound and in good condition. The old original plats are bound in two books, and backed with cotton cloth, and the lines and corners are nearly obliterated, having been surveyed and furnished nearly thirty years since, which is the cause of many mistakes with the applicants, as stated to me by the register. I am sorry to find that his books are very much behind: they appear as follows, viz: The entries have been made up in the register of certificates to January, 1833, in the journal to the 7th of August, 1833, in the ledger up to the 1st of July, 1833, the tract book up to the first of January, 1833, and in the sales book up to the 3d of August, 1833. His books and papers are kept from the dust in cases, and his papers are neatly filed. A list of the fractions was early sent to the surveyor general for division, but no return has been received as yet. The register supposes that the United States has yet about four hundred thousand acres still remaining in this district unsold. The number of affidavits, which you will find enclosed, have been collected with great trouble in the case of Mr. Flood.

All are respectfully submitted by your obedient servant,

ISAAC CANNELL, Examiner of the Land Offices in Ohio.

The HON. ELIJAH HAYWARD.

WASHINGTON, October 17, 1833.

SIR: In pursuance of instructions bearing date 24th July, 1833, I proceeded to examine the land offices in the State of Ohio, as will be seen in my several reports, and have now the honor to communicate for your information all the testimony in my power to procure in relation to the several cases of alleged malfeasance therein specified.

It will be observed that I was not invested with power to call before me persons supposed or reported to be in possession of facts or documents necessary to a complete development in any case, and therefore communicate only so much as was voluntarily furnished. It is believed that your honor will perceive the necessity as well as propriety of making a more strict inquiry into the practice of some of the public officers, with a view to vindicate the justice and purity of the government. Without other remarks, I beg leave to tender you the accompanying documents, which I hope will serve to show that I have endeavored to execute the trust confided to me.

I have the honor to be, sir, your obedient servant,

ISAAC CANNELL, Examiner of the Land Offices, Ohio.

To the Hon. ELIJAH HAYWARD.

CUMBERLAND, Guernsey County, Ohio, April 19, 1832.

The memorial of the undersigned, William C. Bay, a citizen of the county of Guernsey, in the State of Ohio, respectfully showeth that your memorialist, some time in the month of April, 1830, settled with his family on the west half of southwest quarter of section 21, of township 9, of range 10 in the Zanesville district, and has resided thereon ever since, having made some improvements, viz: a dwelling-house, in which he resides, a corncrib, &c., &c., and has cleared and fenced two or three acres of the said half quarter; that he took possession of and settled on said tract with the intention of entering it as soon as he should be able; that, as he is informed and believes, a certain John Cummins, on or about the 17th day of February, 1831, applied to the register of the land office in Zanesville, and made an entry of the said half quarter, and in payment thereof surrendered certain military bounty land scrip, although your memorialist was at that time in possession thereof, and never gave consent, written or oral, to the said Cummins to enter the same.

Your memorialist further represents that, on or about the 12th instant, having acquired the means to enter and pay for the said half quarter, as he always intended to do as soon as he became able, he went to the said register's office in Zanesville and made application to enter the same, and tendered the full payment thereof; but his application was refused and he was not permitted to make the entry.

Your memorialist is informed that a patent has not yet issued to the said Cummins or any other person for the said half-quarter, and supposes that it has not issued in consequence of the right of your memorialist having come to the knowledge of the proper officers after the said entry by Cummins.

Understanding that, by the provision of the law of Congress on the subject, settled or occupied lands are not permitted to be entered by the holders of military bounty land scrip without the written or oral consent of the occupant; and your memorialist having never given such consent to the said Cummins, or any other person, and believing that he has good right to enter the said half-quarter, your memorialist respectfully solicits your early attention to this memorial, and that you will cause such measures to be taken by the proper officers as will enable your memorialist to obtain his rights; and that you will cause an inquiry to be instituted into the matter herein set forth, and that right and justice may be done. And your memorialist, as in duty bound, &c.

WILLIAM C. BAY.

To the Hon. ELIJAH HAYWARD, Commissioner of the General Land Office.

THE STATE OF OHIO, Guernsey County, ss:

I certify that on this day the above named William C. Bay personally came before me, and was duly sworn to the truth of the facts set forth in the foregoing memorial.

Copy of the paper said to be the deposition of Cummins.

REGISTER'S OFFICE, Zanesville, Ohio, February 17, 1831.

I, John Cummins, of Guernsey, being desirous of locating the W. ½ S. W. of section No. 21, township No. 9, range No. 10, in the district of land subject to sale at Zanesville, Ohio, by applying in payment thereof a certain certificate of military land scrip, do solemnly swear that, from my own knowledge of the fact, after actual inspection of the said tract of land, on or about the first of the present month, there was not at that time any person residing thereon; and that I do truly believe that there is no person residing thereon at this present time, or has claims of pre-emption thereto under the act of the 29th of May, 1830.

THOMAS FLOOD, J. P. [L. S.]

THE STATE OF OHIO, Muskingum County, ss:

Before me, Samuel Thompson, an acting justice of the peace in and for said county, personally came John Cummins, who, being duly sworn according to law, deposeth and saith that on the 17th day of February, 1831, he, this deponent, went to the office of the register of public lands in Zanesville to enter land, and made application to Thomas Flood (register) in his office, to purchase the west half of the southwest quarter of section twenty-one, of township nine, of range ten; and after this deponent had informed said Flood that William C. Bay was living on the said land, he (Flood) asked this deponent how long Bay had been living on, and what improvements he had made, and whether he had raised a crop on the land? This deponent informed said Flood that Bay had been on the said land since some time in April last, (1830,) and had built a cabin house, in which he lived, and that he had deadened some trees and made a few rails. Flood then said to this deponent, "If you have got the money you can have the land." This deponent said to Flood, "I have got the money." Flood then said "Let's look at it." This deponent then gave the money (one hundred dollars) to said Flood, who, after counting the money, wrote on a small piece of paper, and then asked this deponent if he could write his name; to which this deponent answered "No, sir, I cannot." Flood then wrote the name, as this deponent believed, and told this deponent to make his mark. This deponent did make his mark on the paper where Flood showed him the place to do so, supposing the same to be the necessary application to the purchase of the land. Flood then gave this deponent some papers, at the same time telling this deponent that he must take them down to Mr. Van Horne's office and pay twenty cents more. This deponent then offered the said Flood the twenty cents. Flood then said to this deponent, "You must pay that at the other office." This deponent then started out of Flood's office to go to Van Horne's office; and as this deponent was going out at the door of the register's office, the said Flood told this deponent not to say anything at the other office about anybody living on the land. This deponent, at the time he entered the land, did not hear or know anything about scrip or deposition; was not sworn or asked to be sworn; he paid the money for the land agreeably to Flood's directions, one hundred dollars to Flood and the balance to Van Horne—supposing all was right until some time afterwards, when this deponent found that he had been (through want of education and a knowledge of business) imposed upon by Flood, with the scrip, by reason of which this deponent has (as he verily believes) lost his right to the land for which he honestly paid his money. And further this deponent saith not.

SAMUEL THOMPSON, J, P. [SEAL.]

THE STATE OF OHIO, Muskingum County, ss:

Before me, Samuel Thompson, an acting justice of the peace in and for said county, personally came John Reed, of lawful age, who, being duly sworn according to law, deposeth and saith that, on or about the last of July, 1831, this deponent, on hearing a report in circulation that John Cummins had entered the west half of the southwest quarter of section twenty-one, of township nine, in range ten, on which William C. Bay then resided, and understanding (by the report in circulation) that the said Cummins had made oath that there was no person living on the land at the time he made the entry, and that the said Bay intended to prosecute the said Cummins for perjury, whereupon this deponent, from his knowledge of the good character and standing of Cummins, called on Thomas Flood, register of the land office in Zanesville, on or about the said last day of July, 1831, and stated to the said Flood the report was in circulation, and that they were talking of taking Cummins up for perjury, and asked the said Flood whether Cummins had made oath as was stated. Flood said no: he was not qualified at all; that he (Cummins) had told him (Flood) the truth about the land, that Bay was living on the land. Flood stated to this deponent that Bay was not entitled to a pre-emption right, that he had not been on the land long enough, and had not raised any crops on it to entitle him to a right, and asked this deponent what improvements Bay had on the land: to which this deponent answered, (having been at Bay's house a few days before on the said land,) that he had a cabin on the land, in which he (Bay) lived. Flood then told this deponent that Cummins had entered the land according to law, and had paid his money for it, and that there was no law to keep him out of it. This deponent then asked Flood how Cummins would get possession of the land, and how he could get Bay out of it? Flood said he must go and give him legal notice, and if he did not go out, then go and take some men with him, and tell him (Bay) to take out his goods and his children; and if he did not do it, then pull and take the house down, and be careful not to hurt his children or goods, and move the house to some other place, and set fire to and burn it up, or do anything else with it he (Cummins) pleased. And further this deponent saith not.

SAMUEL THOMPSON, J. P. [SEAL.]

THE STATE OF OHIO, Muskingum County, ss:

Personally came before me, Samuel Thompson, an acting justice of the peace in and for said county, Lee Ogan, of lawful age, who, after being sworn according to law, deposeth and saith, that, on or about the last day of April, 1832, he, this deponent, called at the office of Thomas Flood, register of the land office in Zanesville, and inquired of the said Flood if Cummins' patent had come on for that land? (meaning the west half of the southwest quarter of section twenty-one, of township nine, in range ten.) Flood said no. This deponent then asked the said Flood if William C. Bay had been there that day? To which Flood answered in the affirmative, by saying yes. This deponent then asked Flood if Bay had any right for the land? To which Flood answered that he, Bay, had not any right, nor could he get any. This deponent then stated to said Flood that Bay said Cummins had sworn a false oath about the land, and therefore could not get it. Flood answered and said it was not so, that Cummins was not sworn anything about the land. The land spoken of in this deposition is the same land, and the parties are the same, as referred to in the foregoing deposition of John Cummins. And further this deponent saith not.

THE STATE OF OHIO, Muskingum County, ss:

Before me, Samuel Thompson, a justice of the peace in and for said county, personally appeared Charles Stetson, and made oath in due form of law, that he had been the sole agent employed in the sale of military bounty land scrip at Zanesville since the 1st of October, 1832. That, in his absence, he had occasionally employed another person to transact his business, but that he had not, in any instance, employed a clerk in the register's office. That he is fully satisfied that, since the time mentioned, no clerk in the register's office has had any agency or interest in the sale of scrip, or has been in any way, directly or indirectly, connected with the business.

Personally appeared before me, a justice of the peace in and for said county, Thomas K. Love, who, being by me duly sworn, deposeth and saith that he has been the only clerk who has done the business in the register of the land office in Zanesville for some time past; that he never has acted as agent for the sale of military bounty land scrip, being informed by the register, upon his entrance into his office, that it was contrary to law; that he never has, directly or indirectly, received any compensation on account of scrip.

ZANESVILLE, September 25, 1833.

Some time since, perhaps in the winter of 1832, a colored man, by the name of John Cummins, called at my office in this place, and employed me to write a petition to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, respecting a tract of land entered by him, and which was claimed by one Bay. All the material facts set forth in that petition were dictated to me by the said Cummins; and after I had finished the petition, I read it to him in a distinct and audible voice. He pronounced all the facts true, and was qualified to its contents.

GEO. H. FLOOD.

THE STATE OF OHIO, Muskingum County:

Before me, an associate judge of said county, personally came G. H. Flood, who made oath that the facts above set forth were true to the best of his knowledge.

WILLIAM BLACKSOM, Associate Judge. [L. S.]

September 26, 1833.

Being informed by Mr. Flood, register of the land office at Zanesville, that a difficulty exists in relation to a certain military land scrip, relinquished to the United States by one Cummins, in payment of a half quarter of land in Zanesville land office, and which purchase was annulled in consequence of one Bay having a pre-emption right; I have to state, that at the time said entry was made, I was in possession of a large amount of said scrip, and that it is probable that Mr. Cummins received the scrip of me for the purpose of paying for his land. If so, I received value for the scrip, and would have no hesitation in refunding the money to Mr. Cummins, or his order, on his delivering back to me the scrip; provided I can apply the same, or have the same applied in the purchase of land again, in the name of such person as may be willing to make payment with scrip, or, in other words, if the scrip can be available to me in as full and ample a manner as if it had never been relinquished as above, then I will give Cummins his money.

I am also informed, that the validity of my purchase of the southwest quarter of section 15, township 6, range 11, military, is questioned. In reference to that, I have to state, that I was a bidder at the public sale on the first day; that the land was run up above what I was willing to give; that it was understood that any bids not complied with, and purchase completed that day, that the land would be offered the next day; accordingly, the next day being the second day of the public sale, ascertaining that the said land had not been paid for, and the time for opening the sales having arrived, I called up the tract and became the purchaser.

CHARLES C. GILBERT.

THE STATE OF OHIO, Muskingum County, ss:

Before me, an associate judge of said county, personally appeared Thomas Flood, and made oath in due form of law, that the military bounty land scrip, relinquished by Cummins for land afterwards located by Wm. C. Bay, was received by said Cummins of Charles C. Gilbert; that I never owned stock of that description in my life, either directly or indirectly; that I have no knowledge of either of the other men that gave depositions in this case, but am well convinced that I never used to them the language attributed to me (it being contrary to law and common sense), in respect to turning Bay off the premises.

Said Flood further made oath, that to the best of his knowledge, his son, George H. Flood, had never been, directly or indirectly, interested in any sale of land made at this office; that he never bid off any tract at a public sale for his own benefit, or on his own account, or that of his father, this deponent.

WILLIAM BLACKSOM, Associate Judge. [SEAL.]

THE STATE OF OHIO, Muskingum County, ss:

Personally appeared before me, one of the associate judges of said county, George H. Flood, who being duly sworn deposeth and saith, that some time in the summer of 1831, and previous to the public sale of relinquished and forfeited lands, at the Zanesville land office, a young man by the name of Wolf called on this deponent, and informed him he was desirous of purchasing the southwest quarter of section No 15, in township No. 6, of range No. 11, military, and requested this deponent to act as his, Wolf's, agent at the said sale, and bid off the said land for him; that it was doubtful whether he, Wolf, would be present, and if he was he knew nothing about business of that description. This deponent consented, and at the sales did purchase for the said Wolf the above described land, and made out an application in the name of Wolf, and handed it to him for the said tract. What became of the application and Wolf, or what arrangement he then made, this deponent is wholly ignorant, for he has no recollection of conversing with Wolf after he gave him the before-mentioned application. For the services this deponent rendered to Wolf, he did not receive a solitary farthing, and had no expectation of being paid for his services. In the whole transaction, deponent acted gratuitously for a young man who was ignorant of the mode of transacting business of this description. At that time, deponent was reading law in the office of W. Sullivan, Esq., and occasionally assisted the register in his office. And further deponent saith not.

WILLIAM BLACKSOM, A. J. [SEAL.]

THE STATE OF OHIO, Guernsey County, ss:

Personally came before me, Isaac Wilson, an acting justice of the peace in and for said county, James Karr, of lawful age, who, being by me duly sworn according to law, deposeth and saith, that some time in May, or first of June, 1832, he, this deponent, went to the register's office in Zanesville, to know whether the south half of the southeast quarter of section seventeen in township one, and range three, was vacant. Thomas Flood, register of the land office, informed this deponent that it was for entry; this deponent informed the said Flood, that he, this deponent, wanted the said tract of land, but had not quite money enough to enter the same, and this deponent asked the said Flood what he would take and keep the said land for this deponent until he could get the money; this deponent does not now recollect the answer that Flood made to the question. This deponent then told the said Flood, that he, this deponent, would give him, the said Flood, ten dollars to keep the land for this deponent for one year. To which the said Flood replied to this deponent, "give me the ten dollars, and say nothing about it." This deponent then told the said Flood, to write his, this deponent's, name on the plat of the said land, and he, this deponent, would give him, the said Flood, the ten dollars. The said Flood did write this deponent's name on the plat of the said half quarter section of land. This deponent then handed a ten dollar bank note to the said Flood, which, when the said Flood looked at the ten dollar note, and seeing that this deponent had also two five dollar bank notes, the said Flood said to this deponent, "give me the two fives;" this deponent kept the ten, and gave the two five dollar notes to the said Flood, as a fee to save the said land to this deponent for one year; and the said Flood did save the said land for this deponent until some time after, when this deponent went to the said Flood's office in Zanesville, with John Nowlan (the son-in-law to this deponent), and, by and with the advice and consent of this deponent, the said Flood permitted the said Nowlan to enter the west half of the said tract; and on the 20th day of May, 1833, this deponent entered the east half of the said tract. And further this deponent saith not.

ISAAC WILSON, J. P. [SEAL.]

Having been called upon by Isaac Cannell, Esq., examiner of the land offices in Ohio, to give a statement of the facts that occurred relative to the transaction of business in the land office at Zanesville by Thomas Flood, Esq., register, while I was acting as clerk in his office, (either favorable or unfavorable to him.)

As to the transaction of the greater part of the business, it is done by the clerk, who makes out the application and affidavits, and are sworn to by Mr. Flood, acting as justice of the peace.

There are generally two affidavits to each entry. When the applicant enters a quarter-quarter, of course there is an affidavit to be taken, for which the applicant pays him (Flood) twenty-five cents, which affidavit, after the land is paid out, is filed in Mr. Flood's office, and the other affidavit is when the land is about to be paid out in scrip, for which the person who puts off the scrip in payment of the land pays Esquire Flood fifty cents. After the land is paid out, the entry is sent back to the office, and marked on the plat by the clerk.

I was then asked to answer the following questions to the best of my knowledge, viz:

Question. What is the man's name that puts off the scrip?

Answer. Charles Stetson, Esq.

Question. Does the person that puts off the scrip receive the money in the register's office, and in the presence of the register?

Answer. He does in nearly every instance.

Question. Does Mr. Flood say anything to the purchaser concerning his money, whether it is land office money or not?

Answer. Mr. Flood asks the purchaser to let him (Mr. Stetson,) examine his money, which the purchaser accordingly does, and, if Mr. Stetson sees fit, he pays his land out in scrip (if there is no person living on or has a pre-emption right to the land).

Question. Did you ever know of Mr. Flood giving the purchaser a wrong statement of the contents of the affidavits?

Answer. I never did

Question. Is the blank relinquishments on the scrip written ready to fill up in his office, (and witnessed?)

Answer. They are in a great many instances.

Question. How does the person that puts off the scrip get paid?

Answer. I believe a percentage of $2 on $100.

Question. Do you believe that Mr. Flood receives any of the above percentage?

Answer. I do not know that he does.

Question. Do you know of Mr. Flood ever sending any person to find this man that puts off scrip in payment of land, to come and exchange another man's money that is about buying land?

Answer. There is not more than one instance of this kind that presents itself to my recollection at present, which is, one evening after dark a person came to the office to purchase land—I think two half-quarters. Mr. Flood asked the man to let him look at his money; he did so, and, after examining it, Mr. Flood told him there was two five dollar notes on the Northwestern Bank of Virginia, which Mr. Van Horne did not receive in payment of land, but he said that if he would wait he would get a man that would exchange his money, and not charge him anything. Mr. Flood then asked me if I could go up and tell Mr. Stetson to come down, and pay out the man's land in scrip; which I done. Mr. Stetson then took the man's money, and told him he would go down and pay out the land, which he paid out in scrip. After Mr. Stetson returned, he paid Mr. Flood one dollar for the two affidavits; without said affidavits he could not have paid out the land in scrip.

ZANESVILLE, Ohio, September 28, 1833.

I, George H. Hilton, do certify the above to be a true statement of facts relative to the transaction of business while I was clerk in the register's office at Zanesville, under Thomas Flood, Esq., register, to the best of my knowledge and belief.

GEO. H. HILTON.

Deposition of Charles P. Moore, of Spencer township, Guernsey county, Ohio, taken on this 28th September, 1833, at my office, before me, Jesse Keen, justice of the peace in and for Muskingum county, Ohio, at the request of John Cummins, late of Guernsey county, Ohio:

The said Charles P. Moore, being duly sworn, deposeth and saith, he saw in the possession of William C. Bay, a copy of an oath that the aforesaid John Cummins should have sworn before Thomas Flood, Esq., register of the land office, Zanesville; which oath said Cummins protests he never took, and called on me to go with him to Esq. Flood, to hear if he, Flood, would not acknowledge he never adminstered the oath to said Cummins.

I, said Charles P. Moore, in company with John Cummins, called at the register's office. The register, Esq. Flood, was not in: we found in the office a young man called George Flood. He said his father, the register, had gone east of the mountains. Mr. Cummins asked George Flood if he, Cummins, had been sworn in that office relating to the entry of a piece of land which he had entered some time previous? George Flood replied, you never have been sworn in this office. Mr. Cummins then requested George Flood to give him, from under his hand, an instrument of writing to show that he never had been sworn, so as to contradict the story Wm. C. Bay was telling of his, Cummins, having sworn false. Mr. George Flood said he would: he wrote something; handed it to Mr. Cummins; he folded it up, put it in his pocket without showing it to me, (he, Cummins, not able to write or read writing,) but supposing, as also I did, that Mr. George Flood had given him what he asked for. Some time after, probably two months, I saw the piece of writing given by Mr. G. Flood to Cummins, read it, and found it did not contain what we expected. The time of this transaction—deponent does not recollect the precise time of this occurrence, but believes the instrument written by George Flood to be dated. And further this deponent saith not.

CHARLES P. MOORE.

THE STATE OF OHIO, Muskingum County, ss:

I, Jesse Keen, justice of the peace in and for said county, do hereby certify that Charles P. Moore was by me sworn to testify the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, as a witness in the within case, and that the within deposition by him subscribed was reduced to writing by me, and taken at the time and place within mentioned.

Given under my hand and seal this 28th Sept., 1833.

JESSE KEEN, Justice of the Peace.

HARRISON TOWNSHIP, Knox County, Ohio, October 1, 1833.

I hereby certify that I attended at the sales of forfeited lands offered for sale at the register's office in Zanesville, on the 18th day of July, 1831, for the purpose of purchasing the southwest quarter of section fifteen, in township No. six, in range No. eleven of the unappropriated lands in the United States' military district. And when the said land was set up at sale, I bid it up to three dollars and fifty cents per acre; when Charles C. Gilbert, or George H. Flood, bid over that sum, and, as I now think, one cent per acre. The land was struck off, and sold to the said Gilbert or Flood. I am not certain at this time which of them became the purchaser, but I think it was the smallest man, the most pallid looking one; and when the purchaser stepped into the office he said that the land was Peter Wolf's, or that the land was struck off to Peter Wolf.

I had the money with me, and would have paid for the land at three dollars and fifty cents per acre, which was my highest bid. From the conduct of Thomas Flood, register of the land office, and his son George H. Flood, and Charles C. Gilbert, I then did think from what I heard from George H. Flood, or Charles C. Gilbert, which one I cannot tell, told Jacob Wolf to go into the office, and not to say a word: this was at the commencement of the sales. And I do now believe there was an understanding among them to prevent me from getting the land, that they, or some of them, might have opportunity to speculate.

THOMAS DILLIN.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this first day of October, 1833.

WM. BEVANS, J. P.

THE STATE OF OHIO, Knox County, ss:

I, Alexander Elliott, clerk of the court of common pleas for said county, do hereby certify that William Bevans, before whom the above affidavit was taken, was, at the time of taking the same, and yet is, an acting justice of the peace for said county, duly commissioned and sworn, and full faith and credit are due to all his official acts as such, as well in courts of justice as thereout. And I further certify that the foregoing signature, purporting to be his, is genuine. In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of said court, at the clerk's office in Mount Vernon, this 1st day of October, 1833.

B. VAN HORNE, Receiver.
ISAAC CANNELL, Examiner of the Land Offices in Ohio.

WOOSTER, Ohio, August 10, 1833.

SIR: I have the honor to report that I arrived in this town at night on the 4th of August, and entered upon duty next morning, and continued until this day, and expect to leave this place on Monday, the 12th, and hope to arrive at Bucyrus on Tuesday the 13th. That office, I understand, is doing a large business; the enterprising and industrious Germans, and others, settling in that district are the principal reasons given for the increase of sales. The general character of Mr. Lake, the register, and Mr. Quimby, the receiver, of this place, do an honor to the dignity of the government so far as I have had the pleasure of an intercourse with them. They both appeared every way disposed to afford me every facility immediately on my arrival at their office, to enable me to have a full examination of the books and papers, and I have endeavored to proceed in order though the whole of all my investigations under your instructions, and found everything in complete order ever since the present register's appointment, which was in May, 1829. Very many omissions appear, particularly on the book of plats, before that period; but since that time the entries of the land sold in this district have been made in the register of certificates, journal, and ledger, to the 8th of this month, and in the sale book to the 11th of May, 1833, at which time it was filled, and in the tract book and township plats to the 8th. In opening the tract book, the instructions from the department have been completed at this office, by commencing with the lowest number of section, township, and range, and running up in numerical order to the highest number of township and range in the district, with the exception of the 17th township, and range the 14th, which, from some cause unknown to the register, were omitted in the proper place, but follow the highest number of township in the district. I observe eight faint lines are left for each entry section, and a proportional number for each fractional section. The instructions contained in the circular of the 8th May, 1832, have been complied with. The register observed to me that he had transmitted, on the 5th of June, 1832, to the surveyor general's office, a list of fractional sections, and parts of fractional sections, remaining unsold in this district, which were to be subdivided under the provisions of the act of the 5th of April, 1832. No reply or returns as yet have been received at this office. The order the register has adopted in making entries of sales on the books of this office are, when the application and the receiver's receipt are delivered by the party making the purchase, the register compares them together, and, if found to agree, the same is entered on the blotter of the register of certificates. He then makes the entries in the tract book and township plats, and compares the entries with the application before filed. He then transcribes the blotter in the register of certificates, journal, and sales book; from the journal he posts into the ledger. The township plats (66 in number) are all in one volume, and covered with a light buckskin. They are now, and long before they came into the possession of the present register, (as I am informed) in a very bad condition, very much defaced, and in every way bad, and badly put together. In the first place it is entirely too large, and should have been bound in two or three volumes. I think it would be much better to have an entire new set of township plats taken from those in the surveyor general's office, and have them correctly marked from the records here. It would be a tedious business to make correct entries on a new set of plats, as the old ones are in such bad condition, and the entries not having been regularly made on the same until latter years. They have been so badly kept that the present register of this office cannot sell a tract of land without first referring to the tract book. The fact of land appearing as vacant on the plats is no evidence that it is so. The other records are generally all well bound and in good condition, except the tract book, which, from the slight manner of the binding, has become a little out of repair, and it is not in as good order as it should be; however, with great care it may be preserved, so that the government, nor any private individual, will sustain any injury. As the department has thought proper to dispense with the sales' book, no new books are wanted in this office; a journal will be wanted in about nine months. The present officers appear to use every precaution to preserve and keep filed in their order; both keep them in cases from exposure to the dust. The circular of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, in relation to the pre-emption law of the 29th of May, 1829, has been complied with. Much dissatisfaction with the purchasers for want of patents prevails; the register has not received any for a long time. I have the pleasure to inform you that I have given both of the offices in this place a satisfactory examination of all the books and papers, &c., connected with offices, comparing one with the other in every respect, and have the satisfaction to say they are in complete order, and I believe that the government has no more faithful officers than those two gentlemen. The books are all posted up to the time before-mentioned. A large book-case, valued at eighteen dollars, and one table, valued at four dollars, (twenty-two dollars) are all the furniture in the register's; and a book-case, valued at twelve dollars, and an iron chest, valued at about thirty dollars, are all the furniture belonging to the United States in the receiver's office. Enclosed with this you will receive a statement of the true balance of cash in his hand, as receiver of the public moneys, to the 6th day of this month, that being the day on which my examination closed at that office.

There appears not more than fifty thousand acres of public land left for sale in this district, and they are generally in small fractional sections; in the Steubenville district not more than twenty thousand left.

I have the honor to be, sir, your obedient servant,

ISAAC CANNELL, Examiner of the Land Offices in Ohio.

WAPAUKONNETTA, Ohio, August 30, 1833.

SIR: I embrace a moment to report that I arrived in this town about 11 o'clock on Friday night, the 23d of August, after the most solitary, anxious, and fatiguing day I ever spent in a wilderness. I left Bucyrus on the afternoon of the 20th August, passing through the Wyandot reserve to Upper Sandusky, where I remained during the night; and from thence I proceeded to Bellefontaine, and through the wilderness to the ancient cabin village, called Waupau, located on the banks of the Auglaise river, after traveling about 105 miles from Bucyrus. The lands are rich and timber large, but nearly all sold near the river. On Saturday morning, the 24th of August, I entered upon duty, and continued my examinations, by endeavoring to assort and look over such books and papers as were presented by the receiver, so as to enable me, as far as possible, to ascertain the true balance that should be in his hands; and as he had not his books posted, nor his money assorted, it consumed much time to ascertain, correctly, the balance due the government. As this officer appeared exceedingly well disposed, and very politely offered every facility in my several examinations, I feel very sorry I cannot, conscientiously, report favorably as to the general appearance of his office. It cannot be kept neat, &c., as the receiver appeared to feel; and he expressed much regret that it was not what he wished it to be. He is compelled to keep his office in a small back log room, under the same roof with the register's office; and as this house belongs to the register, he reserves the best part for his own office. The gentlemen sleep together in an adjoining room very near the door that enters the receiver's office; so that the funds are as well guarded as they can be at present. There is not room to arrange his writing desk, or book-case, and the poor old box, or chest, made of oak, and his table. He has to keep his cash in this old unsafe box. Permit me to say that he should be directed to purchase a good iron chest for that purpose, as he is far removed from any bank. The small case is not very well calculated to keep his books and papers as they should be kept.

Both the register and receiver are most industriously engaged in building themselves good brick offices, and expect to have them completed in a few weeks, and then they will do all they can towards preparing immediately to remove their families to Wapaukonnetta; but their first plan is to prepare houses for the safety of the property belonging to the United States, committed to their care. They both appear to labor under very many disadvantages for the want of houses for workmen to live in. As soon as the present officers are removed to their new offices, they will then have more room, and they promise to keep them in complete order.

As to Col. Thomas B. Van Horne, he appears to understand his department well, being an old officer; and our friend, Mr. Skinner, promises to have a first rate clerk as soon as he gets in his new office, and keep everything in proper order. The book case, valued at twelve dollars, one table at two dollars, and the old box, at two dollars, except the books, are all the property belonging to the United States in the receiver's office; and Mr. S. reports that the indisposition of his present clerk has been the cause of his books not being posted. His journal is up to the 10th of August, his receipt book to the 21st of August, and his ledger posted up to the 12th of August. He further states the book in which the register of forfeited land stock and military bounty land scrip [is kept,] is entirely too small, and very indifferent; the register of scrip, as he states, should be kept in a well bound book. He informs me that the best lands in this district have been selected for canal purposes: there is scarcely a tract of value on the water, out of the reserves, that the State commissioners have not selected, and the great quantity of scrip offered considerably curtail the amount of cash that would otherwise be paid in cash. For the reasons given, hopes he may be excused respecting his books.

Col. Van Horne is certainly a man of business, although his books are not up. The entries in the register of certificates are made up to the 25th of July, 1833; in the journal, ledger, and sales' book, to the 24th July, 1833; the tract books are posted from day to day. They were opened, leaving eight spaces, or faint lines, to each section; and, as yet, the spaces have been sufficient; but in some instances, the register, anticipating a want of room, has placed some of the forty acre entries between the faint lines. The tract books were all opened at this office prior to the passage of the law authorizing the sale of quarter-quarter sections; and, consequently, eight spaces or faint lines only were left. The tract books commenced with section 1, township 1 south, range 1 east—the southwestern part of the district having been first surveyed, and offered at sale. He then appears to proceed in regular order with all the lands south of the base line, except the Indian reservations. He then goes on, section 1, township 1 north, range 1 east, in the regular order, north of the base line, except the Indian reservations. It appears, when the Wapaukonnetta, Hog Creek, and Lewistown reserves were offered for sale, the tract books were continued with the lowest section, township and range. The pre-emption privileges in favor of housekeepers have been attended to; and the register has a number of affidavits on file claiming pre-emption privileges to lands on the Auglaise river, and within five miles of it, which were suspended from sale in 1829. In the entries of forty acre lots, or quarter-quarter sections, the regulation has not been complied with; and the reason given by the register was, because there was not a magistrate within eight or ten miles since the office was removed to Wapaukonnetta in April last. Although this has been the case, the register appears to feel confident that in but one or two cases has any person entered more than two quarter-quarter sections, and were permitted to be entered with a full conviction that they were intended for cultivation, or for the use of improvement owned by the applicants, except a few Germans, who enter a number of forty acre lots, and who cannot be made to understand; and those are generally situated near them, and are wanted for firewood and building timber. In some cases the register has taken the liberty to administer the oath when no judicial opinion could be obtained. Every sale, as far back as I examined, at this office, has been entered on the township plats, with the word "sold" only, [and on] the tract books, sales' book, register of certificates, journal, and ledger, except one or two that were, in the hurry of business, neglected to be marked, and were necessarily withdrawn; and one of the cases the register expects to be under the necessity of reporting to your honor, unless a compromise between the parties can be effected. The township plats, as you may recollect, are on very thin, spongy, weak paper. They have been bound together in one volume very long before there were any directions to that effect. The register informs me that when you were at Piqua as an examiner, that you promised to recommend the preparation of an entire new set; and, under that expectation, he neglected, until this summer, to paste muslin to them. Some few had been torn, but not to injure them materially when the cotton was attached to them. The weather being damp and rainy, many of the plats became very much spotted from their dampness: the result is, that many are defaced, and will certainly require to be renewed. A new set of plats are necessary for this office, as there is much vacant land to be entered in this district as yet. The other books of the office are well bound, in good order, and are entirely sufficient for the office. The papers, with a few exceptions, are filed, numbered or labeled, and are kept under a lock and key in the office desk. The register has not furnished a list of unsold fractions to the surveyor general in this district liable to be divided. He informs me that the fractions on Hog creek and Blanched river were generally selected under the direction of the governor of Ohio in 1829. The fractions on the Auglaise river were suspended from sale in 1829, no provision having been made by the State of Ohio for the division of fractions; and as it was not known what part of those lands would be designated for the United States; it was expected that the lands on the Maumee river would also be suspended from sale for the same reason: and the register further informs me that it was well known to him that the surveyor general was much pressed, and unable to make the divisions; and further, there being no complaints as he knew of, (only one or two applications having been made for a division,) and as the water courses are considered the most desirable lands in the district, and as the purchasers have been willing to enter them as they were originally laid off, the register considered it not very important or essential; and further states, that those divisions would cost a large sum, and, when done, would rather retard than facilitate the sale of public lands. Those are his reasons given for his not performing his duty in that respect, but promises to attend to the order very shortly. How far his reasons may bear the test, it is with you or the honorable Secretary of the Treasury to judge. In answer to my particular inquiries, why their families did not reside at Wapaukonnetta, &c., your honor will find the reasons given in their joint letter, which I have enclosed. In my hurried report from Bucyrus, I neglected to enclose a receipt for $100, which you will now find enclosed with this report.

I have the honor to be, sir, your most obedient servant,

ISAAC CANNELL, Examiner of the Land Offices of Ohio.

The Hon. ELIJAH HAYWARD, Commissioner of the General Land Office, Washington City.

The furniture belonging to the United States in the register's office in this place, exclusive of books, &c., are as follows, viz:

1 large desk, valued at $18

1 book-case, valued at 12=$30.

Long since I left Wapaukonnetta, I have received information, evidently from very high authority, and from a source which I cannot doubt for a moment its correctness, that the following practices prevail with the officers of the land offices at Wapaukonnetta, Ohio. When either of those gentlemen are absent upon a visit to their families, which is the case alternately, one will do the duty of both. As the law designs that each officer should be a check on the other, it is manifestly improper that either should transact the business of the other. That both the register and receiver are concerned in land speculations and have made many purchases and sales. It is reported to me that the register has made purchases in the name of his son, which have been subsequently transferred from the son to the father. I have also been informed that the tracts reserved from sale have been sold by the receiver, while acting in the absence of the register, and he has also permitted more than two tracts of forty acres each to be entered by the same person while doing duty for the register. The register has also acted as auctioneer at the public sales in December, 1832, and struck off lands to himself. He has acted in the triple capacity of auctioneer, register, and receiver, at a sale of several reserved tracts in June last. I have also been informed that it is a matter of general report and notoriety that lands are reserved from sale by the register, even after applied for, and afterwards purchased by the receiver and himself in partnership. This impression has been so strong in the public mind, that persons designing to purchase have been afraid to examine the books of the offices, or make known the number of the section in which they wished to enter. The register holds the office of register of the canal lands for Ohio, and acts alternately in both. The Ohio office is supposed to be worth about a thousand dollars. The receiver has some very valuable property in the beautiful and improving town of Dayton, and also in and about the village of Wapaukonnetta.

All respectfully submitted,

ISAAC CANNELL, Examiner of the Land Offices.

LAND OFFICE, Wapaukonnetta, Ohio, August 27, 1833.

SIR: In answer to your inquiries, why the families of the land officers are not residing at this place, we state, that the land on which the town of Wapaukonnetta is situated was not purchased until December last; that a sale of lots did not take place until late in March; that there were not, at that time, but three or four houses in the place that were tenantable, and when the land offices were removed the first of April, they were all occupied, and it was with some difficulty we could be accommodated with office room. We have each since purchased lots, on which there are log houses, which we are at this time fitting up for the accommodation of our families. We have materials ready, and contracts made to build brick offices, and expect to remove our families here in October next. Although our families have not been here, we have constantly given our personal attention to the offices, except when called to our families when sick, and the necessary absence of the receiver in making his deposits. Having been requested to state the circumstances under which General Taylor's scrip was deposited, and land marked and received for him, I state that, on the 11th day of April, 1833, Henry Hendrickson, the agent of James Taylor, called at this office, and applied for a number of tracts of land, amounting, at $1.25 per acre, to $1,412.35, and rendered in payment thereof scrip to about the same amount, which appeared to have been regularly issued at the Treasury Department, but was not assigned; for the want of which he was told it could not be received in payment of land. He produced a letter from Gen. Taylor, stating that he wished his agent to select and apply for land to the amount of the scrip; that he would, in a short time, come to the office; and if there was any informality in the scrip that would prevent it from being received, that he would then be prepared to perfect it, and requested as a favor that the land might be marked and withheld from sale until he should arrive. Being always willing to accommodate purchasers of the public lands as far as practicable, and perhaps further sometimes than proper, his request was complied with; a special application for the tracts made out and filed, and a receipt for the scrip given to Mr. Hendrickson by the register. Shortly after we were enjoined by the court of common pleas of Allen county not to sell the lands thus applied for. A printed copy of the mandate of the court was a short time since forwarded to Judge Hayward.

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio, August 2, 1833.

SIR: I have the honor to inform you that I arrived at this place on Tuesday evening, the 30th of July, 1833, from Wheeling, Virginia, twenty-three miles below, and on the 31st proceeded to the examination of the land offices located here, and continued my examination until this day, and shall leave for Wooster on Saturday, the 3d of August; and I find, after a full, thorough, and satisfactory examination of all the books, plats, and other papers connected with the register's office, I have the pleasure to inform you that they are all in complete order, the books posted up to the 31st of July, 1833. But, strange as it may appear, not one acre of public land has been sold during the last month. I have full confidence, and every reason to believe, Mr. Hoge is a faithful and valuable public officer. A large pine book-case is all the furniture in this office belonging to the United States. I regret exceedingly that I do not find the receiver's office in as good order. Mr. Veirs, being in bad health, is at the Bedford Springs, and is not expected to return until the last of August; therefore I feel a delicacy in going into a full examination of the books, papers, &c., without his being present. I shall feel it a duty to call at his office on my return to Washington city. Should the Secretary of the Treasury wish to give any further instructions, his or your letter will find me at Bucyrus, Ohio, on the 15th of August. With my best respects to the Hon. W. J. Duane and Mr. Moore,

I have the honor to be, with great respect, sir, your obedient servant,

ISAAC CANNELL,
Examiner of the Land Offices in the State of Ohio.

ELIJAH HAYWARD, Esq., Commissioner of the General Land Office, at Washington.

MARIETTA, Ohio, September 20, 1833.

SIR: I have the honor to inform you that I arrived in this place on the 17th of this month, after traveling about 140 miles from Chillicothe, and proceeded the next morning to the examination of the land office located in this town; but I was sorry to find Mr. Skinner, the receiver, from home, and his return not expected for two weeks; but in looking over the books and papers which are left in the care of Mr. Thomas, a worthy, intelligent man, who immediately afforded me every facility in his power in my examination of the office, and although I do not feel myself at liberty to state the true balance that should be in his hands as receiver of the United States, yet I have every reason to believe that he is a correct officer, as I find his books posted up to the very day he left home, and what money he had received he sent to Cincinnati by his confidential clerk, to deposit in the Branch Bank of the United States, except about $1,500 in specie, which remain on deposit in the bank of this place, until the water should raise in the Ohio. His office, with his family, will be removed to the east side of the Muskingum shortly, as it will be more convenient to the register's office. The property belonging to the United States in this office, as far as I could learn, is as follows, to wit: One convenient secretary and case, large and well made, valued at $30. If there should be any other property except the books and papers, Mr. Thomas could not take the liberty to say.

I then called on the venerable Judge Wood, one of the first pioneers of the west, and the present register of the land office at Marietta, where I found every book posted up to the day of my arrival. He appeared to have a perfect recollection of nearly all the events that have occurred in this part of the country for the past forty-eight years. He settled near this place when quite a young man, from New Jersey, and was very early appointed a surveyor in Ohio, and appears to be well acquainted with every section, township, and range within the district. The township plats, although very old, have been kept well, pasted on good cotton canvas, and have every sale, with the purchaser's name, marked thereon. He has written to the surveyor general respecting the subdivision of fractions, as instructed, but at the same time he believes that it is not necessary for this district. The general instructions addressed to this office have been complied with. The tract book begins with the lowest number of range, township, and section in district, and proceeds regularly to the highest, commencing with the first and ending with the fifteenth range of township, with a space of eight lines between sections, and a suitable number for the fractions. There will be but few cases wherein the spaces will not be sufficient for all the entries that are likely to be made in this district. The mode pursued by the register in making his entries: He first inserts the name of the purchaser on the map or plat book; he then makes the entry (after a return of the application with the receiver's receipt) in the tract book, journal, ledger, register of certificates, and lastly makes out the final certificate. The instructions of the 8th of May, 1832, I believe have been literally complied with by the venerable old gentleman. His papers are labeled, filed, and safely deposited in his book-case. The quantity of land unsold in this district he has ascertained to be about 330,000 acres; it is very hilly and some broken, but reported to be good for small grain. The property belonging to the United States in the register's office in this place is as follows, viz., except the books and papers: One table, valued at $3, two large book-cases, valued at $15 ($18). A very large new tract book has been sent to this office from Washington, which they have no use for. It had better be ordered to some other office.

I have the honor to be, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

ISAAC CANNELL, Examiner of the Land Offices in Ohio.

The Hon. ELIJAH HAYWARD, Commissioner of the General Land Office, Washington City.

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio, September 14, 1833.

SIR: I have the honor to inform you that I left Cincinnati on the morning of the 9th inst., and by traveling nearly all night, I arrived at this town on Tuesday, the 10th, to breakfast, and went immediately to examine the books and papers of the receiver's office. Not finding Mr. Ingham at the office, I inquired of his worthy and experienced clerk for him, who informed me that he was very much indisposed in the country; that he resided on his farm six or seven miles from town, but would immediately send for him. I found Mr. Samuel Tagart, his clerk, intelligent, and well acquainted with all the business of his office; begged him not to do so, as I could look over, and, with his assistance, could examine the books and papers, vouchers, &c., and ascertain the true balance that should be in his hands without Mr. Ingham. However, the next morning he came in town, and satisfied me that the amount, as previously ascertained by myself, with the assistance of Mr. T. before his arrival, was nearly all deposited in bank for safe keeping until the end of the quarter, in the kind of money as mentioned in the enclosed. He presented a certificate of the fact from the cashier. The books are well kept in a legible handwriting, and everything about the office remarkably neat, and I consider Mr. Tagart a first-rate and particular clerk. Every reasonable facility afforded to enable me to discharge my duty.

A small book-case, valued at seven dollars, is all the property in this office belonging to the United States, except the books, &c. One ledger and one new journal will be wanted under the cash system, as soon as convenient, and also one scrip and stock book.

I called on Thomas Scott, Esq., next, and examined his books as register of the land office. The standing of Mr. S. as a gentleman of business, you know much better than I do. It appears, after looking over, that the entries in the register of certificates are all up to the first instant, and also those in the journal have been posted into the ledger up to the first of July last.

There appears to be two tract books kept in this office: the first contains a list of those lands which had not been applied for, when the act establishing the present cash system went into operation. This book has been made out or opened numerically, beginning with the lowest range in the district, as originally laid out, first section and first township in that range. The military lands in the 12th, 13th, 14th, and 15th range of townships subject to sale at this office are entered at the end of that tract book, when no part of a section had been sold previous to the making out of said tract book; eight blank faint lines and spaces were left, corresponding with the legal subdivision of a section under the act, but were a part of a section, and had been previously sold as were necessary to designate the legal subdivisions of those parts of the section remaining unsold. The blank spaces left are sufficient for all the entries of the sales at this office. The other tract book containing the legal subdivisions of the tracts that have been relinquished, and which have reverted, are entered on the tract book in the same regular order as on that first named. But all those tracts which have either been relinquished or reverted since, have been entered without regard to their progressive number, as stated above. Mr. Scott has complied with the instructions to registers contained in the circular to the surveyor general of the 8th of May, 1832, and the one dated 29th May, (15th April,) 1830, except what is herein noticed. It appears the register sold one quarter fractional section before its division by the surveyor general, without adverting to the fact that such a division was necessary. He has entered each sale as made on the corrected plat or map of the district, and then on the tract book until it run out. The reason given why he has not entered the sales on the plat books, is, that the plats and descriptions were not completed by the surveyor general, and the maps or plats are not bound. The register received an order from you on the surveyor general for the completion: he immediately applied, as ordered, without effect. The register has urged, as he informs me, the great necessity of having those plats and descriptions, and the legal subdivisions of fractional sections, as required by the late law; but without effect. As soon as he can obtain from the surveyor general complete plats, they shall be well bound in convenient volumes in the manner directed. The lines and figures on the maps of the district, by long and constant usage, have become so dimmed as to be scarcely legible: these lines and figures require to be retouched. The bindings of the tract books are giving way; they want repairing. Two or three rows of pigeon holes ought to be placed on the top of the paper case, and sliding doors made for the case: draws are wanting to preserve the abstracts of relinquishments. All those things are necessary to preserve the papers and books from the dust. Certificate of further credit, &c., perfectly safe. The cost would be but a trifle. The cases want a pair of hinges and seven locks; also a letter book is wanting. I think it very necessary to keep the books and papers clean.

All the furniture belonging to the United States in this office are two book-cases, valued at twenty dollars for the two, and paper case valued at fourteen dollars; amounting to thirty-four dollars. This last-mentioned case is without doors.

The register supposes that the United States has about eight hundred and fifty thousand acres of land remaining unsold in this district. The record books are generally well bound in good strong binding, (except the tract books, as mentioned,) and the papers are filed, labeled, and placed in the case. The books are generally correct. I was particular in my examination, by comparing my extracts from the books at the receiver's office, with the register's books and entries, and found them correct, and no mistake, as I could discover. Mr. Scott resides at the office, and gives the business his personal attention.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, September 9, 1833.

SIR: I have the honor to report that I left Wapaukonnetta on Thursday evening late, on the 30th of August, and arrived in this improving city on Tuesday evening, the 3d of September, 1833, after traveling from Wapaukonnetta, one hundred and thirty-four miles, through the great and rich Miami country; and on the 4th of September, 1833, entered upon duty by first calling on the receiver for an exhibit of the whole amount of cash on hand belonging to the United States; and as money was deposited in the Branch Bank of the United States, in this he had only to present a certificate from the cashier for the amount of the true balance that appeared, and was previously ascertained to be in his hands to the examination, as per statement enclosed. This gentleman is intelligent, and appeared to have the interest of the administration and the faithful discharge of duty in the several departments of the general government much at heart. His books were nearly posted, and, after examining and comparing the entries through the multiplicity of books in this office, I found them correct. Mr. Neville, the receiver, was exceedingly polite, assisted and afforded every facility in his power to enable me to look over, and to give a thorough examination of the books and papers in the office; and I take much pleasure to report that I found them well bound, and the papers filed, labeled, and placed in cases prepared for the purpose, and kept from the dust. The property belonging to the United States in this office is as follows, viz:

One large iron chest, valued at	$120
And four book and paper cases	36
	156

I then called at the register's office to ascertain to what period the entries were made up. I found Mr. Symmes well informed in every respect as an officer of the government; communicated his views with great facility and clearness; and he has a first-rate clerk to assist him in the office. He immediately and politely offered to give me every information that I might want. In the first place he exhibited his books of plats, which are not bound, nor complete, although he has from time to time requested the surveyor general to make them complete. He has always marked the sales on the old old maps belonging to the office, which have always been used in this for that purpose, instead of the township plats, as the latter never have been complete, and are not bound in books, as I before mentioned, as prescribed. The plats and field notes in this office are duplicates merely of the original surveys, (by two miles, Blacks, &c.,) and do not agree with the present records of the surveyor general as stated to me by the register. What is to be done in such a case? The sales have all, as far as I have examined, been duly entered and marked on the tract book and the old old maps. The entries have been in the register of certificates made up to the 6th of September, 1833, and in the journal to the 26th of September, 1832. A delay for want of a new journal ledger up to February, 1832, and sales' book wanted, unless discontinued. The books are generally in good condition, and the writing executed by Mr. Bowers, his clerk, is remarkably neat and legible. The official papers are neatly filed, labeled, and safely arranged in the drawers and open cases provided by the register for the time being. Mr. Symmes informs me that he submitted a plan to your honor some time ago for a set of cases, portable in the event of fire, when several were executed for the use of the receiver's office, but the person declined furnishing any for this office at the same price. Six such cases will be wanted for the multiplicity of old books, papers, and maps, &c., in this office. As the present furniture, except the books, &c., is all private property, it would be much better to direct the necessary cases to be made as soon as possible. The blank spaces in the tract book have, as yet, been found sufficient in this district. The old general maps are very much worn out. The quantity of land vacant in this district, exclusive of the school reserves and canal lands, is supposed to be about 400,000 acres, of which there are about 250 acres in Indiana, and about 150 acres in Ohio.

The journal and ledger are both behind in consequence, as stated by Mr. Symmes, of the want of books in the first instance, and afterwards waiting the opinion of your honor, who had proposed dispensing with the sale book, &c. Not hearing anything further upon the subject the register has procured a new journal, and promises to have the books up by the end of the present month. As to the plat books being procured in complete order in every respect for all the offices that are now waiting for them, immediately, I presume cannot be furnished by the surveyor general shortly. I have much to say in addition, when I have the honor to see you, which my limited time will not permit me to do in my hurried reports from each office.

I have the honor to be, sir, your obedient servant,

ISAAC CANNELL, Examiner of the Land Offices in Ohio.

ISAAC CANNELL, Examiner of the Land Offices of Ohio.

BUCYRUS, Ohio, August 19, 1833.

SIR: I have the honor to inform you that I arrived in this village from Wooster, it being sixty-two miles, on Wednesday, noon, the 14th of August, and very soon after entered upon duty; and continued my examinations in order, by looking over the books and papers at the receiver's office, endeavoring to ascertain the true balance in the hands of the receiver. There was so large a sum of money on hand that it took us near two days to count, pack, and ascertain the correct amount; and when ascertained, it was forwarded to the Branch Bank of the United States at Pittsburgh, on the 16th or 17th of August, where I hope it has arrived safe. Mr. Larwill is an intelligent, particular, and, in my opinion, a most valuable officer of the government. Enclosed you will find a correct statement of the funds on hand to the 15th of August, 1833. This office has become an important one, as your honor will see by the enclosed statement. His books are not only correct, but exceedingly neat and well kept, and posted up to the 16th day of August, 1833. His papers handsomely filed, labeled, and well preserved from dust, in a small book-case, which I valued at 18 or 20 dollars. Permit me to observe that the present case is not sufficiently large or well calculated to preserve all the books and papers belonging to the office; it certainly will require an additional one, the cost of which, I presume, would be about 14 dollars. The iron chest is quite imperfect, and cannot afford a sufficient security to the large amount of public funds committed to the particular care of the receiver. I think the present chest might be sold for 20 dollars. The small case and the chest, with one large and four small volumes of the laws of the United States, unbound, except the books and papers, are all the property belonging to the United States in this office. The office of the receiver is kept in the second story of a comfortable and convenient brick dwelling, in which his faithful clerk sleeps; and it is well adapted to the purposes of an office. He and Mrs. Larwill sleep below under the office, and he appears to have many, very many, anxious moments for the safety of the public funds placed under his care. Such a large sum as remains from time to time on hand should have a fire-proof house, as the receiver is so far from any bank.

Mr. Gillespie, the register of the land office in this village, is truly a worthy man, and appears to attend faithfully to his duty, and takes delight to keep his office neat. He has adopted nearly the same plan that the register has at Wooster, the plan of which I had the honor to inform you through the post office at that place. He is exceedingly particular with his plat books, which he has handsomely pasted on good canvas—they being bound in good buckskin, and in two volumes, and in perfect order—not only those, but all his books. His papers are filed, labeled, and put away handsomely from the dust, in one of the most complete and convenient book-cases I ever saw for such a purpose, which he paid his own money for; but he flatters himself that you will direct the receiver to pay. He addressed you upon the subject some time ago. The books and papers could not be kept safe without such a one. The register has not been able to post his books for some time, for the want of a journal. He has written to Columbus for one, but cannot get such a one as will answer. He hopes that you will immediately direct the receiver to procure such a one as will answer, as he appears exceedingly anxious to keep his books up. The other books are all up to the date of this report, and in perfect order.

The furniture in this office belonging to the United States, viz:

1 book-case, supposed to be worth	$18 00
1 inkstand and jug	25
	$18 25

I sincerely believe that both the gentlemen in the land office at Bucyrus, Ohio, are men of honor, probity, impartiality, and fidelity. They have afforded every reasonable facility to enable me to discharge all the duties under your instructions; and if I have not done my duty it is not their fault, but mine. They do an honor to the government that appointed them to the office. I am not as full in my report as I would wish to be. I leave this place, by way of Bellefontaine, in the morning, for Wapaukonnetta, in Allen county, Ohio, after being six days on duty.

I have the honor to be, sir, your most obedient servant,

SIR: I commenced the examination of the land offices at this place on the 22d inst., and find the cash account as follows, 22d inst. included:

Gold	$50 00
Silver	485 76

The receiver deposits all his funds at the end of each month in the Bank of Michigan, to the credit of the United States' Treasury, which leaves no balance on hand. He has received no forfeited land stock, or military bounty land scrip; has made no disbursements; so that the whole amount of sales, up to the 27th inst. inclusive, is as follows:

Gold	$50 00
Silver	813 91
United States' Bank bills	1,750 00
Michigan Bank bills	15,680 00
	$18,293 91

Having closed the examination this day, I have given you a statement of the funds as they now stand on the books, and will refer to all other matters in my final report.

Respectfully yours, J. C. HOGHLAND.

The Hon. WILLIAM J. DUANE, Secretary of the Treasury.

STEUBENVILLE, August 26, 1833.

On examining the books of the receiver at Detroit, I found them kept in a clean and neat manner, and the entries corresponding with the instructions of the department; and also the books and papers, together with the office, kept neat and clean. The receiver wishes to be furnished with a cash book; he has books sufficient for all other purposes for the present year. The furniture in this office belonging to the government consists of one desk, cost from sixteen to twenty dollars, and is all-sufficient for present purposes. I made a comparison of a sufficient number of entries to satisfy me that the books were correctly kept. In regard to entries of land made by the receiver, I enclose you a copy of his certificate. He says that he has made no advances to persons entering lands, excepting small sums for which he has received no compensation. He resides at Detroit, and attends to the duties of the office himself, and, from all the information I could collect, I think the duties of the office are done to the satisfaction of the public, and fidelity to the government. The only fault I have to find is, that his books were not posted; his register of receipts was up to July 8, 1833, journal, June 3d, 1833, ledger October 15th, 1832, cash book, June 30th, 1833, and for these neglects I conceive there is no excuse. In regard to this gentleman's character, there is very much said to his prejudice, but nothing in such a shape as to justify me in making a report: I therefore consider him innocent until the contrary shall appear.

On examining the register's office at Detroit, I find the entries have been made agreeably to the instructions of the department, and that the townships, plats and books are kept in a clean and neat manner Also all the papers, together with the office, are kept neat and clean. There will be no plats or books wanted this year. The ledger and journal were posted no further than the 11th of May, 1833. The register states as an excuse that there are so many persons calling to view the maps, that it is almost impossible for him to keep the books regularly posted up, and, from what I saw myself while there, I am satisfied of the fact. I made a comparison of a sufficient number of entries, both on the plats and books, that satisfied me of their correctness. The furniture in this office consists of one desk, cost from sixteen to twenty dollars, and is not sufficient, the register having more papers to take care of. I would recommend, therefore, that you authorize him to procure a desk of the following dimensions: six feet high, six feet wide, fourteen inches deep, with twenty-four pigeon holes in the upper part for the purpose of keeping patents in, as they get much worn from tossing about: this will cost thirty dollars. In regard to land entered by the register, I enclose you a copy of his certificate. This gentleman has not advanced money to any person, either for or without interest, for the purpose of entering land. The business of the office is done with satisfaction to the public and fidelity to the government. There is but one opinion about the character of this gentleman: he stands as high as any other man in Michigan. He resides at Detroit, and attends to the duties of the office himself.

In regard to entering land in quarter-quarter sections, the law has been strictly adhered to, and in no one instance has it been violated that I have been able to discover.

WHITE PIGEON, August 5, 1833.

SIR: I commenced the examination of the land offices at this place on the 31st of July, and find the state of the funds as follows:

Michigan Bank bills	$7,050 00
United States' Bank bills	1,525 00
Specie	1,212 87
	$9,787 87

Amount remaining on hand as per last month's return	$808 31
Amount received this month per sales of public lands	8,979 56
	$9,787 87
Charges not yet allowed for traveling fees in making deposit of twelve thousand dollars in the Bank of Michigan, July 4th, 1833, per mileage	$37 50
For risk on same	18 00
	$55 50

I close my examination this day, August 5, 1833, and this is a true state of the books up to the 31st of July, inclusive. I will state at length in my final report.

Respectfully yours,

J. C. HOGHLAND.

Hon. WILLIAM J. DUANE, Secretary of the Treasury.

STEUBENVILLE, August 27, 1833.

On examining the books of the receiver at White Pigeon, I found them kept in a clean and neat manner, and all posted up to July 31st, 1833; the entries corresponding with the instructions of the department: and also the books and papers, together with the office, kept neat and clean. His office having been recently established, he has books sufficient for the present year. I examined the books of this office nearly through, and find the entries correspond with each other, so that I was perfectly satisfied of their correctness. The furniture of this office belonging to the government consists of one desk, cost about twenty dollars. In regard to lands entered by the receiver, I have enclosed you a copy of his certificate. This gentleman resides at White Pigeon, and attends to the duties of the office himself, although he is sometimes absent in making his deposits at Detroit, which takes him generally from six to ten days, owing to the road. The character of this gentleman stands fair; and I am satisfied, from all the information I could receive, that the business of the office is done with satisfaction to the public and fidelity to the government.

On examining the register's office at White Pigeon, I find that the entries have been made agreeably to the instructions of the department, and that the township plats and books are kept in a clean and neat manner; also all the papers, together with the office, are kept neat and clean. The plats and books of this office are the same that were formerly used in the office at Monroe, and are very much worn; some of them want to be removed.

Townships six, south range, ten west, and townships four, south range, eleven west, must be renewed, as they are entirely worn out. The register wishes to be furnished with a general map of the survey within this land district, as it is much required for the use of the office. I made a number of comparisons of entries, both on the plats and books, and found them all correct. The books of this office were not posted up: the journal was back to the 22d of April, 1833: the ledger was back to the 21st June, 1832, for which I conceive there is no excuse, although he has many. In regard to lands entered by the register, I enclose to you his certificate, which is not very satisfactory. The furniture of this office belonging to the government, consists of one old desk, which was brought from the Monroe office, and is not sufficient. You will please direct him to procure one similar to that recommended for the office at Detroit. This gentleman resides at White Pigeon, and attends to the duties of the office himself: he is a man of good character, and I have every reason to believe performs the duties of the office with satisfaction to the public and fidelity to the government. The law has not been violated in this office in the entering of quarter-quarter sections in any one instance that I have been able to discover.

MONROE, August 13, 1833.

SIR: I commenced my examination of the land office at this place on the 8th inst., and closed on the 13th inst.; and the state of the books to the 7th inst., inclusive, are as follows:

Cash account:

Michigan Bank bills	$4,839 00
United States' Bank bills	300 00
Specie	82 72
	$5,221 72
Amount remaining on hand, per return of last month, in cash	$1,624 11
Amount received from sales of public lands from the 1st to the 7th, inclusive	3,597 61
	$5,221 72

I will return immediately to Steubenville and make out my final report, and send to you from there.

Respectfully yours,

J. C. HOGHLAND.

Hon. WILLIAM J. DUANE, Secretary of the Treasury.

STEUBENVILLE, August 27, 1833.

On examining the books of the receiver at Monroe, I found them kept in a clean and neat manner, the entries corresponding with the instructions of the department; and also the books and papers, together with the office, kept neat and clean. The books here are all new, and will not require any more for some time: I made a comparison of a sufficient number of entries to satisfy me of their correctness. The furniture of this office belonging to the government is one large desk, cost twenty-four dollars, and all-sufficient for the present. In regard to lands entered by the receiver, I enclose you a copy of his certificate. This gentleman resides at Monroe, and attends to the duties of the office himself: his books were not all posted up; journal up to the 19th of July, 1833; ledger up to the 29th June, 1833. I am satisfied, from all the information I could collect, that the business of the office is done with satisfaction to the public and fidelity to the government. The receiver here wishes to be furnished with an iron chest: the one that formerly belonged to the office was removed to White Pigeon, and he appears to be at a loss without one. The character of this gentleman is very good.

On examining the register's office at Monroe, I find that the entries have been made agreeably to the instructions of the department, and the township plats and books are kept in a clean and neat manner; also all the papers, together with the office, are kept neat and clean. There will be no books nor plats wanted at this office for the present. I made a number of comparisons of entries both on the plats and books, and found them all correct. The books of this office were not all posted up: journal back to July 22d, 1833; ledger to the 29th June, 1833. The furniture of this office consists of one large desk, cost thirty-four dollars, and is sufficient for the present. the register of this office has entered no lands for himself or any other person; neither has he at any time advanced money to others, with a view to purchase land, since the establishment of this office. This gentleman resides at Monroe, and attends to the duties of the office himself, and I am well satisfied, from information received, that the duties of the office are done with satisfaction to the public and fidelity to the government. The gentleman's character is very good.

The law has not been violated in this office in the entering of quarter-quarter sections in any one instance that I have been able to discover.

There has been much said in regard to moving the land offices in Michigan to a more central point in each land district. The office at White Pigeon the people wish to have removed about forty miles further north, to the seat of justice for Kalamazoo county; the office at Monroe, about fifty miles northwest, to a town called Clinton. I visited both of the above places for my own satisfaction, and have come to the conclusion that the principal object of the removals is with the property holders of each of the aforesaid places, and more for the purpose of advancing their own property than from any good that will result therefrom to the people or government. The office at Detroit is situated similar to each of the others in point of location, and I think it would be doing injustice to remove either without removing the whole, as there is no person that enters land without first viewing the premises, and the offices are, two of them, located at the most prominent places of landing for persons going into the territory; the other is upon the government highway; and I think there would be as much complaint if they were removed, as there is to have them removed. Such are my views, carefully made up.

All the receivers and registers treated me with much kindness, and offered me every facility to examine their respective offices. With these remarks I submit my final report.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

J. C. HOGHLAND.

REGISTER'S OFFICE, White Pigeon, August 3, 1833.

I do hereby certify that I have not entered any land, since register of this land office, in my own name, nor has any been entered by any person in which I have an interest, directly or indirectly; neither have I entered for any of my relations either by blood or marriage.

The following described lands have been entered by my sons for their own personal benefit, they being over the age of twenty-one years, viz: Thos. A. H. Edwards, the undivided half of the west half of southeast quarter of section 26, township 6 south, of range 15 west, purchased October 1st, 1831. Alexander H. Edwards, south fraction, southeast quarter of section 28, township 7 south, range 12 west, $4\frac{55}{100}$ acres, (since sold to Niles F. Smith;) also, an undivided half of the east half of northeast quarter section 18, township 8 south, of range 11 west, entered June 23d, 1831; also, southwest fraction, section 30, township 6 south, range 11 west, containing $\frac{28}{100}$ of an acre. Also, north fraction, southwest of section 17, township 8 south, range 11 west, $39\frac{61}{100}$ acres. Henry J. H. Edwards, west half northwest quarter section 17, township 8 south, range 11 west.

A. EDWARDS, Register.

On the 3d of September, 1832, I purchased at public sale, the two following lots of land, viz:

	$395 20

The above was purchased by and for myself, and in my own name. I have also purchased, on application to the register, in the name of Theodore P. Sheldon and myself, jointly, for our use and benefit, viz:

Jan. 7th, 1833, W. $\frac{1}{2}$ S. E. fract. $\frac{1}{4}$ sec. 14, T. 2 S., R. 11 W., per certificate No. 1,847, containing	63.85	a 10 S.	$79 81

Total acres, $321\frac{77}{100}$. Total cash, $597.41.

I certify the above to be a true exhibit of all the lands by me purchased from the government, or in which I have directly or indirectly an interest or agency in purchasing; and that, of the above purchases, no part thereof have as yet been sold. I further certify to questions propounded by the government agent, Mr. Hoghland, that I never have as yet seen a document called land scrip; neither have I, since my appointment or before, ever loaned money on interest to any being upon earth to purchase land, or for any other purpose whatsoever.

Of these I have no memorandum or definite recollection, as they are all settled, and the papers surrendered by me. I have no recollection of any other lands entered in my name or for my benefit, except as above stated. I have no relations in the territory; no lands have ever been entered for them by me, or by them for me.

NOTE.—An examination of the endorsements of the patent certificates in the cases, not recollected by me, will show to whom they were transferred, and, probably, the price.

23D CONGRESS.] No. 1253. [1ST SESSION.

ON CLAIM FOR LAND IN ARKANSAS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JUNE 17, 1834.

Mr. LEAVITT, from the Committee on the Public Lands, to whom was referred the petition of William W. Stevenson, reported:

That the petitioner states, that in right of his wife, who was the widow of Isaac Watkins, he had a pre-emption claim to a part of the southwest quarter of section 2, township 1 north, and range 12 west, situated near the town of Little Rock, in the Territory of Arkansas; and that the said tract was embraced in the location of a thousand acres, granted by the United States to said Territory, for the erection of a court house and jail at said town of Little Rock; and the petitioner was ousted from the possession thereof. He estimates the value of said tract, with the improvements, at $2,400, and prays, that in lieu thereof, he may be allowed to locate 320 acres of any of the unappropriated lands in said Territory.

It appears to the committee, from the evidence in the case, that the petitioner, in right of his wife, as aforesaid, had duly proved and established his right of pre-emption to a tract of seventy-six acres, part of the quarter section above described; and that the same was embraced in the location made by the governor of said Territory, of the thousand acres granted for the erection of a court house and jail at Little Rock, as above stated. The committee are of the opinion that the petitioner is entitled to relief; and they have therefore reported a bill, giving to petitioner the right to enter and locate, in lieu of said tract, a quarter section of any of the unappropriated land in said Territory.

23D CONGRESS.] No. 1254. [1ST SESSION.

INQUIRIES INTO ALLEGED FRAUDS IN THE PUBLIC SALES OF THE LANDS OF THE UNITED STATES.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE JUNE 20, 1834.

Mr. POINDEXTER, from the Committee on Public Lands, who were instructed by resolutions of the Senate, of the 5th of March last, to make various inquiries in relation to alleged frauds committed at the public sales of the lands of the United States, with the assistance of the land officers, reported, in part, depositions of several persons in relation thereto; and Ordered, That they be printed.

Letter of instructions.

WASHINGTON CITY, April 2, 1834.

DEAR SIR: Enclosed you will receive a commission authorizing you to take depositions in relation to frauds in the sales of the public lands, if any shall have been committed in any district in the State coming within your knowledge, and the conduct of the officers authorized by law to superintend these sales.

I transmit to you, also, sundry resolutions passed by the Senate instructing the Committee on Public Lands to investigate these matters, with power to send for persons and papers, and take depositions in cases where the witnesses reside at a distance, and their personal attention cannot be had before the committee. These resolutions will direct your attention, generally, to the objects concerning which the Senate desire to obtain evidence; but it may be useful to incorporate more particularly a specification of some points on which it may be in your power to procure and forward to the committee satisfactory testimony, premising, however, that great reliance is placed on your own judgment and information touching the execution of the duty confided to you.

1st. We desire to obtain evidence as to the conduct of registers and receivers generally in the disposal of the public lands at public or private sale.

Have they demanded of the purchaser fees or compensation for the performance of their official duties, not authorized by law?

Have they accepted a bonus in money, or in the form of interest, for securing particular tracts of land to such purchasers as would comply with the terms prescribed to them in this respect?

Have they sold public lands at any time otherwise than for ready money; and, if so, have they taken the promissory note of the purchaser, payable at a distant day, for the purchase money, and a separate note for interest in their own names, and for their own benefit?

Have they marked any part of the public lands laid down on the map of survey, "sold," or in any other manner which designated the land as entered, when in fact the land so marked had not been actually sold or entered?

Have they at any time been interested with speculators or others who became the purchasers of the public lands, so marked, or shared with them the profits arising out of such purchases?

On this point, if you cannot obtain clear and direct testimony, it would be desirable to resort to strong circumstantial evidence, tending to show any connection founded on interested motives between the speculators or other purchasers and the officers.

2d. Have combinations of speculators, at any public sale of lands, united for the purpose of driving other purchasers out of the market, and deterring poor men from bidding for the lands on which they resided, or other lands which they might desire to purchase for actual settlement and cultivation, and thereby taking into their own hands the control of the sales for their own benefit, and purchased all the valuable lands at the minimum price of the government?

Have these speculators, after the public sales were closed, offered the lands so purchased by them for sale at augmented prices; and have these lands been purchased by persons attending the sales at the prices put on them by the speculators or their agents; and, if so, what price per acre, estimating the highest and lowest qualities, did they receive for the lands so purchased?

Have these companies, or any of them, large bodies of land now in the market which they fraudulently purchased at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre; and, if so, what amount of lands, according to the best estimate which may be made, yet remains undisposed of, and what is the price at which it is limited, including lands of the best quality, and those of an inferior quality?

What would be a reasonable estimate of the loss sustained by the government, at any public sale of lands within your district, in consequence of combinations of companies to purchase them at the minimum price?

Were the registers and receivers attending any such sale informed, or had knowledge, of the existence of such combinations or companies, and their object; and did they aid them in their fraudulent purpose, or did they, having such knowledge, interpose in their official character, or otherwise, to prevent the accomplishment of the purposes for which they had combined?

Have the registers and receivers manifested favoritism in the sale of the public lands, at private sale, where two or more persons made application to purchase or enter any particular tract of land; and, if so, what were the circumstances under which their partiality was so manifested?

Have the receivers, or any of them, of the public moneys, been at any time detected in speculating on the funds paid into their offices, by selling at a premium bank notes of the Bank of the United States, or other current bank paper, for bank notes not current at par, but which were made receivable for public lands, and then depositing these uncurrent bank notes in the deposit bank selected by the Secretary of the Treasury in lieu of the current notes thus sold at a premium?

Where companies or combinations of speculators in public lands may be known to you, it will be important, as far as practicable, to ascertain and certify their names, and the name or names of their agents, and also the State in which the company may have been formed.

These interrogatories may, and no doubt do, fall far short of covering all the fraudulent practices of many officers authorized to superintend the sales of the public lands. I therefore wish you distinctly to understand that they are not intended to limit the scope of your investigation, but that you will extend your inquiries, and take testimony on all subjects which you may deem essential to the public interest, or the development of illegal or fraudulent practices at any land office within your district or State.

The committee rely confidently on your patriotic exertions in carrying into effect the investigations which they are instructed to make by the Senate. You will receive a suitable compensation for your services when they shall be completed, and the witnesses who may attend to give their evidence will be allowed the usual mileage and daily pay which is given in the highest court of law within your State.

Before taking the testimony of any witness, you will make out such interrogatories as you may deem proper to draw from the witness all that he may know on the points to which you may desire his testimony.

If, in making these interrogatories, you deem it necessary to employ counsel to assist you by legal advice, you are authorized to do so, and such counsel will be paid a reasonable fee for his services on your certificate.

It is not expected that you are to give notice to any one of the time and place which you may appoint to take depositions; nor will any person be permitted, either as principal or counsel, to interfere with you in the performance of your duty; but you may, at your option, furnish any officer who may reside within convenient distance with a copy of any deposition which may implicate his official conduct: this, however, is submitted entirely to your own discretion. In all cases where a witness may be examined who is not generally known, you will take care to forward satisfactory testimony of his character for truth and veracity. You will cause the depositions to be certified by the judge or justice of the peace before whom they are taken, with the attestation of the clerk of the court, under seal, that such judge or justice is duly appointed and qualified according to the constitution and laws of the State.

I have the honor to be, your obedient servant,

GEORGE POINDEXTER,
Chairman of the Committee on Public Lands in Senate United States.
Per BENJAMIN P. SMITH, Clerk to Committee.

IN SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES, March 3, 1834.

Mr. POINDEXTER offered for consideration the following resolutions:

1. Resolved, That the Committee on the Public Lands be instructed to inquire into the circumstances attending the recent sales of the public lands in the States of Mississippi and Alabama; and whether the proclamations of the President of the United States, causing the public lands in the districts of country acquired from the Choctaw tribe of Indians by the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek, and from the Creek tribe of Indians in Alabama, to be offered at public sale, were issued and promulgated a reasonable length of time prior to the day on which said sales were directed to be commenced in each of said districts, to give proper notice to the people of the United States of the days appointed for said sales; and, also, into the causes why the usual public notice was not given.

2. Resolved, That the same committee inquire whether any fraudulent practices, to the injury of the public interests, took place at said sales by reason of combinations of companies or individuals interdicting, or unfavorable to, a fair competition between bidders for the public lands offered for sale in said districts; and, if so, whether the officers superintending said sales had knowledge of, or participated in, such fraudulent practices or combinations.

3. Resolved, That the said committee be instructed to inquire whether the registers of the land offices, and the receivers of public moneys, at any of the land offices of the United States, or either of them, have, in violation of law and of their official duties, demanded or accepted a bonus or premium from any purchaser or purchasers of the public lands at public or private sale, for the benefit of such officer or officers, as a condition on which such purchaser or purchasers should be allowed to enter or purchase any tract or tracts of land offered for sale by the United States; and, also, whether any register or receiver, as aforesaid, has been guilty of fraud or partiality in the sales of the public lands, by adopting rules and regulations, in their respective offices, inconsistent with the laws of the United States.

4. Resolved, That the said committee inquire whether the public lands, at any land office in the United States, have been sold otherwise than for cash; and whether any register or receiver in said States has, at any time, taken in payment the promissory note of any purchaser or purchasers bearing an interest to accrue to the benefit of such register or receiver.

5. Resolved, That in prosecution of said inquiries the said committee have power to send for persons and papers, to take depositions, and to examine witnesses before them, on oath, touching the matters aforesaid.

IN SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES, March 5, 1834.

Resolved, That, in the prosecution of their inquiries, the Committee on Public Lands have power to send for persons and papers, to take depositions, and to examine witnesses before them, on oath, touching the matters aforesaid.

The committee consists of Messrs. Poindexter, Moore, Prentiss, McKean, and Clay.

Attest: WALTER LOWRIE, Secretary.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Murray County, Mississippi, greeting:

Know ye, that the Committee of the Senate of the United States on Public Lands, reposing entire confidence in your prudence and fidelity, have appointed you, and by these presents do give you full power and authority diligently to examine all such witness or witnesses as you may think proper, upon interrogatories to be exhibited by you, touching the perpetration of any frauds in the sales of the public lands of the United States, if any shall have been committed, in any district in the State of Mississippi; and, also, touching the conduct of any officer or officers of the United States charged or authorized by law with the conduct, direction, management, or superintendence of said sales. We therefore authorize and empower you, first having yourself taken an oath before some judge or magistrate authorized by law to administer an oath, that you will well, fully, and faithfully, execute this commission, and reduce to writing the deposition of such witness or witnesses as you may examine as aforesaid; and cause to be administered to such witness or witnesses, respectively, an oath that they will true, full, and perfect answers make to all and singular the said interrogatories, and reduce the answer of the said witness or witnesses, respectively, to writing; and, when you shall have completed the same, to transmit the same, under your hand and seal, carefully closed up, to the chairman of the Committee on Public Lands of the Senate of the United States.

By order of the Committee on Public Lands of the Senate of the United States, this fourth day of April, 1834.

_____, Chairman of the Committee on Public Lands, Senate of the United States.

THE STATE OF OHIO, Muskingum County, ss:

Deposition of Phineas Tomlinson, of Adams township, in said county, (of lawful age,) having been first duly sworn, according to law; that he would true, full, and perfect answers make to all and singular the interrogatories that may be proposed to him touching the public service.

The following interrogatories were severally proposed to the witness, (by John Burwell:)

First interrogatory. Do you know whether any register or receiver of public moneys at the land offices of the United States, or either of them, have been guilty of fraud or partiality in the sales of public lands, by adopting rules and regulations in their respective offices inconsistent with the laws of the United States?

Answer. I cannot make a satisfactory answer to the question.

Second interrogatory. Have you known any of the public lands, at any of the land offices belonging to the United States, to be sold otherwise than for cash in ready money?

Answer. I went to Zanesville, and to the register's office, and asked Thomas Flood, the register, if the west half of the northeast quarter of section number twenty-two, of township three, in range six, military, was entered? The said register opened the plat book, and said it was not entered. I then asked the said Flood if there was such a man as Mr. Gilbert? He pointed to a man sitting by the fire in the said register's office, and said "there he is," and at the same time asked me if there was any improvement on the land? I answered him no. I then addressed myself to Mr. Gilbert, and asked him if he did not enter land, and wait on them for the pay? also asked him if he would do it for me, and asked him what he would take and enter the tract described as aforesaid, and wait with me one year? Mr. Gilbert said he would take twenty dollars, and take my notes, one payable in three months, for twenty-five dollars, and one for ninety-five dollars, payable in one year. I gave the two several notes as proposed by said Gilbert, and he went to the plat book, and wrote my name on the said tract upon the register's plat book in the said office. I paid off the twenty-five dollar note referred to, which reads in the words and figures following: "$25. Zanesville, 29th February, 1832. On the 1st day of April, 1832, for value received, I promise to pay Charles C. Gilbert, or order, twenty-five dollars.

"PHINEAS TOMLINSON."

On the day, and at the time, I paid this note, the said Gilbert wrote on the back of said note the following words and figures: "Paid on the within, 3d April, 1832," and immediately gave up the said note to me. On the fifteenth day of March, eighteen hundred and thirty-three, I paid off, took up, and destroyed, the ninety-five dollar note referred to. When I had so paid off my last note as aforesaid, I asked the said Gilbert where I should find my certificate? He said "In an hour or two you will find your certificate at Flood's office." I accordingly called at the register's office, and asked a young man who was clerking in the said register's office for the certificate. The young man took from the mantel-shelf, and handed to me, the certificate, in the words and figures following: "No. 5,606. Receiver's office, Zanesville, 15th March, 1833. Received of Phineas Tomlinson, of Muskingum county, Ohio, the sum of one hundred dollars, being in full for the west half of the northeast quarter of section No. 22, township No. 3, of range No. 6, military, containing 80 acres, at the rate of $1.25 per acre, $100.

(Duplicate.) "B. VAN HORNE, Receiver."

Third interrogatory. Was Thomas Flood, the register, present, during the time that the contract was made between yourself and Mr. Gilbert, when the notes were given, and when the plat was so marked as aforesaid? and were these things all done in the register's office, and in the presence of the said register?

Answer. It was all done in the register's office, and in the presence of the said Flood, register, excepting the writing and the signing of the notes for which we went into Mr. Gilbert's office. I am inclined to say that the notes were written at a desk in the register's office, where said Gilbert went to, and got some paper; but I am satisfied they were signed in Gilbert's office, which was adjoining and next door to the register's office; and was all done on the said 29th day of February, 1832.

PHINEAS TOMLINSON.

JOSEPH STIERS, Justice of the Peace.

Deposition of Frederick Yerean, of Salem township, in said county of Muskingum, (of lawful age,) and having been first duly sworn, according to law, that he should true, full, and perfect answers make to all and singular the interrogatories that may be proposed to him touching the public service.

The following interrogatories were proposed to the said witness (by John Burwell):

First interrogatory. Do you know whether any registers or receivers of public moneys at any of the land offices of the United States have been guilty of fraud or partiality in the sales of public lands, by adopting rules and regulations, in their respective offices, inconsistent with the laws of the United States? or have you known any of the public lands, at any land office in the United States, to be sold otherwise than for cash in ready money? If so, state what you know in relation to the subject.

Answer. I am unacquainted at any of those offices, excepting the register's office at Zanesville. On or about the last of September, eighteen hundred and thirty-one, I went to the register's office at Zanesville, and asked Thomas Flood, the register, if the west half of the southeast quarter of section number seven, in township number two, of range six, of the unappropriated lands in the military district, was entered? The said register went and looked on the plat, and said it was not entered. I then asked the said Flood what he would take and secure that piece of land for me eighteen months, and at the same time stated to the said Flood that I would pay him the money within that time. Charles C. Gilbert, being present at this time in the said office, Flood pointed me to Gilbert, and made said bargain with Gilbert. I then turned to Gilbert, and asked him what he would take to enter the land, and wait with me the eighteen months? Said Gilbert observed, that, "if I wait with you eighteen months, I must have thirty dollars." I then offered Mr. Gilbert two promissory notes of hand which I, at that time, held against my brother Jacob Yerean, in pledge to secure the payment of the purchase money. He took those two notes of fifty dollars each, making one hundred dollars, and gave me his receipt for those notes, to show that they were so left with him in pledge. Flood then marked the tract mine on the plat, and asked me if there was any person living on the land? I told him there was nobody on it; there was no improvement on it. A short time before the eighteen months was up, I paid to the said Gilbert ninety dollars, and lifted the two fifty dollar notes that I so pledged as aforesaid, and gave my own promissory note of hand for the balance of forty dollars, in words and figures following: "For value received, I promise to pay to Charles C. Gilbert, or order, forty dollars on or before the 8th of April next.

"Attest: CHARLES STETSON.
"July 5, 1853."

On the 30th day of April, 1833, I paid to the said Gilbert, (on the note of which the foregoing is a copy,) thirty dollars, which he endorsed in words and figures following, (on the back of said note): "Received on the within $30, (thirty dollars,) 30th April, 1833;" leaving ten dollars due on the forty dollar note which I had given to said Gilbert, hereinbefore copied. At the time I paid Gilbert the ninety dollars, and gave him the forty dollar note, Gilbert went down street from the register's office, and got a paper, and gave it to me, containing the words and figures following: "No. 5,427. Receiver's office, Zanesville, 5th July, 1833. Received of Frederick Yerean, of Muskingum county, Ohio, the sum of one hundred dollars, being in full for the west half of the southeast quarter of section No. 7, township No. 2, of range 6, military, containing 80 acres, at the rate of $1.25 per acre. $100.

(Duplicate.) "B. VAN HORNE, Receiver."

Some time in November, 1833, I went to Zanesville to pay the balance of ten dollars due on the forty dollar note referred to, and, being informed that Gilbert had not paid for the land until the day that I paid to him the ninety dollars, and that he had not entered the land until that day, and also informed that, notwithstanding my contract with Gilbert (according to the advice of the register,) and the marking of the plat as aforesaid, that the land had remained in jeopardy, liable to entry by others, while I supposed it was secure to me, I stated to said Gilbert that he had left my land in a situation in danger of losing it, and that I understood that he had not entered my land until I paid to him the ninety dollars; and as I was a poor man, and had paid thirty dollars on the note, and as he had got twenty dollars from me more than the price of the land, he ought not to take any more, and give me up the note without paying the ten dollars. Gilbert turned round, and went into the house, (the Zanesville banking house,) and said, come into the house. I went into the house after him, in company with Henry Wheeler; after some conversation between Mr. Gilbert and Mr. Wheeler on the subject, Gilbert gave the note to me without the ten dollars.

Second interrogatory. Did you have any other conversation with the register on the subject of the land referred to, other than you have herein stated? If so, relate such conversation.

Answer. In the fore part of September, 1831, and before the contract herein referred to was made, I went to the register's office to see about getting the said land. Squire Flood told me then, on making application to him to secure the land at that time, and when I informed him that I had not the money then, and that I had a place to sell, I would try and sell it, and pay the money sooner than the eighteen months. He then said, "we would rather have part of the money down. Go and try and sell your place, and get the money if you can; and, if you cannot, then come, and we will fix it for you."

Third interrogatory. Was the said Gilbert present in the register's office at this time also? and was there any person present at either of those conversations, except Flood, Gilbert, and yourself?

Answer. The said Gilbert was present at both conversations; and no person present in the office except the register, Gilbert, and myself, at the time of either conversation alluded to.

Fourth interrogatory. What did you understand when the register said to you, "we will fix it for you?" Please state what your understanding was at the time he so expressed himself to you.

Answer. I understood that it signified they were both concerned;—that they both had the power of doing what I wanted them to do for me.

Deposition of Henry Wheeler, of Salem township, in said county of Muskingum, (of lawful age,) who, having been first duly sworn according to law that he would true, full, and perfect answers make to all and singular the interrogatories that may be proposed to him touching the public service—

The following interrogatories were proposed to the witness, (by John Burwell:)

First interrogatory. Have you been present, and an attentive observer of all and singular the interrogatories proposed to, and the answers made by Frederick Yerean, in the foregoing deposition?

Answer. I have.

Second interrogatory. Have you any recollection of what the conversation was between yourself, Charles C. Gilbert, and said Yerean, as alluded to in the foregoing deposition: and how Yerean came to the understanding of the situation in which his land remained from September, 1831, until the same was entered on the 5th of February, 1833? If you can so state, relate the same.

Answer. Yerean had previously informed me concerning the contract, as stated in his deposition at the time referred to: when Yerean got up the forty dollar note, he had showed to me the receiver's receipt, dated on the 5th day of February, 1833. I then discovered the situation in which the business had stood, and so informed Yerean previous to the conversation with Gilbert. In the Zanesville banking house, as alluded to by Yerean, I stated to Gilbert that I thought that he was well paid with twenty dollars for his trouble for staying the land, for it appeared that he had not paid for the land until he had received the ninety dollars from Yerean. Gilbert said, "If I stayed the land, I stayed it at my own risk." I then stated to him that Mr. Yerean was a hard laboring man, and that he ought to give up the note. Gilbert replied, "I have money enough;" he then handed the note alluded to, to Yerean, saying, "here, take the note."

Third interrogatory. Are you acquainted with the character of the said Yerean, and what is his standing for truth and veracity?

Answer. I have been acquainted with him several years. I should say that full credit is due to his statements.

Fourth interrogatory. Are you acquainted with Phineas Tomlinson, whose deposition has also been here taken in your presence? If so, state what character he bears for truth and veracity.

Answer. I have not so much acquaintance with him; I should not doubt his veracity. I have had dealings with him; have found him honorable in his dealings, and have never heard anything against him.

THE STATE OF OHIO, Muskingum County, ss:

Depositions taken under the resolutions of the Senate of the United States, of the 3d and 5th of March, 1834, in behalf of the Committee on Public Lands, May 21, 1834.

Witnesses sworn before Robert Aikens, Esq., a justice of Richhill township, in said county, that they, and each of them, would true, full, and perfect answers make to all and singular the interrogatories that may be proposed to them.

The following were severally proposed (by John Burwell:)

FIRST.

Evan Ogan, having been first duly sworn, as aforesaid, appeared and testified.

First interrogatory. Do you know anything in relation to the sale of the west half of the southwest quarter of section number twenty-one, of township number nine, in range number ten, which said tract was sold by Thomas Flood, register of the land office at Zanesville, on the 17th day of February, 1831, to John Cummins? If so, state what you do know in relation thereto.

Answer. The first of my knowledge on the subject of the sale referred to was derived from Bernard Van Horne's (receiver,) receipt in the hands of Cummins, dated on the 17th of February, 1831, showing that Cummins had entered and paid for the land in question on that day, (17th February, 1831;) and having understood that there was some dispute between the said Cummins and William C. Bay in regard to the title or possession to the said land, and being at Zanesville on business some time afterwards, (perhaps about the first of December, 1831,) I called at the office of the said Thomas Flood, register, and inquired of him whether Cummins had purchased the said land according to law? Flood said to me, "Cummins has purchased the land according to law, and paid every cent of the money down for it." And further, stated that Cummins had a good right for the land, and that it could not be taken from him. I then stated that Bay claimed the land by pre-emption right, and asked whether there was any such right? to which Charles C. Gilbert answered there was, and stated that Bay had not settled on the land in time to obtain that right. Flood observed, "Poh! he has no right, nor never can get any right." And further I know not.

EVAN OGAN.

SECONDLY.

John Reed, having been duly sworn as aforesaid, appeared and testified.

First interrogatory. Do you know anything in relation to the sale and purchase of the land referred to in the foregoing deposition? Do you know anything in relation to the affidavit said to have been sworn to and subscribed by John Cummins, before Thomas Flood, (register of the land office at Zanesville,) acting as a justice of the peace, and filed at the receiver's office at Zanesville, wherein the said Cummins is represented to have sworn that he wished to apply a certain military bounty land scrip in payment for the land in question; and, also, that there was no person residing on the land at the time he made the entry on the 17th day of February, 1831? If so, state what you do know in relation to the subject.

Answer. I was not present at the time of the sale and purchase, neither did I ever see the paper referred to. In the spring of 1831, I understood by a report that was then circulating in the neighborhood, that the said John Cummins had entered the west half of the southwest quarter of section twenty-one, of township number nine, in range number ten, on which William C. Bay then lived; and that, in making the said entry, he had sworn that there was no person then residing on the land, and, also, that Bay intended to have Cummins prosecuted for perjury. I inquired of Cummins as to the truth of the report, which he denied. A short time after I heard the report I went to Zanesville, and, from my knowledge of the good character and standing of Cummins, I was induced to call on Thomas Flood, register of the land office at Zanesville, and inquired of him concerning the entry and swearing, by Cummins, referred to. Flood stated to me, in reply, that Cummins had entered the land in question, according to law, and that he had paid his money for it. He also stated that Cummins had told him the truth concerning the residence by Bay on the land, and stated to me that Cummins was not sworn at the time of making the entry, as was reported; and further stated that Bay was liable to a prosecution for living on the land. I inquired of Flood how Cummins could get possession of the land? He stated that Cummins must go and give Bay notice to leave the premises; and, if he did not go, get the sheriff and throw him out; or get some persons to go with him, and tell Bay to take out his goods and his children, and if he did not do it, then take the house down quietly, and be careful and not hurt his goods or his children, and move it away to some other place, and set fire to it and burn it up, or do anything else with it he pleased.

Second interrogatory. At what time did Thomas Flood, the register, make the foregoing statement to you, in which he stated that the said Cummins "was not sworn at the time of making the entry, as was reported" to have been the case?

Answer. Some time in the summer of 1831.

Third interrogatory. Where were you and Mr. Flood when he made this statement to you?

Answer. In his (the register's) office at Zanesville.

JOHN REED.

THIRDLY.

Lee Ogan, having been first duly sworn as aforesaid, appeared and testified.

First interrogatory. Do you know of anything in relation to the sale or purchase, or affidavit referred to in the foregoing depositions of Evan Ogan and John Reed, which have been taken in your presence and hearing? If so, state what you know in relation thereto.

Answer. In April or May, 1832, I called at the register's office in Zanesville, and asked Thomas Flood, the register, if the patent had come on for the land in question. He said no. I then asked him if William C. Bay had been there on that day. Flood replied, "He has;" and stated that Bay had just gone away. I then asked the said register if Bay had any right to the land referred to. Flood said he had not, neither could he get any. I then stated to Flood that Bay had stated that Cummins had sworn a false oath concerning the land when he entered it; and therefore he could not get the land. Flood then said: "It is not true; he was not sworn anything about the land."

Second interrogatory. Did the said Thomas Flood say anything to you in relation to what Cummins should do in order to get possession of the said land? If so, state what he said on that subject.

Answer. He did not tell me anything that Cummins should do. He did tell me to tell my father to go and give Bay ten days' notice, and, if he did not go out in that time, to take some hands with him, and pull the house down, and take care not to hurt his children, or his goods, and to move the house to some other place and burn it up; and stated that Bay was a cursed fool; that he wished he would not bother him any more about it. And further I know not.

LEE OGAN.

FOURTHLY.

May 22, 1834.

Charles P. Moore, who, having been first duly sworn according to law to answer as aforesaid, testified to the following facts:

First interrogatory. Do you know anything in relation to an affidavit said to have been signed by John Cummins, and by him sworn to (before Thomas Flood, register of the land office at Zanesville, acting as a justice of the peace,) bearing date on the 17th day of February, 1831, at the time he applied for, and entered the west half of the southwest quarter of section twenty-one, of township number nine, of range number ten? If so, state all you know in relation to the same, and what information you have, and from what source you derived the same.

Answer. My first knowledge in relation to the affidavit was derived from a copy of that paper in the hands of William C. Bay. I afterwards (say a week or ten days) went to Zanesville at the request of, and in company with, the said Cummins, to see if there was such an instrument in existence (which Cummins did not believe to be the case). I went with Cummins to the receiver's office (on or about the middle of April, 1831,) and inquired of Bernard Van Horne, the receiver, if such an affidavit was on file in his office. Mr. Van Horne produced the paper purporting to be an affidavit, of which I had seen a copy in the hands of Bay, as above stated. Cummins stated to me and Mr. Van Horne that he had never been sworn to any such thing.

Second interrogatory. Did you, on the same day that you went with Cummins to the receiver's office, also accompany him to the register's office? If so, state what took place at the office of Thomas Flood, the register, in relation to the affidavit in question.

Answer. I went with Cummins first to the register's office, at which place Cummins inquired of George H. Flood for his father, the register. George stated to Cummins that his father was gone east of the mountains. Cummins then stated to the said George H. Flood that William C. Bay was circulating a report in the neighborhood that he (Cummins) had taken a false oath at the time he entered the land referred to, by swearing that there was no person living on it at the time the entry was made; and further stated that he had told them at the time that he entered the land that there was a small improvement on it, and that Bay was living on the land. The said George H. Flood said to Cummins, "You never was sworn in this office." I then asked the said George to give from under his hand that Cummins had never been sworn as had been stated, that he might have something to show when he went home to counteract the report in circulation. To which he observed, "I know my own business;" and stated to Cummins that he would give him something to show that would counteract the report. He then wrote something, and gave to Cummins, and, as I suppose, a certificate to show that Cummins had not been sworn, and which Cummins believed to be the case. He took the paper from Flood, and put it into his pocket, and we left the office.

Third interrogatory. Did Cummins ask George H. Flood to give him such a certificate as should counteract the report put in circulation by Bay; or did Flood offer to do so upon your suggestion?

Answer. Cummins, before and after I made the suggestion, asked Flood to give him such an instrument.

Fourth interrogatory. Did you read the paper that you say George H. Flood wrote and gave to Cummins, as stated by you? If so, what was the purport of that paper or instrument? What date did it bear? Was it signed by the said George? Please to state, as near as you can, the date, the substance, and the signature.

Answer. I am under the impression that the date was about the middle of April, 1831. I am not positive whether he signed his own name or that of his father, the register; I was by him at the table when he wrote the instrument, but did not read it at the time. A few days (not many) after we went home, Cummins came to me to get me to read the paper, at which time I discovered that it did not contain what the said George H. Flood had promised to give. I cannot, without seeing the paper, state its contents satisfactorily.

Fifth interrogatory. Could you at this time identify that paper, or, on hearing one read, could you detect a fraudulent one if presented to you for the same?

Answer. I think I should know the paper if I was to see it. I think from the size of the paper and the writing I should recognize it; or, if I should hear it read, I could tell whether it contained the same substance.

Sixth interrogatory. Is this paper which I hold up the paper referred to, that George H. Flood gave to Cummins? If not, state what your objections are.

Answer. I know that is not the same paper; it was not half as big as that.

Seventh interrogatory. If I hand you the paper which I hold up, or if I read it, will you, or can you, detect any, if any variation from the substance of the paper given by Flood to Cummins?

Answer. You may go on to read; I will try. I think, it seems to me, I can tell the substance.

Eighth interrogatory. Is the paper that I have just read in your hearing the same in substance as the one given by Flood to Cummins?

Answer. The first part of the paper that you have just read, is in substance a paper (or a copy of a paper) given on the same day by Charles C. Gilbert to Cummins, to direct him how to get possession of the land; and the substance of the latter part, is the same as the one given by George H. Flood to Cummins on the same day.

Ninth interrogatory. Do you recognize the handwriting of this paper that I have just read in your hearing, and which is now handed to you, and of which the following is a copy? And is the same here correctly copied?

"To Ford Barnes and Wm. Sinclair, two justices of the peace in and for the county of Guernsey, State of Ohio:

"John Cummins respectfully represents and complains, that William C. Bay is in possession of the west half of the southwest quarter of section twenty-one, township nine, range ten, in said county, and unlawfully detains the same from him, the said John Cummins, who has purchased the same from the United States; and he requests that a jury may be summoned to try the right to the said tract of land, under the provisions of the act entitled 'An act against forcible entry and detainer,' 20th April, 1831."

"LAND OFFICE, Zanesville, Ohio, April 20, 1831.

"I hereby certify that I did not at any time give to William C. Bay, of Guernsey county, Ohio, any instrument of writing purporting to be a statement of any entry made by John Cummins, or for any other purpose whatever.

"I also certify that said Bay has no claims to the tract entered by Cummins, either by pre-emption right or otherwise.

"GEORGE H. FLOOD, Acting Register."

Answer. The handwriting I know nothing about; I do not think it is Gilbert's, and George H. Flood's I know it is not. The paper is corectly copied, word for word, and figure. I am satisfied this paper that I hold, of which the foregoing is a copy, must be the copy of the two papers given on the same day, in my presence, to Cummins, one by Charles C. Gilbert, and the other by George H. Flood; and had the paper here copied, and which I hold in my hand, been read in my hearing, without my seeing it, I should have said it was the two original papers.

Tenth interrogatory. What did George H. Flood say to Cummins when he gave to him the paper, of which the foregoing is the copy, and where were they at the time?

Answer. They were in the register's office; and when George H. Flood gave to Cummins the paper (or certificate), he said to him: "Now go home, and tell them (Bay and others that talked about the copy that he had) to kiss your arse, you have got the land."

Eleventh interrogatory. Is the said John Cummins not an illiterate man? Can he read or write, and was not this the inducement to him to get you to go with him to see into the business for him?

Answer. He can neither read nor write, and such was his reasons for my going with him. He persisted in protesting against his having ever given the affidavit, and remarked when we left the register's office, "now you see that I was not sworn."

Twelfth interrogatory. Are you acquainted with the said Cummins; and what is his general character for truth and veracity, or otherwise? What is his character in every respect? State what you know of him, or concerning him, and what you have heard or seen against him.

Answer. I have been acquainted with the said John Cummins, living most of the time within a mile of him, for five years; he is said to have some Indian blood, and the rest white blood. I should say from his appearance that he is one-eighth Indian and seven-eighths white. I have been acquainted with half, one-quarter, and one-eighth blooded Indians, and should judge Cummins to be of the latter class, and he is said to be such. As to his general character for truth and veracity, I have no reason to doubt it; I have never heard anything against him as to truth or honesty, to his prejudice, except the affidavit at the time that report first came into circulation; and, on that point, he has given satisfactory evidence of his innocence. And further I know not.

CHARLES P. MOORE.

FIFTHLY.

William C. Bay, having been duly sworn according to law as aforesaid, appeared and testified:

First interrogatory. Do you know anything in relation to the pretended affidavit said to have been given by John Cummins at the time he entered the land on which you now reside? If so, state what you know on the subject, and what Thomas Flood said to you (if anything) on the subject of Cummins' swearing to that instrument?

Answer. After I came to hear that Cummins had entered the lands spoken of, I went to the receiver's office at Zanesville, and General Van Horne, the father of the receiver, (to whom I applied in the absence of the receiver,) gave to me a copy of the affidavit, so called, in the following words and figures, to wit:

"REGISTER'S OFFICE, Zanesville, Ohio, February 17, 1831.

"I, John Cummins, of Guernsey, being desirous of locating the W. ½, S. W. of section No. 21, township No. 9, range No. 10, in the district of land subject to sale at Zanesville, Ohio, by applying in payment thereof a certain certificate of military land scrip, do solemnly swear that, from my own knowledge of the fact, after actual inspection of the said tract of land on or about the 1*st of the present month*, there was not at that time any person or persons residing thereon, and that I do truly believe that there is no person residing thereon at this present time, or has claims of pre-emption thereto, under the act of the 29th May, 1830.

"THOS. FLOOD, J. P." [SEAL.]

When I procured the paper from Mr. Van Horne, of which the foregoing is a copy, I went to the register's office, and inquired of Thomas Flood concerning the entry and the affidavit. Flood stated that Cummins had entered the land, and stated that "he was not sworn anything concerning it." I stated that I had a copy of the affidavit; Flood then walked away from me, saying, "you know nothing about it; he was not sworn; he (meaning Cummins) will put you off of the land." I followed him out of the office to his own door where he resided, and kept talking to him concerning my residence on the land, the entry and the affidavit of Cummins. Flood was mad—cursed me pretty smart. When he went into his house, I left him, and came away.

Second interrogatory. How often did Flood tell you that Cummins was not sworn concerning the entry referred to? State how many times on that day.

Answer. On the day that I have referred to, he stated to me three (or four) times that Cummins was not sworn concerning the land.

Third interrogatory. How long have you been acquainted with John Cummins? What is his character? State what you know of him, or concerning his character for truth and veracity, or otherwise, as far as you know or have heard concerning the man.

Answer. I have known the said Cummins for twelve years. He is an honest, ignorant man, without education. I have heard him testify before Ford Barnes, a justice of the peace; one of the parties objected to his testimony on the grounds that he was not a white man. When the proof was adduced, they made him out one-eighth part Indian, by proving that his mother was one-quarter Indian; the rest, with his father, was proven to be white, making Cummins seven-eighths part white, and one-eighth part Indian: his testimony was admitted. I never heard his truth and veracity suspected until the report of the pretended affidavit; and his innocence in that respect has been satisfactorily proven to all the neighborhood and elsewhere, so far as I have any knowledge of the circumstances concerning the same.

Fourth interrogatory. Did Thomas Flood, the register, offer you an entry of that same piece of land, if you would give him a horse, saddle, and bridle? And did Charles C. Gilbert go with you, at Flood's suggestion, and look at the horse?

Answer. Flood did offer to let me enter the same land, and run all risk, for the horse, saddle, and bridle; and Gilbert did go and look at the horse. I advised with Levi Lewis, and did not give the horse.

Fifth interrogatory. When did Flood tell you that Cummins was not sworn; and when did he offer to grant you the entry for the horse?

Answer. The time that I called on Flood, as stated, with the copy of the affidavit, as it is called, and at which time he said Cummins was not sworn, was some time in the latter part of March, 1831, and shortly after Cummins had made his entry of the land. As near as I can now recollect, the time was about the 1st of December, 1831, when he offered me the grant, to make the entry, and to run the risk, and guaranty the land to me.

WILLIAM C. BAY.

SIXTHLY.

John Cummins, having been duly sworn according to law as aforesaid, appeared and testified:

First interrogatory. Did you, on the 17th day of February, 1831, apply to enter the west half of the southwest quarter of section twenty-one, of township nine, of range ten, with scrip? And did you state that there was no person living on the said land at the time? And did you give an affidavit of that fact?

Answer. I did not apply to enter the said land with scrip. I knew nothing about scrip at the time. I gave no affidavit. I knew nothing of an affidavit at the time. Neither scrip or affidavit was at the time mentioned to me. The first that I ever heard of the affidavit or scrip, and the first that I knew of either, was after Mr. Bay brought the copy into the settlement. I applied to Thomas Flood, the register at Zanesville, to enter the land. He inquired of me, and I told to him all about Bay's residence on the land; and Flood said I could have the land for the money I told him that I had the money. He asked for the money, and I gave it to him, and he told me to mark on a paper. I did make my mark, when he showed me to do so. He then gave me some papers, and sent me to the receiver's office. I went. The receiver gave me a paper which, as I understood, was my receipt for the pay for the land. I then went home, and heard no more about it until Bay got a copy of the pretended affidavit.

Answer. There are no papers excepting an affidavit such as are required of purchasers who pay with military land scrip. That affidavit is a printed form, filled up in the handwriting of George H. Flood, certified by Thomas Flood in his own handwriting, as a justice of the peace, and who was also at that time register of the land office.

Third interrogatory. Have you compared the copy of said affidavit as given by William C. Eighth interrogatory. Was the west half of the northwest quarter of section number eight, of township number seven, of range number four, (military,) entered on the 22d day of April, 1832, in the name of Michael Roger? If so, was the common and necessary affidavit filed? Was the said land entered with scrip?

Answer. It was; the payment was made in military land scrip, and the usual affidavit is on file.

Ninth interrogatory. Before whom was the said affidavit taken? In whose handwriting does it appear? Please state, if you can, and also permit me to take a copy of that instrument.

Answer. The affidavit is a printed form filled up in the handwriting of Charles C. Gilbert, and certified by Thomas Flood as a justice of the peace, and is in words and figures following, to wit:

REGISTER'S OFFICE, Zanesville, Ohio.

I, Michael Roger, of Tuscarawas county, Ohio, being desirous of locating the west half northwest quarter of section number eight, township number seven, range number four, (military,) in the Zanesville district, by applying in payment thereof a certain certificate of military land scrip, do solemnly swear that, from my own knowledge of the fact, after actual inspection of the said tract of land, on or about the 18th instant, that there was not, at that time, any person or persons residing thereon, and that I do truly believe that there is now no person residing thereon, or has claims of pre-emption thereto.

Tenth interrogatory. Was the east half of the northeast quarter of section number fourteen, of township number seven, of range four, (military,) entered on the 22d day of January, 1833, in the name of Joseph Caughemore; and if so, in what funds was the payment made?

Answer. It was so entered, and payment made in military bounty land scrip.

Eleventh interrogatory. Was there any part of section three, of township seven, in range four, (military,) entered on the 23d day of May, 1832, in the name of George Bellman? If so, what kind of funds were applied in payment thereof?

Answer. The northwest quarter of the southwest quarter of said section was so entered, and fifty-five dollars seventy-five cents of military land scrip was surrendered in payment.

Twelfth interrogatory. Was the east half of the southeast quarter of section number five, township seven, of range number four, (military,) at any time in the year 1832 entered in the name of Christian Berger? and if so, when?

Fifteenth interrogatory. Did Daniel Burt, jr., on the third day of October, 1833, enter the southeast quarter of the northwest quarter of section number sixteen, of township number one, of range three, (military?)

Answer. Yes.

Sixteenth interrogatory. Did John Robins, on the 31st day of August, 1831, enter in his own name the west half of the northeast quarter of section number two, of township number nine, of range number ten?

Answer. Yes.

Seventeenth interrogatory. Did the said Robins, on the same day, enter in the name and in behalf of Thomas Scott, the west half of the southwest quarter of section number twenty-three, of township number one, of range number three, (military?)

Answer. On referring to the blotter, (or original book of entries,) I find the name of Thomas Scott following that of John Robins as purchaser of that tract of land; but it appears to have been subsequently erased, and one hundred dollars, (the amount of the purchase money,) credited to Mr. Scott in my private day book, on the same day, as a deposit.

Eighteenth interrogatory. Was the same tract here referred to again entered in the name of said Thomas Scott on the 13th day of September, 1831?

Answer. It so appears on the books of my office.

Nineteenth interrogatory. Can you in any way account for this singular transaction? If so, please to state what you know in relation thereto, why the entry did not remain as first made.

Answer. I do not now recollect.

Twenty-first interrogatory. Was the northeast quarter of the southwest quarter of section number seventeen, of township number one, of range number three, (military,) on the 4th day of January, 1833, entered in the name of John Newland; and was the southeast quarter of the same quarter section entered on the 20th day of May, 1833, in the name of James Karr?

Answer. I presume they were not, as they were both entered and paid for in the usual way—one by John Robins, and the other by Thomas Scott.

The deposition of William B. Magruder, before the Committee on Public Lands of the Senate of the United States, under a resolution of the Senate relative to the public lands:

Question. Were you not an agent for the locating of Indian reservations in the Creek country, in the State of Alabama?

Answer. I went out as secretary to the commissioners for locating reservations of the Creek Indians according to the treaty with that tribe, and was afterwards appointed by the commissioners as a locating agent in Chambers county, in said State of Alabama.

Question. What was the condition of the locations of these reservations on the 17th December, 1833, being the date of the proclamation of the President for the sale of the public lands in the tract of country ceded to the United States by the Creek Indians? Were the locations completed and returned to the proper department prior to that day, or any time prior to the sale of said lands under the proclamation aforesaid?

Answer. On the 17th December the locating agents were actively engaged in performing their duties, and consequently the locations were not completed, and returns were not made; the only returns were made one week after the day appointed in the proclamation for the commencement of the sales to the register of the land office in Montgomery, in that district. This answer has reference to the Tallapoosa land district.

Question. What portion of the lands ceded by the Creek Indians would be covered by the reservations under the treaty, and what amount of these reservations were contained in the report made to the register of the land office in Montgomery?

Answer. I think there were more than half of the lands ceded covered by the reservations, and about one-half of the locations were returned to the register of the land office in Montgomery one week after the sales were ordered by the proclamation.

Question. Were the surveys of the lands ceded by the Creek Indians completed by the surveyors of the United States, and returns made to the proper offices prior to the President's proclamation for the sale of the ceded lands?

Answer. The surveys were completed, but the plats of the townships had not been returned to the land offices at which the sales were to take place, either at the date of the proclamation, or at the commencement of the sales, or at any time during the sales; consequently the sales were not completed.

Question. Had the people of the district information of the proclamation prior to the day appointed for the commencement of the sales, so as to enable the actual settlers to attend the sales and purchase?

Answer. The proclamation was not generally known, so far as I know or believe, in the district prior to the day of sale, and complaints were made by the people that they had not time to make arrangements for purchasing. I gave information to a number of settlers myself that the sales were ordered a few days before the day appointed for opening the sales, which they informed me was the first notice that they had of it.

Question. Had you, as a locating agent, information of the day of sale; and if so, how did you obtain it?

Answer. I had information of the day of sale, and I obtained it by a letter from one of the locating commissioners through a private conveyance.

Question. Did you obtain that information in time to attend the sales?

Answer. I could have done so, but did not attend the sales.

Question. Did the actual settlers in the Creek country attend the sales, so far as you know or believe?

Answer. They did not.

Question. Were not the sales attended by speculators from different parts of the country, so far as you know or believe?

Answer. They were.

Question. Have you any knowledge of a purchase or purchases made by a company of speculators at either of these sales? And if so, state what such purchase or purchases were, as far as your information extends. What price was paid to the United States for the lands so purchased, or any part of them; and what amount was subsequently obtained by any such company of speculators for the same lands?

Answer. I have no personal knowledge on this subject; it was generally understood throughout the country that companies of speculators did attend the sales, and that they purchased the greater portion of the lands sold, and particularly one tract of 640 acres, for the consideration of about eight hundred dollars, which they sold in the course of twenty-four hours afterwards, at public sale, for more than as many thousands as they had given hundreds.

Question. Do you know any other matter or thing in relation to the sales of the public lands in the tract of country ceded by the Creeks, or the conduct of the officers employed in such sales, which you deem material to the investigations before the committee?

Answer. I know nothing of my own knowledge that I have not already stated.

W. B. MAGRUDER.

WASHINGTON CITY, April 11, 1834.

The deposition of Edmund Row before the Committee on Public Lands of the Senate of the United States, under a resolution of the Senate relative to the public lands:

Question. Where do you reside, and what is your occupation?

Answer. I reside in Orange county, Virginia, and am by occupation a farmer.

Question. Have you ever attended any public sale of the public lands? If so, state what place, and what State, and at what time.

Answer. In 1833, from the 23d to the 29th of October, I attended at Chochuma land office, in the State of Mississippi, the sale of the public lands which had been ceded by the Choctaw tribe of Indians to the United States.

Question. Were the surveys of the lands ceded by the Choctaw Indians completed by the surveyors of the United States, and returns made by the proper officers, prior to the date of the proclamation for the sale of those lands?

Answer. As to the surveys being completed, and returns made, I know not. I saw one or two companies going out to survey the unsurveyed ceded lands. I also heard many of the citizens of the State, some of them actual settlers, complaining that the lands were put into market before more than one-half of them were surveyed.

Question. Had the people of that district sufficient information prior to the day appointed in the proclamation for the commencement of the sales, to enable the actual settlers to make their arrangements for attending and purchasing?

Answer. I heard many men complain that they had not had sufficient time, from the first notice they had of the proclamation until the day of sale, to make their arrangements for attending and purchasing. The first information, too, obtained by some, was received from persons riding through the country to examine the lands, within a very short time before the sale.

Question. Were not the sales attended by speculators from different parts of the country, so far as you know and believe?

Answer. I believe they were. There appeared to be speculators from Tennessee, Alabama, and Louisiana, besides those who resided in the State of Mississippi.

Question. Did the speculators you mention, from the States of Tennessee, Alabama, Louisiana, and Mississippi, bid against each other, or did they combine for the purpose of deterring poor men, or men who only wished to purchase small tracts of land, from bidding for the lands on which they resided, or other lands which they might desire to purchase for actual settlement and cultivation, thereby taking into their own hands the control of the sales for their own benefit?

Answer. I arrived at Chochuma on the 23d of October, two days after the commencement of the sales; and, on that day, there was a public address made to the people by a gentleman who said that they, the companies of speculators, had united to shield the actual settlers from being imposed upon by individual speculators, and that his company was willing that any actual settler should buy one quarter section of land wherever he pleased, and as low as he could get it, if it were at the government price; or that his company would purchase it for him as low as they could get it, and let him have it for what they gave, provided, however, that said settler would sign a paper obliging himself not to bid for any other lands thus offered at that sale of the public lands of the United States. He suggested, however, that his company would, immediately after the sales of the United States' lands were closed, sell at public sale any lands they might purchase to the highest bidder, at which sale the settlers would have an opportunity of purchasing as much more land as they might want.

Question. Did these companies of speculators purchase large quantities of the public lands? If so, at what price?

Answer. I believe, according to the best estimation I could make, they purchased three-fourths of what was sold, and most generally at government prices.

Question. Did these speculators, after the public sales were closed, offer the lands so purchased by them, at augmented prices? And did they make any sales to persons attending the government sales at the prices put on them? If so, what price per acre did they receive?

Answer. I can make no answer to these inquiries, as I left the place before the government sales were closed.

Question. Did you attend the sale for the purpose of purchasing land with a view to actual settlement and cultivation? And, if so, did you purchase at the public sale of the government, or did you purchase from the company of speculators?

Answer. I did attend the sale for the purpose of purchasing for actual settlement and cultivation, and purchased from, or rather through, one of the agents or bidders of a company of speculators.

Question. Had you selected for purchase any particular tract of land?

Answer. I had.

Question. Why did you prefer purchasing from, or through one of the agents of the company of speculators, to bidding for it yourself at public sale?

Answer. I was a stranger in the country, and this being the first sale I had ever attended there, was entirely ignorant of the customs and proceedings at the sales of the public lands.

Question. What were the circumstances which induced you to purchase through the agent of the company?

Answer. In bidding for the land which I had selected before the sale, I found it run on me, and knocked off to myself and son at between four and five dollars per acre; whereas I observed that the company, generally, obtained their lands at $1.25 per acre; and, with but very few exceptions, no person bid against them: I was therefore induced to forfeit the lands thus charged to myself and son, to be resold. It was then purchased by the agent of the company of speculators at a price not exceeding $1.27, who immediately sold it to me at one dollar advance per acre, which he had previously agreed to do. I took, of course, the receiver's receipt to said agent, with the register's receipt upon the back of it, for the transfer of the same to me.

Question. Who were the bidders or agents of the company for purchasing at the public sales? How many of them were there, and where did they reside?

Answer. I think there were five, if not six, persons who were considered by the people at large as bidders or agents for the companies of speculators. I cannot now remember the names or residences of more than four of them. There were Robert J. Walker, of Natchez, Mississippi; ——Ellis, of Louisiana, and Malcom Gilchrist, of Alabama, and ——McLemore, of Tennessee.

Question. Who was the person whom you say addressed the meeting, and told them of the combination of the speculators? And what was the name of the agent from whom you purchased your land?

Answer. The man who addressed the people was Robert J. Walker, the same from whom I purchased the land.

Question. Who were register and receiver at Chochuma land office? Were they present at the sale, and informed, or had knowledge of the existence of such combinations of speculators, and their object? and did they interpose in their official character or otherwise, to prevent the accomplishment of the purchases for which they had combined?

Answer. Samuel Gwin, who was register, and Richard H. Sterling, who was receiver, (as will appear from the receipts for the land which I purchased,) were both present when Robert J. Walker addressed the people on the subject of the combination, and their intention; and I neither saw nor heard of any interference on their part, either by word or deed.

Question. Did you see or know of any conduct on the part of either the register or receiver which would justify you in the belief that they were concerned in the said speculations?

Answer. I heard the register, Samuel Gwin, say exultingly, and with a snap of his finger, to some persons who were near him when a certain portion of the public lands were bought by one of the agents of the company, "that land will bring us ten dollars per acre."

Question. Do you know if the register or receiver of that office has ever demanded of the purchaser fees or compensation for the performance of their official duties not authorized by law?

Answer. I paid the register one dollar for every separate transfer of eighty acres from the said Robert J. Walker to myself. I am ignorant if he were justifiable or not in taking that fee.

Question. Who acted as auctioneer, and was he considered as one of the company of the speculators, or was he in any manner connected with them?

Answer. Colonel Rather, of Alabama, generally acted as crier. He himself told me that he had constantly been in the woods for the last six weeks, examining the lands and taking numbers. I understood him to say he was one of the company of speculators.

Question. Did the actual settlers who attended the sales, and bid for the tracts of land on which they were settled, independent of the company, in a single instance, obtain their land at government price, and were not most of those settlers driven to the necessity of purchasing by permission of the companies of speculators, and each limited to one quarter section before such permission was granted?

Answer. I know of no instance of a person purchasing independent of the companies who obtained the land purchased at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre. I do know several instances where the purchaser was bid up to six dollars per acre. Most of the actual settlers obtained their lands through the companies, or by their permission, and consented to limit their purchases to one quarter section each as a condition on which the permission to purchase at government prices was granted by the company of speculators.

Question. Were there any lands sold at a higher price than one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, and again offered at public sale on the same day by the officers superintending the sales, and bought in by the company of speculators at government prices? And, if so, state at what price the land was first sold, and the cause assigned by the officers for setting aside the original purchases as aforesaid, and again offering the land for sale.

Answer. There was a tract of land, the quantity I do not precisely know, bid off for Mr. Wilkinson at twenty-two dollars per acre, to the best of my recollection. Immediately after the sale, and before any other land was offered, one of the officers, I do not know whether the register or receiver, demanded a deposit of the money for the land, of the purchaser. Mr. Wilkinson replied he had the money, and exhibited the money in his hand, but stated that as the regulation of the sales allowed him until next day at ten o'clock to make payment, he would not be driven to deposit at that moment. To which the officer replied that, if the money was not deposited in five minutes, the land would be considered as forfeited and resold. The deposit was not made, and the land was sold in five minutes afterwards to one of the bidders for the company of speculators, at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre.

Question. From the conduct of the officers throughout the sales, and everything which you observed during your attendance at these sales, are you, or are you not, firmly impressed with the belief that these officers were combined with the speculators, and interested in their purchases?

Answer. I certainly was so impressed with the belief at that time, and still believe so. They were combined and interested in the purchases made by the speculators.

Question. Did it not appear to you to be the general impression of those who attended the sales to purchase lands, that the officers were concerned with the speculators?

Answer. Such appeared to be the general impression of the settlers who attended the sales.

Question. Did the register, Samuel Gwin, demand of each person who received a transcript from the speculators one dollar for such transfer?

Answer. I saw several persons pay one dollar for such transfer, and believe it was a general practice, and heard several persons complain of the charge.

Question. Did the speculators require the actual settlers to sign a paper pledging themselves not to purchase more than one quarter section before they granted permission to them to purchase at the government price?

Answer. I believe they did, for such were the observations of Robert J. Walker in his public address to the people.

EDMUND ROW.

WASHINGTON CITY, April 29, 1834.

THE STATE OF OHIO, Guernsey County, ss:

Depositions taken under the resolution of the Senate of the United States of the 3d and 5th of March, 1834, authorizing the Committee on Public Lands to inquire into the conduct of registers of the land offices, and receivers of public moneys at the land offices of the United States. Taken on behalf of the said Committee on Public Lands, (by John Burwell:)

The following witnesses appeared before Isaac Wilson, a justice of the peace in Jackson township, in and for said county, and by him were severally duly sworn according to law to make true, full, and perfect answers to all and singular the interrogatories that may be proposed to them.

FIRST.

Thomas Marshall, of lawful age, appeared, who, having been first duly sworn as aforesaid, testified:

First interrogatory. Do you know any instance of a case wherein any register or receiver has been guilty of selling any of the public lands of the United States otherwise than for cash in ready money, or have they or either of them taken a bonus, and marked the map of survey to "retain" any tract of land for any individual or individuals, so that the particular tract appeared by the plat or "map" as though the same had been entered, when in fact the same had not been sold or entered?

Answer. I know of only one instance wherein Thomas Flood, register of the land office at Zanesville, sold to me the southeast quarter of the northwest quarter of section sixteen, of township number one, of range number three, military; which said land I lost by deception on the part of the said Thomas Flood, register.

Second interrogatory. Upon what conditions did Mr. Flood sell to you the land referred to, and in what manner did he deceive you? When was the contract made?

Answer. The contract was made on the 28th day of March, 1833. Flood agreed to keep the land for me one year from that day. I was to pay him ten dollars in hand, and the remainder within the year. I paid the ten dollars to said Flood on the said 28th day of March, 1833. If I failed to pay the whole of the money within the year, Flood was to keep the ten dollars for interest. He sold the said tract of land to Mr. Burt in less than seven months after the contract was made.

Third interrogatory. How came you to apply to the register (Thomas Flood,) to purchase land on a credit?

Answer. I understood by Samuel Dennis that he had a contract with Flood in the same way, and therefore I was induced to apply and contract with him in that manner: by reason of which I went on the land, and, after working all summer, I had put up a cabin and a tobacco house, and cleared and fenced some of the land, supposing my title was good, and to my astonishment he sold the land to another, and I was turned off of the land without remedy. If he had have told me in the first place that my title would not be good until I paid all the money, and got another title, I should not have lost my labor.

Fourth interrogatory. What kind of a title did Mr. Flood give to you, which you supposed to be good? Did you give to Flood, at the time you made the contract, your note or any instrument of writing to secure to him the payment of the purchase money? If so, state the same.

Answer. When I contracted with him for the land he gave to me a paper which he called a scrip, on the back of which he receipted the ten dollars which I paid, and which was to go for interest, as I have before stated; and the which said paper or "scrip," with the receipt on the back, you (John Burwell,) took a copy from in October last, in Zanesville. The original I gave up to Flood on the same day (after) you took the copy, and demanded the ten dollars, and he paid back to me. I was under the impression that Flood held an instrument of writing against me. I told him if there was any other writing between us I wanted them up. He said there was none there: that I had never given him any.

Fifth interrogatory. Did Flood tell you at the time he gave you the paper that you permitted me to take the copy from, with the receipt on the back thereof, that the same would hold the land, or that it was a good title for the land? And did he then mark the map or plat with your name in such manner as to make that particular tract appear as though it was actually entered?

Answer. He opened a large book that lay on the table, into which he looked to see whether the land was entered or not; in which he wrote something, telling me at the time that he wrote my name on the tract, and that "now no man can enter it." He told me that the paper, or "scrip," as he called it, would hold the land, and charged me to keep the transaction a secret, and tell Samuel Dennis not to say anything about his business.

Sixth interrogatory. Can you write or read writing?

Answer. I can neither write or read writing: if I could I should not have been deceived by Flood in this business, nor been so cheated by him. Relying on the information and directions of Flood, I rested easy until Samuel Dennis learned that his was not safe; and mine, being in the same situation, I went to Flood on the second Tuesday in October last, and found that the land was entered by Burt. Flood said, "I feel most damned sorry for you, but I cannot help it." And further I know not; only Flood told me to tell Dennis to come and see about his land; that he could not save it if anybody came to enter it. I did tell Dennis.

SECONDLY.

Samuel Dennis, of lawful age, who, having been first duly sworn as aforesaid, testified:

First interrogatory. Have you any knowledge of any of the public lands of the United States having been sold otherwise than for cash in ready money? If so, state where, and by whom sold; upon what condition, and to whom the same was sold.

Answer. At the register's office of public lands at Zanesville, Thomas Flood, the register, sold to me the east half of the northwest quarter of section number sixteen, of township number one, of range number three, military. I paid him nineteen dollars down, and was to pay him the remainder within one year.

Second interrogatory. Did the said register agree to keep the tract in question one year for you? Did he mark that particular tract on the map at the time with your name or otherwise, in such manner as to have the appearance of being entered? Was you to give him any bonus or interest on the purchase money? If so, state all about it, from beginning to ending.

Answer. On the 9th day of March, 1833, I agreed with the said Flood as above stated, and he gave me (on my asking him for a scrip, having understood that others could hold land with a "scrip,") two papers, one was, as he informed me, a receipt for the nineteen dollars paid to him as aforesaid; and the other was, as he told me, "a scrip," which I have here in words and figures following, to wit:

"LAND OFFICE at Zanesville, March 9, 1833.

"I, Samuel Dennis, of Guernsey county, Ohio, do hereby apply for the purchase of E. ½ of the N. W. ¼ section No. 16, township No. 1, range No. 3, military, containing 80 acres, according to the returns of the surveyor general, for which I have agreed with the register to give at the rate of $1.25 per acre.

"SAMUEL DENNIS.

"I, Thomas Flood, register of the land office at Zanesville, Ohio, do hereby certify that the lot above described contains 80 acres as mentioned, and that the price agreed upon is $1.25 per acre.

"T. FLOOD, Register."

He did place my name upon the tract on the map. He also agreed to keep the land one year; and, if I did not pay the remainder of the money within the year, I was to forfeit the money that I had paid. He told me that "that" scrip (the paper of which the foregoing is a copy,) would hold the land one year; that I might go home and go to work on it, and raise my tobacco; that there would be no danger. I went home, and built me a house and two tobacco houses on the north half of the said tract, and cleared, fenced, and planted three or four acres of tobacco on that part of the land; believing that I had fairly purchased the said land, and that I was safe in so doing, until I showed the said "scrip" (by which I was holding it under Flood's assurance), to Isaac Willson, Esq., who informed me that my title was good for nothing, and that my land was liable to be entered by any other person. Mr. Willson asked me what kind of title Thomas Marshall had; I told him that Marshall's and mine were alike. He informed me, and I informed Marshall of our situation. Marshall went immediately to Zanesville to see about our business, and found his was entered. And, on his return, informed me of what Flood said concerning mine. I immediately pledged my crop of tobacco and borrowed all the money that I could raise, and went as soon as possible to town; and on the 11th day of October, 1833, I entered that part on which I had made my improvement, and got the receiver's receipt for the purchase money in the words and figures following, to wit:

"No 6,411. RECEIVER'S OFFICE, Zanesville, October 11, 1833.

"Received of Samuel Dennis, of Guernsey county, Ohio, the sum of fifty dollars, being in full for the northeast quarter of the northwest quarter of section number sixteen, township number one, of range number three, (military,) containing forty acres, at the rate of $1.25 cents per acre. $50.

(Duplicate.) "B. VAN HORNE, Receiver."

Third interrogatory. How came Flood to sell you the eighty acres (or half quarter), and also sell to Marshall forty acres, being the south half of the same tract, as is represented?

Answer. I cannot tell, unless Flood made a mistake.

Fourth interrogatory. What did Flood say to you on the 11th day of October, 1833, at the time you entered the forty acres on that day, being the one-half of the tract which he had so agreed to keep for you one year, and in the short space of nineteen days, sold one-half of the same to Marshall at one year's credit, and then, in six or seven months after, sold that part to Burt? State what excuse he made to you, as far as within your recollection.

Answer. The error in the numbers was not discovered by me until this day, and whether Flood or Marshall ever discovered or knew it I cannot tell; there was nothing said on the subject to me. When I entered the land described in the receiver's receipt, of which the foregoing is a copy, Flood pointed his finger on the map to the place where my name was (as he said) written, and said: "Here is your name on the map: I'll defy all the devils in hell to take it from you; you might have rested easy in the first place, but, I suppose, hearing of Marshall's, you got uneasy." He told me to take the "scrip" home with me again, and if I could get the rest of the money within the year to come, and pay off, and get the other part of the land, that no one would enter it from me. And I then came away.

THIRDLY.

May 23, 1834.

Daniel Burt, who being first duly sworn as aforesaid, testified:

First interrogatory. Did you apply to Thomas Flood, register of public lands at Zanesville, for the purpose of purchasing forty acres of land from the United States, being the southeast quarter of the northwest quarter of section sixteen, of township number one, of range number three, (military,) on which Thomas Marshall was at the time making improvements, and which said land Marshall stated to you the evening previous to making such application, that he had entered the said land? If so, state the fact.

Answer. Some time in April, 1833, I called on the said Thomas Marshall, who was then at work, and making improvements on (as I presume) the land in question. I was by said Marshall informed that he had entered the land on which we then were. I doubted Marshall's having entered the land according to his statement. He told me if I did not believe him, I might go to Zanesville and see for myself. Accordingly, I went on the next day to the land office at Zanesville, and applied to Thomas Flood, the register, to purchase the said land. Flood (after I had given him the numbers of the land) opened the plat book, and looked at the tract, and said, "It is entered." I inquired of him who had entered it? He replied, "Thomas Marshall." He shut the plat book very quick, and walked out of the office. From his conduct, the manner in which he shut the book, and from his looks, and manner in which he went out of the office, I did not believe the land to be entered. I followed him out, and inquired whether he did not think there might be a chance yet to get the land? He said "No, Marshall has entered it," and turned and walked off another way into an alley, and left me in the street. My brother, David Burt, as I am informed by him, entered the same land some time, perhaps, in September last. And further I know not.

DANIEL BURT.

FOURTHLY.

Hugh McCoy appeared, and, after being duly (affirmed) qualified according to law, testified:

First interrogatory. Did you, on or about the 31st day of August, 1831, send money by John Robins to purchase, at the land office at Zanesville, the west half of the southwest quarter of section number twenty-three, of township number one, of range number three, (military,) for your son-in-law, Thomas Scott? And did you go yourself on the 13th of September, 1831, to the register's office on business concerning the same land? Did you then and there converse with Thomas Flood, the register, on that subject? If so, state what that conversation was?

Answer. On the 30th of August, 1831, I sent by John Robins one hundred dollars for the purpose alluded to. Mr. Robins brought to me, on his return, the receiver's receipt for the money. Having been informed by Mr. Robins that Charles C. Gilbert claimed the land, and was keeping it for Wm. Sammons for two weeks, I went to the said register's office on the 13th day of September, 1831, where I found the said Charles C. Gilbert lying on a bed, and the said Thomas Flood sitting in a chair in the said office. I stated to the said Flood that I had come to see about the land for Thomas Scott, (the land referred to;) that I sent the money two weeks ago by Mr. Robins. The said Gilbert replied, "You can't have the land; I have located that land for James Sprague, and have promised to keep it two weeks for William Sammons." I then stated that the two weeks were up. I stated, at the same time, that Mr. Robins brought word that if Sammons failed, and I would pay twenty dollars, that the land could be had for Scott. I also stated that Scott was a poor man, and that the government price was full as much as the land was worth; also, that it was unjust to ask more for it. The said Flood replied, "Now. Mr. McCoy, let me speak a word: Scott is your son-in-law, and your daughter no doubt would like to be settled close by you, and you had better give Mr. Gilbert something; but, for my part, if Mr. Gilbert has a mind to raise his location, and let you enter the land, I have nothing further to say in it." I replied that I would not give it. After considerable altercation, Gilbert offered to take ten dollars, and I gave my note for that sum, payable to Gilbert, eight months after date.

Second interrogatory. Had you any further conversation with the said register on the subject of that land?

Answer. At the time, and when Flood gave to me a certificate of application for the land to take to the receiver, I asked the said Flood what kind of a title I would get for the land? and whether, as I supposed, it would be a soldier's right? He replied, "It's none of your business what kind of a right it will be: you or Scott will get a right that will secure the land to you." I carried to the receiver the certificate of application, gave to him the receipt that Mr. Robins had brought me, and procured one in words and figures following, to wit:

"No. 3,468. RECEIVER'S OFFICE, Zanesville, September 13, 1831.

"Received from Thomas Scott, of Guernsey county, Ohio, the sum of one hundred dollars, being in full for W. ½ of the S. W. ¼ of section No. 23, township No. 1, range No. 3, containing 80 acres, at the rate of $1.25 per acre. $100.

(Duplicate.) "B. VAN HORNE, Receiver."

Third interrogatory. Did you, from the conduct of the said Flood and Gilbert at the time, believe that they were engaged in speculating from purchasers of the public lands?

Answer. I did then and do now believe that they were; and my suspicions were, if possible, more fully confirmed on the 11th day of May, 1832, when I again went to that office, and found the same Gilbert lying on the same bed, and assisting Flood to transact my business of entering the east half of the northwest quarter of section nineteen, township number one, range number three, military. He took my money, assisted in hunting the land on the map, and, as I now think, filled up the certificate of application, and gave me it, and a scrip to take to the receiver's office, all in Flood's presence. And further I know not.

HUGH McCOY.

FIFTHLY.

David Burt, jr., who, having been duly sworn according to law as aforesaid, testified:

First interrogatory. Did you apply to Thomas Flood, register of the land office at Zanesville, for the purpose of inquiring after the situation of, or for the purpose of purchasing the southeast quarter of the northwest quarter of section number sixteen, of township number one, in range number three, military? If so, state the conversation and the time it took place.

Answer. On the 19th day of September, 1833, I did inquire of the said register, at his office, to know if the tract referred to could be had to enter? He answered, "I guess it is entered; do you want to enter it?" I informed him that I did not wish to enter it at that time, and stated that if it was not entered, I wanted to enter it in a few days, at which observation Flood walked off, and left me standing on the pavement at the door of the office, in such a manner as induced me to suspect that the land was not entered. I waited until the said Flood went away, and I went into the office, and found by a man that was in the office that the land was not entered; and on the 3d day of October, 1833, I again went to the said office, and applied to the same man that informed me the land was not entered, and got the grant to enter the land. Flood came in before the business was completed, and inquired what we were at. On being informed, he asked me what kind of money I had. I informed him, when he observed we will change it for you, saying it was not land office money. They gave me scrip, or land stock, with which I paid for the land, and procured a receipt, in words and figures following, to wit:

"No. 6,391. RECEIVER'S OFFICE, Zanesville, October 3, 1833.

"Received of David Burt, jr., of Guernsey county, Ohio, the sum of fifty dollars, being in full for the southeast quarter of the northwest quarter of section number sixteen, township number one, of range number three, military, containing forty acres, at the rate of $1.25 per acre. $50.

(Duplicate.) "B. VAN HORNE, Receiver."

Second interrogatory. Is the tract which is described in the receipt, of which the foregoing is a copy, the same tract spoken of by your brother, Daniel Burt, and by Thomas Marshall, in (the foregoing) their depositions?

Answer. Yes; I am satisfied of the correctness of that fact. And further I know not.

DAVID BURT, Jr.

SIXTHLY.

May 27, 1834.

William Salmans, of lawful age, who, having first been duly sworn as aforesaid, appeared and testified:

First interrogatory. Did you, on or about the 30th day of August, 1831, apply to Thomas Flood, register of the land office at Zanesville, to secure to you, for a short time, the west half of the southwest quarter of section twenty-three, of township number one, of range three, military? And if so, state the whole transaction?

Answer. On or about the 30th day of August, 1831, I applied to the said register for the purpose of getting the said land secured to me for the term of two weeks and one or two days, at which time I expected to have the money to pay for the land in question. Mr. Flood called on Charles C. Gilbert, from an adjoining room in the same office, (or building,) and stated that Mr. Gilbert was authorized to do such things; (that he had a right to secure lands by virtue of some scrip, (or soldier-right,) for, as I now think, the benefit of James Sprague. Mr. Gilbert proposed that, for thirty dollars in addition to the price of the land, he could (or would) secure to me the tract in question. I stated to them that I would not give that sum, for reasons that it was too much; having previously stated to them that I expected that a person, in a few days, would send on the money, or come himself to enter the same land. I left Messrs. Flood and Gilbert in conversation on the subject, and was absent attending to my horse about one hour, when I again returned to the register's office. Flood was present, and Gilbert, who was standing a short distance up the street, soon came in, and offered to secure the land as stated, for that short time, for twenty dollars. I then stated to them that I would go home, and, if I got the money according to my expectations, that I would come on at the end of two weeks, or thereabouts, and, if the land was then safe for me, that I would then pay the price of the land in money, and give to Mr. Gilbert my note for the twenty dollars bonus, or premium, to be paid (as I now think) in January, then next. Before I got the money, I understood that Hugh McCoy had sent on the money by John Robins, who I met going to, as I came from, Zanesville, and also had entered the said land for his son-in-law, Thomas Scott; and I therefore did not go, according to agreement, to enter or see further about the land.

Second interrogatory. From whom did you understand that the land in question had been entered as aforesaid?

Answer. I understood from Scott that McCoy had went himself to the land office, and entered the land for him, Scott, Robins not having effected the entry.

Third interrogatory. Did you at the time believe that they were asking you a higher premium, or bonus, in consequence of the information that you had given in relation to another person's intention to enter the land than they otherwise would have done? or did you understand that the bonus went to Sprague to benefit an old soldier? State what you understood at the time in relation to the subject.

Answer. Gilbert stated to me that, for twenty dollars, he would locate the land for Sprague, and that I should have it for $120. Flood and Gilbert both stated to me that the business was done by Gilbert for Sprague, and I did suppose that the twenty dollars would go to Sprague. I drew this inference from Gilbert's conversation. From the circumstance of first asking thirty dollars, and then coming down to twenty, I supposed it a speculation for the benefit of some one or more persons.

Fourth interrogatory. Did you inform Flood and Gilbert that the person who wanted the land, and who would bring or send the money to enter it, was Thomas Scott?

Answer. To the best of my recollection, on stating that I expected that another person would send or bring the money to enter the same land, Flood asked me who it was? I then stated that I expected that Mr. Robins would be there either on that or the next day, to enter a piece for himself, and would bring the money to enter the tract in question for Scott. I am satisfied that I did so inform them of the fact, inasmuch as I well recollect they were both acquainted with Mr. Robins, and Flood stated that Robins entered a good deal of land. And further I know not.

WILLIAM SALMONS.

SEVENTHLY.

John Robins came, who, being first duly affirmed, qualified according to law as aforesaid, testified:

First interrogatory. Did you, at the office of the register of public lands at Zanesville, on the 31st day of August, 1831, apply for and purchase from the United States, in your own name, and for your own use, the west half of the northeast quarter of section number two, of township number nine, of range ten, of Congress lands?

Answer. I did.

Second interrogatory. Did you, at the same time and place, apply for, and (at the request of Hugh McCoy, who sent the money by you for that purpose,) purchase the west half of the southwest quarter of section twenty-three, of township one, of range three, military, for and in the name of Thomas Scott?

Answer. I did.

Third interrogatory. Did you apply so as aforesaid, and purchase the two tracts referred to from the register, Thomas Flood, or did you transact your business respecting those purchases as aforesaid, with a clerk in the absence of the register?

Answer. When I inquired (on entering into the office) for the register, George H. Flood, who was present in the office, observed that he, (the register,) was not in; and stated, if I wanted any business done concerning the entering of land, that he was authorized to attend to it as well as his father. I observed that that was sufficient.

Fourth interrogatory. At the time you made application for, and purchased the two tracts referred to, did you examine the plats or maps on which those tracts were particularly laid down? Were those two tracts, or either of them, in any way marked at the time you first examined those maps with Flood to see if they were vacant? Please to state what you know in relation to their being marked at the time you applied for and obtained leave to enter them.

Answer. I examined the maps on which those two tracts were particularly laid down, and pointed them out on the plats, and inquired if they were vacant. The said George H. Flood and Wyllys Silliman, junior, were present and looking on at the same time. I saw no marks on either of them at that time, and they told me that they were vacant. I then requested certificates to take to the other office, which they gave to me, one in the name of Scott, and the other in my own name, both of which I delivered to the receiver, and took his receipt for the purchase money.

Fifth interrogatory. Did you return to the register's office on the same day, and did you so return immediately after having went to the receiver's office and paid to him the purchase money for the tracts referred to, and obtaining the receipts as aforesaid?

Answer. I did. Perhaps I was absent (not more than a half,) at furthest, not more than one hour, until I did so return; and having taken duplicate receipts from the receiver for the purchase money on each tract, one in the name of Scott, and the other in my own name, I delivered one of each to young Mr. Flood (or young Silliman) to be recorded, and kept my own, and carried it home with me.

Fifth interrogatory. What did you do with the receipt that you had yet in your hands in the name of Scott? Did you give it to Mr. McCoy, or did you give it to Scott on your return home?

Answer. I gave that to neither Scott or McCoy. I gave it back to Bernard Van Horne, the receiver, who was present, and had accompanied me from his office to the register's office.

Sixth interrogatory. Why did you return the one receipt which you had taken in the name of, and for the tract you had so entered for Scott, to the receiver?

Answer. Because Charles C. Gilbert objected to both of those entries on the grounds that he said he had "selected" those two tracts in question, in behalf of James Sprague, to satisfy a military land warrant.

Seventh interrogatory. Were the two tracts actually located by Gilbert, in behalf of Sprague, previous to making those entries by you? Did he show to your satisfaction that he was entitled to a preference? What evidence did Mr. Gilbert adduce to show that fact? Please to state what took place in relation thereto.

Answer. He did not satisfy me of that fact. When I returned and delivered the duplicate receipts as aforesaid to be recorded, Mr. Gilbert was present, and observed to me, "you cannot have that land. I have selected it to satisfy a warrant granted to James Sprague." He proceeded and read to me the warrant.

Eighth interrogatory. Was the reading of the warrant as aforesaid, and his assertion, all the evidence that Mr. Gilbert presented to satisfy you of his having located (or "selected") those tracts as aforesaid?

Answer. He also showed to me on the map an "S" marked on the plat of each tract as an evidence of his having so "selected" them. I observed to Mr. Gilbert that I knew James Sprague, and was satisfied that he had a warrant; but that I objected to those two letter "S's," which he called a mark of selection, as I did not see them at first when I made the application, and that "I thought I had as good a chance to see them then as now, if they had been there." I reached my hand for the plat book which was then open in the hands of Gilbert. He gave to me the map or plat book that was so open in his hands, and I submitted the book to the inspection of young Flood, and Silliman, junior, for their decision respecting the said marks ("S's") having been there at the time we had first inspected the maps, and at which time I obtained the grant to enter the land; and both of those young men stated that they had not seen them, and that they believed that the land was vacant when I made the application. Young Mr. Silliman, in a stern voice, observed, "Gilbert, when did you mark them? I have not been out of the office." Gilbert observed, addressing himself, as I thought, more particularly to George H. Flood, "I marked them last night when you was gone to supper." Young Mr. Silliman then asked Gilbert, "Who was at that time in the office?" Gilbert replied, "Old Mr. Flood."

Ninth interrogatory. Did you then give up the land you had entered in the name of Scott, or did Gilbert give up his pretended claim to those lands?

Answer. As I was fully satisfied in my mind that those letters ("S") had been made in my absence to the receiver's office, (and which was also confirmed by the opinion of those two young men in my favor,) I did then, and do now, believe that they were made in my absence for a pretence to make a speculation from McCoy (or Scott) and myself. I then observed to those young men that, if I was to be particular, I might have the gentleman qualified concerning those marks, as to the time when they were made. But as the land was of no great value, I would not make any disturbance in the matter, and that I could find other land as good, and perhaps better; and stated, at the same time, that if the tract that I wanted did not join other land of mine, that I would not pay fifty dollars for it, and pay the tax on it. At which Mr. Gilbert observed, "As you are an old gentleman for whom I have great respect, you may have the tract that you want for yourself." I then stated to him that Scott was a poor man, and "wish that you would be so kind as to let him have the other tract, that he might have a home." Mr. Gilbert replied, "A fellow by the name of William Salmons requested me yesterday to keep that tract for him two weeks, and he would give me, in addition to the purchase money, twenty dollars," and stated that he meant to keep the tract two weeks for Salmons; and, after that, if Scott would apply, and Salmons did not come, Scott might have the land. After which I gave the receipt spoken of to Van Horne, and he gave me a certificate in the name of Thomas Scott for money deposited to be delivered; which certificate I delivered to Mr. McCoy on my return home, and also stated to him what Gilbert had said on the subject. I also advised McCoy to not permit any speculation to be made from himself or Scott in that case.

Tenth interrogatory. What is the general character of the official conduct of Thomas Flood, the register of the land office at Zanesville, and those who are about his office almost continually, and apparently either employed by him or permitted to be there? Please to state what common report is, so far as you have knowledge on the subject.

Answer. From what I have seen, I am satisfied that they will make speculation from purchasers whenever they can, and I have heard several report the same opinion. And further I have nothing in my recollection to relate.

JOHN ROBINS.

EIGHTHLY.

May 28, 1834.

James Karr, of lawful age, who, having been first duly sworn according to law as aforesaid, testified:

First interrogatory. Did Thomas Flood, register of the land office at Zanesville, agree with you that, for and in consideration of a bonus of ten dollars, he would retain of the public lands at that time belonging to the United States for (the space of) one year, to give you an opportunity to make up the money to purchase the said land, to wit: the east half of the southwest quarter of section number seventeen, of township number one, of range number three, military?

Answer. He did agree to save the said tract for me one year, and I did pay him a bonus of ten dollars for so doing.

Second interrogatory. When was the agreement referred to made with said Flood; and when was the bonus paid; and did Mr. Flood reserve the land for you according to agreement, and did you ultimately get the said land?

Answer. The agreement was made in may or June, 1832. The bonus was paid at the time the contract was made. Flood did reserve the land for me until I got the money; and, on the 4th day of January, 1833, I went to the said register's office with my son-in-law, John Newland, and entered in the name of the said John Newland, my son-in-law, and paid the money myself for one-half of the said tract, being forty acres, off of the north end of the said tract, and entered the same in the name of the said John Newland, and procured the receiver's receipt for the purchase money in words and figures following, to wit:

"No. 5,275. RECEIVER'S OFFICE, Zanesville, Janua'y 4, 1833.

"Received of John Newland, of Guernsey county, Ohio, the sum of fifty dollars, being in full for the northeast quarter of the southwest quarter of section No. 17, township No. 1 of range No. 3, m'y, containing 40 acres, at the rate of $1.25 per acre. $50.

(Duplicate.) "B. VAN HORNE, Receiver."

And on the 20th of May, 1833, I went to the said register's office, and entered and paid for the other half of the said tract in my own name, and procured the receiver's receipt in words and figures following, to wit:

"No. 5,911. RECEIVER'S OFFICE, Zanesville, May 20, 1833.

"Received of James Karr, of Guernsey county, Ohio, the sum of fifty dollars, being in full for the southeast quarter of the southwest quarter of section No. 17, township No. 1, of range No. 3, m'y, containing 40 acres, at $1.25 per acre. $50.

(Duplicate.) "B. VAN HORNE, Receiver."

Third interrogatory. Did the register, Thomas Flood, at the time you agreed with him to reserve the said tract of land for you as aforesaid, mark that particular tract on the map in the plat book in his office with your name or otherwise, that the same should appear as having been entered, when in fact the said land so marked had not been actually sold or entered?

Answer. At the time referred to, when the agreement was made, the marking of the tract on the map in the plat book was in part of the condition on which I agreed to pay the bonus of ten dollars. He did write my name on that particular tract on the map in the plat book in his office. I refused to give him the money until he did so write my name on the map, that the same should so appear to be entered as aforesaid. This was done to prevent any other person from entering the said land.

Fourth interrogatory. Did the said Flood enjoin secrecy on you in relation to this subject?

Answer. He did; after he wrote my name on the map, he said to me (after I gave to him the ten dollars,) "It's fixed now; go away, and say nothing about it." And further I cannot tell.

MOSES SARCHET, Clerk. [L. S.]

THE STATE OF OHIO, Coshocton County, ss:

Deposition of Mrs. Sarah Booth, of Oxford township, in the county of Tuscarawas, in the State aforesaid, (of lawful age,) having been first duly sworn according to law that she would true, full, and perfect answers make to all and singular the interrogatories that may be proposed to her touching the public service. The following interrogatories were severally proposed to the witness, (by John Burwell:)

First interrogatory. Do you know whether any register or receiver of public moneys at any of the land offices of the United States, or either of them, have been guilty of fraud or partiality in the sales of public lands, by adopting rules and regulations in their respective offices inconsistent with the laws of the United States?

Answer. I do not understand the laws of the United States which regulate those offices. All that I know in relation to their rules is, that on the eighteenth day of May, eighteen hundred and thirty-two, I went to the register's office at Zanesville to enter the northeast quarter of the southwest quarter of section number twenty-two, of the township numbered five, of range number three, (military) and which said land I did enter, and procured a receipt from the receiver for the purchase money, in the words and figures following, to wit:

"RECEIVER'S OFFICE, Zanesville, May 18, 1832.

"Received of Sarah Booth fifty dollars, to be applied to the entry of the N. E. ¼ of S. W. quarter of section No. 22, township No. 5, of range No. 3, m'y; when instructions are received under the act of 5th April last. $50.

"B. VAN HORNE, Receiver."

Second interrogatory. When you went to the register's office as aforesaid, did you inquire of Thomas Flood, the register, anything in relation to the land on which Samuel McDoll Wilson was then living, (to wit, the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of section four, township four, range three)? If so, please to state what the conversation was between yourself and the said Thomas Flood, register of that office, on the subject of saving the land for Wilson.

Answer. At the time, and at the register's office, when I entered my land referred to, (on the 18th day of May, 1832,) at the request of Mr. Wilson, I inquired of Thomas Flood, register, whether said Wilson, who was then living on the said land, could hold the same by pre-emption in consequence of his settlement on the land. At the same time I stated to said register that Mr. Wilson said that he had not money enough, and wished to secure the land. Flood (the register,) replied to me, "He cannot hold it by pre-emption right—any one can enter it that comes; but tell him to come and bring what money he has got, and we will save it for him;" and at the same time stated that a person, (whose name I do not now recollect,) whose name Flood mentioned at the time, was in the habit of saving land for people. On my return I informed Mr. Wilson what Flood said on the subject. And further I cannot say.

SARAH BOOTH.

JAMES LISK, J. P. [SEAL.]

Deposition of Samuel McDoll Wilson, of Wheeler township, in Guernsey county, (of lawful age,) who appeared, and was also duly sworn as aforesaid that he would true, full, and perfect answers make to all and singular the interrogatories that may be proposed to him touching the public service. The following interrogatories were severally proposed to the witness (by John Burwell):

First interrogatory. Do you know whether any register or receiver of public moneys at the land offices of the United States, or either of them, has been guilty of fraud or partiality, by adopting rules and regulations in their respective offices inconsistent with the laws of the United States?

Answer. I know of none.

Second interrogatory. Do you own and live on the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of section numbered four, of township numbered four, of range three (military,) and did you request Sarah Booth, (as she has stated in your presence,) to inquire of Thomas Flood, register, respecting your pre-emption right to said land, and did she return to you the answer as stated in her answer to the second interrogatory in her deposition just taken in your presence?

Answer. I own and resided on the land referred to. I did request her to make the inquiry as she has stated in her testimony referred to. She did, on her return from Zanesville, inform me, as she has stated in the deposition referred to; which said deposition has here been taken in my presence and hearing. I did not go to get the land saved according to the request of the register, (Mr. Flood;) but, on the nineteenth day of October, 1833, I made up the money, went to Zanesville, and paid the money to the receiver, and entered the land in question.

SAMUEL D. WILSON.

Sworn and subscribed to before me, this 28th day of April, 1834.

JAMES LISK, J. P. [SEAL.]

Deposition of James Cook Colson, of Coshocton county, (in Adams township, of lawful age,) having been first duly sworn according to law as aforesaid, to make true, full, and perfect answers to all and singular the interrogatories that may be proposed to him touching the public service. The following interrogatories were severally proposed to the witness (by John Burwell):

First interrogatory. Have you known any of the public lands belonging to the United States to be sold at any of the land offices of the United States otherwise than for cash in ready money? If so, state when, where, and by whom such sale was made: relate all and singular the circumstances in relation thereto, as near as you can.

Answer. On or about the last of March, eighteen hundred and thirty-two, (to the best of my recollection, on the 28th day of that month,) I went to the office of Thomas Flood, register of public lands at Zanesville, where I found the said register, with one or two young men, (one of whom was clerking) in the said office. I also, at the same time, saw in the said office Charles C. Gilbert, who was, at the time, writing at the table in the register's office. I asked Mr. Gilbert if the east half of the southeast quarter of section numbered three, of township numbered six, in range four, (military) was entered? The said Gilbert turned over some leaves in the map (or plat) book, which was lying at the time open on the table where he was writing, and, after examining the plat, said it was not entered, also said it was a large half quarter. I then asked the said Gilbert what he would take and secure that land, (meaning the tract referred to,) and wait with me one year for the money? He hesitated a short time, and then asked me how much money I had? I then showed to him all the money I had, amounting to twenty-four dollars and a half, (as near as I can now recollect). He counted over the money, and seemed to hesitate. I then told him that I would give him all, except enough to bear my expenses home. Said Gilbert then asked old Mr. Flood, the register, what he had better do? Flood said, "I think you had better risk it, and try for once what a poor man can do," and also observed to Gilbert, "you must not be too hard, he is a brother Yankee of yours." Gilbert then took twenty-three dollars of the money referred to, and told me that I must give him three securities; and asked me what men were living near to me? I then mentioned the names of several persons who resided in the same neighborhood with myself. Gilbert then looked over the plat book, and asked me what the circumstances were of several persons whose names were written on the plat book on tracts adjoining or near the tract hereinbefore referred to? After I had stated, as near as I could, what the circumstances of those persons were, he (Gilbert) chose Richard Taylor, Robert Corbet, and Henry Delong, who he required me to give as my securities for the faithful performance, on my part, to pay the money for the land in one year from that time. He then drew up an instrument of writing, binding myself and those three individuals above named to pay the sum of one hundred and fourteen dollars and fifty cents, being the amount of the purchase money to which the land came to at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, and gave the said article or obligation to me, and said I must take it home with me, and get those three men to sign the said instrument with me, and return the same to him, so executed, within three months, or forfeit the land and the twenty-three dollars. I took the said instrument or writing home, and signed the same, and procured the signatures of those individuals so named and required to the said writing as my securities, and returned the same within the time so required. When I sent the same to the said Gilbert, he sent (by the bearer, George Williams,) to me an instrument of writing wherein he bound himself (upon conditions that I, on my part, paid punctually, within the time stipulated, the purchase money) to secure the land to me; but if I failed, he was not bound, and I forfeited all. On the fourteenth day of March, 1833, I went to Zanesville to pay off my obligation so given as aforesaid for one hundred and fourteen dollars and fifty cents. I could not find Gilbert to receive the money: when I inquired for said Gilbert at the register's office, a man that was clerking in that office, who I informed that I had a piece of writing from Mr. Gilbert about a piece of land, asked to see the writing, and I gave it into his hand. When the clerk had read the same, he observed, "We sometimes do business for Mr. Gilbert:" he then informed Mr. Flood (the register) of my business. Mr. Flood then observed that there was a note in that case, with three securities; and also said, "I will attend to that." Said Flood (register) went and got the note, and gave it to the clerk, and I gave the money, one hundred and fourteen dollars and fifty cents, to the said clerk, and he gave me up the said note against myself and my securities. Flood said it was not all land office money, and the clerk said it would do. They gave me some papers, telling me, at the same time, to take them to the receiver's office, which I did do, and, at the same time, received from the receiver a receipt for the purchase money in words and figures following, to wit:

"No. 5,596. RECEIVER'S OFFICE, Zanesville, March 14, 1833.

"Received of James Cook Colson, of Coshocton county, Ohio, the sum of one hundred and fourteen dollars and fifty cents, being in full for the east half of the southeast quarter of section No. 3, township No. 6, of range No. 4, m'y, containing 91 60-100ths acres, at the rate of $1.25 per acre. $114.50.

(Duplicate.) "B. VAN HORNE, Receiver."

Second interrogatory. What did you pay in all for the land referred to? State the whole amount.

Answer. One hundred and thirty-seven dollars and fifty cents.

Third interrogatory. Do you know anything further in relation to rules and regulations adopted at that or any other of the land offices, not authorized by law?

Answer. I once saw in the hands of George Williams, a paper, the writing on which was in relation to a case of the same nature of this of mine. And further I know not.

Fourth interrogatory. What became of the obligation referred to, signed by yourself and those three securities, "Taylor, Corbet and Delong?"

Answer. After I paid the money, and got up that obligation, I burned the same in the fire in the grate in the register's office at the time.

JAMES LISK, Justice of the Peace. [L. S.]

I also hereby certify that I am well acquainted with the witnesses, Mrs. Sarah Booth, Samuel D. Wilson and James Cook Colson, whose depositions have been taken before me, (by John Burwell, commissioner;) and that their character for truth and veracity is entitled to the fullest confidence, to the which I would testify on oath, but for the circumstance of particular engagements, and no justice of the peace near that I can possibly, under the circumstances, attend before to have such oath administered to me. I beg leave to refer the honorable Committee on Public Lands, for their confidence in this statement, to the Hon. David Spangler, M. C. from this district.

THE STATE OF OHIO, Coshocton County, ss:

I, John Fiew, clerk of the court of common pleas for said county, hereby certify that James Lisk, Esquire, before whom the foregoing depositions were taken, was, at the time thereof, and now is, an acting justice of the peace, within and for said county, duly commissioned and qualified agreeable to the constitution and laws of the State of Ohio, to all whose official acts as such full faith and credit are due.

JOHN FIEW, Clerk Common Pleas.

THE STATE OF OHIO, Tuscarawas County, ss:

Depositions taken at Rogersville, in Bucks township, before Richard Cunning, a justice of the peace in and for said county, before whom the witnesses were first severally sworn according to law that they and each of them would true, full, and perfect answers make to all and singular the interrogatories that may be proposed to them touching the public interest. After which the following interrogatories were severally proposed to the witness or witnesses in succession (by John Burwell).

FIRST.

May 1, 1834.

Michael Fetter, having been first duly sworn as aforesaid, the following were proposed to him:

First interrogatory. Have you known any register or receiver of public moneys at any of the land offices of the United States to be guilty of fraud or partiality in the sales of the public lands, by adopting rules and regulations in their respective offices inconsistent with the laws of the United States? If so, state what you know in relation to the subject.

Answer. On the twenty-sixth day of November, 1832, I went to Zanesville, in company with Abraham Overholt, and applied at the register's office to Thomas Flood, the register, in his office, for the entry of the northeast quarter of the northwest quarter of section seven, township eight, of range three, military. Mr. Flood at the time had the plat book before him; he looked at the tract on the map, and informed me that I could have the land. I expected a few lines to take to the receiver's office, which was not handed to me according to my expectation. After waiting some time, and having noticed the clerk to leave the register's office, and no person appeared to attend to my business, I began to suspect that something was going on wrong; I rose up, and observed to Mr. Overholt, who was also entering land for Samuel Welty, "Let us go and pay our money where it ought to go; one bite is enough." On hearing my observation so made to Mr. Overholt, the register said, "We are doing this to get you off sooner, knowing you are in a hurry, and we can do the business so much sooner than you can." After this the clerk referred to, returned, and brought the receiver's receipt, showing that the land so applied for had been entered and paid for, to wit:

"No. 5,116. RECEIVER'S OFFICE, Zanesville, November 26, 1832.

"Received from Michael Fetter, of Tuscarawas county, Ohio, the sum of fifty dollars, being in full for N. E. quarter of N. W. quarter, section No. 7, township No. 8, range No. 3, military, containing 40 acres, at the rate of $1.25 per acre. $50.

(Duplicate.) "B. VAN HORNE, Receiver."

The said clerk, on producing the receipt of which the foregoing is a copy, demanded my money in payment for my land, stating at the same time that he had paid for it. I then gave to him my money, and took the receipt referred to.

Second interrogatory. Did you ask the register or the clerk referred to, to act in your behalf in respect to transacting the business of making your entry as aforesaid, or was it a voluntary transaction performed without your knowledge or consent?

Answer. I did not ask either of them to assist me in that respect. It was performed without my knowledge or consent at the commencement. The departure of the clerk, and the delay in the business before referred to, induced me to invite Overholt to go with me, "and pay our money where it ought to go," fearing that they would put in a scrip, and get my money, which was not my will to do so. My suspicions were confirmed by the remarks made by the register: "We are doing this to get you off sooner." When the clerk returned with the receipt referred to, I then acquiesced and paid to him my money, as they had paid for the land without saying anything to me on the subject.

Third interrogatory. Why did you remark that "one bite is enough;" and why were you fearful "that they would put in a scrip, and get 'your' money?" Please to state your reasons for those remarks, if such reasons you had.

Answer. The reason why I remarked that "one bite was enough," was, that I was present on the 30th day of January, 1832, with James Brewer, of Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, at the time when he paid his money to Flood, and his clerk (or a person who was by us, at the time, taken to be his clerk, and whom, from information since acquired, I am induced to believe was Charles C. Gilbert), and entered the southwest quarter of section number fourteen, of township number eight, of range number three, military, in which case they put in a scrip, by reason of which Brewer lost one-half the land; and I was fearful they would serve me ; that I would have some baffalation concerning my title.

Fourth interrogatory. Were you present, and at all times with Brewer at the time referred to; and did they substitute the scrip in place of his money without his knowledge and consent, in the case of his entry on the 30th January, 1832?

Answer. I went to Zanesville with Brewer at that time. I went with him to the register's office; while there he was not out of my presence, and could not have held any conversation upon the subject of scrip without my knowledge. They did, as I am informed, put in the scrip, by reason of which Beninger was permitted to enter the one-half of the quarter for which I saw Brewer pay to Flood and his said clerk the money at the request or demand of said Flood.

MICHAEL FETTER.

SECONDLY.

Michael Royer, having been duly sworn as aforesaid, was interrogated (by the same):

First interrogatory. Have you known any of the public lands at any of the land offices of the United States to be sold, otherwise than for cash in ready money? and if so, state at what office, by whom sold, and upon what conditions such sale was made.

Answer. On or about the first of November, 1831, I went to the register's office at Zanesville to know if the west half of the northwest quarter of section No. 8, of township No. 7, of range No. 4, could be entered. I applied to Thomas Flood, the register, who informed me that the said tract was not entered, and that I could have it to enter. I then informed the said Flood that I had only fifty dollars, and that I wanted to pay that sum, and to have six months' time to pay the balance or remaining fifty dollars. Flood then said to me, "Stop a little; there is a man that has just gone to breakfast; as soon as he comes he will make some arrangement." In a short time a slim, spare man, with green spectacles on, came into the office. Flood then said, "This is the man you have to bargain with;" when Flood made this remark, the man with the spectacles on asked me what I wanted. I informed him that I wanted the land referred to, and that I had fifty dollars, and could pay the balance in six months. He offered to take the fifty dollars down, and save the land for me by my paying sixty dollars within six months. I refused to pay the fifty down and pay sixty more in six months, making one hundred and ten for the land. He then offered to take the fifty down, and my note payable in six months for fifty-seven dollars, and drew up a note to that effect, and presented to me for my signature, which I did not wish to sign, and at which I hesitated; on which Flood, the register, arose from his chair, and told me to sign the note, that it was right so to do; that I could not get the land unless I did sign the said note; and also, at the same time, observed, if it was wrong he would not suffer it to be done in his office: upon which I signed the said note, and paid fifty dollars in cash. The man with the spectacles on gave to me a writing which I could not read, stating, at the same time, that the substance of the writing was that, if I paid the note off within the time, the land would be sure to me; but if I failed to be punctual to the time, that I should forfeit the land and all the money that I had then paid. In about one month after I gave the note, I was at Zanesville, and paid five dollars on the said note, and, on the 23d day of April, 1832, I sent the money by my brother, Samuel Royer, and paid off the note, and received a receipt in the following form, to wit:

"No. 4,083. RECEIVER'S OFFICE, Zanesville, April 23, 1832.

"Received from Michael Royer, of Tuscarawas county, Ohio, the sum of one hundred dollars, being in full for W. $\frac{1}{2}$ N. W. $\frac{1}{4}$ section No. 8, township No. 7, range No. 4, containing 80 acres, at the rate of $1.25 per acre. $100.

(Duplicate.) "B. VAN HORNE, Receiver."

Interrogatory. Did you send by your brother Samuel the paper that you received from the man with the spectacles on; and did Samuel return to you the note you gave for fifty-seven dollars? If so, what has become of said note, if you can so state.

Answer. I sent the writing by Samuel, and he brought to me the note, and gave it, with the receipt referred to, to me; and I destroyed the said note.

MICHAEL ROYER.

THIRDLY.

Samuel Royer, having been duly sworn as aforesaid, the following were proposed, (by the same):

First interrogatory. Have you been present, and a constant observer of all the testimony given by your brother Michael? and, so far as his testimony has a reference to you, is that statement correct?

Answer. It is correct in relation to the business by him entrusted to me, and my performance for him.

Second interrogatory. What did you do with the money sent by your brother Michael? and how did you procure his note and receipt referred to?

Answer. I carried the paper and the money to the register's office, where I found sitting at the table in said office, Thomas Flood, the register, and a man with spectacles on, as described by my brother. I gave the paper (sent by Michael) to Flood, who, on looking at it, showed the said paper to the man with the spectacles on. This man took the paper, went out, and soon returned with the note; and I paid him the balance due on the said note of fifty-two dollars, and took up the note. They gave me some papers, telling me, at the same time, to take them to the other office; and I took those papers to the receiver, and he gave me the receipt, which, with the note referred to, I gave to my brother Michael Royer as he has stated.

Third interrogatory. Have you any further knowledge of any register or receiver who have been guilty of adopting rules and regulations in their respective offices inconsistent with the laws of the United States?

Answer. I have no knowledge of those offices except at Zanesville. I have been at the register's office at Zanesville three times: twice I entered land for myself, and once for Jacob Summers. I do not understand the law referred to.

Fourth interrogatory. At those three times that you entered land, did you pay your money at the receiver's office, or did you pay all at the register's office? and, if so, did you pay it to the register, or to some other person by and with his advice?

Answer. The first time Flood had nothing to say on the subject. The money was paid in his office, and Flood was present. The second time, the money was all good, and Flood, and the person with the spectacles on, persuaded me to give them the money, and take the scrip, and I did pay the money to the spectacle man, and took scrip. The third time, the money was all silver except two one dollar notes. The man with the spectacles on said it would not go in the land office. Flood swore me. I paid the money in his office without his persuasion. And further I know not.

SAMUEL ROYER.

FOURTHLY.

John Dickey having been duly affirmed, according to law, to answer so as aforesaid, the following were severally proposed (by the same):

First interrogatory. Have you known any register or receiver of public moneys at any of the land offices of the United States to demand or receive from any purchaser or purchasers of the public lands fees or compensation for the performance of their official duties, not authorized by law?

Answer. None, except in one instance wherein I paid to Thomas Flood, register of the land office, ten dollars to secure a pre-emption right, which I claimed to the W. ½ of the northeast quarter of section four, of township seven, in range four; and which sum he afterward paid back to me again.

Second interrogatory. What were the circumstances under which you paid this fee? How came you to pay that sum to the register?

Answer. I resided on the tract referred to on the 10th day of July, 1832, and had for some time previously resided and made considerable improvements thereon. Henry Brant had entered this tract on the 17th May, 1832, without my knowledge and consent. I went to Flood for information on the subject of the pre-emption right, and he informed me that he would secure to me the pre-emption right for ten dollars. I paid to him the ten dollars; and also paid one dollar and seventy-five cents for drawing up the writings to be forwarded to the General Land Office, to prove my settlement on the land. Said Flood agreed to secure to me the land, and to secure me from all damages from Brant; he agreed to send me a letter to inform me of my prospects and his success. On or about the first of October I received a letter in the following words, to wit:

"REGISTER'S OFFICE, Zanesville, July 21, 1832.

"SIR: I have this moment received a letter from the Commissioner of the General Land Office confirming your claim to the land, provided you fill the requisites of the law; will inform Mr. Brant that he can have his money or apply to other lands. You had better come down immediately.

"Yours respectfully,

"THOMAS FLOOD.

"Mr. JOHN DICKEY."

On the 4th day of October, 1832, I attended at the said register's office to see about the business. Flood told me that the pre-emption right would be out the next day, but that he would keep the land for me. I then informed him that I had not received the letter until two or three days before that time, and therefore was unprepared, but could pay fifty dollars the next week. Flood said it made no odds, if I could pay ten dollars at a time send it on. On the 11th day of October, 1832, (seven days after this conversation,) I attended again at the register's office to enter the said land, and had with me all the money that I needed for that purpose. When I made my application to the said Flood for the purpose of making said entry, he then informed me that I could not have the land. His excuse was that Brant had called for his money or the land, and that he had to give it up to him. I then went home, and supposed that Flood had stated to me what was true, until the 28th of January, 1834, when I was informed that had I paid my money to the receiver at any time previous I could have had the land. But in consequence of Flood's statement I had parted with my money, and was unable then to procure that sum. At the time Flood informed me that he had given up the land to Brant, he paid back to me the ten dollars in two five dollar notes, one of which was good for nothing, (on the Bank of Steubenville.) And further I know not.

JOHN DICKEY.

FIFTHLY.

Joseph Canghnour, having been first duly sworn as aforesaid, the following were proposed to him (by the same):

First interrogatory. Has any register or receiver of public moneys at any of the land offices of the United States accepted a bonus in money or in the form of interest for securing particular tracts of land to such purchasers as would comply with the terms prescribed in this respect? Or have they or any of them demanded or taken fees from purchasers for performing their official duties, not authorized by law? If so, state what you may know in relation to the subject.

Answer. In May, 1830, (if I mistake not,) I called at the register's office at Zanesville, and applied to Thomas Flood, the register of that office, for the purpose of entering the east half of the northeast quarter of section number fourteen, township number seven, of range number four, military. By some means a mistake was made in the position of the quarter, and on examination in September following I found that I had entered the east half of the north*west* quarter of said section. I immediately applied to the said register at his office, to have, if possible, the error corrected. He informed me that I could have the error rectified, but said, "it would be some expense to me." He then drew up my affidavit, to which I placed my signature, and was sworn to before said Flood, as justice of the peace, who informed me that I must give to him my receipt for the purchase money, which I did do. At the same time, said Flood demanded from me about two dollars and fifty cents fees, for his trouble, which I paid. The affidavit, or writing drawn up so as aforesaid, I had to take to the neighborhood of the land, and get several persons to sign and to qualify to, stating the existence of the error, which was done, and the paper forwarded to Flood. On the 30th day of March, 1832, I again called on the register respecting this subject. He then informed me that he had written to the Commissioner of the General Land Office on the subject, and that he had not received an answer; and stated that I had better enter the tract first intended to be entered. I informed him that I did not feel myself able to enter both. Flood then stated to me that if I would pay him ten dollars that he would keep the land for me. I then paid him the ten dollars.

Second interrogatory. Had you settled on the land in question? Did Flood understand that fact? And was that the inducement on your part to comply with his demand, (to pay the ten dollars to save the land,) as aforesaid? And did the register mark the said land on the plat or map of survey with your name, or o herwise, as having been entered, when in fact it had not been entered? If so, state what you know in relation thereto.

Answer. Before I discovered the error I had built a house on the land, presuming that I had it entered and paid for. Of this fact the register was by me informed at the time when I first applied to have the error corrected. Also, I had informed him of my inability to purchase both tracts at that time; and this circumstance was the only inducement, and that alone compelled me to pay this bonus. The said Flood did write on the said plat in a fine handwriting, "reserved," before it was entered. And on the 22d day of January, 1833, I went to the register with the whole of the money to pay for the land in question. The said Flood (register) informed me that my money would not pass in the land office, and told me that he would fix it for me. I gave him the money, (one hundred dollars;) the said Flood sent his clerk out, and in a short time the clerk returned and presented to me the receiver's receipt for the purchase money in the words and figures following, to wit:

"No. 5,349. RECEIVER'S OFFICE, Zanesville, January 22, 1833.

"Received of Joseph Caughenour, of Tuscarawas county, of Ohio, the sum of one hundred dollars, being in full for the east half of the northeast quarter of section No. 14, township No. 7, of range No. 4, military, containing 80 acres, at the rate of $1.25 per acre. $100.

. (Duplicate.) "B. VAN HORNE, Receiver."

Third interrogatroy. Did the said Flood enjoin on you secrecy in relation to this transaction, or did he appear bold in the business, and seemingly care nothing about it? Please state what you know in relation thereto.

Answer. When I paid him the bonus, (the ten dollars,) he told me to say nothing about it—to let on that I had it secure; that he did not want any person to be pestering him by applying to enter it. He also put me off at the time that I paid for the land until we were alone. Further I know not.

JOSEPH CAUGHENOUR.

SIXTH.

May 2, 1834.

John Kern, having been first duly sworn as aforesaid, the following interrogatories were severally proposed to the witness, (by John Burwell:)

First interrogatory. Was you at the office of the register of public lands at Zanesville, on the 23d day of May, 1832, and did you see and converse with the register, Thomas Flood, on that day? Did you enter land at that time, and did you pay the money to the receiver? or did you pay your money to the said Flood, register, and did he furnish you with a scrip? What fees did he demand or receive from you on that occasion? Please to state what you know on the subject.

Answer. I was at the register's office at Zanesville on the 23d day of May, 1832. Thomas Flood, the register, was present; with him I did converse and transact the business of entering the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of section twenty-three, township eight, of range number four; also, the southeast quarter of the southeast quarter of section number eighteen, township number eight, range number four, containing forty acres each: both of which said tracts I entered on that day. The said register requested me to show him my money. I did show to him the money: he said it was not land office money, and also said that he would "fix it" for me. Flood took the money and gave me scrip in place thereof, with which I entered the land. He swore me to an affidavit declaring the land to be for my own use, for which he made me pay to him fifty cents. At the same time I entered a tract of about forty-four acres for George Bollman, in township seven, range four, (and, as I now think, was a part of section three.) The said Flood demanded the money in this case also, which I gave to him. He said it was not land office money: likewise offered to "fix it" if I would give him two dollars. This I refused to do. He then sent (as I understood him to be,) his son to the receiver's office, and entered the land with scrip, in the name of Bollman, and kept the money.

Second interrogatory. Was the said Bollman at Zanesville on that day? Were you sworn anything in relation to the entry of the land of Bollman? Did you sign Bollman's name to an affidavit? If so, state the facts.

Answer. Bollman was not at Zanesville on that day. I left Bollman at home when I went, and found him there when I returned. I do not know that Bollman was ever at Zanesville until this spring. I did sign Bollman's name to a paper which the said Flood informed me was absolutely necessary to effect the entry. He asked me if I was willing to swear that Bollman wanted the land for his own use, and that there was no person living on the said land? I informed the said register that Bollman wanted the land for his own use, and that there was no person living on it. I told him that I did not wish to swear; but stated that I knew those facts. He then stated that I could not swear; that it would be improper for me to do so. Flood then went to writing, and said that he must certify to a lie, (and laughed heartily.) He charged me twenty-five cents fees in the case of Bollman, which I paid.

Third interrogatory. Did the said Flood, register, make any further remarks in relation to this subject? If so, state what further remarks he made that attracted your attention at that time.

Answer. When the boy had got out at the door to go to the receiver's office, Flood said to him, if they say anything at the other office, tell them that the man is tired (or sick.) He then remarked to me that when any person wanted to enter forty acre tracts they had better come themselves.

Fourth interrogatroy. What did you understand by those remarks: "I must certify to a lie," "tell them that the man is tired, (or sick,") and, "they had better come themselves?" Please to state what your understanding was in relation to the meaning of those remarks.

Asnwer. I thought that he was doing something that was not just correct. I knowed it; but could not just tell what it was. Any further I know not.

JOHN KERN.

SEVENTH.

Henry Brant, having been first duly sworn as aforesaid, was also interrogated as follows, (by the same:)

First interrogatory. Have you any knowledge of the fact that any register or receiver of public moneys at any of the land offices of the United States has been interested with speculators or others who have become the purchasers of the public lands, or shared with them in the profits arising from such sale, or taken a bonus, or charged fees, from purchasers to which they were not entitled by law?

Answer. Not that I know of. They might have done it, and I not know of it, because I know nothing about law, much.

Second interrogatory. Are you acquainted at the register's office at Zanesville, and with Thomas Flood, (late) register of that office? Have you had conversation with him on the subject of entering land? If so, state when, where, and what that conversation was.

Answer. On the seventeenth day of May, 1832, I sent by John King, and entered the west half of the northeast quarter of section four, township seven, range four, containing 89.25 acres. On the 19th day of July, 1832, I became acquainted with Thomas Flood, register of that office, and received from him a certificate in the following words:

"July 19, 1832.

"I, Thomas Flood, register of the land office at Zanesville, Ohio, do hereby certify that John King did not make oath that there was no person residing on the land that he entered for Henry Brant, which report is in circulation. The laws concerning such entries were not received at this office until three days after Brant's entry.

"T. FLOOD, Register."

When I received from Flood the paper, of which the foregoing is a copy, he told me that he could do nothing for me until the 5th of October, and stated to me, if Dickey paid the money by that time, I would get the money, and if not, I would keep the land. On the 3d day of October, 1832, I again went to Flood's office. He then told me that Dickey had been there, and was to pay the money by the 5th. Flood asked me which I would rather have, the money or the land? I told him I was willing to take either. On the 6th day of October aforesaid, I again called to see about the business, and Flood then informed me that I must keep the land, that Dickey had failed to pay the money against the time. I never paid him any fees.

HENRY BRANT.

EIGHTH.

Christian Forney, having been first duly sworn as aforesaid, was also interrogated as follows, (by the same):

First interrogatory. Do you know of any register or receiver having accepted a bonus in money, or in the form of interest, for securing particular tracts of land to such purchaser as would comply with the terms prescribed to them in this respect? And if so, did such officer mark any part of the public lands laid down on the maps of survey in any manner which designated the land as entered, when in fact it had not been actually sold or entered? And what kind of mark was placed on such map? State what you know in relation to this subject.

Answer. On or about the last of March, 1832, Christian Burger employed me to go to the register's office at Zanesville to secure for him a piece of land, to wit: east half of the southeast quarter of section five, township seven, of range four: he gave me twenty-five dollars, and instructed me, if possible, to secure for him the land in question. I went to the register's office at Zanesville, and applied to Thomas Flood, the register, at the same time informed him that I had only twenty-five dollars of the money. Flood replied, you cannot enter it; you must get sombody to hold it for you. I asked him how? and he said "give me five dollars, and I will keep it two months." I then gave to the said Flood the twenty-five dollars, and he gave me a receipt in my name for twenty dollars, and also wrote my name on the map. I objected to having the land marked on the map in my name as the five dollars bonus was paid, and the deposit of twenty dollars was the money sent by Mr. Burger, for whom I was only acting as agent, and contended that his name should be on the map, as the land was for him. Flood said it would make no odds: when the other money came he would fix it then.

Second interrogatory. Did the register enjoin on you secrecy in relation to this subject? State what the facts in this respect were.

Answer. When I left the office, Flood walked with me down the street some distance, (perhaps one hundred yards or more,) and charged me not to go to the other office, or say anything about it, and told me to say when I returned home that I had entered the land. He also observed that, when the other money was ready, it would perhaps be better for me to come down and bring it. I then asked the said Flood how it would be if the man (Burger,) could not make the money against the time? He said, send down that receipt, and he could get back the twenty dollars on producing the receipt. I took the receipt, and gave it to Burger, and informed him what Flood said.

Third interrogatory. Has it been generally understood for several years past through this section of country, that people could get land "saved," "secured," "kept," or "retained," by paying some small sum at the register's office of five or ten dollars as a bonus until they could make up the purchase money? State what you know in relation to this subject.

Answer. I did not so understand it until about the time of this affair. Since that time, I have heard of others, and considerable said on the subject. And further I know not.

CHRISTIAN FORNEY.

NINTH.

Christian Burger, having been duly sworn as aforesaid, was also interrogated in the following manner, (by the same:)

First interrogatory. Did you employ Christian Forney to go to Zanesville and secure the land for you as he has stated? Was you satisfied with his transaction of that business?

Answer. I did so employ him. I was satisfied with him in that respect. I was not satisfied with Flood on account of his charging the bonus of five dollars.

JOSEPH C. HANCE, Deputy Clerk. [SEAL.]

DISTRICT OF OHIO, ss:

I, John Burwell, of Muskingum county, do hereby certify that, after the witnesses had first been duly qualified, the within and foregoing interrogatories were by me severally reduced to writing, and proposed severally to the witnesses each in succession as they stand in the catalogue of the within and foregoing depositions. Also, that the answers reduced to writing in succession, after each interrogatory as hereinbefore recorded, are the same as made thereto by the witness or witnesses respectively; and that each and every of the said answers were severally read to the witness making the same, after being recorded as they now stand, and were severally acknowledged to be correctly entered.

Given under my hand and seal at Zanesville, this 12th day of May, 1834.

JOHN BURWELL, Commissioner. [SEAL.]

THE STATE OF OHIO, Muskingum County, ss:

Deposition of James G. Hilton, of Zanesville, in said county, of lawful age, having been first duly sworn according to law, before Anthony Wilkins, Esquire, that he will true, full, and perfect answers make to all and singular the interrogatories that may be proposed to him touching the public service. The following were severally put to the witness, by John Burwell:

First interrogatory. Do you know whether any register or receiver of public moneys at any of the land offices of the United States has been guilty of fraud or partiality in the sales of public lands, by adopting rules and regulations in their respective offices inconsistent with the laws of the United States?

Answer. I do not.

Second interrogatory. Do you know anything in relation to the system of retaining land, saving land, or securing land, as it is called, said to be practiced at the register's office at Zanesville?

Answer. Of my own knowledge I know nothing.

Third interrogatory. Have you any knowledge of any register or receiver as aforesaid having taken fees for the performance of their official duties not allowed by law?

Answer. I know not what the law does allow them. I have never been in the habit of frequenting those offices, except in a few instances on business.

Fourth interrogatory. Do you live in that part of the town, and near the register's office? Are you in the habit of passing frequently, and do you know whether George H. Flood was clerking in that office in 1831?

Answer. I live in that part of the town. I think he was; I am positive of it.

Fifth interrogatory. Have you any knowledge of the trade in scrip? Can you state anything in relation to that business, how it is carried on, and by whom? If such is within your knowledge respecting the proceedings at that office, state the same.

Answer. In eighteen hundred and thirty-two, I was an acting justice of the peace at Zanesville. Thomas Flood, the then register of the land office, called on me to attend at his office for a few days, while he was to be absent, for the purpose of swearing persons that were applicants for forty acre lots, as prescribed by law. I remained there for about ten days during the absence of the register. Mr. Charles Stetson was, at all times, a constant attendant at the register's office. I have frequently seen said Stetson receive the money from purchasers, telling them to remain in that office; and that he, Stetson, would bring them their certificate from the receiver, stating, at the same time, that the receiver was not in, and that he, Stetson, done business for him, the receiver, in his absence. The papers or certificates of purchase, were uniformly returned by said Stetson, to the purchaser.

Sixth interrogatory. Do you know or believe that the receiver employed Mr. Stetson to transact business for him as aforesaid? or do you not believe and know that the receiver was at home at the time, and attending to the business of his office, by the handwriting on the certificates returned?

Answer. I do not know or believe that Mr. Van Horne, the receiver, ever employed or permitted Mr. Stetson to transact the business for him. The certificates were uniformly in the handwriting of the receiver; therefore, I know he was attending to his official business; and I frequently saw him at his own and at the register's office.

Seventh interrogatory. What induced Mr. Stetson to attend to the business of those purchasers? what was his profession? Please to state what you know in relation to his motive.

Answer. Mr. Stetson is, by profession, an attorney at law. The inducement to attend to this business, I presume, was to pass off his scrip for money. I know of no other motive.

Eighth interrogatory. Was Thomas Flood acquainted with the proceedings of Mr. Stetson as aforesaid? and do you not know that Mr. Stetson has been in the constant habit of attending at that office for the purpose of passing off scrip, until the office of register became vacant within a few days?

Answer. I pass that office generally several times in a day. I have not seen Mr. Stetson pass off scrip. I have seen him have scrip, and I almost always see him at the office as I pass; but as I only pass by, had no opportunity of knowing what was going on in the office. Mr. Stetson occupies Mr. Gilbert's office, which is under the same roof with that of the register. J. G. HILTON.

Sworn and subscribed to before me, this 21st day of April, 1834.

ANTHONY WILKINS, Justice of the Peace. [L. S.]

THE STATE OF OHIO, Muskingum County, ss:

Deposition of George H. Hilton, of Zanesville, in said county, of lawful age, having been first duly sworn, before Anthony Wilkins, Esq., that he would true, full, and perfect answers make to all and singular the interrogatories which may be proposed to him touching the public service.

The following were proposed (by John Burwell:)

First interrogatory. Do you know whether any register of the land offices of the United States, or receivers of public moneys at any of those offices, have been guilty of fraud or partiality in the sales of public lands at public or private sale, by adopting rules and regulations in their respective offices inconsistent with the laws of the United States?

Answer. I believe the register of the land office at Zanesville, Thomas Flood, has been guilty in many instances.

Second interrogatory. What grounds have you to believe that Thomas Flood, as register of the land office at Zanesville, has been guilty so as aforesaid? Please to state what you know in relation to the subject?

Answer. I was employed by Thomas Flood, then register of the land office at Zanesville, as a clerk in that office for about the space of nine months prior to the third day of January, eighteen hundred and thirty-three; and during that time, I have known the said Flood to take small sums of money from persons who applied to him for the purpose of saving land, and then mark on the particular tract on the plat so applied for, "retained;" after which he would make out an application, and take the affidavit of the person, and those papers Flood generally took from the office to his own house. I think in most cases the applicant took a receipt for the money paid.

Third interrogatory. Were those small sums of money received by the register taken as a fee for keeping the land back from a fair competition in the market? and did other persons apply for those lands, or any of them; and did the register remark to such second applicant that the land was entered or "retained?" State what you know.

Answer. I understood that the money was paid as a deposit in part payment for the land. Generally, in those cases, the register and the applicant would go out of the office and hold a private conversation; then come in and transact the business as aforesaid, and go out and hold another private conversation. I have no distinct recollection of any particular case of second applicants where lands were thus marked "retained." When persons came to enter land, on looking over the plats, if the tract so marked attracted attention, I informed such persons that the tract, as I supposed, was entered, and the name had not been, as yet, placed there.

Fourth interrogatory. If those persons came and paid up for those tracts marked as aforesaid, who received the money? and was it paid into the hands of the receiver, or was it kept by the register? Who paid the receiver; or how were the certificates of purchase procured, and by whom? If you can so state, please relate the process of operation relative to those cases.

Answer. In some instances persons would send the remainder of the purchase money; and that part already in the hands of the register was added. Sometimes I went and paid the receiver, and sometimes Esquire Flood went himself. When the person was himself present, the papers were given to him, with the money deposited, and he went himself to the receiver.

Fifth interrogatory. Have you any knowledge of the fact that any register or receiver as aforesaid has, at any time, been interested with speculators or others, who became the purchasers of the public lands so marked, or shared with them the profits arising out of such purchases?

Answer. I have no knowledge respecting the conduct of other officers, excepting the said Flood, in this respect, and I never saw Mr. Flood receive any money immediately from speculators, except a fee for swearing persons to the affidavit as a justice of the peace, in cases where lands were to be entered with scrip.

Sixth interrogatory. What sum of money did this fee that you mention consist of?

Answer. He received from those who were speculators in scrip fifty cents, and twenty-five cents from those who paid the money and entered forty acre tracts.

Seventh interrogatory. By "speculators in scrip," do you mean persons who came to purchase land with scrip, or do you here refer only to persons who attend at the register's office to convert scrip into money?

Answer. By "speculators," I mean those who were engaged in converting scrip into money at that office.

Eighth interrogatory. Was Thomas Flood, the register, engaged in converting scrip into money? Was he interested in passing off scrip? Did he assist in procuring the money from the purchasers of the public lands to be paid into the hands of those speculators? and, if so, state to whom such agency was afforded.

Answer. I cannot say that he was himself immediately engaged in converting scrip into money. He was interested in getting scrip passed off, as he received fifty cents fees on every entry made with scrip, which he did not receive when the land was paid for in money. He did assist in procuring the money to be paid by the purchasers into the hands of Charles Stetson, who constantly attended at that office for the purpose of passing off scrip. Flood would say to the purchaser, "give this man" (referring to said Stetson) "the money, and he will pay for the land, and bring you the receiver's receipt," and the purchaser would give Mr. Stetson the money. Stetson would then give to said Flood fifty cents for the scrip affidavit.

Ninth interrogatory. At whose expense was this fifty cent fee paid—by the purchaser or the speculator? If you can so state, please to answer that fact.

Answer. The speculator always paid this fifty cent fee, when the purchaser paid the money at the time the entry was made. When the purchaser procured a credit from the speculator in scrip, (which was frequently the case,) the purchaser, in those cases, paid the fifty cent fee. Those cases of credit to the purchasers were not (to my knowledge) given by Mr. Stetson at any time.

Tenth interrogatory. In those cases of credit you refer to by the speculators to the purchasers, were the entries made at the time such credit was given? Were any of those tracts marked on the plats prior to making of such entry, or any of them, and, if so, by whom were those tracts marked on the plat or plats, and for what purpose were such marks placed on the plat? If you can so state, relate the whole subject.

Answer. In relation to the entries referred to, on which the purchasers obtained a credit, the entries were made at the time, and those lands were paid for in scrip by the speculator. I have no recollection of any of those tracts being marked prior to the entry being made. There were other cases, however, where credits were given, and the plats marked, and to which I had no reference in answering the question, "at whose expense the fifty cent fee" was paid.

Eleventh interrogatory. In those cases where a credit was given, and the plats marked, by whom were those credits given; by whom were the plats so marked, and for what purpose were they marked; and what kind of mark was so placed on the plat as aforesaid? If you can so state, relate the whole circumstance; the process by which those proceedings were had, and who was concerned in such practice or practices.

Answer. While I was employed as clerk at the register's office, in several instances persons came to pay Charles C. Gilbert money for lands which they stated to me had been entered one year before that time. On turning to the plat I found the person's name in Mr. Gilbert's handwriting on the plat of the tracts described. On looking over the tract book, I could not find that the lands were entered. When I so informed those persons that there was no entry made on the books, I learned from those persons that one year before that time a contract had been entered into with Mr. Gilbert to enter the land in question, and that the purchaser had given to Gilbert his note, payable in one year; that the time was up, and that he had come to pay the money. In those cases the purchasers went to Gilbert, and the said Gilbert came with the purchasers to the register's office, where the money was paid by the purchaser to Gilbert, the obligation destroyed, and the application made out by Gilbert, and the entry made (in the name of the purchaser) on the same day the money was so paid.

Twelfth interrogatory. Did you see the money paid and the obligation destroyed in those particular cases?

Answer. Yes.

Thirteenth interrogatory. Was the register present at the time last referred to? Was he acquainted with those, or any other circumstances in which Mr. Gilbert gave a credit, and marked the plats so as aforesaid? And did the register, Mr. Flood, permit Mr. Gilbert, knowingly, to do those things in his office?

Answer. It appeared so to me, as I know Mr. Flood saw, in one particular instance, the name was written on the plat before the application was made for the entry. I also know that Mr. Gilbert had access to, and was frequently looking over the books and plats in that office; and I also know that the money was frequently paid in presence of the said Flood, by the purchaser to Gilbert, and the obligation destroyed, all in his presence, without any objection on the part of the register.

Fourteenth interrogatory. Do you know what induced Mr. Gilbert to give those credits? Did he receive a premium or bonus for securing those lands? If so, did the register participate in making those contracts or procuring them to be made? If you know anything in relation to this subject, state the same?

Answer. The bonus for securing lands received by the speculators was from ten to twenty dollars on the hundred. Such was Mr. Gilbert's practice as I then understood. I have no recollection of any participation by the register in making any contract between Mr. Gilbert and any other person; neither do I know whether the register received any part of the bonus from Mr. Gilbert. I have known the said Flood to assist in making contracts between other speculators and purchasers; but in those cases the lands were entered at the time when the contract was made, and the plats not marked before the entries were made.

Fifteenth interrogatory. Who were those "other" speculators alluded to in your last answer?

Answer. E. Buckingham, jr. and Company, Daniel Brush, and Dr. Jonas Stanbery.

Sixteenth interrogatory. Did those last-named speculators receive facilities through the register, Thomas Flood, for which he, the said register, received a remuneration in money or otherwise?

Answer. I have no knowledge of other facilities than those named, as I have before stated, in which Flood assisted in making contracts; except in an instance where, for about the space of three months, I was engaged in passing off scrip for Mr. Brush, in which the register assisted me by saying to the purchaser, "Give your money to that young man, and he will attend to the business for you:" by which the money came to my hands, and I applied the scrip in payment for the land. I received a compensation for passing off the scrip, by reason of which I served as a clerk in the register's office for less wages than I otherwise would have done. After the passing off scrip ceased with me, I received the fees for plats, field notes, and examining maps, &c., which Mr. Flood reserved to himself while I was passing scrip.

Seventeenth interrogatory. Do you know of any other facilities wherein persons speculating in scrip, or otherwise, received facilities through the said Flood by reason of and for which he was compensated?

Answer. I recollect one very rainy night a man came to enter two half quarters of land. Flood demanded of the applicant to see his money, which the purchaser handed to him: after looking over the money, Flood said it was not all land office money, and sent me up to Mr. Stetson to tell him to come and change scrip for the money. Stetson came and took the money, and gave the scrip in payment for the land, and brought to the purchaser the certificates from the receiver. In this case Flood received fifty cents fees on each half quarter for the affidavits, making one dollar. I also knew said Flood, in many instances, (when purchasers came to enter land, and Mr. Stetson happened to be absent from the register's office and in his office, which is under the same roof,) to go and tell Stetson that there was a man in the office that wanted to enter land; to come and take his money and pay it out. Stetson would come in and take the money, and apply the scrip in payment for the land. Whether Flood received any further compensation than the fees for the affidavit I am not able to say.

Eighteenth interrogatory. From the manner in which Mr. Gilbert and Mr. Stetson as aforesaid were received and permitted by the register to conduct in that office, might not a stranger coming there to purchase land have taken those persons for clerks, or even principal, in the said office?

Answer. Yes. Mr. Stetson frequently filled up applications, affidavits, examined the maps, and examined the books in the office as though he was clerk or principal. A stranger might well suppose he belonged to the office.

Nineteenth interrogatory. Do you know anything in relation to speculations at that office in scrip or forfeited land stock, in which the said register in anywise participated, other than those before stated? If so, state what you know on the subject.

Answer. There was one instance in which the register received from Wyllys Silliman a certificate of forfeited land stock for about sixteen dollars. Flood held Silliman's note for about twenty dollars, which he bought for five, from an old man. Mr. Silliman made the assignment on the certificate to the United States. Flood gave the note for the certificate. Flood did not appear in the transaction on paper. At the request of the register I passed off the stock certificate in payment for land, and handed over the money to Flood. I do not recollect anything further in relation to scrip.

Twentieth interrogatory. Can you state the names of those individuals to whom Mr. Gilbert gave the credits, took their obligations, and marked the plats? Can you state any of their names? If within your recollection, name them.

Answer. At the time I understood their names, and presume I then recorded them in the books; but they were strangers, and I do not recollect at this time any of their names. But I have a perfect recollection of the circumstances.

Twenty-first interrogatory. In those transactions you have mentioned respecting fifty cent fees from the speculator, and twenty-five cents from purchasers of forty acre tracts, do I understand you to say that in those cases when forty acre tracts were entered with scrip, that the register received twenty-five cents from the purchaser, and fifty cents from the speculator, making, in all, seventy-five cents on each tract?

Answer. When cash was paid for a forty acre lot, the purchaser paid twenty-five cents for the affidavit required by law: in those cases the register received only the twenty-five cent fee; but if scrip was substituted in place of money in payment for the land, then the register received twenty-five cents from the purchaser, as before stated, for the affidavit required by law, and also fifty cents from the speculator for a scrip affidavit, making, in all, seventy-five cents.

Twenty-second interrogatory. Do you mean to convey the idea that the register made fifty cents more on every entry made with scrip than he made on those where the money was paid to the receiver, and therefore he was interested to the amount of fifty cents on every tract where scrip was substituted in place of money in payment for land?

Answer. Though I intended to convey no particular idea other than a simple narration of the facts in answer to the interrogatory proposed, yet such is the fact, that the register did make fifty cents more on every tract where scrip was substituted in payment than where money was paid for land.

Twenty-third interrogatory. Did the register, Thomas Flood, manifest particular anxiety to have scrip passed off in and about his office?

Answer. He did.

ANTHONY WILKINS, J. P. [SEAL.]

May 7, 1834.

George H. Hilton, who testified, answered, and signed to the foregoing interrogatories, was this day brought forward, and again sworn as aforesaid, after which the said witness was interrogated (by the same):

Twenty-fourth interrogatory. Do you know anything in relation to a certain sign said to have been used at the office of Thomas Flood, register of the land office at Zanesville, that was frequently placed at or near the door of that office? And if so, please to state all you may know in relation thereto? Of what did such sign consist; who constructed, who directed the making, how, and for what purpose was it used? If you can so state, relate all the circumstances in relation to the making, the materials, the using, the purpose, and by whom, and for whose benefit the same was used.

Answer. I know that there was a sign kept at that office; at the instance of the register, Mr. Charles Stetson furnished a part of an old bonnet, consisting of pasteboard and black silk, of which Mr. Stetson and myself constructed the sign by cutting it into a square form. Mr. Stetson cut a hole through it to hang on a nail near the door on the outside of the office:—the front of the office was painted white. The sign of the pasteboard covered with black silk was hung out by order of the register directing me to do so. Also, it was frequently hung out by the register himself to notify Mr. Stetson, (who was concerned in the scrip trade), to come to the office whenever purchasers came to enter land.

Twenty-fifth interrogatory. Do you know anything in relation to making affidavits (said to be made,) at the said office, whereby a person was represented to have sworn and subscribed to an affidavit, when in fact the person whose affidavit the same purported to be was not present, and had no hand in subscribing to, or testifying to such pretended affidavit? If so, state how and by whom made.

Answer. I do know that such affidavits were made. A person sometimes would apply to enter land for another. The register (or the clerk at the office by his direction) in those cases filled up a printed blank in the same manner as though the purchaser had been present; the agent signed the name of the absent purchaser to the affidavit; Flood swore the agent, and certified the affidavit as a justice of the peace. The affidavit, when so made, appeared as though the person in whose name the land was entered had been personally present, and wrote his own signature, and been qualified to the truth of what was therein set forth, when in fact he never saw the said affidavit.

Twenty-sixth interrogatory. Do you know anything in relation to the practice said to have been adopted at the said register's office, by which purchasers of land were made to sign an affidavit containing an assertion that they wished to apply a certain military land scrip in payment for the tract they were entering, to which said affidavit they were sworn, (by the register, acting as a justice of the peace,) without knowing or hearing of scrip at the time?

Answer. Yes. In those cases the register inquired of the purchaser whether there was any person living on the land? If he replied there was not, he would then swear him to it without the affidavit being read to him.

Twenty-seventh interrogatory. Was this a common practice pursued at that office for the purpose of enabling Mr. Stetson and others to convert scrip into cash without communicating a knowledge of the design to the purchaser, and to cause the scrip to pass at the receiver's office?

Answer. I so understand it. The practice was frequently resorted to while I was clerking at the office.

Twenty-eighth interrogatory. Do you know anything further in relation to such practices at that office?

Answer. At this time I have no further recollection of any.

Twenty-ninth interrogatory. Are the local situations of the said register's office, and the residence of Mr. Stetson, such as to enable Mr. Stetson when at his residence, by looking towards the place, could he [to] discover the sign referred to, (when on the nail at or near the door at the usual place for it to be hung,) when purchasers came for land?

Answer. Yes.

ANTHONY WILKINS, J. P.

THE STATE OF OHIO, Muskingum County, ss:

Deposition of Solomon Sturges, of Springfield township, in said county, (of lawful age,) having been first duly sworn according to law, that he will make true, full, and perfect answers to all and singular the interrogatories that may be proposed to him touching the public service:

The following interrogatories were severally proposed to the witness, (by John Burwell:)

First interrogatory. Do you know whether the registers of the land offices and receivers of public moneys at any of the land offices of the United States, (in this State,) or either of them, have, in violation of law and their official duties, demanded or accepted a bonus or premium from any purchaser of the public lands at public or private sale, for the benefit of such officer or officers, as a condition on which such purchaser or purchasers should be allowed to enter or purchase any tract or tracts of land offered for sale by the United States?

Answer. I do not.

Second interrogatory. Do you know whether any register or receiver of any of the land offices aforesaid has been guilty of fraud or partiality in the sale of public lands, by adopting rules and regulations in their respective offices inconsistent with the laws of the United States?

Answer. I know of none.

Third interrogatory. Have they demanded of the purchaser or purchasers fees or compensation for the performance of their official duties not authorized by law? If you have any knowledge of the existence of such fact, please state the same.

Answer. I know of none.

Fourth interrogatory. Have any of the registers or receivers as aforesaid been interested with speculators or others, who became the purchasers of the public lands, or in any way shared with them the profits arising out of such purchase or purchases, other than their lawful fees? If you have such knowledge, please state what you know in relation to the subject.

Answer. I know of none.

Fifth interrogatory. Are you acquainted at the register's office at Zanesville, and with the late register, Thomas Flood? And if so, have you any knowledge of the practices said to be pursued at that office in relation to scrip speculations? Was the said register at any time concerned in speculating by passing off scrip, or has the same been permitted by him to be done in or at his office by his clerk, clerks, agent, agents, or dependents, or either of them? If such is within your knowledge, please state the same.

Answer. I am acquainted at the register's office at Zanesville, and with the said register. Immediately on the first issuing of military bounty land scrip late in the year eighteen hundred and thirty, or early in eighteen hundred and thirty-one, I placed in the hands of George H. Flood, Esq., the son of the register, some of said scrip to be sold, for which I was to allow him a commission; that, some time afterwards, as well as I can recollect, within a few months, the said George informed me that he was advised that it was not proper for him to have anything to do in it. Since that period he has not been so employed, or any other clerk of said Flood; but have since employed Mr. C. C. Gilbert and Mr. Charles Stetson to sell scrip for me, their office being adjoining and under the same roof with the register's office. I believe they have, in some instances, been permitted to sell scrip within the register's office.

Sixth interrogatory. Did you not employ George H. Flood to pass off scrip as aforesaid, by and with the advice and consent of his father, the register?

Answer. As far as I can recollect, his father did not advise, but I believe it was with his knowledge.

Seventh interrogatory. Have you not had conversation with Thomas Flood, the said register, wherein you informed him that there were reports in circulation prejudicial to his official character; and did you not caution him on the subject, and did he not treat such advice indignantly or roughly?

Answer. I do not recollect any particulars of such conversation.

Eighth interrogatory. Do you not know that charges have been frequently made against the official conduct of the said register by persons who have attended at his office to enter land?

Answer. I do not.

Ninth interrogatory. Do you know anything further in relation to the official conduct of the said register, as to his official conduct, not warranted by the laws of the United States?

Answer. I am not able to state any.

Tenth interrogatory. Do you know anything in relation to the official conduct of any receiver of public moneys? Have they, or any of them, been concerned in speculating upon the funds paid into their hands for the public lands? Have they, or any of them, sold good funds, and placed funds of less value in the place thereof, to the injury of the United States?

Answer. I do not.

WM. H. MOORE, Justice of the Peace. [L. S.]

THE STATE OF OHIO, Muskingum County, ss:

Deposition of Jonas Stanbery, sen., of Zanesville, in said county, of lawful age, having been first duly sworn according to law, before Anthony Wilkins, Esq., that he would true, full, and perfect answers make to all and singular the interrogatories that shall be proposed to him, the following interrogatories were proposed to the witness, (by John Burwell:)

First interrogatory. Do you know whether any of the registers of the land offices of the United States, or receivers of public moneys at those offices, or either of them, have been guilty of fraud or partiality in the sales of the public lands, by adopting rules and regulations in their respective offices inconsistent with the laws of the United States?

Answer. I do not, except it has, in some cases, been the practice adopted at the register's, Thomas Flood's, office at Zanesville, to take the affidavit of agents who applied in behalf of absent persons to enter forty acre lots.

Second interrogatory. Was this practice adopted by the register, Thomas Flood? Were those persons legally agents for the absent persons referred to, or were they only entrusted, as it were, by one neighbor to do an errand for the other? Was the name of the absent person signed to those affidavits, and sworn to by the agent alluded to? Did the affidavit, when completed, purport to be the affidavit of an individual who never had seen it, or knew, at the time of the making of the said affidavit, anything in relation to the existence of the same? Please to state the whole transaction as it occurred.

Answer. It has to my knowledge, in some cases, been the practice with the register, Thomas Flood, to take the affidavits of agents, who applied in behalf of absent persons, for forty acre lots; but whether such agents were legally authorized, I know not. I am not positive whether the names of the agents, or the names of the absent persons for whom the entries were made, were signed to the affidavits. I am, however, under the impression that the names of the absent persons were signed to the affidavits by the agents.

Third interrogatory. Did you not suggest to the said register the impropriety of such a course of proceedings?

Answer. I did.

Fourth interrogatory. Is it not necessary, in all cases, in making those entries, that the affidavit should correspond with the application in respect to the name of the person or persons in whose name the entry is so made?

Answer. I so understand it.

Fifth interrogatory. Have you known any instance wherein any register or receiver as aforesaid, have marked any part of the public lands laid down on the maps of survey "sold," or in any other manner which designated the land as entered, when, in fact, the lands so marked had not been actually sold or entered?

Answer. I have no personal knowledge of any such fact.

Sixth interrogatory. Have you any knowledge of the fact that any register or receiver as aforesaid has, at any time, been interested with speculators who became the purchasers of the public lands, and shared in the profits arising out of the sales or purchases of any lands sold at public or private sales by the United States?

Answer. Thomas Flood, register of the land office at Zanesville, charges seventy-five cents for the affidavits where forty acre tracts are entered with scrip.

Seventh interrogatory. Have you any knowledge of any lands having been sold at public or private sale as aforesaid, otherwise than for cash in ready money?

Answer. I have no personal knowledge of such transaction.

Eighth interrogatory. Have you not, from your own observation of the course pursued at the register's office by the said register, his clerks, and dependents, as to induce you, in company with some other person, seriously to advise Mr. Flood, at several times, of the impropriety of such course? And if so, please to state his reply to you on the subject.

Answer. I did once, in company with Solomon Sturges, call on Mr. Flood, but cannot now exactly recollect the subject of our conversation. For the remaining part of my answer, I refer to my answer to the third interrogatory.

Ninth interrogatory. Have any combinations of speculators, at any public sale of lands, united for the purpose of driving other purchasers out of the market, and deterring poor men from bidding for the lands on which they resided, or other lands which they might desire to purchase for actual settlement or cultivation, and thereby taking into their own hands the control of the sales for their own benefit, and purchased all the lands at the minimum price of the government? If you have any knowledge in relation to this subject, please to state what you may know in relation thereto.

Answer. I know of no such combination or combinations.

Tenth interrogatory. Have you any further recollection of improper transactions at the land offices in this town, or either of them, other than those hereinbefore referred to by you?

Answer. I have no particular recollection of anything.

Eleventh interrogatory. Do you not know that charges have been made against the official conduct of the register, Thomas Flood, by persons who went there to purchase land? And if so, state whether those persons were resident in the immediate neighborhood of that office; also give their names, or any of them, if you can state the same.

Answer. I have heard complaints made against the register, but do not recollect the nature of such complaints, nor the names or places of residence of the persons, but they were living at a distance from this place.

JONAS STANBERY.

Sworn and subscribed to before me, April 25, 1834.

ANTHONY WILKINS, Justice of the Peace. [L. S.]

THE STATE OF OHIO, Muskingum County, ss:

Depositions taken as aforesaid.

Henry Stanbery, who having been first duly sworn according to law, before Anthony Wilkins, Esq., that he would true, full, and perfect answers make to all and singular the interrogatories that may be proposed to him, the following were proposed (by John Burwell:)

First interrogatory. Do you know whether any register or receiver of public moneys at any of the land offices of the United States has been guilty of fraud or partiality in the sales of the public lands, by adopting rules and regulations in their respective offices inconsistent with the laws of the United States? If so, please to state what you may know in relation to the subject.

Answer. I have no personal knowledge of any rules or regulations adopted by such officers inconsistent with the laws of the United States.

Second interrogatory. Do you know of any transaction at the land offices in the Zanesville district in which the register or receiver has violated his duty?

Answer. Some time, according to my present impression, in the fall of 1831, I happened to be at the house of my father, Jonas Stanbery, in Zanesville. My younger brother, Charles Stanbery, went with some person desirous of making an entry, whose name I do not recollect, to the register's office. In a short time they returned, and stated that the register had refused to allow the entry, as the land was retained. I immediately went with the applicant to the register's office. I inquired of the register, Thomas Flood, if the land was vacant; and, at the same time, expressed, in strong terms, my surprise that the applicant had been denied the entry upon the pretence that the land was retained, which was a mode of appropriating the public lands that I did not understand. The register, after some little hesitation, admitted that the land was subject to entry, and accordingly the application was received, and the land regularly entered. I have no personal knowledge of any other transaction in which either of the officers designated has violated his official duty.

Third interrogatory. Have you any knowledge of any other of the officers at any of the land offices of the United States who have violated their official duty or duties? If so, please to state what you may know in relation thereto.

Answer. I have no personal knowledge of any such violations.

Fourth interrogatory. Do you know of any combination or combinations of speculators, at any public sale of lands, united for the purpose of driving other purchasers out of the market, and thereby taking into their own hands the control of the sales for their own benefit, and purchased the lands at the minimum price of the government.

Answer. I know of no such combination. And further I know not.

HENRY STANBERY.

Sworn and subscribed to before me, this 5th day of May, 1834.

ANTHONY WILKINS, Justice of the Peace.

May 6, 1834.

Charles Stanbery, who, having been duly sworn, as aforesaid, the following interrogatories were severally proposed to the witness (by John Burwell:)

First interrogatory. Do you know of any instance wherein any register or receiver of public moneys at any of the land offices of the United States have been guilty of fraud or partiality in the sales of the public lands, by adopting rules and regulations in their respective offices inconsistent with the laws of the United States? If so, please to state what you do know in relation thereto.

Answer. Some time in August or September, 1831, I was requested by my father, Jonas Stanbery, to accompany a man (whose name I do not now recollect,) to the land office, to assist him in making an entry of land. I went with him immediately. The land was described to the register, Thomas Flood, and I inquired of him if it was vacant? after examining the plat or map which laid on the table, he replied that it was not open for entry. I repeated my inquiry of him, and asked him again if the land was entered: he replied that it was marked on the map "retained;" and I think (although I am not positive) that he placed his finger on a part of the map where the word "retained" was written, and called my attention to it; and he again informed me that the land was not open for entry, and that he could not grant the application. I returned immediately with the man to my father's house, and, after having related to my father what had taken place at the register's office—that Mr. Flood had refused to grant the man an application, as the tract he wanted was marked "retained" on the plat. My father then requested my elder brother, Henry, (who was then present,) to accompany the man to the register's office, and to make another attempt to obtain the land, as he (my father) had no knowledge of any rule at the land office whereby land could be "retained." My brother Henry immediately left the house in company with the man.

Second interrogatory. Was you present, and an attentive observer last evening (5th instant) when your brother, Henry Stanbery, testified as set forth in the foregoing deposition signed by him? and is the man and the case alluded to by your brother Henry, the same as here referred to by you?

Answer. Yes; I have no recollection of any other case of the kind.

Third interrogatory. Do you know anything in relation to the practice said to be adopted at the said register's office, wherein affidavits are made out which purport to be the affidavit of a person not present at the time of making and using the same, in cases where the law or regulations of the office requires an affidavit of the person making the entry, to be sworn? If so, please to state the process, and what you may know of such transactions, if any.

Answer. I have been present at that office when a tract of land was entered in the following manner, (by hypothesis): A applies to enter a tract in the name of (and for) B, who is not present: the application is made out in the name of B, and A is sworn by the register, (as I understand is necessary in cases of entering forty acre tracts.) Whether A or B's name is placed to the affidavit, I am unable to state.

Fourth interrogatory. Have you any knowledge of mutual interests that have existed between any of the officers charged or entrusted with the sales of public lands at any of the land offices of the United States, and persons employed in speculating in scrip or otherwise, at or in those offices? Have they granted facilities to certain individuals by informing such speculator or speculators, either by calling to or making such signs as to notify such person or persons when applicants came to their office to purchase lands, thereby manifesting an interest in behalf of any such speculator or speculators? If so, state what you may know in relation thereto. Who were such parties; the description of means used by the office to bring the speculator and the purchaser together, if such is within your knowledge.

Answer. I have seen at the register's office at Zanesville a sign placed at or near the door, which I was told was to notify Mr. Charles Stetson that an applicant was present to make an entry. I have heard the register, (Thomas Flood, when an applicant came into that office to purchase land,) request the clerk (in the office) to put out the sign. The clerk took from the shelf a small sign, and placed the same at or near the door, upon the outside of the office. I believe that Mr. Stetson is engaged in passing off scrip for Solomon Sturges.

Fifth interrogatory. Is Mr. Stetson's residence so situate as to enable him to discover the sign from thence, so placed at the register's office? And was he in the habit of attending, immediately after the sign was so given, at the register's office? Please to state what you may know in relation thereto.

Answer. His residence is so situate, and he was in the habit of so attending.

Sixth interrogatory. What are the fees demanded by the register, (Thomas Flood,) in cases of entry of forty acre lots, when entered with scrip, and who pays those fees? If within your knowledge, please to state.

Answer. I have entered land in the name of another person with scrip. In those cases, I have paid seventy-five cents to the register, twenty-five cents of which he demanded as his fee for administering what is called a forty acre oath; and the balance, fifty cents, for the scrip oath. The scrip affidavit was made out, in my cases, at the register's office, and taken from thence by the applicants, who were sworn before a justice of the peace without any additional fee. And further I know not.

Deposition of Peter Wolf, of Butler township, in said county, (of lawful age,) having been first duly affirmed according to law, that he should true, full, and perfect answers make touching the public service. The following interrogatories were severally put to the witness (by John Burwell):

First interrogatory. Do you know whether the registers of the land offices and the receivers of public moneys at any of the land offices of the United States, or either of them, have, in violation of law and their official duties, demanded or accepted a bonus or premium from any purchaser or purchasers of the public lands at public or private sale, for the benefit of such officer or officers, as a condition on which such purchaser or purchasers should be allowed to enter or purchase any tract or tracts of land offered for sale by the United States?

Answer. I do not.

Second interrogatory. Do you know whether any register or receiver, as aforesaid, has been guilty of fraud or partiality in the sales of the public lands, by adopting rules and regulations in their respective offices inconsistent with the laws of the United States?

Answer. I do not.

Third interrogatory. Do you know of any clerk, agent, or dependent, or clerks, agents, or dependents of those offices, who have demeaned themselves so as aforesaid—permitted by the principal incumbent or otherwise?

Answer. I do not.

Fourth interrogatory. Are you acquainted at the register's office, and with the register, Thomas Flood, at Zanesville?

Answer. I cannot say I am much acquainted with him: I never saw him but twice or three times in my life.

Fifth interrogatory. Have you ever applied to him for the purchase of lands belonging at the time to the United States?

Answer. I did not.

Sixth interrogatory. Have you applied to any person or persons at that office, who was either clerk, agent, or dependent at the said office, for the purchase of land as aforesaid? and, if so, who did you apply to?

Answer. I applied to none, knowing that they were officers. I applied to George Flood to bid for me for a piece of land that was to be set up there for sale.

Seventh interrogatory. Where were you at the time you applied to Mr. Flood, and at what time did you so apply as aforesaid?

Answer. The time I cannot tell you, because it was before the sale; it was in the register's office, as near as I can recollect.

Eighth interrogatory. Did Mr. Flood agree with you at the time you state, to purchase the land for you?

Answer. I did not ask him to do that—nothing but to bid for me.

Ninth interrogatory. What sale was it that you refer to, and what land was it that you employed Mr. Flood to bid for as aforesaid, if you did so employ him, and when was the sale to take place?

Answer. I don't know what sale it was called; I did not employ him; I did not give him anything. I reckon a man is not employed unless he gets something.

Tenth interrogatory. How came you to apply to George Flood to bid in your behalf for any land that was about to be sold?

Answer. I went to the land office, and there found out when the sales were to be, and then got him to bid: afterwards sent my son down with the money against the day of sale.

Eleventh interrogatory. What was your son's name with whom you so intrusted your business, and did he perform that service according to your directions?

Answer. His name is Jacob Wolf. I cannot say that he did, because I could not give him any directions more than to take the money and pay for the land.

Twelfth interrogatory. When you engaged George Flood to bid the land off for you, did you promise to send to him the money to pay the price that he should bid for the land, and did you prescribe any limits as to the amount he should bid on the land?

Answer. No, I did not; I was going to take it at the highest bid if my money would reach; and I think that there was money enough to take it at the highest bid.

Thirteenth interrogatory. What land do you here refer to? Please to describe the particular tract and number of acres.

Answer. I cannot, no further than this paper will describe. It is as follows: "For and in consideration of the sum of two hundred and fifty-two dollars to me in hand paid, I do hereby agree to purchase the southwest quarter of section number fifteen, township number six, range number eleven, military, and to make or cause to be made, a good and sufficient deed, in fee simple, for said quarter to Peter Wolf, of Knox county, Ohio, on demand, so soon as the patent shall be received by me from the General Government.

"July 18, 1831. CHAS. C. GILBERT."

Fourteenth interrogatory. Did George Flood neglect or refuse to bid off this land for you according to agreement, and your just expectation?

Answer. That is more than I can tell you. The people that were there can tell whether he bid it off or not.

Fifteenth interrogatory. How came this agreement in writing to exist between you and Mr. Gilbert, and how did you come by this instrument?

Answer. By my son; that's all I can know about it.

Sixteenth interrogatory. Have you not, at any time before or since the 18th day of July, 1831, had conversation with Mr. Gilbert on the subject of the purchase or sale, or purchase and sale of this land.

Answer. No, never in my life; only the last time I was down to Zanesville I asked him whether the land was lost; I understood it was lost, but that was nothing concerning the sale.

[Interrogatories seventeen and eighteen were accidentally left out in setting down numbers.]

Nineteenth interrogatory. What answer did Mr. Gilbert make to your inquiry concerning the loss of the land?

Answer. He said that it was not so; that he knew nothing of it.

Twentieth interrogatory. Have you here stated all the conversation that ever took place between yourself and Mr. Gilbert on the subject of the land here referred to?

Answer. I think I was down once before, and asked him something about it. I was down after a patent, or something.

Twenty-first interrogatory. How long has it been since you had the last conversation with Mr. Gilbert here referred to.

Answer. Sometime along the first of April.

Twenty-second interrogatory. Do you mean the present month?

Answer. Yes.

Twenty-third interrogatory. Did you not go to Zanesville at that time on purpose to see Mr. Gilbert on the subject of that land, and concerning the validity of the title to it.

Answer. I went exactly to see him for that purpose, and asked him the question as I told you before.

Twenty-fourth interrogatory. Did Mr. Gilbert say no more to you on that subject than that "it was not so; that he knew nothing of it?"

Answer. That's the amount of the discourse.

Twenty-fifth interrogatory. Please to state what the whole discourse was in the precise words as delivered by him to you, if you can so state them; and whether there was not something said concerning the money he received from you?

Answer. Well, there was not anything said about the money as I recollect. I told him that I understood that it had been lost by a decision in the United States Supreme Court; he said it could not be so.

Twenty-sixth interrogatory. Have you ever inquired of George Flood since the sale concerning the purchase or sale, or purchase and sale of this land? If any conversation has been had between yourself and Thomas Flood, the then register and George Flood, or any clerk, agent, or dependent, at or belonging to that office, or either of those individuals, on the subject relating to that land as to sale, purchase, or title thereto, please to state what that conversation was.

Answer. When I was down the last time I saw George Flood, and I asked him about it, and he said that he could remember nothing about it, only that he had bid it off for Wolf.

Twenty-seventh interrogatory. Did not George Flood know you when you questioned him on the subject, and did he complain that Wolf had not taken the land at his bid?

Answer. There was not a word more than what I told you: he did not seem to care about giving me any answer, and did not say a word more.

Twenty-eighth interrogatory. Have you not had conversation with Thomas Flood, who was register at the time the sales were made, on the subject of the sale, purchase, or title of the land referred to?

Answer. I asked him before the sale what time the sale would come on, and I do not recollect what he did say.

Twenty-ninth interrogatory. Did Thomas Flood advise you to get George to bid the land off for you?

Answer. I can't say as he did.

Thirtieth interrogatory. How came you to know or apply to George Flood to bid on the land?

Answer. Because he was there, and my son was better acquainted with him than I was.

Thirty-first interrogatory. Was your son Jacob with you at the time here last referred to?

Answer. No; but he had been there three times to see about a piece of land that he entered.

Thirty-second interrogatory. Did your son advise you to employ George Flood to bid off the land?

Answer. No.

Thirty-third interrogatory. What account did your son render of his mission at the time, and on his return from attending the sale referred to?

Answer. Gave me that paper and told me he had bought the land from Gilbert.

Thirty-fourth interrogatory. Did you make no inquiries of your son at the time concerning the purchase and sale—whether Flood had bid for you on the land, or how he came to make the purchase from Gilbert for you?

Answer. Well, he said that Flood bid the land to, I think, three hundred and fifty dollars, and Gilbert took him to one side, and, I reckon, sold him the land. I forget just the same words, because he bought the land from him.

Thirty-fifth interrogatory. Do you not know that there was an understanding amongst hands, to wit: Thomas Flood, the then register, his son, George Flood, Charles C. Gilbert, yourself, and your son Jacob, or some of those persons, to procure that land to you, and prevent the same from falling into any other hands at the time of the public sales?

Answer. I don't. I never said a word to Gilbert on the subject; but from what I have understood, there must have been between my son Jacob and Gilbert on the day of the sale.

Thirty-sixth interrogatory. Can you inform me any further on this subject?

Answer. I cannot. When he came back he showed me what he had got, and that proved that he had bought the land from Gilbert.

Thirty-seventh interrogatory. Prior to your going to Zanesville, about the first of April instant, did you not receive a letter, or other information, requesting you to attend at that place; and was it not for the purpose of procuring from you a statement in relation to the bidding for that land; and did you not at that time, or some time previous, give a statement in writing on that subject by deposition, or otherwise? If so, state the facts in relation to the subject.

Answer. No; I went down for the purpose, as I have stated. I never gave any writing on the subject.

Thirty-eighth interrogatory. Have you stated all you know in relation to this and all other mal-conduct by the land officers, their clerks, agents, or dependents?

Answer. All I know; for I know nothing of any other, except Flood, register.

The following interrogatories were severally put to the witness (by John Burwell:)

First interrogatory. Do you know anything in relation to the official conduct of any of the registers of the land offices in this State, or the receivers of public moneys, in violation of the laws or interests of the United States?

Answer. I do not.

Second interrogatory. What is the general character, in the circle of your acquaintance, as to the official conduct at the register's office in Zanesville?

Answer. I have heard some talk about this land of Wolf's; that is all that I can say.

Third interrogatory. Do you know anything in relation of any combination of persons concerning the sale of the land to Wolf, from Peter Wolf, or his son Jacob Wolf?

Answer. I do not.

Fourth interrogatory. Have you not had a conversation with them, or either of them, in relation to that subject? And if so, state what the conversation was, and in what relation you stand to the family of Peter Wolf.

Answer. There has been conversation between Peter Wolf and myself on the subject, but I do not recollect what that conversation was. I stand in the relation of brother-in-law to Peter Wolf.

CHRISTIAN HORN.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 18th day of April, A. D. 1834, at my office.

WM. McCREARY, J. P. [L. S.]

THE STATE OF OHIO, Knox County, ss:

Deposition of Abraham Day, of ——— township, in said county, of lawful age, having been first duly sworn according to law, that he should true, full, and perfect answers make, the following interrogatories were severally put to the said witness (by John Burwell:)

First interrogatory. Do you know whether the registers of the land offices and the receivers of public moneys at any of the land offices of the United States, or either of them, have, in violation of law and their official duties, demanded or accepted a bonus or premium from any purchaser or purchasers of the public lands, at public or private sale, for the benefit of such officer or officers, as a condition on which such purchaser or purchasers should be allowed to enter or purchase any tract or tracts of land offered for sale by the United States?

Answer. Some time in the spring of eighteen hundred and thirty-one, (in March, 1831, if my memory serves me right,) I applied to Thomas Flood, register of the land office, at his office in Zanesville, for the purchase of the west half of the northwest quarter of section twenty-one, in township five, in range eleven, of the unappropriated lands in the military district. Mr. Flood asked me if I was going to pay money or scrip for the land, and I replied scrip. Flood then stated to me that I must be qualified that there was no person living on the land. I was accordingly qualified. Then said Flood demanded from me fifty cents, which I paid to him. I then asked Flood why he demanded from me fifty cents. He said the law allowed him fifty cents for taking the deposition and keeping a record of the same, because I entered with scrip; and stated that, was I paying the money I should not have the fifty cents to pay. I then had an idea that he had no right to such a fee.

Second interrogatory. Was you qualified before said Flood, acting at the time as a justice of the peace?

Answer. Yes.

Third interrogatory. Have you any further knowledge of transactions at any of those offices not authorized by law?

Answer. I don't know that I have.

ABRAHAM DAY.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, at my office in Clay township, this 17th day of April, A. D. 1834.

WM. McCREARY, J. P. [SEAL.]

THE STATE OF OHIO, Knox County, ss:

Deposition of Adam Mosholder, of Jackson township, in said county, of lawful age, having been first duly sworn, according to law, that he should true, full, and perfect answers make touching the public service. The following interrogatories were severally put to the witness, (by John Burwell:)

First interrogatory. Do you know whether the registers of the land offices and the receivers of public moneys at any of the land offices of the United States, or either of them, have, in violation of law and their official duties, demanded or accepted a bonus or premium from any purchaser or purchasers of the public lands at public or private sale, for the benefit of such officer or officers, as a consideration on which such purchaser or purchasers should be allowed to enter or purchase any tract or tracts of land offered for sale by the United States?

Answer. At the register's office in Zanesville, at the public sales, on the 18th day of July, 1831, when I had stayed there a few minutes, Thomas Flood, the register, went to Jacob Wolf, and called him out to one side at different times; after which the said Flood gave the said Wolf a piece of paper, which Wolf took, and started towards the receiver's office; and, after Wolf had got a little way off, Flood hallooed to him to stop. Flood went to Wolf and talked to him a little while; and Wolf went on, and went in at the gate, and, as I supposed, to the receiver's office.

Second interrogatory. What was the conversation between Flood and Jacob Wolf, and what did the paper contain? and why did Wolf go to the receiver's office, or that way? If within your knowledge, state the same, Answer. What the conversation was, or what the paper contained, or why Wolf went towards the receiver's office, I cannot tell. Thomas Dillon came to me about this time; and knowing that Dillon intended to purchase the southwest quarter of section number fifteen, of township number six, in range eleven, of the unappropriated lands in the military district, I also knew that the said Wolf intended to get, if he could, the same land. I told Dillon that, from the way things were going on, they would jockey him out of the land.

Third interrogatory. What induced you to tell Dillon that they would jockey him out of the land; and by the word they, who did you mean?

Answer. From the way old Flood and Wolf acted, calling one another out and talking, it appeared plain enough to me that there was some jockeying going on.

Fourth interrogatory. Was all this before or after the sale?

Answer. This was all before the sale.

Fifth interrogatory. Was you present at the sales; and was that particular tract, here referred to, sold on that same day; and, if so, who became the purchaser? If within your knowledge, state the same.

Answer. I was present. I went on purpose to buy a piece of land; and did buy a piece for myself; and when that particular tract, hereinbefore referred to, was set up, Dillon bid for that tract, and some other person bid that was in the register's office; and, as I could not see who it was, cannot tell who bid against Dillon, but understood, at the time, that it was young Flood who bid off the land, and that he had bid it off for Wolf.

Sixth interrogatory. From whom did you learn that young Mr. Flood had bid off the land for Wolf?

Answer. I think I heard old Mr. Flood say "my son bid off the land for Wolf," and Jacob Wolf told me, himself, that young Flood did bid off the said land for him.

Seventh interrogatory. When did Jacob Wolf tell you that young Mr. Flood bid off the said land for him?

Answer. On that same day, as we were on the road coming home. And I also heard the said Jacob Wolf say at Jacob Lane's, on our way home, and at Dresden, and also at Adam Allewine's, that he had got the land, and, as I now think, said he had to pay four dollars and some little better per acre. I do not recollect the exact amount per acre, but it was some better than four dollars.

Eighth interrogatory. Was you present, during those sales, at the register's office on the day referred to?

Answer. Yes, from the beginning to the end, until old Flood said the sales were all over.

Ninth interrogatory. When you say "old Flood," do you mean the register himself?

Answer. Yes; and when I say young Flood, I mean his son.

Tenth interrogatory. What was old Mr. Flood engaged in during the continuance of those sales?

Answer. At the commencement of the sales, he gave every one that wanted to purchase, a paper containing a description of the lands that were to be sold; and, as the sales were cried, he called over the numbers and described the land; and when it got up to one dollar and a quarter an acre, if nobody bid, after it was cried two or three times, he would say, "Knock it off, knock it off."

Eleventh interrogatory. What did young Mr. Flood appear to be engaged at during the time you attended those sales at the register's office?

Answer. Before the sales commenced, he was part of the time writing in the office, when there was anything to do. At the time the sales were going on, I could not tell: he was in the office and I was out of doors, and could not see what he was doing.

Twelfth interrogatory. What was the christian name of this young Mr. Flood that you mention as being employed clerking or writing in the register's office?

Answer. This is more than I can tell you: I do not know that I ever heard it.

Thirteenth interrogatory. Was there more than one young Mr. Flood occupied as aforesaid on that day?

Answer. Not that I know of.

Fourteenth interrogatory. Have you any further knowledge of transactions at that or any other of the land offices in this State concerning the sales of public lands, where you have reason to believe the laws have been violated?

Answer. I have not, only from what I have heard other people say.

Fifteenth interrogatory. What has been the general character of the official proceedings at the register's office at Zanesville for three or four years past?

Answer. There is a good deal of talk through the country that they did not do as they ought to do. I have heard a good deal of complaint in Knox, and from the people of Tuscarawas counties.

Sixteenth interrogatory. What is the nature of those complaints?

Answer. The people go there to enter land and they keep it back, and afterwards it would be found out that it had not been entered, but kept back for somebody else.

Seventeenth interrogatory. Is there any instance within your own knowledge of any lands having been so kept out of market.

Answer. No.

Deposition of David Gorsuch, of Butler township, in said county, of lawful age, having been first duly sworn according to law, to make true, full, and perfect answers to all and singular the interrogatories which may be put to him.

The following were put to the witness, (by John Burwell:)

First interrogatory. Have you any knowledge of the official conduct at any of the land offices in this State, by the officers thereof, contrary to law and the public interest?

Answer. I have not: I am not acquainted with any of them.

Second interrogatory. Have you any knowledge relating to the subject of the sale or purchase of a certain tract of land which was bid off by George H. Flood for Peter Wolf, and for which said land Peter Wolf holds an instrument of writing from Charles C. Gilbert, being the southwest quarter of section fifteen, of township six, in range eleven?

Answer. I have not, particularly. I have had some conversation with Jacob and Peter Wolf on the subject, but what it was I cannot mind it now to any certainty.

Third interrogatory. Did not Jacob and Peter Wolf, or either of them, state to you what a bargain they had got in the land, and how well the business had been managed to get it?

Answer. I do not recollect now that they did: they might, but I do not recollect it if they did.

Fourth interrogatory How near do you live to Peter Wolf?

Answer. About three-quarters of a mile.

Fifth interrogatory. In what relation do you stand to Peter Wolf?

Answer. Not any more than that his son married my daughter.

Sixth interrogatory. What is the general character of the official conduct at the register's office in Zanesville, by the register, his clerks, and dependents?

Answer. I have not heard a great deal about it. I have heard some say it was not very good, particularly in this case of Wolf; but I know nothing about it.

WILLIAM McCREARY, J. P. [SEAL.]

THE STATE OF OHIO, Knox County, ss:

Deposition of Thomas Dillon, of Harrison township, in said county, of lawful age, having been first duly sworn according to law, to make true, full, and perfect answers to all and singular the interrogatories which may be put to him.

The following were put to the witness, (by John Burwell:)

First interrogatory. Have you any knowledge of combinations of speculators at any public sale of lands of the United States for the purpose of driving other purchasers out of the market, and deterring poor men from bidding for the lands on which they resided, or other lands which they might desire to purchase for actual settlement or cultivation, and thereby taking into their own hands the control of the sales for their own benefit, and purchasing the lands at the minimum price of the government?

Answer. I have reason to believe that at the public sales at the register's office in Zanesville, on the 18th day of July, 1831, there was a combination between Wolf, Gilbert, and Flood, to procure the southwest quarter of section fifteen, in township six, range eleven, at the minimum price of the government, when myself and several other persons offered more than twice that sum for the same land.

Second interrogatory. What are your reasons by which you come to this conclusion?

Answer. The first reason is that Adam Mosholder, shortly after I got to the sale, asked me if I had come there to purchase some of the forfeited lands; and also asked me what lot I wanted? I informed him the Tommos lot, being the lot herein described. He informed me that Jacob Wolf had come to buy the same lot, and said, at the same time, that there was something going on wrong about that lot between Flood, Gilbert, and Wolf, who had been, as he stated, running from one office to the other two or three times, which caused me to try to find out whether his suspicions were well grounded. I then met Wolf in the street near the register's office, when I spoke to him on the subject of his having come there with intention of bidding on the lot referred to. He then answered that he had. I asked him whether he knew of any person there who intended to bid for the lot except himself and myself. He answered that Flood said there was money deposited in their hands by some person from Mount Vernon to purchase the same lot. George H. Flood then came out from the register's office, and called Wolf from the conversation with me, and had some private conversation with Wolf. After Flood returned into the office, I went again to Wolf, and asked him what Flood wanted of him. His answer was that he wanted to know if any one had come to bid on the lot. Suspecting from what Mosholder had told me, and from what I myself had seen, that some collusion or intrigue was going on, I commenced with Wolf to find it out if possible. I proposed to Wolf that, if he would act the man, I would not bid against him; or, if he would say nothing, I would bid off the land, and then I would buy his half, or sell to him mine. He then asked me what I would be willing to take for my half. I answered, "Just what you would be willing to take for yours." From his countenance and manner at the time, and in which he treated the subject, I was fully satisfied that he was in some way bound by former engagement; what satisfied me on this point was, that on showing him the numbers, and informing him at what time in the progress of sales that lot would be offered, I found that he had paid no attention to that part of the subject, and the which he appeared to care nothing about. The sales at this time were about to be commenced, and young Flood came out and called him from me again, and had some further conversation with him, a part of which I overheard. I heard Flood tell Wolf to go to one side, and not to say a word. Wolf went into the office; the sales progressed; and I saw no more of him at that time. (There were two men about the office, one Gilbert and young Mr. Flood, at the time of the sale. I did not know which was Gilbert or which Flood, but since have described the two men to those of my neighbors and others, and knowing that it was the slimmest one—quite a slim, pale looking young man who bid against me for the land, I am now fully satisfied, from my information, that the person was George H. Flood.) When the land was set up at sale, the lot referred to was set up and bid off in two separate parcels. I bid it up to three dollars and fifty cents per acre. George bid one cent on the acre more, and the land was struck off to him. At the time the land was struck off, some person in the office asked "Who got the land?" George answered, Peter Wolf.

Third interrogatory. Had you the money then with you to pay for the land at the price that you bid, and had the land been struck off to you at your last bid would you have paid that sum for the land?

Answer. Yes, I would.

Fourth interrogatory. What is the general character of the official conduct of those concerned at the register's office at Zanesville?

Answer. I know nothing, of myself, except the transaction here referred to; but I have heard several persons say that they were in the habit at that office of taking five dollars and keeping land back from entry.

Fifth interrogatory. Have you anything further to state in relation to any further mal-conduct by any of the officers at that or any other office?

Answer. No, I have not: I know of none.

(Interrogatories put by John Burwell, Commissioner:)

First interrogatory. Do you know anything in relation to the conduct of the registers of the land offices, and receivers of public moneys, in the disposal of the public lands at the land offices of the United States, or either of them?

Answer. I attended the sale of public lands at the register's office in Zanesville, on the 18th day of July, 1831. I was invited by Thomas Flood, the then register of said office, to attend those sales.

Second interrogatory. Was you present, and an observer during the progress of the public sales that took place on that day at that office? If so, please to state such facts as came under your observation.

Answer. Two half-quarters of land were sold on that day which attracted my attention owing to the price at which they sold, and the competition,

Third interrogatory. Who were the competitors, what particular tracts were they, and at what price did they sell? If you can so state, please to relate what you know in relation to the subject.

Answer. The competitors were a stranger, (to all appearances a farmer, whose name I do not know,) Charles C. Gilbert, and George H. Flood, the only bidders for said tracts. The land (as informed by said Gilbert, on inquiry,) was situated in the neighborhood of Kenyon College, (in Knox county, Ohio.) The lands were bid off by the said George H. Flood, at three dollars and fifty cents per acre.

Fourth interrogatory. To what price was the land you refer to bid by the said Charles C. Gilbert?

Answer. Two dollars and fifty cents per acre; after which price, he ceased to bid. The competition then commenced between the said George H. Flood and the aforesaid stranger.

Fifth interrogatory. Do you know whether George H. Flood bid off the land in question for himself, or whether he was employed by another person to bid off the land? If so, state your information on the subject.

Answer. Previous to the sale, I was informed by Thomas Flood, (the register,) that George H. Flood and Charles C. Gilbert, were both employed as agents for the purchase of the same tracts of land, and that neither would state the limits to the other.

Sixth interrogatory. Did the said George H. Flood and the said Charles C. Gilbert state to you, before or after the sale, they were, or that either of them were, or had been employed as agents for the purchase of the land in question?

Answer. Gilbert did not so inform me. The said George H. Flood stated to me, some time after the sale, that he acted as an agent for some person whose name I do not now recollect, and that the purchase money was placed in his hands; that he returned him the money after the sale, for the purpose of making his entry.

Seventh interrogatory. Was this statement by George H. Flood to you made before or after there began to be some public expression of fraud having been committed in relation to the sale of the land in question?

Answer. It was after the official conduct of Thomas Flood, the register, became the subject of public discussion.

Eighth interrogatory. Have you a distinct recollection of the time when Thomas Flood, the then register, invited you to attend the sales alluded to, and what his observations were when he so invited you to attend said sales? If so, please to state them.

Answer. I think it was in the morning of the day on which the sale took place. He observed that I would see some fun there; that his son George and Gilbert were to be bidders as agents for the same tract of land.

Ninth interrogatory. Did the said George H. Flood and the said Charles C. Gilbert appear to be competitors against each other, or were they (to all appearance,) only competitors (conjointly) against the stranger spoken of?

Answer. In the sale of each tract alluded to, the bidding commenced between the said Charles C. Gilbert and the stranger alluded to, and progressed between those two individuals until the land advanced in price to two dollars and fifty cents per acre: the competition then commenced between George H. Flood and the said stranger. Flood did not bid against Gilbert, neither did Gilbert bid against the said Flood, in competition for the land in question on that day. Flood was acting as clerk in the said register's office, and when Gilbert ceased to bid against the stranger, the said George H. Flood then came to the door of the register's office, and commenced bidding, and bid off the land in question, as before stated.

Tenth interrogatory. Did the said Gilbert and Flood bid in competition to each other for any tract or tracts of land set up at sale on that day, (18th July, 1831?) Did they, or either of them, bid at all on any lands except this quarter section, and which was set up and sold in half-quarters?

Answer. I think not. Gilbert may have bid on some other tracts, but George H. Flood did not.

Eleventh interrogatory. Do you know whether any register or receiver as aforesaid has been guilty of fraud or partiality in the sales of the public lands belonging to the United States, by adopting rules and regulations in their respective offices (other than those hereinbefore stated,) inconsistent with the laws of the United States?

Answer. I have none. I have been nowise connected with them in the sale of scrip or the purchase of land.

Twelfth interrogatory. What is the general character of the official proceedings at the register's office in Zanesville, by the late register, Thomas Flood, his clerks, agents, and dependents, judging from report of those whom you have good reason to believe know something in relation to certain practices said to be carried on there?

Answer. Judging from the evidence of those who have complained of misconduct in that office, it is bad indeed, knowing nothing of the transactions so complained of (except what is hereinbefore stated,) within my own knowledge.

Thirteenth interrogatory. Have those complaints been made by the people in the immediate vicinity of that office, or by persons who have attended from distant parts of the Zanesville land district for the purpose of purchasing land?

Answer. From those who came from a distance.

Fourteenth interrogatory. Are you one of the securities for Thomas Flood in relation to the performance of his official duties as register?

Answer. I am.

Fifteenth interrogatory. Have you any knowledge of any receivers, or their agents, clerks, or dependents, who have been engaged in speculating upon the funds paid into their hands for the public lands—selling those funds for a premium, and substituting and depositing funds less valuable in the bank or banks designated by law for that purpose?

Answer. I have not.

Sixteenth interrogatory. Have you been occupied as a merchant in Zanesville for several years?

Answer. I have been engaged in that business since eighteen hundred and twenty-three in this place.

WM. M. WALLACE.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, April 21st, 1834, at Zanesville.

ANTHONY WILKINS, J. P. [SEAL.]

June 14, 1834.

I herewith send you a summary of the depositions taken before Mr. Burrows, of Zanesville, Ohio, which I prepared for you.

I have the honor to be, with great respect, your obedient servant, B. P. SMITH.

Hon. G. POINDEXTER.

David Burt, on the 19th day of September, 1833, applied to Thomas Flood to purchase the southeast quarter of the northwest quarter of section No. 16, of township No. 1, in range No. 3, military, when Flood informed him that it was entered, at the same time asking him if he wanted to enter it? Burt said, not then, but in a few days. Flood walked off, and Burt went to the office again, and inquired of a man in the office who told him that it was not entered; and that, on the third of October following, Burt went to the office, (Flood, was not in,) and entered the land. Flood made his appearance before the business was completed, and inquired what they were doing? On being informed, he requested to see the money, or inquired what kind of money Burt had? On being informed, Flood said it was not land office money, but that he would change it—he gave him scrip. Burt states that this is the same tract which Marshall had purchased from Flood, and which his (Burt's) brother applied to Flood for, and was told by him that it was entered by Marshall.

Williams, on the 30th day of August, 1831, applied to Thomas Flood, the register, &c., for the purpose of getting secured to him, for a short time, the west half of the southwest quarter of section 23, of township No. 1, range No. 3. Mr. Flood called in Charles C. Gilbert from an adjoining room in the same office or building, and stated that Mr. Gilbert was authorized to do such things; that he had a right to secure lands by virtue of some scrip. Gilbert proposed that for thirty dollars, in addition to the price of the land, he could secure to me the tract in question. Salmons objected to giving that much bonus, having previously stated to Flood and Gilbert that he expected that day, or the next, a person from his neighborhood to enter the same tract. He then left the office, and was absent for an hour; and on his return Gilbert told him he would take twenty dollars for so short a time. Salmons told them that he would go home, and that if he obtained his money, as he expected to do, in two weeks, he would visit them again, and that if the land was not then entered he would then pay the price of the land in money, and give his note to Gilbert for twenty dollars as a premium. Before he got the money he understood the land was entered, and therefore did not go to the office. Salmons believes that there are speculations for the benefit of more persons than Gilbert at the land office.

John Robins, on the 31st day of August, 1831, applied at the office of the register of the land office at Zanesville, Ohio, to enter, for his own use, the west half of the northeast quarter of section No. 2, of township No. 9, of range 10, of Congress lands: at the same time and place applied for, and at the request of H. McCoy, who sent the money to purchase the next half of the southwest quarter of section 23, of township 1, of range 3, (military,) for, and in the name of his son-in-law, Thomas Scott. When he applied, Thomas Flood was not in the office, but George H. Flood, who was present in the office, observed that he was authorized to attend to this as well as his father. Robins examined the map, and pointed out the two tracts, and inquired if they were vacant. Young Flood and Wyllys Silliman, jr., were present, and, looking on at the same time, and they told me they were vacant. Robins requested and obtained certificates, one in his own name, the other in the name of Scott, which he delivered to the receiver, and took his receipt for the purchase money; and returned to the register's, after an absence of from between a half and an hour, and delivered to young Flood a duplicate receipt from the receiver, in both cases, to be recorded. Charles C. Gilbert objected to both those entries being made, saying that he had selected those two tracts in behalf of James Sprague, to satisfy a military land warrant, and exhibited as proof of his having done so, a mark on the map on both tracts—the letters S's which he called "marks of selection." The map was not so marked when Robins first examined it, and both young Flood and Silliman agreed with him that the map was not so marked. Silliman asked Gilbert when he marked them? Gilbert replied, "I marked them last night when you went to supper."

Robins observed to Flood and Silliman that the land was only valuable to him, as it joined another tract of his, or he would not give fifty dollars for it. Gilbert then said, as he, Robins, was an old gentleman for whom he had much respect, he might have the tract he wanted for himself; but that the other he had promised to keep two weeks for William Salmons, for which he was to receive twenty dollars; and that if Salmons did not appear in two weeks Scott might have the land. Robins feels satisfied, from what he saw, that speculations are made from purchasers by those of the office, and those who are constantly therein and about it.

James Karr, in May or June, 1832, applied to Thomas Flood to save for him the east half of the southwest quarter of section No. 17, of township No. 1, of range No. 3, (military,) for twelve months; which the said Flood did, in consideration of Karr's paying him ten dollars as a bonus. Flood marked it on the map as entered at the time of the contract, and which was paid for twelve months subsequently, and requested Karr to say nothing about it.

The foregoing witnesses are certified to be men of character for truth and veracity.

Deposition of Abraham Day, of Knox county, Ohio:

Some time in the spring of 1831, Abraham Day went to the land office at Zanesville for the purchase of the west half of the northwest quarter of section twenty-one, in township five, in range eleven, &c. Flood, the register, inquired of him if he paid in scrip or money. He replied, scrip. After qualifying him that no one lived on said tract, Flood demanded of him fifty cents, which he said the law allowed him for taking the deposition and keeping record of the same, because he had entered with scrip instead of money—Flood at the time acting as justice of the peace.

Deposition of Adam Mosholder, of Jackson township, Knox county, Ohio:

At the register's office at Zanesville, at a public sale of lands, Adam Mosholder, being present, saw Flood, register, repeatedly call to one side Jacob Wolf, and hold private conversation with him. He saw Flood give Wolf a paper, with which he started towards the receiver's office; Flood hallooed him to stop again, when, after further conversation between them, Wolf went on, and passed through the gate towards the receiver's office. Mosholder then met with Dillon, whom he knew was to bid for the same tract with Wolf. He told Dillon that, judging from appearances, he would be jockeyed out of his purchase. These circumstances occurred before the sales commenced. When this particular tract, herein referred to, was set up, some one in the receiver's office bid against Dillon. Mosholder heard Flood, register, say that it was his son who bid off the land for Wolf. On the same day he heard Wolf say the same thing, and that he had given a little more than four dollars per acre. Previous to the commencement of the sales, young Flood appeared to be engaged writing in the office. The character of the land office at Zanesville was bad, particularly in Knox and Tuscarawas counties. People would go there and enter land, and afterwards find that it had been kept back for some one else.

Deposition of David Gorsuch, of Butler township, Knox county, Ohio:

David Gorsuch lives within three quarters of a mile of Peter Wolf. The son of Peter Wolf married his daughter. He knows nothing of the transaction of Wolf's purchase, except from report, which was unfavorable. The character of the office, generally, was not good.

Deposition of Peter Wolf, of Butler township, Knox county, State of Ohio:

Peter Wolf testifies that he is but slightly acquainted with Thomas Flood, register at Zanesville, and never did apply to him, or any clerk, agent, or dependent, knowing them to be such, to bid for him at any pubiic sale of lands. He, Peter Wolf, did apply to George Flood to bid for a particular tract of land at a coming sale. The request was made in the register's office. He was not to give him anything for bidding. He did not make this request of George Flood at the instigation of any one. He selected him to bid because he was well acquainted with his son. Wolf's son was down three times previous to the sale to "attend to some land that he had entered." On the day of sale Peter Wolf sent his son, Jacob Wolf, down with the money, with directions to take the land at the highest bid the money would reach. After the sale, the son brought home the following paper:

"For and in consideration of the sum of $252, to me in hand paid, I do hereby agree to purchase the southwest quarter of section number fifteen, township number six, range number eleven, military; and to make, or cause to be made, a good and sufficient deed, in fee simple, for said quarter, to Peter Wolf, of Knox county, Ohio, on demand, so soon as the patent shall be received by me from the general government.

"July 18, 1831. CHARLES C. GILBERT."

On returning from the sale, Jacob Wolf told his father that Flood bid the land to $350, and then Gilbert took him aside, and, he supposes, closed the sale with him. Peter Wolf supposes that there was an understanding on the day of sale between Gilbert and his son Jacob, to prevent the land from going to any one else. Peter Wolf went down to Zanesville to see Gilbert about a report that he had heard, that the supreme court had set aside the sale of said land. Gilbert told him it was not true. At the same time he saw George Flood and asked him about the circumstances of the sale; and he said he only remembered having bid the land off for Wolf.

Deposition of Christian Horn, of Butler township, Knox county, Ohio:

Christian Horn says, that he has heard some unfavorable talk in Zanesville, about Wolf's tract. Christian stands in the relation of brother-in-law to Peter Wolf.

Deposition of James G. Hilton, of Zanesville, Muskingum county, Ohio:

James G. Hilton states, that he lived in Zanesville in 1831-2, and that George Flood at that time wrote as clerk in his father's, Thomas Flood's office. In 1832, J. G. Hilton being an acting justice of the peace in Zanesville, was requested by Thomas Flood, the register, during his (Flood's) absence, for the purpose of swearing persons who were applicants for forty acre lots, to attend in the register's office. Hilton remained there ten days during the absence of the register. Charles Stetson, who was at all times in the habit of remaining in the register's office, and would sometimes receive the money from purchasers, telling them that he (Stetson) would bring them their certificate from the receiver, stating, at the same time, that the receiver was not in, and that he (Stetson) did business for him during his absence. Hilton does not believe that Mr. Van Horne, the receiver, allowed Stetson to do business for him, as the certificates returned by Stetson were uniformly in the handwriting of the receiver himself. Mr. Stetson was, by profession, an attorney at law, and the motive for attending to this business was to pass off scrip. Stetson occupies Gilbert's office, which is under the same roof with the register's office. In passing by the office, Hilton has frequently seen Stetson have scrip in the office.

Thomas Marshall, of Jackson township, Guernsey county, Ohio, made application to Thomas Flood, register of the land office at Zanesville, Ohio, to purchase "the southeast quarter of the northwest quarter of section 16, township No. 1, range No. 3, military lands," on a credit of twelve months. Flood sold him the said tract of land, on the 28th day of March, 1833, at 12 months' credit, by Marshall's paying him ten dollars in hand, and giving his note for the balance, with the condition, that if Marshall did not, in twelve months, pay his note, he was to forfeit the ten dollars. Flood gave to Marshall a paper which he called "scrip," telling him, at the same time, that the scrip would hold the land; at the same time charging him to keep the transaction a secret.

Marshall went on the land, erected a cabin and tobacco house, cleared and fenced in some of the land. Within seven months from the date of the transaction with Flood, Flood sold the said tract of land again to a Mr. Burt, and Marshall was turned off. He called on Flood, who gave him up his note, paid him his ten dollars, and said: "I feel damned sorry for you." Marshall could neither read nor write.

Samuel Dennis, on the 9th day of March, 1833, purchased from Thomas Flood the "east half of the northwest quarter of section No. 16, of township No 1, of range No. 3 (military,)" on a credit of twelve months, by paying him nineteen dollars in hand, and gave his note for the balance; the $19 to be forfeited if the note was not punctually paid. Flood gave him what he called "scrip," which he told Dennis would enable him to hold his land for "twelve months." Flood told Dennis that his name was on the map, and that "all the devils in hell could not take it from him." Dennis paid the note within twelve months, and kept his land.

Daniel Burt made application to Flood, to enter the tract of land that Marshall had purchased from Flood. Flood, after examining the "book," informed Burt that the land was entered, and by Thomas Marshall. Burt's brother, subsequently, purchased the said tract from Flood.

Hugh McCoy, on the 30th of August, 1831, sent, by John Robins, one hundred dollars, for the purpose of purchasing the west half of the southwest quarter of section No. 23, of township No. 1, of range No. 3 (military,) for his son-in-law, Thomas Scott. Mr. Robins, on his return from the land office, gave to Mr. McCoy the register's receipt for the money, saying that Charles C. Gilbert claimed the land, and was keeping it for Wm. Sammons for two weeks. On the 13th of September following, Mr. McCoy himself went to the office, where he found the said Gilbert and Flood. He told them that he had come to see about the land of Thomas Scott. Gilbert replied: "You can't have the land; I have located that land for James Sprague, and have promised to keep it two weeks for Wm. Sammons." Mr. McCoy stated that the time had expired, and that they had promised, if Sammons failed to pay, that he could have the land for $20. McCoy stated that Scott was a poor man, and that he thought that the land was not worth more than the government price. Flood observed, Scott is your son-in-law, and your daughter would like to be close to you, and you had better give the $20. McCoy replied he would not give it, but that, after a good deal of altercation, McCoy paid $10, or rather gave his note to Gilbert for that amount, payable eight months after date. McCoy has no doubt, from what occurred then and subsequently, that the said Flood and Gilbert were engaged in speculating upon the purchasers of public land.

Phineas Tomlinson made application to Flood, the register, to know whether the west half of the northeast quarter of section No. 22, of township 3, in range 6, (military,) was entered. After examination of his books, Flood told him no. He then inquired for Gilbert, and applied to him to know what he would take to enter the aforesaid tract of land, and wait for one year. He said he would take $20, and would take his notes; one for $25, payable at 3 months, and the other for $95, payable in 12 months. Tomlinson gave his notes as above, and Gilbert went to the plat book and entered it. The notes were paid at maturity. The whole transaction took place in the register's office, and in presence of the register.

Frederick Yerean, in the latter end of September, 1831, called on Thomas Flood, and inquired if the west half of the southeast quarter of section No. 7, in township No. 2, of range 6 (military district,) was entered. He answered, no. He then inquired of the said Flood what he would take to secure that tract for him for the space of 18 months. Flood pointed to C. C. Gilbert, who was in the office at the time, and said, "Bargain with him." Gilbert agreed to do it for $30, and Yerean gave to Gilbert two notes of hand, drawn by his brother Jacob Yerean, in his favor, as security for his performance of the contract. Flood then marked the tract on the map as Yerean's, and, before the expiration of the 18 months, Yerean called and paid Gilbert $90, and took up his brother's notes deposited as collateral security, and gave his own note for the residue of the purchase money, $40; and on the 30th of May, 1833, he paid $30 on the last mentioned note. Yerean ascertained, that after he made his first payment of $90, the land was entered by Gilbert, and not before, and that it stood open and liable to entry by other or any person. He appealed to Gilbert to give him up his note for the balance, $10, as he had not entered the land until Gilbert had received Yerean's money to do it with. Gilbert gave him up the note. In the course of the conversation about the saving the land for 18 months, Yerean told them (Flood and Gilbert) that he would rather pay it sooner if he could; he had a place which he wanted to sell, and if he did so, it would enable him to pay sooner. Flood said, we would rather have part of the money, and therefore try and sell your place; but, if you cannot, come back and we will fix it for you. Yerean understood Flood, in his using the plural number, as meaning Gilbert and himself.

Henry Wheeler testifies to the same facts contained in the foregoing deposition; also, as to the good character of Yerean, also to that of Phineas Tomlinson.

Evan Ogan says he heard there was some dispute about Cummins' land, and, being in Zanesville, he called at the office of Thomas Flood, and inquired whether Cummins had purchased his land according to law? Flood said yes, and had paid every cent of the purchase money down for it; and that Cummins had a good title, and that it could not be taken from him. Ogan then told Flood that Bay claimed the land by pre-emption right. Charles C. Gilbert said that Bay had not settled on the land in time to obtain that right. Flood said no; "poh," he has no right, nor never can get any right.

John Reed understood, from report, in the spring of 1833, John Cummins had entered the west half of the southwest quarter of section 21, of township No. 9, in range No. 10, on which William C. Bay then lived; and that, in making the said entry, he had sworn that there was no person then residing on the land, and that Bay intended to have Cummins prosecuted for perjury. Feeling some interest in Cummins, from his knowledge of his good character, when he went to Zanesville he inquired of Flood as to the truth of the report. Flood stated, in reply to his inquiry, that Cummins had entered the land according to law, and had paid his money for it; and that Cummins had told him the truth concerning the residence of Bay; and that Cummins was not sworn at the time of making the entry, as was reported. Flood said that Bay was liable to a prosecution for remaining on the land. Reed inquired of Flood how Cummins was to get possession of his land? Flood said, if, upon notice, Bay refused to quit it, Cummins must pull the house down.

Lee Ogan, in April or May, 1832, called at the register's office, and had a conversation with Thomas Flood relative to the land occupied by Bay, and entered by Cummins. Flood told him that Bay had no right to the land, and he could not get one; and that the land belonged to Cummins; and that Cummins was not sworn anything about the land.

Charles P. Moore, in the spring of 1831, saw in the hands of W. C. Bay a paper which he said was a copy of Cummins' affidavit, made at the time he entered his land. At the request of Cummins, Moore went with him to Zanesville, and called at the receiver's office, and inquired of B. Van Horne if such an affidavit was on file in his office? He produced the paper, of which I had seen a copy in Bay's hands. Cummins immediately denied ever having been sworn to any such thing. We went to the register's office, and inquired for the register: young Flood replied that his father was east of the mountains. Cummins told young Flood of the report circulated by Bay to his disadvantage. Young Flood said, "You were not sworn, or never were sworn in this office." Cummins applied to young Flood for a certificate to that effect, which Flood said he would give; and did give him a paper which we, then, both thought to be a certificate. Some days after we returned from Zanesville, Cummins asked me to read the paper given him by young Flood. I done so, and found that the paper was not what he promised to give, but had grossly deceived poor Cummins, who is an ignorant man, can neither read nor write, but is of most excellent character for honesty, truth, and veracity.

William C. Bay, when he heard that Cummins had entered the land on which he, Bay, resided, went to the receiver's office, and was there shown an affidavit of said Cummins, taken before the register, Flood, acting as a justice of the peace, wherein Cummins swears that, after personal inspection of the land, there was no person residing on it. From the receiver's office he went to the register's office, and inquired of Thomas Flood about the entry and the affidavit. Flood said that Cummins had entered the land; it was his, and that he was not sworn. Bay had a good deal of conversation with Flood, who cursed him. Flood afterwards offered to let me enter the same tract of land if I would give him my horse, saddle, and bridle. Charles C. Gilbert went with me to look at my horse, saddle, and bridle; I advised with Levi Lewis, and did not give him the horse, &c.

John Cummins applied to Flood, the register, to enter a tract of land. Flood inquired if any person was residing on it? Cummins informed him that Bay resided on it. Flood asked for the money, which was handed to him. Flood then requested Cummins to put his mark to a piece of writing: he took no oath. The paper in the receiver's office purports to be an affidavit taken before Flood, as a justice; and, also, that he paid for his land in scrip, when, in truth, he paid the money for it.

Witness' character certified to be good.

Deposition of Samuel McDoll Wilson, of Wheeling township, Guernsey county, State of Ohio:

Samuel McDoll Wilson testifies that he did make the request of Sarah Booth, as stated in her deposition. That he did not afterwards save the land, according to the request of the register, but made up the full sum, went to Zanesville, and entered the land in question.

Deposition of Thomas Dillon, of Harrison township, Knox county, Ohio:

Thomas Dillon testifies that he has reason to believe that, at the public sale at the register's office in Zanesville, on the 18th of July, 1831, there was a combination between Wolf, Gilbert and Flood, to procure the southwest quarter of section 15, township 6, range 11, at the minimum price of the government, when myself and several other persons offered more than twice that sum for the land. His reasons are these: Adam Mosholder, being at said sale, asked Dillon what he intended to purchase? Dillon replied, the lot herein described. Mosholder then said that Wolf wanted the same tract; and, judging from appearances, there was something going on between Gilbert, Wolfe and Flood, as they had been running from one office to the other, with much private talk. This information induced Dillon to try to find out if it was so. He accordingly met Wolf near the register's office, and spoke to him on the subject of his having come there to bid on that particular tract. Wolf replied that he had. Dillon asked him if he knew of any one else who wanted the same tract? Wolf said that there was money from Mount Vernon deposited for that purpose. George Flood then came from the register's office, and called Wolf away, and held a private conversation with him. After Flood had gone again, Dillon proposed to Wolf that if he would act the man, he would not bid against him; or, if he would say nothing, Dillon would bid off the land, and either sell or buy the half with Wolf; saying that he would sell at the same price that Wolf would. From the countenance of Wolf at the time, and his manner of treating the subject, Dillon was convinced that he was bound by a former promise; and he was still more assured of the fact, on finding him ignorant of the numbers, and the particular time that, in the progress of the sales, this tract would be sold. Flood again called Wolf from Dillon, and, after some private talk, Dillon heard Flood tell Wolf to "Go on one side, and say nothing." Wolf went into the office. The sales progressed; and this tract herein described was sold in two parcels. Dillon bid it to $3.50 per acre: George Flood bid one more cent, and it was struck off to him. Dillon heard some one in the office ask "Who got the land?" George Flood replied, "Peter Wolf." Dillon further says, that he has heard that, at this land office in Zanesville, they were in the habit of taking five dollars, and keeping the land back from entry.

Deposition of Jesley D. Johnston, of Clay township, Knox county, Ohio:

Jesley D. Johnston says that, from report, he has heard many complaints of improper conduct in the land office at Zanesville. Said Johnston further testifies that he is well acquainted with Adam Mosholder and Thomas Dillon, and that, when under oath, they were fully entitled to credit.

Deposition of Sarah Booth, of Oxford township, Tuscarawas county, State of Ohio:

On the 18th of May, 1832, Sarah Booth went to the register's office at Zanesville for the purpose of entering a tract of land, &c. Being at the office, Sarah Booth inquired of Flood, register, if Mr. Wilson, then living on the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter, section 4, &c., could hold said land by pre-emption, as his money was insufficient for purchase? Said Flood replied that he could not hold the land by pre-emption; "but tell Wilson to come down with what money he has, as there is a person here who is in the habit of saving land for people." Sarah Booth delivered the foregoing message to Wilson, and further knoweth not.

Deposition of James Cook Colson, of Adams township, Coshocton county, State of Ohio:

About the last of March, 1832, James Cook Colson went to the land office at Zanesville, where he found the register, two young men, one of whom appeared to be a clerk in said office, and C. Gilbert, who was employed writing at a table. Said Colson inquired of Gilbert if the east half of the southeast quarter of section No. 3, of township No. 6, in range 4, (military,) was entered? On examining the map, Gilbert replied that it was not entered. Colson then asked Gilbert what he would ask to secure the land for twelve months? Gilbert hesitated a few moments, and then inquired how much money he had? Colson showed him $24.50, being all that he had. Gilbert then consulted Flood, the register, as to what he should do. Flood replied, "I think you had better risk it, and try for once what a poor man can do, and do not be too hard on him, as he is a brother Yankee of yours." Accordingly, Gilbert took $23 of the money, and required, before the expiration of three months, Colson's note, with three securities, for the sum of $114.50, being in full for the land at $1.25 per acre. Upon failure of the same, he would forfeit the twenty-three dollars and the land. Before the expiration of the three months, Colson's note was sent to Gilbert, secured by Richard Taylor, Robert Corbet, and Henry Delong. Gilbert returned, (by the bearer, George Williams,) an instrument of writing, wherein he bound himself to secure the land for twelve months, provided Colson would pay within the stipulated time the sum of $114.50, being in full for the land at $1.25 per acre. On the 14th day of March, 1833, Colson went to Zanesville with the above-mentioned sum of $114.50. On inquiry at the office, Gilbert could not be found; but the clerk in the office observed "We sometimes do business for Mr. Gilbert." The clerk then mentioned my business to the register, Flood. Upon hearing it, the register remarked, "In that case there must be a note with three securities. He, the register, got the note, and gave it to the clerk. The clerk returned Colson the note upon his paying the sum of $114.50. Clerk, at the same time, gave Colson some papers which he directed him to take to the receiver's office. Colson took the papers to the receiver, and got, in return, a receipt for the sum which he had paid the clerk in the register's office,

James Cook Colson also testifies that he once saw a paper in the hands of George Williams relating to a case similar to the one above mentioned.

The characters of Sarah Booth, Samuel McDoll Wilson and James Cook Colson, certified to be unexceptionable by James Lisk, justice of the peace.

Deposition of William M. Wallace, of Zanesville, in Muskingum county, Ohio:

William M. Wallace states that he was invited by Thomas Flood, the register, to attend the sales of public lands at Zanesville. On the 18th of July, 1831, he accordingly went; and during the progress of the sales he was particularly attracted by the competition for two and a half quarters of land which were contended for by a stranger, (to all appearance a farmer,) Charles C. Gilbert, and George Flood. The land, as informed by Gilbert, was in the neighborhood of Kenyon College. The land was bid off by George Flood at three dollars and fifty cents per acre. Previous to the sale, Flood, the register, told me that there would be some fun at the sale, as Gilbert and his son George were employed to bid for the same land, and neither would make known their limit of price. The bidding commenced between Gilbert and the stranger, and when it had reached two dollars and fifty cents, Gilbert ceased to bid, and George Flood commenced bidding, and bid it off at three dollars and fifty cents per acre. Gilbert and George H. Flood did not bid against each other at all. G. H. Flood on that day was acting as clerk in his father's office. After the conduct of Flood, the register, in this particular sale, became matter of public discussion, George told me that, previous to the sale, money had been deposited with him for the purchase, and that, after the sale, he returned it to the person for the purpose of making his entry.

Judging from the evidence of persons who complain of bad conduct in that office, it must be bad indeed. These complaints were made chiefly by persons from a distant part of the Zanesville land district. I, William M. Wallace, was one of the securities of Thomas Flood for the right performance of his official duties, and have lived in Zanesville, in the occupation of merchant, since 1823.

ON APPLICATION FOR AUTHORITY TO CONVEY A CERTAIN TRACT OF LAND WHICH WAS OBTAINED UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE TREATY OF FORT JACKSON.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JUNE 24, 1834.

Mr. CARR, from the Committee on Private Land Claims, to whom were referred the memorials of Zachariah McGirth and Samuel Bradford, praying that the said Zachariah McGirth may have full authority to convey a certain tract of land which he obtained under the provisions of the treaty of Fort Jackson, reported:

That they have had the same under consideration, and are of opinion that to grant the prayer of the memorialists, so far as the United States may have any reversionary interest, is highly necessary to secure to the said McGirth the benefit which was intended to be conveyed to him by the original grant. It has been represented to the committee that the services of the said McGirth in the Creek and Seminole wars were highly meritorious; that he commanded a company of rangers at the close of the Seminole war, raised by himself, under the orders of General Jackson; in doing which, and to get the company as speedily into the field as the urgency of the public service required, he was obliged to assume personal responsibilities, which afterwards brought him to the brink of ruin. He was forced to rent his land, remove to the Creek nation, and afterwards to make a contract for the sale of the land to save his personal property. The committee also find that the privilege prayed for by the memorialists has heretofore been granted to other meritorious persons in the same situation. They therefore ask leave to introduce a bill.

ON CLAIM TO LAND IN INDIANA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JUNE 24, 1834.

Mr. CARR, from the Committee on Private Land Claims, to whom was referred the petition of Daniel Smith, reported:

That, upon an examination of this case, it appears that on the 13th of October, 1830, Daniel Smith entered at the Crawfordsville land office, Indiana, the southeast quarter of section 20, township 13 north, range 1 west. He received a certificate of purchase for the same, which was duly transmitted with the monthly abstracts of the register for that month, and recorded on the books of the office of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, preparatory to a patent being issued to him for said tract of land, and which patent, had it been duly issued, would have borne date January 3, 1831. On the 11th April, 1831, Joseph Mosier entered the same land; the register at Crawfordsville granted his certificate of purchase, and a patent issued bearing date November 2, 1831. The entry having been reported as a case of pre-emption, the books of the office of the Commissioner were made to conform thereto, and the original entry of Daniel Smith canceled. This pre-emption right was claimed and reported under the act of the 29th May, 1830; upon an examination of which, the committee are of opinion that the entry made by Smith should not have been canceled. It appears to be just and lawful that he should be placed on a basis of equal right, as far as a patent may be deemed evidence of title before the State tribunals. A bill is therefore reported.

Other payments may have been made for the same object; but as the entries on the books are general, and charged to the Indian department, and as the accounts and vouchers cannot be referred to, it is impracticable to furnish any further information on the subject from the records in this office.

ON CONFLICTING CLAIMS TO LANDS IN KENTUCKY, DERIVED FROM VIRGINIA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JUNE 26, 1834.

Mr. MANN, of New York, from the Committee on Private Land Claims, to whom was referred the petition of the heirs at law of the late Nathaniel Welsh, a captain in the first Virginia State regiment in the war of the revolution, reported:

The petitioners state that their ancestor, under the laws of Virginia, became entitled to four thousand acres of land, for his services, and obtained a warrant for that number of acres from the State of Virginia, and that a location was made in that part of the State of Kentucky now constituting the county of Pulaski; that it now appears that one Peter Kemp, who also had a warrant for similar lands, made a location by virtue thereof, which interfered with the location of Welsh so as to deprive him of one thousand acres of the land to which he was entitled. It appears by a certificate from the General Land Office, on examining the abstracts of warrants issued by the register of the land office at Richmond, that a warrant for 4,000 acres was issued to Peter Kemp, 20th March, 1783, and also a warrant for 4,000 acres was issued on the 26th April, 1783, to Nathaniel Welsh, which has been satisfied by patent. Accompanying this petition the committee find a certified copy of a deposition of Nathaniel Welsh, taken the 6th day of June, 1812, in a cause depending in the superior court of chancery for the Richmond district, at the instance of Peter Kemp and John Minor, at the suit of William Wallis, by which it appears that in 1784 the said Welsh made a location for Kemp on Pitman's creek, in the State of Kentucky, for 1,000 acres, and shortly after another for himself, of 1,000 acres, on the same creek, which he thought several miles below the location of said Kemp, and too remote for an interference. Welsh says that if the survey which was made for Kemp has been made upon the identical land entered and located for him, he acknowledges that his (Kemp's) right, as far as his quantity of 1,000 acres extends, is, and ought to be, paramount to the deponent's; and if, to give him that quantity, it requires the taking of a part of deponent's land, the deponent is willing to relinquish his right to so much. On the 18th January, 1814, Welsh files his answer to the bill of Wallis against Kemp and others. Welsh, being one of the defendants, referring to the deposition before made, says he is willing to give up all his right and title to the 1,000 acres of land purchased by Wallis of Kemp, a certified copy of which answer is also among the papers. On the 14th June, 1814, a decree was made in the cause, (the petitioners in the meantime having, on the death of their ancestor, been made parties to the bill,) and the court adjudged "that as the defendant, Welsh, never asserted any right to conflict with the claim of Kemp to the 1,000 acres of land in the bill mentioned, that the bill be dismissed with costs against the complainant."

The United States, by act of Congress of 30th May, 1830, assumed all the liabilities of the State of Virginia for land bounties promised to her State troops, and the question now to be considered is, whether the heirs of Welsh, under the circumstances of this case, would be entitled to claim against the State of Virginia. The warrant to Welsh was issued on the 26th April, 1783, for 4,000 acres, and has been located by himself, and satisfied by patent. An adverse claim is set up and prosecuted, as is alleged, for a part of the lands located, and Welsh swears that he is willing to give up all his right and title to the 1,000 acres purchased by Wallis of Kemp. The court decree that he never asserted any claim to the land in controversy, and therefore dismiss the bill with costs against the complainant. The heirs of Welsh allege that he lost the 1,000 acres of land in consequence of his location interfering with Kemp's, while Welsh testifies that he thought, when he made the locations for himself and Kemp, in 1784, that they were several miles apart, and he did not assert any claim to Kemp's location, or any part of the location of his 1,000 acres. The State of Virginia have performed everything they promised to Welsh. They gave him a title to 4,000 acres of land, to be located, as he might choose, on the public domain of that State, and, for aught that appears before the committee, he has obtained what he was entitled to. It does not follow that because he did not assert his claim to the 1,000 acres which was in controversy in the suit of Wallis against Kemp and others, that he therefore lost 1,000 acres; neither would it follow as a consequence that because persons entitled to make locations on the public lands should make locations which conflict with each other, that the United States or the State of Virginia are liable to the damages which might accrue thereby. It is understood that much confusion has arisen in the making of these locations, and the committee do not deem it a duty of Congress to engage in the conflicts consequently arising between individuals in respect thereto, or to undertake, by legislation, to repair the losses which may have been sustained in those conflicts, or to adjudge upon the rights which have been in controversy. The committee do not believe that sound legislation will permit the assumption by Congress of the burden of correcting errors which have intervened in the locations of individuals, nor of repairing the losses occasioned thereby. If Welsh has not received the lands to which he was entitled, (which is by no means certain on the evidence before the committee,) it is not the fault of the government of Virginia or the United States; and, in the opinion of the committee, the petitioners are not entitled to the relief prayed for on the evidence now submitted.

OPERATIONS OF THE GENERAL LAND OFFICE OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE YEAR 1834.

COMMUNICATED TO CONGRESS WITH THE ANNUAL REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY ON THE FINANCES, THE 4TH OF DECEMBER, 1834.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONER OF THE GENERAL LAND OFFICE.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, November 29, 1834.

SIR: In presenting for your examination, and for that of the government, and for the consideration of Congress, the annual report of the operations of this office for the entire year of 1833, and the first three quarters of 1834, it affords me much pleasure to state that the sales of the national domain are annually increasing with the tide of emigration to the west and southwest, and the accumulating population of those fertile and extensive regions. In the time of peace and of national prosperity, with a rapidly accumulating metallic currency, the most powerful stimulus to private enterprise and general industry, it is safe to calculate that the annual amount of this branch of the public revenue will continue to increase with the means of human happiness and general prosperity. It is the province of the statesman and of judicious legislation to furnish every facility to the accomplishment of those objects which essentially contribute to national greatness, and which create those resources of defence and independence necessary to preserve the integrity of all government, and to accelerate the march of empire. The vast territory of the valley of the Mississippi, extending east and west, from the Alleghany to the Rocky mountains, and north and south, from Upper Canada to the Gulf of Mexico, presents a scene for the contemplation of the philanthropist and political philosopher, and a field for the operations of the legislator, of the most sublime character and moral influence, as connected with human society, hitherto unprecedented in the annals of the world. With a free white population, greatly exceeding that of the United States at any period of the revolution, with every means of subsistence for tens of millions of population, and with resources beyond the necessity of human wants and human convenience; with a climate more temperate and mild, and a soil more prolific and fruitful than any which has hitherto been discovered, there requires no stretch of the imagination, no genius of exaggeration, no confidence in prophecy, to anticipate the future revenue and means of strength, prosperity, and happiness which the Divinity has designed and allotted to the transmontane valley of North America.

The periods to which the quarterly accounts of the receivers have been rendered to this office, as also the monthly abstracts of sales and receipts, and the acknowledged balance remaining in the hands of the receivers, at the respective dates of their last returns, will be found in the annexed document, marked A. An unusual promptness has been observed in this part of the duty of the land officers during the past year, highly creditable to the public service. With very few exceptions the returns have been duly transmitted to this office, as required by law and the regulations of the department.

The annexed statement marked B, exhibits, for the year 1833, and the first three quarters of 1834, the quantity of public lands sold in each State and Territory; the amount of purchase money; the several amounts received in cash, in forfeited land stock, and in military bounty land scrip; and the amount of money paid into the Treasury. By this statement, and by a reference to my last annual report, it will appear that the sales of 1833 exceeded those of 1832, 1,393,885 acres, $1,856,908 of purchase money, and of the amount paid into the Treasury $1,344,300; and that the sales of the first three quarters of 1834 exceed those of the corresponding quarters of 1833, 330,291 acres, $437,040 of purchase money, and of the amount paid into the Treasury the sum of $856,518. It is probable the aggregate amount of sales for this year will exceed those of the last, as also the amount of cash paid into the Treasury. The returns of the last quarter of the year generally present the largest amount of sales and purchase money.

The accompanying tabular statement, marked C, shows the amount of forfeited land stock issued and received at each land office, and of military bounty land scrip received, with the aggregate in each State and Territory, to the 30th of September last. On an examination of which, it will appear there has been issued, of forfeited land stock, $646,154.66, of which there has been received in payment for lands sold the sum of $632,743.85, leaving a balance, not presented at the land offices, of less than $13,500.

By the several acts of May 30, 1830, July 13, 1832, and March 2, 1833, lands were appropriated to satisfy unlocated military bounty land warrants for services rendered in the army of the revolution, in the Virginia State line and navy, in the Virginia continental line, and in payment for United States warrants for the same service. The appropriation made by these acts is unlimited as to the United States warrants, and those for Virginia amount to 810,000 acres, for which scrip was directed to be issued. Of this quantity of the Virginia warrants, scrip has been issued for 796,820 acres, leaving a balance of 13,180 acres yet to be satisfied, for which scrip will be issued so soon as the applicants shall complete their title papers to their warrants. Statement marked D, hereunto annexed, shows the number of each description of warrants which have been satisfied under these laws; the quantity of land for which scrip has been issued; the amount thereof in money, at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre; with the number of certificates issued, and their several totals; in which statement it will be seen that, to the 15th instant, 1,544 warrants have been satisfied, containing 894,570 acres, equal to $1,118,212.50, in 12,049 certificates of scrip; and, by statement C, it appears, of this amount, the sum of $1,008,360.12 had been received in payment of public lands up to the 30th September last. Virginia warrants have already been filed for about 500,000 acres, exceeding the amount which can be satisfied with scrip out of previous appropriations. I have no data by which to calculate the amount not yet filed; but, from verbal information, I am of opinion it would not be safe to estimate it at less than 500,000 acres. It is in the will of Congress whether further appropriations shall be made for the same.

The appropriation of $6,000, at the last session, for extra clerk hire for this office, exclusive of $4,000 for assistance in the bureau of military bounty lands, has essentially contributed to the promotion of the public service, and has enabled me to progress very considerably with the records of the public sales, without which serious injury would have been sustained by the parties in interest, and much embarrassment to the government. I cannot too urgently solicit from Congress the absolute necessity of continuing the requisite appropriations, as contained in my official estimates for the year 1835, and as indispensible to the future operations of this office. Six thousand dollars was also appropriated, at the close of the last session, for the writing and recording of forty thousand patents for land sold. This service has been performed at the price stipulated in the act, and the patents will all be examined and transmitted to the several land offices by the close of the present year. With this additional aid to the permanent force of the office, it is my duty to state that the arrears are constantly accumulating. On the 1st of January next the arrears of patents for lands sold will not be less than one hundred thousand, in which more than seventy thousand persons are directly interested as purchasers, and whose rights and convenience are entitled to the respect and attention of government. The pecuniary interests of so large a class of our fellow-citizens are certainly worthy of the respectful consideration of those who administer the public affairs of the nation. I submit it to the particular examination and impartial judgment of Congress. It should also be remarked that this is but one item of the arrears of the office; the others previously reported are annually increasing, and cannot be diminished without a neglect of current duty.

The surveys of the public lands have progressed during the present year as rapidly as practicable, and to the utmost extent provided by law for the discharge of office duty by the several surveyors general; but it is impossible for those officers to complete the public surveys in particular districts, and, in numerous instances, of private land claims, without more discretionary power is vested in the Secretary of the Treasury to make reasonable allowances for services which cannot be procured for the compensation allowed by law. This is a subject which has also been repeatedly presented to the government for its judicious legislation: I renew the suggestions, under the strongest sense of public duty.

As it is the policy of the government, as it is the interest of the people of the western and southwestern sections of the Union to facilitate the sales of the public lands by such means as will secure to that extensive territory a population of industrious and enterprising citizens, who shall be proprietors of the soil they cultivate, and inheritors of the blessings of civil and religious liberty, for which this country is so greatly distinguished, I consider it my duty again to urge upon the consideration of Congress the adoption of every necessary measure to enable this office more promptly to discharge its numerous duties, and the surveyors general to comply with the requisitions of law in the operations of their official conduct. It is in vain to expect that the intentions of the government, and the reasonable expectations of the inhabitants of the vast interval of the Mississippi, can be accomplished and realized without the necessary and appropriate means are provided for such objects. Vain also will be the efforts of this office, and the agents of the government subordinate thereto, in their struggles to perform their respective duties, unless aided and supported by the efficient legislation of Congress.

I have the honor to be, with great respect, your obedient servant,

ELIJAH HAYWARD.

Hon. LEVI WOODBURY, Secretary of the Treasury.

23D CONGRESS.] No. 1261. [2D SESSION.

CLAIMS TO LAND IN ALABAMA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES DECEMBER 4, 1834.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, December 2, 1834.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit copies of two reports by the register and receiver of the land office for the district of St. Stephen's, Alabama, prepared in obedience to the third section of the act of Congress, approved 2d, March, 1829.

I have the honor to be, respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

LEVI WOODBURY, Secretary of the Treasury.

Hon. the SPEAKER of the House of Representatives.

LAND OFFICE, St. Stephen's, Ala., July 7, 1834.

SIR: We have forwarded with this a special report upon the claim of the heirs of Miguel Eslava to a tract of land in the city of Mobile.

Very respectfully, your obedient servants,

JOHN B. HAZARD, Register.
JOHN H. OWEN, Receiver.

Hon. ELIJAH HAYWARD, Commissioner of the General Land Office.

LAND OFFICE, St. Stephen's, Ala., July 3, 1834.

The heirs of Miguel Eslava have presented a claim to a tract of land in the city of Mobile, containing two arpens and four toises front, by twenty-five arpens deep, founded on a French grant from Dabbadie, director general of Louisiana, bearing date the 27th of December, 1763, to Madam De Lusser, and conveyed by the attorney of the heirs of De Lusser to Miguel Eslava, on the 21st of June, 1809, which conveyance passed through the office of the commandant at Mobile, as appears from his certificate. This claim was presented to the commissioner of private land claims in 1814, the claimant stating in his application that the claim was founded upon a "grant lost by time or accident;" but at the same time filing the original French grant to Madam De Lusser, with the conveyance to him; which appears of record.

In the report of the commissioner, this claim is classed as a "grant lost by time or accident," and there being no evidence adduced that the tract was inhabited and cultivated under the Spanish government, it was not confirmed to the claimant.

The heirs of Miguel Eslava now present their claim, and desire it to be confirmed under the third section of the act of the 2d March, 1829, entitled, "An act confirming the reports of the register and receiver of the land office for the district of St. Stephen's, and for other purposes;" having produced evidence of the land having been in possession of the original grantee and the present claimants from the year 1796 to the present time; and, also, that Miguel Eslava was a resident of that part of Louisiana situated east of Pearl river, west of the Perdido, and below the thirty-first degree of latitude, on the 15th of April, 1813, and on that day to have been in possession of the tract claimed; and that the said tract was in possession of Miguel Eslava and the original grantee for ten consecutive years previous to that day, and that it is not claimed by any other person.

It is therefore recommended for confirmation.

LAND OFFICE, St. Stephen's, Alabama, September 16, 1834.

William Fisher, the original claimant, appears to have been resident of that part of Louisiana situated east of Pearl river, west of the Perdido, and below the thirty-first degree of latitude, on the 15th of April, 1813, and on that day, and for ten consecutive years previous thereto, to have been in possession of the tracts claimed; and that the said tracts are not claimed by any other person, except Michael O'Connor, who claims the right of pre-emption to a part thereof, under the act of Congress of the 5th of April, 1832, and William D. Gager and John Street having located two floating pre-emption claims on other parts thereof, under the act of Congress of the 19th June, 1834. 23d Congress.] No. 1262. [2d Session.

STATEMENT OF THE AMOUNT OF LAND SCRIP ISSUED TO THE OFFICERS AND SOLDIERS OF THE VIRGINIA LINE, AND NAVY, AND OF THE CONTINENTAL ARMY, DURING THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE DECEMBER 8, 1834.

General Land Office, November 15, 1834.

Sir: In obedience to the resolution of the Senate, bearing date the 16th of June last, and which is in the following words, viz:

"Resolved, That the Secretary of the Treasury be directed to report to the Senate, at its next session, the total quantity of certificates or scrip issued under the act entited 'An act for the relief of certain officers and soldiers of the Virginia line and navy, and of the continental army, during the revolutionary war,' and under the subsequent acts containing appropriations of land to the same object; also the number of certificates, the quantity in each, and to whom granted, distinguishing the line or service to which the officer or soldier belonged, to whom or to whose representatives the same was granted; and likewise the names of the several agents who presented the warrants and obtained the certificates of scrip, and stating the respective amounts of certificates of scrip granted on duplicate and original warrants. And the said Secretary is further directed to report a similar statement in respect to all warrants which have been filed or officially presented, but upon which certificates of scrip have not yet been issued,"—

I have the honor to submit herewith, three statements, marked A, B, and C, which contain the information required.

The statement A contains all the information in relation to warrants granted by the State of Virginia, for military services rendered in her State line and navy.

The statement B contains all the information in relation to warrants granted by the same State, for military services rendered in her continental line; and

The statement C contains all the information in relation to warrants filed or officially presented, upon which certificates of scrip have not yet been issued, there being no appropriation.

No statement has been prepared as respects the warrants issued by the United States, they not being considered as embraced in the resolution, because the 6th section of the act of 30th May, 1830, provides for the satisfaction of warrants issued by the United States, without any limitation as to the quantity of land; and further, because the act entitled "An act for the sale of the unlocated lots in the fifty quarter townships in the United States military district in the State of Ohio, reserved to satisfy warrants granted to individuals for their military services," approved 3d July, 1832, disposed of the land heretofore specially set apart for satisfying them. The number of warrants of this description, which have been satisfied by scrip since the 30th May, 1830, up to this day, amount to 648, embracing a quantity of land of 97,750 acres, which, at the rate of one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, amount to $122,187.50.

The number of certificates issued on these warrants amount to 1,641.

All which is respectfully submitted.

ELIJAH HAYWARD.

Treasury Department, December 6, 1834.

Sir: In obedience to a resolution of the Senate, of the 16th of June last, directing a report from this department, of "the total quantity of certificates of scrip issued under the act entitled 'An act for the relief of certain officers and soldiers of the Virginia line and navy, and of the continental army, during the revolutionary war,' and under subsequent acts, containing appropriations of land to the same object; also the number of certificates, the quantity in each, and to whom granted, distinguishing the line or service to which the officer or soldier belonged, to whom or to whose representatives the same was granted; and likewise the names of the several agents who presented the warrants, and obtained the certificates of scrip granted on duplicate and original warrants," and directing "a similar report in respect to all warrants which have been filed or officially presented, but upon which certificates of scrip have not yet been issued,"—I have the honor to transmit herewith, a report from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, to whom the resolution was referred. It appears, that under the different acts on the subject, scrip has issued on warrants, for services in the Virginia State line, to the amount of $525{,}502\frac{61}{100}$ acres, and there are filed in the office of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, warrants for 483,722 acres, issued for services in the revolutionary war, by the State of Virginia, and for satisfying which no provision has been made.

I have the honor to be, sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

LEVI WOODBURY, Secretary of the Treasury.

Hon. Martin Van Buren, Vice-President of the United States and President of the Senate.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE DECEMBER 15, 1834.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, December 15, 1834.

SIR: In obedience to the resolutions of the Senate of the 4th day of the present month, (but which did not reach this office until the 8th instant,) directing me "to communicate a list of the purchasers of the public lands at the land offices in Columbus and Chocchuma, in the State of Mississippi, specifying the name of each original purchaser, and of the assignee or assignees to whom the certificate of purchase may have been endorsed, the quantity of land purchased by each, and the price per acre paid for each tract, respectively, between the first day of October, 1833, and the first day of January, 1834; and, also, the aggregate number of acres of the public lands offered at public sale, by the proclamation of the President of the United States, at each of the land offices in the State of Mississippi, from the 1st of January, 1833, up to the present time," I have the honor to report, that the annexed documents, marked A, B, and C, contain all the information which this office affords on the several subjects which the above inquiries appear to embrace.

First—Document A contains a statement of the quantities of lands sold at the land office at Columbus, Mississippi, from the 1st day of October to the 31st day of December, inclusive; the names of the original purchasers and of their assignees, the quantity of land purchased by each, and the price per acre of each tract, respectively.

Second—Document B contains a similar statement, in all respects, so far as relates to the land office at Chocchuma, in Mississippi.

These two statements embrace the examinations and reports of about four thousand seven hundred and eighty-eight entries of lands sold, and two thousand one hundred and three assignments, making, in all, more than fifteen thousand items of information.

Third—Document marked C exhibits the aggregate number of acres of the public lands offered at public sale, by proclamation of the President of the United States, at each of the land offices in the State of Mississippi, from the 1st day of January, 1833, to the present time.

With great respect, your obedient servant,

ELIJAH HAYWARD.

Hon. MARTIN VAN BUREN, Vice-President of the United States and President of the Senate.

RELATIVE TO FRAUDS IN THE SALES OF PUBLIC LANDS IN MISSISSIPPI.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE DECEMBER 15, 1834.

COMMISSIONS, AND LETTER OF INSTRUCTIONS TO COMMISSIONERS.

In Senate of the United States, March 5, 1834.

In Senate of the United States, March 3, 1834.

Mr. Poindexter offered for consideration the following resolutions:

1. Resolved, That the Committee on the Public Lands be instructed to inquire into the circumstances attending the recent sales of the public lands in the States of Mississippi and Alabama; and whether the proclamations of the President of the United States, causing the public lands in the districts of country acquired from the Choctaw tribes of Indians by the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek, and from the Creek tribe of Indians in Alabama, to be offered at public sale, were issued and promulgated a reasonable length of time prior to the day on which said sales were directed to be commenced in each of said districts, to give proper notice to the people of the United States of the days appointed for said sales; also, into the causes why the usual public notice was not given.

2. Resolved, That the same committee inquire whether any fraudulent practices, to the injury of the public interests, took place at such sales by reason of combinations of companies or individuals interdicting, or unfavorable to, a fair competition between bidders for the public lands offered for sale in said districts; and if so, whether the officers superintending said sales had knowledge of, or participated in, such fraudulent practices or combinations.

3. Resolved, That the said committee be instructed to inquire whether the registers of the land offices, and the receivers of public moneys, at any of the land offices of the United States, or either or them, have, in violation of law and of their official duties, demanded or accepted a bonus or premium from any purchaser or purchasers of the public lands, at public or private sale, for the benefit of such officer or officers, as a condition on which such purchaser or purchasers should be allowed to enter or purchase any tract or tracts of land offered for sale by the United States; and, also, whether any register or receiver, as aforesaid, has been guilty of fraud or partiality in the sales of the public lands, by adopting rules and regulations in their respective offices inconsistent with the laws of the United States.

4. Resolved, That the said committee inquire whether the public lands, at any land office in the United States, have been sold otherwise than for cash; and whether any register or receiver in said States has, at any time, taken in payment the promissory note of any purchaser or purchasers bearing an interest to accrue to the benefit of such register or receiver.

No. 1.—Avery Nolen's testimony.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

Interrogations to be propounded to Avery Nolen, a citizen of Hinds county, State aforesaid, called to be examined touching the transactions in the land office at Mount Salus, Mississippi, by virtue of a commission from the honorable Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands.

Interrogation first. Have you any knowledge, that the register or receiver, or both, at the Mount Salus land office, have sold public land otherwise than for cash, and if so, have they taken the promissory note of the purchaser, payable at a distant day, including in said note interest? If you do, state the transaction, who were the officers thus acting, the time given for the payment of the purchase money and interest, the rate of interest charged, when the transaction took place, and every particular relating to it.

Propounded 20th June, 1834.

WM. S. JONES,
ISAAC CALDWELL,
Commissioners.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

This day personally appeared before me, Anthony B. Shelby, an acting justice of the peace for the said county and State, Avery Nolen, who first being duly sworn, says, the following are true and faithful answers to the interrogatories propounded to him by the commissioners, appointed by the Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands.

Answer to interrogatory first. Some time in the fall or winter, (in November or December) 1832, I made application to Mr. Dameron to enter me some land. He said he did not know till he saw Mr. Gwin. We waited some time for Mr. Gwin to come, but he did not, and I went after him. When he came, he and Mr. Dameron went out in the yard, and talked together. They then came back into the house, and I asked them if they were going to do it. They both of them sat down to the table, and I think Mr. Dameron asked Mr. Gwin the amount. Mr. Gwin said the land came to one hundred and fifty dollars, and the interest put on to it made it two hundred and twenty-five dollars. Mr. Gwin said, you can pay it at the first of March next. I told them it was too much interest to pay till the first of March; I ought to have twelve months, at fifty per cent. He then said, pay it as soon as you can; if you will pay it before then, we will curtail the interest. I said, I will pay it if I have to borrow the money. Mr. Dameron (I think) wrote the note for two hundred and twenty-five dollars, and it was my understanding that I was to have twelve months for fifty per cent, and if I paid it sooner the interest was to be curtailed. I think the note was due 1st March afterwards. I had to make affidavit before a magistrate for the forty acre piece, the certificates for the forty acre piece and for the eighth were both folded up with the note. While Mr. Dameron was writing the note, Mr. Gwin looked on the maps for the land, and he (Gwin) told me, that when I paid the money, he would give me up the note, and the certificates for the land. I thought the land was entered, and I went home quite well satisfied. Some time afterwards I sold the land and one-eighth besides for twelve hundred dollars, and gave a bond to make a deed for the whole of it. A short time before Mr. Gwin left here, I went to the office to see Mr. Gwin. I asked him if he recollected about the land scrape. He appeared to be very obstinate about it, and seemed not to know me. I made myself known to him. He then said, Mr. Dameron wants to close his business. Says he, I am going to leave here shortly, and implied that the business must be closed. I told him just as quick as possible

I told him it was rumored the land was not entered. Some people were coming in at the door at that time, and he turned round and made me no reply. About October last I found out the land was not entered. There was then no receiver. I deposited the money for the entry of said land, when the receiver came. When the office opened again, Patrick Sharkey entered one-eighth of it; and as I had sold it before that time, believing it was entered for me, I was compelled to buy the eighth of land from Sharkey, and also one other eighth from him, for which I had to give him six hundred dollars. I have never heard anything of my notes. Mr. Gwin was register, and Mr. Dameron was receiver, when they both agreed to enter the land for me, which they did not do; and I lost four hundred dollars by their not doing it.

AVERY NOLEN, Jr.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 20th June, 1834.

A. B. SHELBY, J. P., Hinds County, Mississippi.

I am acquainted with this deponent, Avery Nolen, and full faith should be given to his testimony.

No. 2.—Rufus B. Powe's testimony.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

Interrogatories to be propounded to Rufus B. Powe, a citizen of said county and State, called to be examined as a witness, touching the transactions in the land office at Mount Salus, State aforesaid, by virtue of a commission from the honorable Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands.

Interrogatory first. Have you any knowledge that the register or receiver, at the Mount Salus land office, has, at any time, sold public lands otherwise than for cash; and if so, have they taken the note of the purchaser, payable at a distant day, including in said note, interest for delay of payment for their own benefit? If so, state the particular case or cases; what officer or officers thus sold land; the time given for payment of said note; the rate of interest charged, and every particular of said case or cases.

Propounded 10th June, 1834.

J. CALDWELL,
WM. S. JONES,
Commissioners.

THE STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

This day, Rufus B. Powe,* personally appeared before me, Henry C. Johnston, a justice of the peace for said county and State, and said Powe being first duly sworn, deposeth and saith, he will true and faithful answers make to such interrogatories as may be propounded to him by the commissioner appointed by the honorable Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands.

Answer to interrogatory first. In September, 1832, I applied to Mr. Dameron, the receiver, to enter me two forty acre pieces; he said he would enter it, provided I would give him my note for one hundred and forty dollars, payable in six months from that time. I then told him I would do it. He stepped into the register's office, which is adjoining, and brought me the applications for both forty acre pieces. I went and was qualified to them before a justice of the peace, and returned, and handed them to Mr. Dameron. Mr. Gwin and Mr. Dameron were both in the room at the time, and I think Samuel Gwin, the register, wrote the note. It was made payable to said Dameron and Gwin, and made payable in six months, for one hundred and forty dollars. One or the other said they would keep the receipt for the land, as a kind of security till the money was paid. I then believed the land was made safe, and was paid for to the government. A few days after my note fell due, I came and paid one hundred dollars on said note. I then told him (Mr. Dameron) I would pay him the balance of the money in a few weeks. He said he would wait with me till the fall for the balance. He then told me he would be down at the office after dinner. Before he came I left town, and did not see him; nor did I ever afterwards. I never knew but that the said land was saved for me, and continued to think so till Mr. Sumerall, the present register, came into office. Mr. Sumerall sent me word said land was marked sold, but was not sold, and if I did not come and enter it some one else would enter it. When Samuel W. Dickson came into office, as receiver of said Mount Salus land office, I again applied for both the eighths in which the two forty acre pieces were situated, and obtained them. I have not yet got back the one hundred dollars paid on the land, for which very same land I had to pay again, and shall probably lose said money. The land I contracted with them to save for me were, N. $\frac{1}{2}$, E. $\frac{1}{2}$, S. E. $\frac{1}{4}$, section 12, township 7, range 3, west, and S. $\frac{1}{2}$, W. $\frac{1}{2}$, N. E. $\frac{1}{4}$, same section, township and range, and have been twice marked on each with the letter S. Further deponent saith not.

Nos. 3, 4, 5, 6.—Testimony of R. McKay, J. M. Evans, J. Lane and Alfred Cox.

MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

Witnesses called on to testify touching transactions in the public land offices of this State, by virtue of a commission from the Committee on Public Lands of the Senate of the United States.

Interrogatory first. Were you at the recent public land sales at Chocchuma land office? If you were, state when said sale took place, and whether it took place at the time appointed by the President's proclamation?

Interrogatory second. How long had the citizens of Mississippi notice of said public sale; and was such notice published a sufficient time, prior to said sale, to enable the citizens of this State generally to be apprised of the same, and to afford them a reasonable time to procure funds to purchase lands?

Interrogatory third. Do you or do you not know, or have you reasons to believe, that some land speculators were exploring the lands brought into market at said sales, long prior to notice of such sale reaching this State, or being generally known? If you know anything of these inquiries, answer particularly, giving the name or names of such speculators as were so engaged, and the place of their residence.

Interrogatory fourth. Do you know, or have you reasons to believe, that a company or companies of speculators were formed and concerned in the purchase of public lands at said land sales at Chocchuma? If you have such knowledge, state particularly how said company or companies were formed? About how many were the numbers composing any such company, and what were their names and places of residence and terms of association, as far as you can recollect?

Interrogatory fifth. Were the individual members of such company permitted to bid against each other for public land at said sale, by the terms of their association, or did they bid against each other for such land?

Interrogatory sixth. About what quantity of land was purchased at said sale by said company; and how did they bid for lands, by agent or otherwise; and who did bid for the lands so purchased by said company; and about at what price was said land generally purchased?

Interrogatory seventh. Had or had not the formation and existence of such a company of speculators, the effect of preventing competition in market for said land; and do you or not believe the government sustained a considerable loss in the prices, for which said land sold; and about how much would you estimate such loss at?

Interrogatory eighth. What disposition did said company of speculators make of the lands so purchased by them? Did they sell out said lands to each other, or to persons not of said company; and state about the average price at which said lands were so sold?

Interrogatory ninth. When said company sold out lands so purchased by them, how was the transfer or transfers made to the individual purchasers? Was it by bond, deed, or a transfer on the books of the register and receiver? and was not the name of first purchaser taken from, or omitted in the books of said land office, and the name of the purchaser from the company substituted? And did the officers of said land office charge anything for such transfers, and how much, and who paid, and who received said charge?

Interrogatory tenth. What proportion of the land sold at said Chocchuma sales do you suppose was purchased by any such company of speculators? and did not said company purchase of the government nearly all the lands sold at said sale, or three-fourths of the quantity, or at least half of the quantity so sold? State the best estimate you can make on the subject?

Interrogatory eleventh. Do you know, or have you reasons to believe that the register and receiver of the land office at Chocchuma, or either of them, and which one, had notice or were apprised, of the existence of said company of speculators, during said land sales? and did either said register or receiver use any means, and what means, to suppress said company, or to prevent the effect of their combination from operating against the government, in the sales of said land? And where was such company formed, and was its existence publicly and generally known at said land office?

Interrogatory twelfth. What amount of profit do you suppose any officer of said land office, and what officer, made by the resales and transfers made by said company?

Interrogatory thirteenth. Do you recollect to have observed the register and receiver, at said land sales, refuse to take the bids of individual purchasers of land, who did not belong to said company of speculators, unless such bidder would put up the money at the time of bidding, and before the land was stricken off? And was not this rule generally enforced? State particularly all you know on this subject.

Interrogatory fourteenth. Did you observe anything like favoritism or partiality in the officers of of said land office, in conducting said sales, in any case or cases? State all you know on this subject.

Interrogatory fifteenth. Do you know, or have you reasons to believe that the officers of said land office, at Chocchuma, or either of them, was, directly or indirectly, individually concerned or interested in the sales of lands at said public sales, either with said speculators, or otherwise? State all your best information on this subject.

Propounded to Robert McCay and John M. Evans, 14th June, 1834; to John A. Lane and Alfred Cox, 16th June, 1834.

WILLIAM S. JONES,
Commissioners.

No. 3.—Alfred Cox's testimony.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

This day, personally appeared before me, Henry G. Johnston, an acting justice of the peace for said county and State, Alfred Cox, a citizen of Washington county, State aforesaid, who, being first duly sworn, says, he will true and faithful answers make to such interrogatories as may be propounded to him by the commissioner appointed by the Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands, to take depositions in cases of frauds on the public lands, in the State aforesaid, &c., &c.

Answer to interrogatory first. I was at the land sale at Chocchuma last fall, but do not recollect to have ever seen the President's proclamation, ordering said sale.

Answer to interrogatory second. I am unable to say.

Answer to interrogatory third. I saw a gentleman by the name of McCall, who informed me he was examining the public lands for Major McLamore, of Tennessee; but whether the time at which the sales of the public lands were to take place at Chocchuma was generally known at the time, or not, I do not know.

Answer to interrogatory fourth. I know that such a company was formed. The company, as well as I recollect, was formed by the individuals signing a written article of agreement, the details of which I cannot now recollect, entirely, but the substance of it was as follows, I think: No person was allowed to put in less than $100, nor more than $1,000. The aggregate sum thus raised was to constitute a fund for the purchase of the public lands then selling. Commissioners (I think four) were appointed to purchase at the sales. Treasurers (I think two) were also appointed to take care of the money of the company; those commissioners were to purchase lands for the company. The company consisted of citizens of Mississippi, Alabama, and Tennessee, but as to the number, I am unable to say. Nearly all of the spectators present, I believe, were of the company; the names of such as I now recollect of, as belonging to the company, are, R. J. Walker, of Natchez, Miss.; Thomas Bernard, same place; Thomas G. Ellis, of Miss.; Jas. Stewart, of Miss.; Gen. Chambliss, of Miss.; Wm. Trayon, of Miss.; Mr. Beale, of New Orleans, La.; Mr. Jemison, of Alabama; Mr Gilchrist, of Alabama, and Dr. Nelson, of Mississippi. My recollections, on this point, are very imperfect, as I did not pay any attention to the list of names, when I examined the articles of agreement. The terms of association, I understood from the articles of agreement to be, that the lands were to be purchased by the commissioners for the company, after the close of the land sales. The lands thus purchased, were to be set up and sold at public sale, by the company, to the highest bidder, and the profits divided between the members of the company, in proportion to their stock, with this exception: that each settler, who should belong to the company, should be allowed to have, I think, one-eighth, to include his improvement, or a part thereof, at the price paid for it by the company.

Answer to interrogatory fifth. I do not now recollect whether the individual members of the company were permitted by the terms of their association, to bid against each other at the public sale by the government, or not; but I presume they were not, as I understood from the gentlemen, composing the company, generally, that their sole object was to put down competition. They did not bid against each other, to my knowledge, at the sale made by the government.

Answer to interrogatory sixth. As to the quantity of land purchased, I am unable to say; they bid by agents. The commissioners appointed for the purpose, bid for the lands so purchased. The said lands were generally purchased, whilst I was present, at $1.25 per acre.

Answer to interrogatory seventh. The formation and existence of the said company, certainly did have the effect to prevent competition in the market for said lands; I do believe the government sustained a considerable loss in the prices for which said lands sold, but I am unable to form any correct estimate of the amount of such loss.

Answer to interrogatory eighth. The lands purchased by the company, were sold by the company at public sale, to the highest bidder: the sale was not confined to the individuals composing the company, but whether any person not belonging to the company, became a purchaser, at the said sale, or not, I am unable to say. I am also unable to say what was the average price at which such lands were sold: all that I saw sold, was sold at a considerable advance upon the price given for it by the company.

Answer to interrogatory ninth. I am unable to say.

Answer to interrogatory tenth. I should suppose that the company purchased about three-fourths of the land sold at the sales, perhaps more.

Answer to interrogatory eleventh. I heard the register and receiver of the land office at Chocchuma, during the sales frequently speak of the company. The said register and receiver did not either of them, use any means to suppress said company, or to prevent the effect of their combination from operating against the government, in the sale of the said lands, to my knowledge.* The company, I believe, was formed in the south room of the upper story of the tavern of Mr. Pratt, in the town of Chocchuma, and its existence was generally known of at said land office.

Answer to interrogatory twelfth. I am unable to form any idea.

Answer to interrogatory thirteenth. The only instance I recollect of in which the register and receiver refused to take the bid of any person, unless the money should be put up at the time of bidding, and prior to the striking off of the land, was this: a gentleman, who I understood did not belong to the company, bid (I think) against Mr. Martin, of Tennessee, and the gentleman was required, at the suggestion of Mr. Martin, to put up the money at the time of bidding, before the land was striken off; but to the best of my recollection, this rule was not generally enforced.

Answer to interrogatory fourteenth. I did not, unless the case of Mr. Martin, contained in my last answer, may be so considered; it was so considered by me.

Answer to interrogatory fifteenth. On that point I know nothing of my own knowledge, nor have I any information on the subject.

ALFRED COX.

HENRY G. JOHNSTON, J. P.

No. 4.—Robert McKay's testimony.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

This day, personally appeared before me, Henry G. Johnston, an acting justice of the peace for said county and State, Robert McKay, a citizen of Hinds county, State aforesaid, and being first duly sworn, deposeth and says, he will true and faithful answers make to such interrogatories as may be propounded

* Except that the register told me, he had applied to Judge Black to examine the articles of agreement of the company, and given him his opinion on the subject, and that Judge Black, after examining the articles of agreement, gave it as his opinion, that it was not the duty of the register and receiver to take any steps to counteract the effects of the company.

to him by the commissioners appointed by the Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands, to take depositions in cases of frauds on the public lands, &c., &c.

Answer to interrogatory first. I was at the sale of public lands at Chocchuma, which were either in October or November last, and the sales took place agreeably to the President's proclamation.

Answer to interrogatory second. I do not now recollect, how long said sales were published. I had sufficient time to procure funds for purchasing land at said sales. I do not now know how it affected others.

Answer to interrogatory third. I understood a company of gentlemen from Alabama had been exploring the lands several months before said sales. The names of those I now recollect were Jamison, Malcolm Gilchrist and others, whose names I cannot recollect. From the State of Mississippi, the following gentlemen were exploring the lands a short time before the sales, viz: John M. Evans, two of the Louises, and some of the Quins, &c., &c., and many others, whose names I do not now recollect.

Answer to interrogatory fourth. I was informed that two companies were formed for the purpose of purchasing lands at the recent sales at Chocchuma, which companies I afterwards understood united, and formed a joint stock, with a view, as they said, of protecting the actual settler or settlers for the land he had improved, provided that the improvement did not exceed two lots or two-eighths of land. Said settler or settlers were to hand in the numbers of the land so improved, if they wished to purchase it, to the agent or agents of said company; and it was also stipulated, that said settler or settlers were not to oppose the agent or agents of said company in the purchase of other lands not embraced in their respective improvements. The persons said to be interested were inhabitants of different States, principally Mississippi and Alabama. William R. Campbell, of Vicksburgh, and Hiram Coffee, of Jackson, both in the State of Mississippi, named to me that they were interested in said company, and I understood many others, namely, Malcolm Gilchrist, and Jamison, of Alabama, Walker and Bernard, of Natchez, Mississippi, and other individuals, that it would now be impossible for me to name from recollection. The number composing said company, I have no perfect knowledge of, but from public rumor, they might amount to fifty or upwards.

Answer to interrogatory fifth. I understand not.

Answer to interrogatory sixth. They bid by agents. I saw the aforesaid Walker and Gilchrist bidding for land, which I understood was for the company, generally at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre.

Answer to interrogatory seventh. The formation of said company had the effect of preventing competition, but on the whole, I think the government sustained no loss from it.

Answer to interrogatory eighth. I left Chocchuma before the sale of the company's land took place, therefore I have no accurate knowledge of how the business was closed.

Answer to interrogatory ninth. When the company sold a tract of land, the agent, in whose name said tract had been purchased, made a transfer of the receipt of the receiver, for the payment of the purchase money, which transfer was witnessed by the register, who charged one dollar for each transfer, and the person purchasing from the agent paid it.

Answer to interrogatory tenth. My knowledge is very imperfect, and I can make no estimate to be relied on.

Answer to interrogatory eleventh. I believe the register and receiver both knew such a company was formed, it being a matter of public notoriety. I heard of no efforts being made to suppress the formation or intention of said company, by either the register or receiver. Said company was formed at Chocchuma.

Answer to interrogatory twelfth. I have no knowledge of the amount thus made by the transfers on certificates to second purchaser or purchasers.

Answer to interrogatory thirteenth. I do not recollect that the register and receiver required persons bidding for lands to place money in the hands of the receiver, unless when said purchasers had previously forfeited land bid for. I do not think such sale was generally enforced.

Answer to interrogatory fourteenth. I did not.

Answer to interrogatory fifteenth. I do not know, nor have I any reasons to believe they were; and further this deponent saith not.

ROBERT McCAY.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this fourteenth day of June, 1834.

HENRY G. JOHNSTON, Justice of the Peace.

No. 5.—John A. Lane's testimony.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

This day, personally appeared before me, Henry G. Johnston, an acting justice of the peace for said county and State, John A. Lane, who being first duly sworn, deposeth and says, he will true and faithful answers make to such interrogatories as may be propounded to him by the commissioner appointed by the Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands, to take depositions.

Answer to first interrogatory. I was at the recent public land sales at Chocchuma, which took place on the 21st October, as advertised.

Answer to second interrogatory. If my memory serve me right, I saw the first procamlation of those sales in a Washington paper, about six weeks previous to the time appointed for the sales to commence, which would have given time for the citizens to have been apprised of the sales, at least those who had access to the newspapers; and I should say, from the quantity of funds upon the ground at the time of the sales, ample time to procure funds; for, in my opinion, there was upwards of one million dollars taken to those sales.

Answer to third interrogatory. I do not know that there was any examination of lands, prior to the proclamation of the sales, by speculators, but that there were persons examining the country I have no doubt; but as to names or residence I have no knowledge, nor have I any that such was the fact.

Answer to fourth interrogatory. I know that there were sundry companies formed for the purchase of public lands at said sales, amongst the persons attending them, which were formed generally by verbal agreement, except in one or two instances in which there was a small article drawn, and signed by a large majority of the members of said company, though not all; as well as I recollect, the numbers comprising said companies varied from two to some ten, twenty, and in one instance to a much larger number, though the precise number I do not recollect or even know, but to perhaps fifty or one hundred persons. I was a member of sundry companies myself. R. J. Walker, of Natchez, Adams county, Mississippi, Thomas Barnard, of ditto, Thomas G. Ellis, of ditto, Jno. C. McLemore, of Tennessee, W. R. Campbell, W. H. Sims, Benj. Hatch, Thomas Rigby, Caborn Steel, William Vick, all of Warren county; John J. McCaughan, James McLauren, John B. Payton, William Cargill, Dr. William Gwin, all of Hinds county, Mississippi; Thomas J. Kirkman, a Mr. Binford and Smith, Anthony Winston, and Malcom Gilchrist, of Alabama, county and places of residence not known. Many of the above given names were the representatives of absent persons not known, or if known, not recollected. The terms of association were different in all the companies, or nearly so, of which I have any knowledge, or was concerned in; the rights of many members of the company who were occupants, were respected; and said persons so occupying, were allowed to take their places at the cost price paid government. In many instances the lands bid in by said company, were sold out to the highest bidder without respect to membership; and in some instances when resold, were confined to the members of said company. This is as near as I can recollect.

Answer to fifth interrogatory. It is my impression that it was forbid that members of the same company should oppose each other in bidding at sales of the public lands; but in some instances such was the case, which I saw and experienced myself.

Answer to sixth interrogatory. As to the quantity of lands purchased at said sales by said companies, I have not the least idea. But by far the largest portion sold at the said office, was bid in by said companies, and generally at $1.25; but in some instances as high as three, four and seven, and even more dollars, were paid per acre by said companies to government. Each company generally had some two to five persons to bid in the lands for them; and Messrs. Walker, Ellis, Jamison, Gilchrist, Lane and others, were bidders.

Answer to seventh interrogatory. The formation of said companies, no doubt, prevented competition in market, and may have been a loss to government; but my own opinion is, that though she may have lost on that score, she sold a large quantity of lands which the purchasers would now be glad to revert back to government, even in some instances where it only cost the minimum price of $1.25, and which said lands would not be entered if now vacant, though perhaps the portion is small. I can form no estimate of the loss to the government, if any.

Answer to eighth interrogatory. The sundry companies made sundry dispositions; in some instances sold them out at private, in others at public sale; the average price for which said lands sold was at an advance on cost of from 25 to 50 per cent, in some cases cost only obtained, and in others only fifty to seventy cents per acre, though in many instances one and two hundred per cent were paid.

Answer to ninth interrogatory. The transfers were made generally by assignment of certificate, done before the register, and so entered by him in his tract book, the original purchaser making the assignment; in some few instances the original name was not known. When transfers were made before the receipts were issued, there was a charge made by the register, who made nearly all the transfers, or quite all I saw made, of one dollar in some instances for each receipt transferred, and in some instances no charge was made. I paid for some one dollar, others seventy-five cents, and for others nothing.

Answer to tenth interrogatory. I should say at least one-half to two-thirds of the land sold at said sales, was bought by said sundry companies.

Answer to eleventh interrogatory. I do not know that either the register or receiver of said office had notice, or was apprised of the existence of said company. I saw persons upon the ground who did not know it until after the sales of the day, and from day to day were over, at least I was interrogated to know about it. On several occasions I have heard the register say he would stop the sales if he discovered a combination; that he did or did not know it I cannot say; had the officers been out doors they might have stood a chance to discover it; but the opportunities within were bad.

Answer to twelfth interrogatory. I have no idea of the amount received for transfers.

Answer to thirteenth interrogatory. There were several bids refused on the grounds of a deposit being demanded by the opposing bidder, and not made; but who the parties were I do not recollect, except in one instance: Mr. Marsh, who, I think, did not belong to the company, or at least if so, I am unable to say; and in another instance A. S. Campbell, who, if not then, was afterwards a member of the company or companies.

Answer to fourteenth interrogatory. I did not observe any partiality or favoritism in either of the officers. There was censure imputed in some cases where deposits were demanded by the opposing bidders, and that demand enforced by the register; where threats were made, reasonable calculation upon a forfeiture to the government, as was the case in some instances.

Answer to fifteenth interrogatory. I do not know that either of the officers was interested in said company sales. I know that each of them was a bidder for land, and that without competition.

JOHN A. LANE.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 16th day of June, 1834.

HENRY G. JOHNSTON, J. P.

No. 6.—John M. Evans' testimony.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

This day personally appeared before me, Henry G. Johnston, an acting justice of the peace for said county and State, John M. Evans, who being first duly sworn, deposeth and says, he will true and faithful answers make to such interrogatories as may be propounded to him by the commissioner appointed by the Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands, to take depositions in cases of frauds on the public lands, &c.

Answer to interrogatory the first. I was at the sales of the public lands at Chocchuma, I think in October last, which, I believe, were made in accordance with the President's proclamation.

Answer to interrogatory the second. I do not now recollect how long public notice was given of the sales, prior to their taking place; but I think sufficient time for all who wished to purchase lands, to avail themselves of the means of so doing, as there were persons from all parts of Mississippi, and from several adjoining States, commanding more capital than was ever supposed to be at any one sale.

Answer to interrogatory the third. I believe there were a great many, who, judging probably from the progress of the surveys and other causes, that the sales would take place some time last fall, were exploring the country prior to the time of their publication; but I could not name any person in particular.

A short time after the publication of the sales, or some short time before, I do not recollect which, I was engaged in exploring the country that constituted a part of that which was to be sold at Chocchuma, and at the time I arrived in that section of country, there were several hundred persons engaged in the same business. But to point out any individual that I knew to be there before the publication of the sales referred to, is more than I am able to do.

Answer to interrogatory the fourth. About the second or third day after the sales commenced, a company, designated as the Chocchuma Land Company, was formed, by entering into a written agreement, containing, as well as I recollect, (in substance) the following stipulations: that each member of the company should deposit with the commissioners of the company, at the time of signing the articles of agreement, one thousand dollars, to be called one share in the general stock; and that no one person should be permitted to hold more than one share. The company were to be represented by Robert J. Walker and T. G. Ellis, of Natchez, and Malcolm Gilchrist and Robert Jemison, of Alabama; that the lands purchased for the company were to be bid for by the aforesaid representatives or agents, and no other; the lands so bought were to be set up at a subsequent sale, free for all persons to bid, who wished to purchase; and, at the closing of the transactions of the second sale, each member was to draw an equal proportion of the profits arising therefrom. Such lands as were settled on were excepted, there being a provision, that all settlers who would give in the numbers of their land to the company, should be entitled to one-eighth, or as much as a quarter section, if their improvements covered so much, at government price. The number composing the company was between one hundred and fifty and two hundred. Some of the names of the company are as follows: Malcolm Gilchrist, Robert Jemison, from the Alabama; R J. Walker, Mr. Ellis, Mr. Bernard, Wiley Davis, Hiram Coffee, J. A. McRoon, William Trahern, James C. Dickson, Thomas H. Williams, Richard Cordell, Benjamin Bugg, and J. and J. A. Lane, of Mississippi; and, I am under the impression, Mr. McLemore of Tennessee. The others I cannot now recollect. Subsequent to the formation of this company, there were several others formed, composed of few members. The stipulations, I believe, were similar to those of the first, with the addition of other names, who, as well as I remember, were the following: R. J. Campbell, W. Sims, Jacob Oats, Mr. Blanton, John B. Peyton, G. Gray, Mr. Steel, of Mississippi.

Answer to interrogatory the fifth. They were not, as already answered in the fourth interrogatory.

Answer to interrogatory the sixth. As to what quantity of land was bought by the company, I cannot say. The lands, as previously stated, were bid off by the agents of the company; the greater part of which was bid off at one dollar and seventy-five cents per acre; the remainder ranging from that price to about four dollars.

Answer to interrogatory the seventh. Competition was prevented, of course, between the members of the company. The loss sustained by the government cannot possibly be known; but I would suppose a considerable amount.

Answer to interrogatory the eighth. The lands bought, as before stated, were sold to the highest bidder at public sale, by the first company spoken of; but, at the others, they were sold to the highest bidder among themselves.

Answer to interrogatory the ninth. The land purchased was transferred to the second purchaser by a transfer of the certificate, in presence of the register. The name of the person who first purchased, was registered as the purchaser from government. The register charged one dollar for each transfer made before him. I paid that amount, and suppose he charged others the same. Col. W. Gwin was the register who received the compensation above stated.

Answer to interrogatory the tenth. I suppose about two-thirds.

Answer to interrogatory the eleventh. It being a matter of public notoriety, they must have known it. I do not know that they used any means, at that time, to prevent the effects of its organization. But I have been informed that Col. Gwin mentioned the subject to Judge Black, telling him that he had an idea that it would be improper to proceed with the sale, and, upon consultation with him, after having examined the law on the subject, they were both of opinion that nothing had occurred to render the sales unlawful.

Answer to interrogatory the twelfth. I cannot say.

Answer to interrogatory the thirteenth. Sometimes, at the suggestion of other persons, I believed a deposit was called for. But I think it was only when the officers had reason to believe the bidder intended to forfeit it, that a deposit was called for.

Answer to interrogatory the fourteenth. I do not know that they showed partiality in their official proceedings; at least, I am not able to point out any particular instance.

Answer to interrogatory the fifteenth. I know nothing of the facts, if any such exist. And further, this deponent saith not.

Interrogatory third. Has the purchase money been paid to government for south half, east half, southeast quarter, section twenty-one, and the east half, southeast quarter, section seventeen, township seven, range three west? If so, state every particular.

Interrogatory fourth. When was the purchase money placed to the credit of government for the east half, northeast quarter, section twenty; and the west half, northwest quarter, section twenty-one, township seven, range two east; by whom paid, and how much per acre?

Interrogatory fifth. When was the purchase money paid to government for the north half, east half, southwest quarter, section thirty-six, township six, range two west; by whom, how much per acre, and who owns the south half of said eighth?

Interrogatory sixth. When was the purchase money placed to the credit of government for the west half, northwest quarter, section twenty-one, and the east half, northeast quarter, section twenty, township seven, range two east; by whom, and how much per acre?

Interrogatory seventh. When did government receive a credit for northwest and west half, northeast quarter, section thirty-three, and east half, southeast quarter, and east half, northwest quarter, section thirty-two, township seven, range two east; who now owns said land, and how much was paid per acre?

Interrogatory eighth. When did government receive a credit, and how much per acre, for the southeast quarter, section twenty-seven, and the northeast quarter of section thirty-four, township ten, range four east; by whom entered?

Interrogatory ninth. Do you consider land purchased of the government, under any circumstances, common in a land office, before the purchase money is actually paid for said land?

Interrogatory tenth. Do you know of, or have you any reasons to believe, any register or receiver of the several land offices (yourself excepted) has, at any time, been guilty of malconduct in office, contrary to the land laws of the United States, and the duties of their office? if so, state every particular.

Propounded June 19, 1834.

WM. S. JONES,
J. CALDWELL,
Commissioners.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

Answers to interrogatories propounded by W. S. Jones, commissioner, touching the malpractice in office of any of the officers of the Mount Salus land office.

Answer to first interrogatory. On examination of the books in receiver's office, I find east half, southeast quarter, and west half, northeast quarter, section twelve, township seven, range three west, entered on 22d November, 1833, in the name of Rufus B. Powe, at $1.25 per acre.

Answer to second interrogatory. The entry alluded to in the above interrogatory, is on the books in the name W. S. Jones, for west half, southeast quarter, section twenty, township seven, range three west, on 3d January, 1833, at $1.25 per acre; and, on same date, in the name of Jacob Williams, north half east half, northeast quarter, section twenty-nine, township seven, range three west, and at the same rate per acre.

Answer to third interrogatory. I do not find an entry on the books for the land described in the third interrogatory.

Answer to fourth interrogatory. On examination in the books, I find east half, northeast quarter, section twenty, and the west half, northwest quarter, section twenty-one, township seven, range two, east, entered in the names of Joseph Dunbar and David Hunt, by joint entry, on 24th July, 1833, at $1.25 per acre.

Answer to fifth interrogatory. The entry on the books for north half, east half, southwest quarter, section thirty-six, township six, range two west, is in the name of Samuel Gwin, on 29th August, 1833, at $1.25 per acre; and the south half of east half of southwest quarter, is entered in the name of Robert Matthews, 11th October, 1832.

Sixth interrogatory answered in fourth answer.

Answer to seventh interrogatory. The books aforesaid represent the entry in the name of Burruss Haley, for northwest quarter, and west half, northeast quarter, section thirty-three, and east half, southeast quarter, and east half, northwest quarter, section thirty-two, township seven, range two east, at $1.25 per acre, on 28th February, 1833.

Answer to eighth interrogatory. The entry for southeast quarter, section twenty-seven, and the northeast quarter, section thirty-four, township ten, range four east, is in the name of George C. Dameron, at $1.25 per acre, on the 13th of September, 1833, as entered in the register of this office.

Answer to ninth interrogatory. I am of opinion that when the purchaser, on presenting the application from the register's office to the receiver, and has actually paid the receiver the purchase money, he is entitled to the land, and the purchase is complete; or I am also of opinion, that when the purchaser, on presenting his application as aforesaid, obtains the receiver's receipt, in the usual way, he is a bona fide purchaser of the land, and the receiver is charged to the government for the purchase money.

Answer to tenth interrogatory. For answer to the above interrogatory, I would remark that until I came into the land office, I knew of no conduct in the officers, except as regards my own entries of land, which were conducted, in every particular, as I thought, with the utmost fairness. Since I have been in office, I have seen no conduct of my colleague, who has been in office ever since I have, in the slightest degree fraudulent, or done, as I believe, with the least impurity of motive.

S. W. DICKSON.

No. 8.—T. L. Sumerall's testimony.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

Interrogatories propounded to Thomas L. Sumerall, present register of the Mount Salus land office, State aforesaid, touching any malpractice on the part of the several registers and receivers of the several land offices, in the State aforesaid, by virtue of a commission from the honorable Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands.

Interrogatory first. When you took charge of the Mount Salus land office in the latter part of April, 1833, how long was it before you discovered that a considerable quantity of land had been marked sold upon the maps of survey, but which, in fact, was not sold; how many pieces of land, thus marked, have you detected upon said maps; how much is still thus marked; and how much of this marked land has since been entered, and in fact sold?

Interrogatory second. What quantity of land, thus marked, was so marked while the office was in the care of your predecessors in office, and how much was marked under each one, according to the best estimate you can make, and how much was marked by each one, in his own handwriting?

Interrogatory third. Is there any record in your office, of any of your predecessors informing the Secretary of the Treasury, or the Commissioner of the General Land Office, that a considerable quantity of land was marked sold, which was not sold? and what disposition did your immediate predecessor make of land, thus marked, when applied for?

Interrogatory fourth. Do you know, or have you reasons to believe, any officer of said office ever marked land sold, when, in fact, said land was not sold, with a view of profit to himself, or for the benefit of others, and did represent said land, thus marked sold, as in truth sold, when applied for, and inquired after, by persons looking for vacant land? State particularly what officer may thus have acted, and every case in which you either know, or have reasons to believe, such was the fact.

Interrogatory fifth. Do you know, or have you reasons to believe, that any officer of said office ever agreed to save or enter any tract or tracts of vacant land, for any person; and with an understanding they or he was to receive a per cent for so doing? If so, did said officer or officers make payment to the government at the time of making the agreement to save said land; or did he or they only mark said tract or tracts of land sold upon the maps of survey, so as to induce inquirers for vacant land to believe said land, thus marked, was sold, when, in fact, it was not sold?

Interrogatory sixth. [R. B. P.] Was the north half, east half, southeast quarter, section twelve, township seven, range three west, and the south half, west half, northeast quarter, same section, township and range, marked sold upon the maps of survey, when said land, in fact, was not sold, when you took charge of said office? If so, state how you think said land came to be marked in that manner, and what induced you to permit its entry, without waiting to receive instructions from the Commissioner of the General Land Office; and also, what information you received from any person concerned in said Mount Salus land office, relative to said lands being thus marked; and also, who now owns said land, and when it was entered; and also state in whose handwriting do you think said land was thus marked.

Interrogatory seventh. [R. M.] When you took charge of said office, what mark or writing was on north half, east half, southwest quarter, section thirty-six, township six, range two west; who now owns said land; when was it entered; and was said mark or writing on said land prior to its being paid for; and also state what information you received relative to said lands, having said writing upon it?

Interrogatory eighth. [J. W.] When was west half, southeast quarter, section twenty, township seven, range three west, and north half, east half, northeast quarter, section twenty-nine, same township and range, entered; and also, were south half, east half, southeast quarter, section twenty-one, township seven, range three west, and east half, southeast quarter, section seventeen, same township and range, marked sold upon the maps of survey; how you think it thus came marked sold, in whose handwriting is said mark, and for what purpose was it made; and also, what information have you had relative to said mark, from any person concerned in the office, and what is now the situation of said land?

Interrogatory ninth. [W. T. L.] Was the west half, northwest quarter, section twenty-one, township seven, range two east, and the east half, northeast quarter, section twenty, same township and range, marked sold upon the maps of survey, when said land was not sold; and in whose handwriting is the mark of sale made upon said land; who now owns it, and in whose name is it now entered? State every particular of said land.

Interrogatory tenth. [A. McCay.] Were certain tracts of land, situate near a certain steam sawmill, owned by John B. Pittman and Samuel Gwin, late register of this office, marked sold, when, in fact, they were not sold? If so, state when you discovered said mark of sale upon them, what information you received relative to said marks, for whose benefit they were intended, when said land was in fact entered, who now owns it, and what induced you to erase the mark of sale from said land, and whether or not you had received instructions from the department for making the erasure.

Interrogatory eleventh. [B. Haley.] When do the records of your office show that northwest quarter and west half, northeast quarter, section thirty-three, and east half, southeast quarter, and east half, northwest quarter of section thirty-two, township seven, range two east, was entered, by whom, and how much per acre?

Interrogatory twelfth. When do the records of your office show the entry of southeast quarter, section twenty-seven, and the northeast quarter of section thirty-four, township ten, range four east, by whom, how much per acre, was said land marked sold upon the maps of survey, before the purchase money was paid to government, in whose handwriting do you suppose the mark of sold is made? If so, and said land was marked sold, before it was in truth sold, how came it to be entered without waiting to receive instructions from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, permitting its entry; and also, what information have you received relative to said land, from any person who ever did business in your office, either as principal or deputy.

Interrogatory thirteenth. Is a certain half-eighth of land near to, or adjacent to, the land mentioned in interrogatory twelfth, for which Thomas Griffin has deposited money, marked sold upon the maps of survey, but the sale of which cannot be traced to any other book in the office, marked sold? If so, state in whose handwriting you think said mark of sale was made, and what information you ever received from any person, who ever may have done business in said office, either as principal or deputy.

Interrogatory fourteenth. Have you ever been informed that any person or persons, were ever allowed to place, or have placed, a private mark upon vacant land, which such person or persons intended, at some subsequent time, to purchase of the government? If so, state what person or persons had said privilege, what was the intention of said private mark, what register allowed it, and every particular relating thereto.

Interrogatory fifteenth. From your examination of the books of said Mount Salus land office, and from information otherwise obtained, do you think your predecessors in office have faithfully discharged the duties required of them as registers of said office? State every particular, if from the records of the office, refer; if from information otherwise obtained, state your information; and also, whether you think said registers have always acted, in the discharge of their official duties, with strict justice between man and man, and equal justice towards the government, whose agents they were; and also give the name of any register who may have been guilty of such malconduct.

Interrogatory sixteenth. Do you know of any malconduct, on the part of any of the several registers or receivers of this State, (yourself excepted)? If so, state every particular.

Interrogatory seventeenth. What mark or writing is put upon land sold, to show the sale of said land, in the Mount Salus land office?

Interrogatory eighteenth. Do the records of your office show that Samuel Gwin and George B. Dameron, or either of them, owned, in November or December, 1832, the southeast quarter of section twenty-seven, and the northeast quarter of section thirty-four, township ten, range four east, or any half section of land in the neighborhood, or lying near the above described land? If so, give the numbers of said land then owned by them, and every particular.

Propounded 18th June, 1834.

WM. S. JONES,
ISAAC CALDWELL,
Commissioners.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

Answers of Thomas L. Sumerall to the interrogatories propounded to him by William S. Jones, commissioner appointed by the Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands.

Answer to interrogatory the first. In the course of a month or two I discovered a considerable quantity of tracts marked on the maps of the office, which, upon inquiry of the General Land Office, proved to be not sold. Of lands thus marked I have detected as much as twenty-one eighths, the whole of which, I believe, has since been sold. And, upon a late comparison of maps with the tract books of the office, I have discovered about one hundred and thirty-six eighths of land marked on the maps as sold, that are not tract.

Answer to interrogatory the second. As to the time the marks were made, I cannot say, but I believe they were nearly all made before I took possession of the office. As to the handwriting, or under whose time as register, I cannot say with any degree of certainty; however, I believe that from the great variety of appearances in those marks, many of them were made by other persons than those in charge of the office; a considerable quantity of them appear to be in the handwriting of Samuel Gwin, some in the handwriting of George B. Dameron, and some in the handwriting of Gideon Fitz, and perhaps some in the handwriting of S. D. Hays; but as to the quantity of marks made by each one, is, from their numerous appearances, impossible to determine.

Answer to interrogatory the third. I find a copy of a letter purporting the original to have been sent to the General Land Office, a list of marks found on the maps, which corresponding tracts had not been entered on the tract books, and appears to be dated March 5, 1832. As for what disposition Colonel Gwin, who was then register, made of said lands, when application was made for them, I do not know.

Answer to interrogatory the fourth. I believe that the maps have been marked in many places, indicating the lands to be sold, when in fact they were not sold; but what the views of the officers that made such marks were, I do not know. The north half, east half, southwest fourth of section thirty-six, township six, range two west, when I came into the office, was marked Gwin; and, upon inquiry, Colonel Gwin told me that it was not sold, but that he had marked it for himself, intending, so soon as I should take my post, and did some time afterwards, enter said tract of land. G. B. Dameron also marked the maps, which circumstance will be explained in my answer to interrogatory the sixth.

Answer to interrogatory the fifth. I know of no such circumstance.

Answer to interrogatory the sixth. The east half, southeast fourth, and the west half, northeast fourth of section twelve, township seven, range three west, were marked on the maps as sold, when I took charge of said office. The reason why I permitted said lands to be entered without waiting to have instructions from the General Land Office, is that G. B. Dameron indicated to me that he had marked it for R. B. Powe, who he expected would enter it; and the said mark on the map does appear to be in the handwriting of G. B. Dameron. The said land was entered by Rufus B. Powe on the 22d November, 1833.

Answer to interrogatory the seventh. For my answer as to the mark, &c., see my answer to interrogatory the fourth. The said tract was entered by Samuel Gwin, on the 10th of August, 1833; however, the receipt having been misplaced at that time, the entry was not closed until the 29th of the same month.

Answer to interrogatory the eighth. The west half, southeast fourth of section twenty, and the north half, east half, northeast fourth, twenty-nine, both of township seven, range three west, were entered, (as appears by the records of this office,) on the 3d day of January, 1833. The east half, southeast quarter of section seventeen, and the south half, east half, southeast quarter of section twenty-one, both of township seven, range three west, were marked sold, I think, before I came into office, but how they came marked I know not; I believe the mark on the east half, southeast fourth of section seventeen, is in the handwriting of George B. Dameron. Application has been made and the money deposited on the two tracts, last above named, and now waits instructions from the General Land Office.

Answer to interrogatory the ninth. I know nothing of said marks, except that I perceive by the books of the office, that it was entered by J. Dunbar and David Hunt on the 24th of July, 1833, at which time George C. Dameron attended to my office in my absence; by whose hand the marks were made I cannot tell.

Answer to interrogatory the tenth. There are two or three eighths of land lying in sections ten and fifteen, in township five, range two west, near where I suppose the said steam saw-mill is situate, about which John B. Pittman and Alexander McCay had some contention, a part of which has since been entered by John B. Pittman and Samuel Gwin, in copartnership, and a part by Alexander McCay. The balance contained in said interrogatory I cannot answer.

Answer to interrogatory the eleventh. According to the records of this office, the northwest fourth and west half, northeast quarter of section thirty-three, township seven, range two east, and the east half, southeast fourth, and east half, northwest quarter of section thirty-two, same township and range, were entered on the 28th of February, 1833, by Burruss Haly, at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre.

Answer to interrogatory the twelfth. According to the records of the office, the southeast quarter of section twenty-seven, and the northeast quarter of section thirty-four, both in township ten, range four east, were entered on the 11th of September, 1833, at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre. I can neither tell who marked said tracts on the maps as sold, nor when it was marked. At the time said lands were entered I was part of the time confined with sickness, and was very seldom in the office. I never received any information relative to said entry, until rehearsed by Ramsey Cox, whose testimony has been taken on the subject. I believe at the time the entry was made, George C. Dameron superintended in my office.

Answer to interrogatory the thirteenth. The north half, west half, northwest quarter of section thirty-five, township ten, range four east, is marked sold on the maps, which entry cannot be found on the tract books, upon which Thomas Griffin has made a deposit to wait instructions from the general land office; the handwriting of said mark resembles that of Samuel Gwin. I have never received information on this subject save that from the testimony of Cox aforesaid.

Answer to interrogatory the fourteenth. I have been told by some person, but do not recollect whom, that several persons had put private marks on certain tracts of land, as designated on the maps, which they intended at some future time to enter. I understood that Joseph Dunbar had thus marked the maps, but whether or not it was a privilege allowed by the register I do not know. Those marks were made before I took charge of the office, but I cannot say who was register at the time.

Answer to interrogatory the fifteenth. No answer.

Answer to interrogatory the sixteenth. I know of none.

Answer to interrogatory the seventeenth. Sometimes the purchaser's name is put upon the map to indicate the tract sold, but more commonly the letter S is put upon the maps for that purpose.

Answer to interrogatory the eighteenth. I know of none, nor do the records show any.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

Interrogatories to be propounded to William T. Lindsay,* of Madison county, a witness, called and examined touching the conduct of the several officers of the several land offices in the State aforesaid, by virtue of a commission from the honorable Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands.

Interrogatory first. Have you any knowledge of any officer at Mount Salus land office refusing any applying for vacant land, permission to enter said vacant land? If so, state who was the officer; give the numbers of said land, and say who now owns said land, and everything relating thereto.

Propounded 12th June, 1834.

WM. S. JONES,
ISAAC CALDWELL,
Commissioners.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

This day personally appeared before me, Henry G. Johnston, an acting justice of the peace, for said county and State, William T. Lindsay, who being first duly sworn, says he will true and faithful answers make to such interrogatories as may be propounded to him by the commission appointed by the Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands, to take depositions of witnesses in case of frauds on the public lands, &c., &c.

Answer to interrogatory first. On or about the 31st day of December, 1832, I applied to Samuel Gwin, the register of the land office at Mount Salus, to enter east half, northeast quarter, section twenty, and the west half, northwest half, section twenty-one, township seven, range two east. My brother owned an eighth of land joining these, broadside to the east, and I knew that by getting these two eighths, the three together would sell well. Upon looking at said two eighths, I found that both were marked with the letter S. I asked him (Gwin) who had entered said land, and to let me see the books, and know who had entered it. He said it was too much trouble, and he would not examine the books; and that after the next week he should have a room made and would lock up the books, and when people applied for land, if it was vacant, they should have it; if not, they should not have it. That ruffled me a little, and I told him he could do as he pleased about it. Some time in July, 1833, Littleberry R. Stark, of Madison county, called and told me I was mistaken about the land's being entered, for which I had applied, and which Gwin, the register, had told me was entered; for he (Stark) had himself seen the very same land entered the evening before. The records of the said land office now show that that very same land was entered by Joseph Dunbar and David Hunt, of Jefferson county, on the 24th of July, 1833. I consider I thus lost $1,400 by not getting the land as above described, which Gwin, the register, insisted was entered when I applied for it; said land was then marked sold. There are several other persons who know the facts of this transaction; furthermore deponent saith not.

No. 10.—Elisha Lott's testimony.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

Interrogatories to be propounded to Elisha Lott, a citizen of Madison county, called and examined as a witness touching the malconduct of the several registers and receivers of the several land offices of the State aforesaid, by virtue of a commission from the honorable Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands.

Interrogatory first. Do you ever recollect to have heard either the register or receiver of the Mount Salus land office offer to sell southeast quarter, section twenty-seven, and the northeast quarter, section thirty-four, township ten, range four east, or any land lying near it? If so, state all you know of said offer of sale, by said register or receiver, the time of said offer, &c., &c.

Answer to interrogatory first. About November or December, 1832, I was in the Mount Salus land office, and heard either the register or receiver say, "We have a half section of land which we will sell." They asked $1.75 or $2.00 per acre, I think. I am not certain said land was the southeast quarter, section twenty-seven, and northeast quarter, section thirty-four, township ten, range four east; but am disposed to think that was the land, at least, the half section offered for sale was near the above land. The offer was made to Mr. Hill Jones, and he and myself went to a Mr. Warren's, in Madison county, near the above land, and from there went to look for the register's land, as it was called in the neighborhood, and believe we found it. And, now, from examining the different entries on the maps of survey, I think it the very land we looked at, and which Mr. Jones was offered by either the register or receiver, if not the southeast quarter, section twenty-seven, and northeast quarter, section thirty-three, township ten, range four east, must lie very near it. Samuel Gwin was the register and George B. Dameron, receiver, when one or the other offered the above land for sale. My impression at this time is that the land offered Mr. Jones, and which we went to examine, lay in the same section, but of this I cannot be very certain, as I have not had the numbers of the land, and am influenced principally by the neighborhood in which it lies.

No. 11.—Ramsey M. Cox's testimony.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

Interrogatories to be propounded to Ramsey M. Cox,* a citizen of Madison county, State aforesaid, called and examined as a witness, touching the transactions of the officers of the land office at Mount Salus, State aforesaid, by virtue of a commission from the honorable Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands.

Interrogatory first. Did you ever purchase any tract or tracts of land of the register and receiver of the land office, at Mount Salus, and did you pay the money; or in what manner did you make the purchase; did you receive a deed for said land, or did you receive a bond for title? If so, state all and every particular of said transaction, and who were the officers that sold you said land.

Interrogatory second. Do you know, or have you any reason to believe, said land did not belong to said men that sold it to you, and did you ever receive a deed from them? State every further particular of said case or cases.

Propounded 11th June, 1834.

WILLIAM S. JONES, Commissioner.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

This day, personally appeared before me, Henry G. Johnston, an acting justice of the peace for said county and State, Ramsey M. Cox, who being first duly sworn, saith he will true and faithful answers make to such interrogatories as may be propounded to him by the commissioner appointed by the Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands, to take depositions of witnesses in cases of frauds on the public lands, &c., &c.

Answer to first interrogatory. A gentleman informed me Mr. Dameron and Gwin owned some valuable land, lying near some he, (Mr. Harper,) owned; and they, (Dameron and Gwin,) had requested him to sell it for them. I went up and looked at the land, and came on down to purchase it. I asked Messrs. Dameron and Gwin, the receiver and register of the Mount Salus land office, if they owned the southeast quarter, section twenty-seven, township ten, range four east, and the northeast quarter of section thirty-four, same township and range. This was about the 15th of December, 1832. They told me they owned said land. I asked them what they would take for said land; they said seven hundred dollars; I asked them about the time of payment; they offered to take one hundred and fifty dollars in cash, and the balance in equal payment, half in three months, and the other half in six months. I agreed to do it. I paid them one hundred and fifty dollars down. They did not take my notes, but gave me their joint bond, and both of them signed their own names to it; and in said bond it was agreed that when I paid the amount that would be due in three months, and also the amount that was due in six months, they or their heirs, executors, &c., were to make me a title to said land above described. I then told them I wanted to enter a half-eighth adjoining. They told me to go and make affidavit before Esquire Bond, before I could enter it. I did so, and when I came back I asked them for the certificate for it. They said it did not matter about that, they would include it in the bond, and could so arrange it, that the patents would come out in my name. I agreed to that, it was included in the bond, and I paid them in cash fifty dollars, the government price of said half-eighth. I did not examine the maps, and do not know whether said half section above described, was marked sold upon the maps of the office or not. I did not meet the first payment as it fell due, and when the last payment was about due, I sent them my note, endorsed by Goorey and Bryant, payable in the United States' Bank at Natchez, at four months, for five hundred and seventy dollars, for which I received a receipt signed by George C. Dameron. Some time afterwards I saw Samuel Gwin, on his way to Chocchuma, and he told me the note I had sent them was not discounted. I told him I would make some arrangements, and would pay it in a short time. He said Mr. George C. Dameron attended to his father's business since his death, and told me to arrange it with George C. Dameron. The first time I came down I did not see George C. Dameron. He was from home; I saw him on the 20th February, 1834, and told him I wanted a title to the land I had bought of his father and Gwin, and showed him their bond for title, and told him I was then ready to pay the balance for said land. He said his father and Gwin did not enter it, but that he himself had entered the land in his own name. He said if I would pay him, he would make me a title to the four-eighths, but he could do nothing with the half-eighth. I then came to the office with George G. Dameron, and he said the half-eighth had been entered by Thomas Griffin. George C. Dameron then deducted the fifty dollars for said half-eighth from what I was to have paid, and I paid the balance; and he gave me a memorandum that he would make me a title to said four-eighths. Said forty acre piece, which he said belonged to Mr. Griffin, was marked sold on the maps of the office at that time, 20th February, 1834; but no trace of its entry can be found in any other book of the office, and Mr. Griffin, some time in April last, deposited the money for said land.

Answer to interrogatory second. Said land did not belong to said George B. Dameron, and Samuel Gwin, receiver and register of the Mount Salus land office, at the time they sold me said land, which was about the 15th of December, 1832; for in fact Georg C. Dameron entered the very same land on the 11th September, 1833, in his own name, and I have not yet got a deed from any person for said land. I gave up the bond from said Dameron and Gwin, to George C. Dameron, and he gave me a receipt for the payment of the money for the said lands, and included in said receipt a memorandum that he would make me a title to said four eighths. He would have transferred said land to me in the register's office, had the register not been absent on the day I paid him.

My personal acquaintance with this deponent is limited, yet I am perfectly well acquainted with his general character, and happy to state that he is a man of uncommon firmness, and is noted for his truth and veracity. The distance he resides from this place prevents getting certificates from his personal acquaintances. I have seen some of the papers which he received in the negotiation, and am informed by the honorable James Scott, that this deponent exhibited the bond for title from Dameron and Gwin to him, and received his advice how to proceed in this affair. Judge Scott says the bond was good and perfect in every respect, and that the name of George B. Dameron was in his own handwriting, but that he is not so well acquainted with the signature of Samuel Gwin, and gives no opinion as to his.

No. 12.—Seneca Pratt's testimony.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

Interrogatories propounded to Seneca Pratt, a citizen of Hinds county, State aforesaid, called and examined as a witness, touching the conduct of the officers of the several land offices, in the State aforesaid, by virtue of a commission from the honorable Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands.

Interrogatory first. Do you know, or have you any reasons to believe, that any of the officers of the Mount Salus land office, did ever themselves mark, or permit any other person to mark, any tract or tracts of land upon the maps of survey of said office, as sold, or with any sign or mark, intended to induce inquirers for vacant land to believe that said tract or tracts thus marked was sold; when, in truth, said land thus marked was not sold, and the government had not received a credit for the purchase money? If so, state the particulars of the case or cases, and everything relating to it or them.

Interrogatory second. Do you know, or have you any reasons to believe, that any of the officers of said office ever agreed to secure for applicants for vacant land, the land thus applied for, with the expectation or agreement of receiving a premium or bonus, in the form of interest, for delay of payment; and further, that said officer or officers ever received any compensation for securing vacant lands for applicants, for delay of payment of the purchase money, and then afterwards received the purchase money and interest for said delay of payment? If so, state what officer or officers thus acted, and whether the receiver's receipt for the payment of the purchase money was dated on the day said officer or officers agreed to secure said land for such applicant, or whether said receipt was dated on the day said applicant and actual purchaser paid said purchase money, and when said purchase money was placed to the credit of the government?

Interrogatory third. Do you know, or have you reasons to believe, any register of said office has ever permitted any person applying for land marked sold, but which, in truth was not sold, to purchase land thus marked sold, without waiting to receive instructions from the Commissioners of the General Land Office, permitting said tract or tracts of land, thus marked sold, to be entered by said applicant; and also, if you have ever known, or have reasons to believe, that any of the officers or their deputies showed partiality or favoritism towards any person or persons, and not acting towards all men alike, in their official characters?

Interrogatory fourth. Have you ever known, or have you reasons to believe, land has ever been marked sold, or with any other mark intended to represent it sold, when the receiver's receipt for the payment of the purchase money had not been given, but the application, or the evidence of having bargained for the land, with the register, had only been had, and deposited with one of said officers, with an understanding, that if said land was applied for by another person, the officer or officers were either themselves to pay the money for it; or say the person had money on deposit, or get some other person to advance the money?

Interrogatory fifth. Do you know of any malconduct on the part of any register or receiver of said Mount Salus land office? If you do, state particularly all you know of any such malpractice. This interrogatory is made to you, from your knowledge of the land laws of the United States, and the duties of these respective officers.

Propounded 18th June, 1834.

ISAAC CALDWELL,
WILLIAM S. JONES,
Commissioners.

Answer to interrogatory first. Being employed by the receiver to assist him in writing, and the offices, both of the register and receiver, being in the same house, and part of the time in the same room, I have sometimes, in the absence of the register, filled applications for applicants. I have sometimes, through mistake, marked land as sold which was not sold, and have known the register to do the same. I have never known the register intentionally mark land as sold which was not sold; nor have I known any other person to do so, although I have no doubt it has often been done without the knowledge of the register. In many cases where money has been forwarded to the officers by letter, and the business of the office was pressing, the letters were opened and the money deposited in the strong box, the applications were made out and enclosed in the letter and left also in the box, and the land marked as sold. Sometimes, perhaps, these letters would lie for weeks, through inadvertency, before the regular certificates were made out, and sometimes the applicant would request that they might be retained until called for. In other cases, where the eighth applied for exceeded eighty acres, and the money remitted was but one hundred dollars, the officers not willing the applicant should lose the land applied for, the land has been marked as sold, and the certificates withheld until the applicant could be informed of it, and have time to remit the balance.

Answer to interrogatory second. The register and receiver have conjointly, in a few instances, received compensation for entering lands. Whether the receipts in these cases (which I cannot now state) were made out at the time of the application being made I could not know, as I had nothing to do with the private concerns of the officers. I have often known the officers applied to to enter (or as the applicants would express themselves, save) lands applied for, and have often known them to refuse to do so. The officers did sometimes enter land with their own funds.

Answer to interrogatory third. I have never known the register permit any person to enter any land marked as sold. I have, however, known persons to contend that they had the right to enter lands, even knowing that they were sold, and that the register could not refuse to allow them to place their application where they pleased, and that the risk was their own, and if disposed to place their money on lands already known to be sold, that the register could not prevent them. Partiality or favoritism has never been shown, to my knowledge, in the office.

Answer to interrogatory fourth. Of cases referred to in this interrogatory I have no recollection. If my recollection is not at fault, money has been deposited in the office for lands, the applications and receipts made out, but not numbered or dated, with the express understanding that should any person apply for the lands before their return, (as they wished to examine the lands,) that the entry should be closed and considered final, but reserving to themselves the privilege of withdrawing the money, in case no one should apply for the land during their absence examining it; and also if the land should not answer their expectation. In these cases I have never understood the land marked as sold.

Answer to interrogatory fifth. This interrogatory is predicated on my general knowledge of the land laws. I have never read but few of the land laws, and have never taken any pains to inform myself on them, except so far as to enable me to understand the manner in which the books were required to be kept, and the returns to be made out. This was my business while in the office, and to this my attention was particularly directed. I have no knowledge of any malconduct of either of the officers while I was connected with the office, (which was from the last of June to the last of December, 1832.) The officers always appeared to be extremely solicitous that everything should be done with the most scrupulous exactness; and their only anxiety was to do everything to the satisfaction of government, and the accommodation of the purchasers of public lands.

No. 13.—Joseph D. Peebles' testimony.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

Interrogatories to be propounded to Joseph D. Peebles, a citizen of said county, called as a witness, by virtue of a commission which issued from the Committee on Public Lands, of the honorable Senate of the United States, touching transactions at the land office at Mount Salus, in said county.

Interrogatory first. Have you any knowledge or information of the fact that public lands have been at any time marked as sold, or by a sign or mark which was understood by the officers and purchasers of land to represent it as sold, on the public maps of lands in the register's office at Mount Salus, when, in fact and in truth, said lands were not sold, and the government not paid therefor? If you are so informed, state fully all you know on that subject, and when such transactions occurred, and who was register of said land office at the time.

Interrogatory second. What mark or letter is used by the registers of the land office at Mount Salus, on their public maps, to designate the lands which they have sold for the government; and does not the existence of such a mark or letter on the maps induce subsequent inquirers for the purchase of said land to view it as sold?

Interrogatory third. Do you or do you not know, or have you reasons to believe, that the officers of the land office at Mount Salus, at any time or times, showed favoritism or partiality to one purchaser over another in the purchase of public land at said office? If you so believe or know, state the grounds of your knowledge or belief; and state also what officer of said office so acted; and whether or not you have reasons to believe he was interested with the purchaser to whom favoritism was so extended.

Interrogatory fourth. Did you and Dr. Wm. M. Gwin, brother of Samuel Gwin, who was then register at Mount Salus, visit together the Mississippi river in search of valuable vacant land? If you did, state whether or not Samuel Gwin, register, agreed to mark on his maps, as sold, lands which you and Dr. Gwin expected to purchase, prior to your seeing said lands, or prior to your purchase of them in fact? State fully the conduct of said Samuel Gwin in regard to said lands, and your application for the purchase of some part thereof, on your return from visiting them.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

This day personally appeared before me, Henry C. Johnston, a justice of the peace in and for said county, Joseph D. Peebles, a witness called forward by virtue of a commission from the Committee on Public Lands of the honorable Senate of the United States, to testify in relation to transactions in the land office at Mount Salus, Mississippi; and the said Peebles being first duly sworn to make full and true answers to the annexed interrogatories, propounded by the commissioners herein, at the land office in Clinton, answered as followeth:

Answer to first interrogatory. I know that five-eighths (lots) of ground, on the Mississippi river, were marked sold on the register's maps, at the Mount Salus land office, when they were not sold, and they remained thus marked and unsold for several months. They were marked with the letter S. Samuel Gwin was the register of said office, and did himself mark said land as above, under circumstances that he knew it was not sold, they being intended for my use, but were subsequently entered by William M. Gwin, in the name of Harry Hill, of Nashville, Tennessee. This land was entered, I think, something more than a year ago, I think in March, 1833, but I am not certain as to dates.

Answer to second interrogatory. The letter S is used on the maps of said office to denote land that is sold, and subsequent inquirers for vacant land would believe land thus marked was sold.

Answers to third and fourth interrogatories. I think Samuel Gwin, the register, was partial to his brother in entering land. Dr. William M. Gwin, brother of said Samuel Gwin, and myself visited land on the Mississippi river, for the purpose of finding valuable vacant land; and after we had found lands vacant that suited us, we agreed that he was not to enter any land above a certain township line, nor was I to enter any below said township line. The line between township eighteen, range two, east, and township nine, range eight, west, I was permitted, after going with said line to a certain lake, about two miles from the Mississippi river, to enter below said township line, as the lake might run. William M. Gwin and myself returned to Clinton (in which the land office is situated), and I entered some land. After I had been to look at said land a second or third time, Samuel Gwin, the register, marked five lots of it as sold, when it was not sold, for my benefit, till I could get the money to pay for it. Some time afterwards, when I was about leaving for New Orleans, I applied to Major Dameron, the receiver, to borrow the money to pay for said land, thus marked, for two weeks, till I could return from New Orleans. He at first agreed to lend me the necessary sum, five hundred dollars, but he then said, perhaps he might wish to make a deposit before my return, and told me to take out applications, and deposit them in his strong box, and it would do as well as paying for the land. When I returned from New Orleans, I came into the office to pay for said land thus marked. Major Dameron asked me, if there was nothing between me and William M. Gwin. I told him there was not. Dameron told me then, William M. Gwin had entered the five-eighths marked for my benefit. I then asked him if said Gwin had no applications out for land that were not paid for. His answer was, he had thirty odd, and that he had forty-five hundred dollars on deposit in his strong box to pay for it. I then asked him, if he would take some money on deposit for me. He said he would. I then deposited twelve hundred dollars with him. I then asked him if he would bid against me for the land, for which William M. Gwin had taken out applications. He said he would not. In two or three days afterwards I applied to Samuel Gwin, the register, for twenty lots, for which his brother had taken out applications, which were marked sold, but were not paid for. He asked me where I wanted them. I told him to turn to the maps, township eighteen, north range, two east. I then applied for the south half of section nine. He told me it was entered. I told him it was not; but the applications were only in Dameron's strong box, and the land was not paid for. He said the money was on deposit, if it was not. I then told him I had money in deposit too, and made him give me applications for it. I then applied for the south half of section six, same township and range. He also said that was sold. I told him it was not; and he wrote three applications of it, and commenced the fourth, and stopped, and told me, if I would not enter these lands, that he would burn the receipts for the five lots his brother had entered in the name of Harry Hill, of Nashville, Tennessee, as above mentioned. I told him I only wanted what was right; that I would put up with the three lower lots of the land entered in said Hill's name. He then went with me to Dameron's box, and got the receipts out; and three of them for the lower lots I wanted he burnt; and I then entered said three lots, and got the receipts in my own name. This is about all I know.

No 14.—H. Walker's testimony.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

Interrogatories to be propounded to Herrin Walker, a citizen of Hinds county, State aforesaid, called to be examined as a witness, touching the transactions of the officers of the Mount Salus land office, State aforesaid, by virtue of a commission from the honorable Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands.

Interrogatory first. Have you any knowledge, or have you any reason to believe, either the register or receiver at Mount Salus, has been interested with any person in entering or purchasing any tract of land intended for the emolument of said officer, when he himself would not enter the land? If so, state the case or cases, what officer was so interested, and every particular of said case or cases.

Interrogatory second. Have you any knowledge, or have you any reasons to believe, that either of said officers has marked lands upon the maps of survey as sold, when in truth he knew it was not sold; and if he represented said land thus marked as sold, when applied for by other person or persons, who wished to purchase it and pay the money for it? If so, state the particular case or cases, and every particular of it or them.

Propounded 10th June, 1834.

ISAAC CALDWELL,
WILLIAM S. JONES,
Commissioners.

The answers of Herrin Walker to interrogatories propounded to him by the commissioners appointed to take testimony in relation to transactions in the land office at Mount Salus, Mississippi, by virtue of a commission from the Committee on Public Lands, of the honorable Senate of the United States, taken before H. G. Johnston, Esq., justice of the peace of Hinds county; said Walker being first duly sworn true and full answers to make to the annexed interrogatories propounded to him, answers as follows:

That early in last year he, said Walker, applied at the land office at Mount Salus, to enter an eighth of land in Madison county. That he called at the land office and saw Colonel Samuel Gwin, register, and apprised him of his wishes, but candidly told him he had not then the money to enter it. Said Gwin told said Walker that the receiver of public moneys was then absent, but said Gwin told him if he would agree to take in a partner in the entry of said land, he could get it; and said Gwin then told him that he would enter the land in their joint names, and so secure it to him, and that he might rest satisfied. That some time afterwards, and on this day, on examination, the said Walker finds that said Gwin did not enter said land, but that the same was entered in the name of a Mr. Green, and this affiant defeated in the advantages of the contract he had made with said Gwin. And further this affiant knoweth not.

15.—Jacob Williams's testimony.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

Interrogatories to be propounded to Jacob Williams, a citizen of Hinds county, State aforesaid, called to be examined as a witness, touching the transactions in the land office at Mount Salus, State aforesaid, by virtue of a commission from the honorable Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands.

Interrogatory first. Have you any knowledge that the register, or receiver at the Mount Salus land office, has at any time sold land otherwise than for cash, and if so, have they taken the promissory note of the purchaser payable at a distant day, including, in said note, interest for delay of payment for their own benefit? If so, state the case or cases, what officer or officers thus sold land, the time given for payment of said note, the rate of interest charged, and every particular of said case or cases.

Propounded the tenth day of June, 1834. Given under my hand and seal.

WILLIAM S. JONES, Commissioner. [SEAL.]

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

This day Jacob Williams,* of the county and State aforesaid, personally appeared before me, Henry G. Johnston, an acting justice of the peace for said county and State, and said Williams, being first duly sworn, deposeth and saith, that he will true and faithful answers make to such interrogatories as may be propounded to him by the commissioners appointed by the honorable Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands.

Answer to first interrogatory. About the first of August, or thereabouts, 1832, I applied to Samuel Gwin, the register at the Mount Salus land office, and told him I had understood that he was in the habit of saving land for people, at a small interest; that I wanted some land, but had no money, and wanted him to save it for me. He said he would see Mr. Dameron, the receiver, that they were together, and whatever they agreed on they would do. They mentioned it to each other in my presence, and agreed to do it. I told them I wanted them to save me two eighths, and two forty acre pieces, making three-eighths. They asked me how long I wished them to wait with me for the money. I told them if I could sell a negro girl I had for sale, I could pay them in three months. They then asked me what I was willing to give them. I told them I was willing to give them thirty dollars, and would pay them in three months if I could sell said negro girl; but if I could not sell the negro girl, I should want them to wait a little longer, and I would be willing to give them a little higher interest. They agreed to that. Then Samuel Gwin sat down to draw the writings, and said, "Well, Williams, as you and I were friends in the war, I will not be so hard with you, I will take twenty-five dollars." I then showed him the numbers of the land. He then made out the certificates for the land, and I signed my name to them. Mr. Gwin then drew two notes, both making the sum of three hundred and twenty-five dollars; three hundred dollars being for the land, and twenty-five dollars for the interest. The interest was not included in a separate note, but the amount of said three hundred and twenty-five dollars was divided into two notes, the exact amount of each one separately I do not recollect; but both made the sum of three hundred and twenty-five dollars. I think the notes ran in this manner: "Three months after date I promise to pay Gwin and Damaron," &c., &c., attached to each note; and on the same paper was a little memorandum, if I did not pay said notes as agreed on, it was to be optional with them whether they would let me have the land or not. I one day, some time afterwards, stepped into the office, and Mr. Dameron said to me, you are selling beef here, suppose you let me have some in the way of paying for the land which you owe us. Whenever you come in let me have beef, and I will credit your note, which will be the same as the cash to you. I said, whenever I bring in beef I will let you have some; you credit my notes, and it will answer me as well as the money. I accordingly let him have beef at several different times. I at length became suspicious from hearing a few words spoken in my neighborhood, and thought the money for one of the eighths had been deposited in the office. In selling some beef to Mr. Hall, we were speaking of the scarcity of money, and he said he could recommend me to a man from whom I could get almost any amount of money I might want, at a per cent. He told me to go to Wm. S. Jones, of Clinton. I went to him, and he agreed to let me have some money. I then came down to the office, and told Messrs. Dameron and Gwin I was going to pay the money and lift one eighth and a half of the land. They then asked me if I had got any person to assist me about the land. I told them I had, and they called him Doctor Jones. They then consulted together. Mr. Gwin then turned round and said, you have paid me nothing; I do not like to give up the land till I get more interest. I then asked him how much he wanted. He said, as crumbs are going pretty plenty, I must have some too; you must pay me sixteen dollars to-day, if I consent to let that part of the land go. I then said, Mr. Gwin, I have not got the money in hand to-day; but, says I, I have got Mr. Jones to take half the land, and assist me about it, and I will pay you the sixteen dollars to-morrow. He said, well, your word is good for it, we will wait till to-morrow. Well, says I, I will come down in a few hours with Mr. Jones, and you shall have the money for the land. Late in the evening Mr. Jones and myself came down. Mr. Gwin was absent. I applied to Mr. Dameron for my notes and certificates. When I applied to him for them, he said, Mr. Williams, I do not know anything about your papers. Know nothing about them, Mr. Dameron, why not long since I told you I was going to pay you the money, said I. Says he, I don't know that you have any papers here; if you had, I expect they are torn up, I know nothing about them. Said I, Mr. Dameron, I gave you and Mr. Gwin my notes, and I signed the certificates, and you have credited the notes with what I have let you have, and, says I, you must get my notes, I must know what has become of them, they are out. Mr. Jones and myself then got up and started out of the office. Mr. Dameron then got up, and said, Mr. Williams, come back in the morning, I will make due search, and I expect all will be right. In the morning, Mr. Jones and myself, after the office had opened, came to the office again. Mr. Dameron then said to me, Mr. Williams, all is right; here are your papers and notes. I then asked for the certificates for the land Mr. Jones was going to enter for me, and told them to credit the notes with the amount of money Mr. Jones was going to pay. They then tore up the certificates for the land Mr. Jones was going to enter. Mr. Jones then entered one eighth in his name, and paid for the forty acre piece which was entered in my name, and I transferred it to him in the office. Mr. Jones and myself then went to his office, and reduced our contract to writing. I then returned back to the office, and paid them the sixteen dollars interest, as agreed on the day before. I gave them the money, and said, credit my note. Mr. Dameron looked in his box, and found the notes, and said to Mr. Gwin, I have lost fifty dollars; Mr. Gwin laughed, and said, I cannot help that; Mr. Gwin then said, you might as well not have applied to any one else, and let us have gone on with your business. Says he, Jones will skin you tighter than we would; he is a skinner. Mr. Dameron then said, I would not have made the offset about the notes, if Jones had not been in the office, I did not want him in. Says I, Mr. Dameron, I am sorry I got a gentleman to come into the office, who injured your feelings. I had got him to assist me about my land. He said he did not want Jones to know anything he was doing in the office, he did not like him, and did not want anything to do with him. I then said, Mr. Dameron, I am willing to pay you interest. If you think there is the least difficulty about your saving the balance of the land for me, I will return to Mr. Jones, and get him to save it for me, I might as well pay one man interest as another. Mr. Dameron then said, Mr. Williams, there is not the least danger on earth; we can save your land, and you can pay us along as you get the money. Before my crop came in, I handed them over twenty dollars; about the last of October I came to Clinton, and found that Mr. Dameron had died, and that Mr. Gwin had left the office. I then went to Mr. Dameron's widow, to ascertain what had become of my notes, and the certificates for the land. She could give me no information about it, but told me to apply to her son, who had done business in the office, and perhaps knew about it. I then applied to young Mr. Dameron, he said he knew nothing about it; but when I came in the next time, he would try and ascertain, and would give me an answer. He then, at the next time I saw him, told me he could say nothing about it. He asked me how much money I had paid his father, I told him; he said I should not lose the land, and if I did, he would make it good. He said he had asked Mr. Gwin about it, and he knew nothing about it; but that I should lose nothing by it. I have not yet heard anything of my notes, or the certificates; but young Mr. Dameron paid me, not a great while since, the twenty dollars I had paid his father. He then requested me to say nothing about it, and said he could not find either the notes or certificates, and stated he would give me a receipt against the notes. In December last, I saw Mr. Jones again in Clinton. He asked me if I had got the land Mr. Gwin and Mr. Dameron had agreed to save for me. I told him I could hear nothing of the certificates or the notes, but that young Mr. Dameron had told me I should not lose the land. Mr. Jones then told me, it was his opinion, said land was yet vacant, though it might be marked sold, on the maps of the office.

I then asked him, if he could save it for me. He told me he thought he could. We then found said land marked sold upon the maps of the office, but its sale could not be traced to any book in the office, nor could there be found any entry of its having been paid for to the government. We then deposited money for said land, (after having obtained the certificates,) till the register could get instructions from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, permitting its entry. The register this morning told me, he had not yet found any trace of said lands being entered. The eighth and a half entered for me by Mr. Jones, in January, 1833, and which Messrs. Gwin and Dameron had agreed to save for me, three or four months before that time, is west half, southeast quarter, section twenty, township seven, range three west, and the north half, east half, northeast quarter, section twenty-nine, same township and range, and the other land which they also agreed to save for me, and which in said January, 1833, they further continued to save for me, but which in December, 1833, was only marked sold upon the maps, and for which Mr. Jones has deposited money for south half, east half, southeast quarter, section twenty-one, township seven, range three west, and the east half, southeast quarter, section seventeen, same township and range, all subject for sale at the Mount Salus land office. Geo. B. Dameron was receiver of public money, and Samuel Gwin was register at said Mount Salus land office, when I contracted with them to save said land for me, and which they did not save, though they often told me they had saved, and received some of the money, which young Dameron has paid back to me. This is about the whole of said transaction, as well as I now can remember. Given under my hand and seal, this the 10th day of June, 1834.

Full faith should be given to this testimony, as the most of it occurred under my own knowledge, and was the first case in which I infer any malconduct on the part of the officers, which was from my own observation.

No. 16.—John S. Gooch's testimony.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

Interrogatory second. Have you known any land marked upon the maps of survey as sold, when in truth it was vacant? If so, state the case or cases, and every other particular relating to them?

Interrogatory third. Have you ever known of any instances in which any person purchased land of the government without paying the money at the time of the purchase? If so, state what officer granted such favor or favors, and everything relative thereto?

Interrogatory fourth. Have you ever known either of the officers of the Mount Salus land office, entering land for any person, and waiting any time for the money? If so, state every particular.

Propounded June 11th, 1834.

WILLIAM S. JONES, Commissioner.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

This day, personally appeared before me, Henry G. Johnston, an acting justice of the peace, for said State and county, John S. Gooch,* who, being duly sworn, saith, he will true and faithful answers make to such interrogatories as may be propounded to him by the commissioners appointed by the honorable Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands, to take depositions, touching frauds on the public lands.

Answer to first interrogatory. On the 26th of August, 1833, I applied to the register of the Mount Salus land office, to enter eight eighths of land, the applications for which were given me by Mr. Sumerall, the register; and when I went into the receiver's office to pay the money, George C. Dameron, who was on that day acting as receiver, said he had had money sent to him by Joseph Dunbar, to pay for said land, and he insisted that the land was entered for said Dunbar, as the applications had been taken out and the money was in the hands of the receiver. I insisted for the land, and Mr. Sumerall, the register, concluded to put it up to the highest bidder. I first bid one cent over government price; Dameron then bid one cent over me. I then asked him if he was authorized to bid. He made no reply. I then made one more bid; Mr. Sumerall then knocked off the land to me, and I obtained it.

Answer to interrogatory second. I do not.

Answer to interrogatory third. I have. I know that on two occasions, I wrote to Samuel Gwin, while acting as register of said office, (Mount Salus,) to enter me some land, and requested him to send me the receiver's receipt for the same, which he did, and held my letter as a voucher for the money, which I paid him in a short time. I do not know whether he used his own funds, or what arrangement he made about the payment of said land for me, I paid no interest to him for doing it.

No. 17.—Patrick Sharkey's testimony.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

Interrogatories propounded to Patrick Sharkey, a citizen of the county and State aforesaid, called and examined as a witness, touching the conduct of the officers of the several land offices in the State aforesaid, by virtue of a commission from the honorable Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands.

* Joseph Dunbar appears to have been much favored in the office. He was summoned but did not attend. See the testimony of William T. Lindsay, and interrogations ninth and fourteenth to Thomas L. Sumerall, and his answers thereto.

Interrogatory first. Do you know, or have you any reasons to believe, that any of the officers of the Mount Salus land office, did ever themselves mark, or permit any one else to mark, land upon the maps of survey belonging to the Mount Salus land office, as sold, or with any mark, or sign, intended to make persons, examining for vacant land, believe that said tract or tracts of land thus marked were sold, when, in truth, they were not sold? If so, state the particulars of the case or cases, and everything relating to it or them.

Interrogatory second. Do you know, or have you reasons to believe, that any of the officers of said office, ever received any compensation for securing vacant land for applicants for delay of payment, and then received the purchase money for said land, and also interest charged them for delay of payment? If so, state what officer thus acted, and whether the receiver's receipt for the payment of said money was dated on the day such officer or officers agreed to secure said land for said applicant, or whether said receipt was dated, the day on which said applicant and purchaser did actually pay said purchase money and interest.

Interrogatory third. Were you at the recent sales of public lands at Chocchuma?

Interrogatory fourth. Was there at said sales a combination of persons for purchasing land, who united for the purpose of driving other purchasers out of the market, and deterring actual settlers from bidding for land on which they resided, or other lands which they might desire to purchase for actual settlement and cultivation, thereby taking into their own hands the control of the sales for their own benefit, and purchased the valuable lands at the minimum price of the government? If so, state particulars.

Interrogatory fifth. Was there any written agreement showing the intention of said company, and their designs? If so, state them.

Interrogatory sixth. Was there any agreement between said company and the actual settlers to prevent competition in bidding, or was there any understanding to that effect, so the actual settlers were to have a certain quantity of land at the price it cost said company, and for all other land the settlers wanted they were to pay said company a higher price? If so, state the particulars.

Interrogatory seventh. Did the speculators, after the public sales were over, offer lands so purchased by them for sale at augmented prices, and were these lands purchased by persons attending the public sales, at the prices put on them by the speculators or their agents, and if so, what price per acre, estimating the highest and lowest qualities, did they receive for land so purchased? State particulars.

Interrogatory eighth. Did land, in general, after said company had been formed and commenced buying, bring as good prices as before the existence of said company? and if so, was said land purchased by said company because the settlers and others wishing to buy had purchased as much as they wanted, or were the other persons wishing to buy deterred from bidding? State the particulars, and also the price land brought before the company commenced buying, and also what it brought after, and while the company were buying.

Interrogatory ninth. Has said company large bodies of land now in the market, which they purchased at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre; and if so, what amount of land, according to the best estimate which you can make, yet remains unsold, and what is the price to which it is limited, including lands of best quality and those of an inferior quality?

Interrogatory tenth. What amount of money do you suppose was vested in lands by said company at said public sale?

Interrogatory eleventh. What would be a reasonble estimate of the loss sustained by government at said public sale in consequence of the combination of said company to purchase land at the minimum price of the government?

Interrogatory twelfth. Do you know, or have you any reason to believe the register and receiver attending said public sale were informed, or otherwise had knowledge of the existence of said company and their object, or was the existence of said company so public and so generally known, that you can reasonably suppose they had knowledge of the existence of said company; and if so, did they aid them in their purposes, or did they, having such knowledge, interpose in their official capacity or otherwise to prevent the accomplishment of their purposes to which they combined?

Interrogatory thirteenth. Do you know, or have you reason to believe, the register and receiver attending said sales were interested in any manner with said company in their purchases, or that said register and receiver received from said company any extra compensation for land purchased by said company, or did said register and receiver show any favoritism or partiality towards said company, by requiring other persons bidding for land to put up the money at each bid, but did not require the persons bidding for said company to do the same?

Interrogatory fourteenth. How did said company make a division of their joint funds? Did somo of the stockholders sell out to the rest of the company, or to any individual? If so, state what persons purchased the most of the stock of said company, and also what persons continued in said company after they had purchased from all who would sell?

Interrogatory fifteenth. Is said company still in existence for disposing of their lands, or have they sold out and closed their joint business?

Interrogatory sixteenth. Do you know in which State said company was formed, and, if it was formed in this State, from what State were the persons who first started the idea of forming said company, and their names?

Interrogatory seventeenth. How many persons were interested in said company, and what were their names, or the names of as many as you can remember?

Interrogatory eighteenth. Who bid for the lands for the company, and in whose names were they generally purchased? and when said company made a sale of any land they had purchased, did they or the person in whose name it had been purchased, make a deed in fee simple, or was a transfer made in the register's office, and how much did he charge for each transfer? and what amount do you suppose said register received for transfers from said company?

Interrogatory nineteenth. Were you a stockholder in said company? If so, what disposition did you make of your share or shares? and if you sold out, what induced you to do so?

Interrogatory twentieth. From your own observation and opinion formed at the time of said sales, do you believe said sales were managed for the interest of the government, the good of the actual settlers, and according to the strict dictates of justice, or were they managed for the benefit of speculators?

Propounded 11th June, 1834.

ISAAC CALDWELL,
WILLIAM S. JONES,
Commissioners.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

This day personally appeared before me, Henry G. Johnston, an acting justice of the peace for said county and State, Patrick Sharkey, who being first duly sworn, saith he will true and faithful answers make to such interrogatories as may be propounded to him by the commissioners appointed by the Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands, to take depositions in cases of frauds on the public lands, &c.

Answer to interrogatory first. I do not know that any officer of said office ever marked any land sold, or permitted any other person so to mark land, when said land was not sold.

Answer to interrogatory second. I do not know of any case or cases.

Answer to interrogatory third. I was at those sales.

Answer to interrogatory fourth. There was a company formed at said sales to buy land, and I presume their intention was to keep down a competition, and get land as low as they could.

Answer to interrogatory fifth. There was a written agreement. This company was to let each settle have as much as a quarter section of land on which he resided, and on which his improvement might be, at what it cost them.

Answer to interrogatory sixth. I left the sales before the public sales were over.

Answer to interrogatory seventh. Before there was a general union, one tract brought ten dollars per acre; after the union, I ran land on them as high as a few cents over seven dollars. After the company formed, land brought from one dollar and a quarter to seven dollars per acre.

Answer to interrogatory eighth. I think the company that then existed, has now no land in the market.

Answer to interrogatory ninth. I suppose about seventy thousand dollars.

Answer to interrogatory tenth. I think it probable that the government lost about twenty-five or —— thousand dollars, by said combination.

Answer to interrogatory eleventh. I believe they did; the existence of said company was so public they must have known it. Said register and receiver used no efforts to prevent the designs of said company, as I know of, nor do I know that they aided said company.

Answer to interrogatory twelfth. I do not know that the register or receiver was interested in said company, nor do I know that they received any extra compensation for land purchased by said company. In one instance, a Mr. Gold was required to put up the money for land, as soon as it was knocked off, which he refused to do, as he considered it contrary to the rules of sale, which were made known by an advertisement, and said: any person bidding off land, and not paying for it by opening sales the next day, should forfeit the land bid off, and the name of the person should be publicly cried at the door, and should not be allowed to bid any more at the sales, and the land thus forfeited, should be sold again at the opening of the sales the next day. But in the case of Mr. Gold when he refused to pay for said land, contrary to the known rules of the sale, his name was cried out immediately, and not allowed to bid any more; and the land bid off by Mr. Gold was put up again immediately, without waiting till the next day. This same land was again forfeited, and on the opening of the sales on the next day, the name of the person that had forfeited it, was not cried out so that the bidders could hear it, nor was the land called "forfeited" by the crier. I do not know who obtained said land at last.

Answer to interrogatory thirteenth. I do not know.

Answer to interrogatory fourteenth. I do not know.

Answer to interrogatory fifteenth. I think it was formed at Chocchuma, in the State of Mississippi. The company was formed of Tennesseans, Alabamians and Mississippians. I cannot tell who started the idea of forming said company. A Mr. McLemore was supposed to head the Tennesseans; M. Jamison, the Alabamians; Walker Bennett and others, the Mississippians; Mr. McLemore was the first I heard read the constitution for the company.

Answer to interrogatory sixteenth. There was said to be a hundred and twenty shares in said company; each share was one thousand dollars, and no man could own but one share. The settlers were also interested in said company, and had equal privileges with the others. I saw the name of John Lane and John A. Lane, on the agreement of the company, and believe, the names of McLemore, Bernard, Walker, Jamison, were on it; but I cannot now remember the individual names of the several persons.

Answer to interrogatory seventeenth. Walker and Jamison bid for land for the company, and were the only persons that did bid for said company, so far as I know; and the land was purchased in the name of the bidders. I believe when the company made a sale of land, the transfer was made in the office of the register, who charged, I believe, one dollar for each one, I do not know what amount he received for said transfers.

Answer to interrogatory eighteenth. I had one share in said company, which I gave to a Mr. Vick, for the sum of money I gave for it. I wished to come home.

Answer to interrogatory nineteenth. I do not think the sales are managed in the best manner for the good of the government. I think they were managed for the interest of such of the settlers as were interested in said company; and I think most of the settlers were interested in said company. I cannot say the sales were managed according to the strict dictates of justice, having before given the case of Mr. Gold. The company and the officers appeared very friendly disposed towards each other, and further this deponent saith not.

No. 18.—Eli Garner's testimony.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

Interrogatories to be propounded to Eli Garner, a citizen of Hinds county, called to be examined, touching transactions in the public land office at Mount Salus, in pursuance of a commission from the honorable Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands.

Interrogatory first. Have you any information or knowledge of instances where public lands have been marked on the public maps of the register of the land office at Mount Salus, in this State, as sold, or by a mark which was used and designated in said office, to show said lands were sold in fact, when in truth they were not sold, or so reported to the General Land Office, and when no money had been paid to the receiver of public moneys on said land? If you have, state the particular case or cases, and who was register of said land office at the time, and how said land was marked on the said maps, and for whose use it was so marked, also state the time at which such facts occurred, and every particular in regard to them.

Interrogatory second. Is it the custom in the register's office at Mount Salus, for the register to designate on the public maps the lands which have in fact been sold by the government, by putting the letter S on the particular tract sold, or otherwise on it the name of the purchaser; and would not inquirers after vacant lands at once view such marks as conclusive evidence a tract so marked was not vacant?

The within interrogatories were propounded 10th June, 1834.

WILLIAM S. JONES, Commissioner.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

This day personally appeared before me, Henry G. Johnston, an acting justice of the peace for said county and State, Eli Garner, who being first duly sworn, deposeth and saith, he will true and faithful answers make to such interrogatories as may be propounded to him by the commissioner appointed by the Senate of the Congress of the United States through their Committee on Public Lands, to take depositions in investigating the frauds on the public lands.

Answer to first interrogatory. I know nothing of my knowledge of any lands having been marked sold on the maps of survey of said office, and everything I know of anything of that kind is upon the information of others. Samuel Gwin, while acting as register of the Mount Salus land office, told me he had entered a certain eighth of land that lay between me and John W. Coglin. It was an eighth of land I wanted, and I concluded I would purchase it of said Gwin. Said land was not entered as said Gwin had informed me he had himself done, and John W. Coglin entered said same land last January, a year ago. I do not know that said land was marked sold upon the maps when Samuel Gwin informed me he had entered it.

Answer to second interrogatory. I believe it is the custom in the office at Mount Salus, for the register to put upon any tract of land sold the letter S, or writing the name of the purchaser on it, and inquirers for vacant land, seeing a tract marked in either manner, would be induced to believe any land marked in either manner was not vacant. Further deponent saith not.

No. 19.—John B. Pittman's testimony.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

Interrogatories to be propounded to John B. Pittman, of said county, a witness called to be examined touching the conduct of the registers and receivers of the land offices of Mississippi; in pursuance of a commission issued from the honorable Committee on Public Lands of the Senate of the United States.

Interrogatory first. Do you know of any case, at the land office at Mount Salus, where lands were marked on the public maps, in said office, as sold, or with the letter S, which is the mark of sold, when, in fact, the money had not been paid to the government on said land, or a receipt given for the same? If you do, state the particular case or cases, the time, and who was then register and receiver at said office?

Interrogatory second. Did or did not Samuel Gwin, whilst acting as register at Mount Salus, form a partnership with you in a steam saw mill in this county; and did he or did he not mark on the map in his office, as sold, divers tracts of lands near said mill; and did he inform you he had purchased said land? If such facts be true, state who now owns said lands, and whether said Gwin did pay in fact for them or not?

Interrogatory third. Do you know of your own knowledge, or otherwise, of the formation of a company of land speculators, at the late public land sales at Chocchuma land office, for the purpose of preventing lands selling as high as they would otherwise have sold on a fair competition in market; and also for the purpose of preventing individuals purchasing land who did not belong to said company? Or have you received information of the existence of such a company from either the register or receiver at Chocchuma? If you have any such information or knowledge, state how you derived it? And state the names of such individuals as you ascertained to belong to or form individual members of such company. Also state the average price at which the company generally purchased land at said sales; and the prices at which they afterwards sold out tracts of such land to others; and whether they so sold at a great advance or not; and whether or not the interests of the government were greatly prejudiced, in a pecuniary point of view, by the existence of such a company.

Interrogatory fourth. Do you know, or have you reasons to believe that the register or receiver of Chocchuma, were interested or concerned with any speculators in public lands, at said public land sales? If you so believe, state your reasons; and in what way they, or either of them, were so concerned.

Interrogatory fifth. Was it or was it not a fact that the register and receiver, or one of them, and which one, refused to receive the bids of individuals for lands, at said public sale, who did not belong to the company of speculators, unless the bidder would pay down the money at the time of bidding, or before the land was stricken off? And were such requisitions made of said company or their agents?

Interrogatory sixth. Do you know whether the register and receiver, or either of them, received any extra compensation on lands purchased by said company, at said sales, or have you any reasons to believe such was the fact?

Interrogatory seventh. When said company sold any tract of land, and made a transfer in the register's office, what sum did the register charge for each transfer, and what amount of money do you suppose was paid said register by said company for such transfers?

Interrogatory eighth. Have you ever known any land represented as sold by the officers at Mount Salus land office, before the price of said land had been placed to the credit of government, and when the applications of said land had only been had from the register, and left with some person? If so, state whether said land was marked sold upon the maps of survey by either the register or any other person.

Interrogatory ninth. What was the name or names of the different persons interested in the land company at Chocchuma, and who were represented in said company by agents, and the names of such agents?

Propounded 11th day of June, 1834.

WILLIAM S. JONES, Commissioner.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

This day personally appeared before me, Henry G. Johnston, an acting justice of the peace for said county and State, John B. Pittman, who being first duly sworn saith, he will true and faithful answers make to such interrogatories as may be made to him by the commissioners appointed by the honorable Senate of the United States through their Committee on Public Lands, to take depositions of witnesses in case of frauds on the public lands, &c., &c.

Answer to interrogatory first. Some time in the early part of the year 1833, (perhaps in April, May or June,) Samuel Gwin suggested to me, I could make some arrangements with Mr. Dameron, the receiver, for some piece of land, that was near a saw mill in which I was interested; I accordingly mentioned the subject to Mr. Dameron, and he agreed to pay for some two or three eighths of land for me; I was of the opinion he would pay for them and I would get the land. Some time, while Mr. Dameron's bad health prevented him from attending to the duties of his office in person, I was informed said land was not in fact entered. I mentioned to Gwin, we must have that land, and he told me he had money deposited in the receiver's box, and told me to make application to Mr. Sumerall, the register, for the land; I informed Mr. Sumerall, Gwin had the money there, for that purpose, and I think Gwin informed him the same. Mr. Sumerall gave me the applications for the land, and I handed them into the clerk of the receiver's office, and informed him Gwin had money on deposit to pay for the land. The applications were laid aside, till Mr. Dameron was present to settle with Gwin; said land was marked sold after I took out the applications, but whether it was marked before or not, I do not know. Some days afterwards Mr. Sumerall told me the money had not been applied to the payment of the land, and if I did not pay for it, I would lose it. The letter S marked on each tract was then scratched off by Mr. Sumerall in my presence, as I could not then pay for it, not having the money to pay for it. At the time I made the arrangement with Mr. Dameron, he was receiver, I believe there was no register, Mr. Sumerall was the register afterwards, and Dameron receiver.

Answer to interrogatory second. Mr. James D. Cage and myself were erecting a saw mill in copartnership. Samuel Gwin purchased out Mr. Cage's part, and became a partner of mine in said saw mill, but whether Gwin was acting as register of the Mount Salus land office or not, at that time, I do not know, but I rather think he was not. I do not know that Gwin ever marked any land near said mill, when it was not sold, and he never told positively he had paid for any of it, and the only reasons I have to believe said land was purchased before it was, are detailed in answer first.

Answer to interrogatory the third. I was not at the Chochuma land sales, and know nothing of said company, only from hearsay. I once heard Samuel Gwin, the register, say his troubles at said sales had been much increased by said company.

Answer to interrogatory fourth. I do not know that either was interested by said company.

Answer to interrogatories fifth, sixth, seventh. I know nothing about.

Answer to interrogatory eighth. I know of none except those stated before.

Answer to interrogatory ninth. I know nothing of my own knowledge.

JOHN B. PITTMAN.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 11th day of June, 1834.

HENRY G. JOHNSTON, Justice of the Peace.

No. 20.—Deposition of John T. Hammond.

John T. Hammond was next called, sworn, and examined, and answered as follows, to wit:

Interrogatory. How long have you lived in the present Choctaw purchase, and how long in the neighborhood of Chocchuma and Elliot?

Answer. I came here early in the spring of 1829, before the Choctaw treaty was made. I have moved several times; but have never, in that period, resided further from Chocchuma than six miles, and most of the time near Elliot.

Interrogatory. Were you present at the land sales at Chocchuma, in October and November, 1833? If yes, how long?

Answer. I was at the sales, from the second day until the close, as well as I recollect.

Interrogatory. Were you, or were you not, in the employment of speculators, or others, previous to the sales?

Answer. Five or six weeks before the sales, I was employed by John C. McLemore and Wiley Davis to take numbers for them. I don't know who was associated with them—if any were.

Interrogatory. Do you know of the formation of any companies, or combination of speculators, or others, formed, or entered into, with the view of preventing fair competition at the public land sales, and with the view to buy, at the minimum price, the public lands?

Answer. I do not know what the intentions of others were, further than what I learned from a speech of Mr. R. J. Walker, and a paper of which he read a part; the purport of it was, as well as I recollect, about the same that has been just stated by Captain Smith, in his testimony. He stood nearer to Mr Walker than I did. Of the other operations of the combined company, I know nothing but what I have heard others state in their testimony.

Interrogatory. Were you acquainted with James Oxberry, in the year 1830, previous to the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek? If so, where did he live during that year, and at the time of the treaty?

Answer. He lived on Oxberry's old place, near Elliott, and made a crop with his uncle. I never was at his house while he lived there, as I recollect. Some time in the fall, whether before or after the treaty I am unable to say, he removed across the Yallabusha, to the tract of land where George W. Martin now resides, and Oxberry resides also. He told me, before the treaty (as well as I remember), that he had made an improvement on that tract of land, and claimed it as his tract of land, and as the place where he was going to move to.

Interrogatory. When did he move there? At what particular time? State of your own knowledge, before or after the treaty.

Answer. He removed there in the fall, I think, and after the treaty.

Interrogatory. Did Oxberry have a house on the Martin tract of land before the treaty? Did you ever hear him say he had?

Answer. I never was on the tract of land before the treaty, and I never heard Oxberry say he had a house there before the treaty.

Interrogatory. Did you ever hear Oxberry say he raised a crop on the Martin land in the year 1830?

Answer. I never did.

Interrogatory. Was the tract of land, on which Oxberry lived at the time of the treaty, reserved, floated, or sold? If sold at the sales, for what price?

Answer. The quarter including the plantation and houses, was sold at the sales; the price I don't know; I believe at $1.25 per acre.

Interrogatory. Were you present at Chocchuma at the time when the public land sales closed, and applications for private entries were received? If so, state the manner in which the same was conducted by the officers, as well as others.

Answer. The lands which were subject to entry were taken up, and applications received for the several townships, in the order in which they were previously offered. I think one township at a time; and a time was fixed on by the register, when he would make known all conflicting applications. There was no uniformity in the time given for receiving applications—sometimes longer, sometimes shorter. The applications were generally handed in to Mr. Gwin at the window. For the most part the people were required to stand outside of the office during the reception of applications; but I have seen applications handed in at the counter, by individuals in the house, but then, I think, the doors were not closed.

Interrogatory. Have you, or have you not, seen individuals in the office, other than the officers, at the time of the reception of applications, when the doors were closed? State to the best of your recollection. State, also, names of individuals.

Answer. I have seen individuals in the office, at the time of the reception of applications, other than the officers, when the doors were closed; Walker, Bernard, Ellis, Gilchrist, a man called Lane, and others, who were strangers to me; also, Dr. William M. Gwin, the brother of the register; also, Conley, Driver, and Gray.

Interrogatory. Did these persons, or any of them, have an opportunity of seeing and inspecting the applications handed in to the register through the window, by citizens and others, who were out of doors?

Answer. I do not know; I never saw any one look at them but himself; they were put in a small segar box, open at top; sometimes the box was in the register's hand; sometimes he would sit it on the counter, and sometimes on the table.

Interrogatory. Were any individuals associated together to divide the profits made by putting in applications, and then by withdrawing them, and bidding among the conflicting applicants?

Answer. I do not know. I saw how things were going on, and I put in two applications for land I did not want. I did this twice, and once received ten dollars, and another time six dollars, dividend. I did not like it after I done it; I felt like I had done a mean thing.

Interrogatory. With whom did you come in contact on those two occasions?

Answer. Two men by the name of Loggins, of Carol, or Yallabusha, Driver, and Bowling C. Burnett, of Alabama, and some others, whom I do not now recollect.

Interrogatory. Did those persons whom you saw admitted into the office at the time the register was taking in applications, in any instance conflict with citizens who applied for land?

Answer. When the conflicting applicants went out in the yard, to bid among themselves, I saw Walker, Douglass, and perhaps others, engaged with them.

Interrogatory. When the conflicting applications were announced, what was the language and conduct of Col. Gwin, and applicants generally? State as near as you can recollect.

Answer. Col. Gwin would read over the names of conflicting applicants, and say something to this effect: "Well, what are you going to do? Will you settle it among yourselves, or take it out here? Come, come, knock it out here, or go out and settle it among yourselves. Come, come, suppose you stand up to your fodder, and give Uncle Sam the profits; by George! suppose you come up to the fodder and let Uncle Sam have the money." This was about the manner and language of Col. Gwin on every occasion when I was present. It was so often repeated that I remember pretty well the words and the manner. He seemed rather to insist that they should "knock" it out there, (meaning bid for it) and, as he said, "let Uncle Sam have the profits." Generally speaking, the applicants would agree to let one of their applications stand, and withdraw the rest, and then go out and bid among themselves. This was the course almost in every instance that I saw.

Interrogatory. What was the conduct of Colonel Sterling on these occasions?

Answer. He did not appear to have anything to do with it, as far as I saw or know. He attended to taking the money and giving receipts, when applications were handed to him, signed by the register.

Hammond has been too sick to come in to-day to sign the above deposition, as I am informed.

S. B. MARSH.

Nos. 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26—Depositions of Samuel McCall, Col. R. H. Sterling, Nathan Hooker, Col. Greenwood Laflore, John Jones, William Metcalf.

On the eighth day of September, 1834, I resumed the examination of witnesses touching the frauds supposed to have been committed in and about the selling and locating the public lands of the northwest land district of the State of Mississippi, at the town of Chocchuma, under the commission to me directed by the chairman of the Committee on Public Lands.

Samuel McCall was called and sworn, and deposed as follows:

Interrogatory first. Were you employed by any land speculators previous to the sales of the public lands at Chocchuma, in October last, to search for good lands; if yea, by whom were you so employed?

Answer. I was so employed by John C. McLemore, Wiley Davis, and Hiram G. Runnels. I received my principal instructions from Runnels; and my impression was that they were associated as a company, though I saw no written agreement between them. Stephen Holt was employed by the same men on the same occasion.

Interrogatory second. Were you present at said sales; and if so, for how long a period?

Answer. I was present for three or four days.

Interrogatory third. Do you know of any combination of individuals at said sales, to suppress competition, and procure the lands at the minimum prices? If so, state the names of those so associated.

Answer. I do not know the intention of parties; in a conversation between Col. Laflore and John C McLemore, I heard John C. McLemore say he belonged to the Chocchuma land company, and that the company was useful to the settlers. Col. Greenwood Laflore said that he considered it no better than swindling. To-day I heard Hardin Runnels say he also belonged to the company, and he thought he was loser four or five thousand dollars by it, but considered it perfectly in accordance with the laws of the United States.

Interrogatory fourth. Do you know whether either Samuel Gwin or R. H. Sterling were concerned in such speculations?

Answer. I do not know that they were. Some time early in the sales, I heard Col. Campbell charge Mr. Gwin, the register, with partiality in conducting the sales. Mr. Gwin denied it; then Campbell told him that there was then there a combination or company to defeat opposition. Mr. Gwin said he did not know it if there was.

SAMUEL McCALL.

Col. R. H. Sterling was again called, and deposed as follows:

Interrogatory first. How much of his time has Col. Gwin been absent from the land office, for what periods, when, &c., since the opening of the land office?

Answer. He left the office about the 17th December, 1833, and returned some time between the first and last of February. He again left here about the 10th or 12th of March, returned late in May, and left on the 5th of June; he returned on the last of July or the first of August, and left here on the last day of August, and is still absent.

Interrogatory second. When James R. Marsh was about to apply for a certain tract of land as a pre-emption, did you or did you not hear him ask Col. Gwin to state what he understood by the words "legal subdivisions," as found in the first section of the act of 29th May, 1830, granting pre-emptions; also whether said Marsh did not inform him (Gwin) that such information was necessary to him, as the section on which he claimed was fractional, and subdivided by the surveyor general into lots, and unless he knew what sense was attached to the words, he would not know how to frame his application?

Answer. I heard the question. I do not recollect the words used by Col. Gwin in reply, but it amounted to a refusal to give any explanation as to what constituted a legal subdivision.

Interrogatory third. Is or is not Samuel Gwin hostile both to James R. and Samuel B. Marsh? When did this hostility commence, and what caused it? State minutely and fully all you know on this subject.

Answer. I believe the feelings are reciprocally unfriendly; from what particular I know not, except the circumstance of a letter which was written by Samuel Gwin to William Fanning. A copy of this letter, by some means, as I understood, got into the hands of James R. Marsh, and from thence, as I was informed by Samuel B. Marsh, it came to his hands; and I requested him to give it up to me, as it might produce unfriendly feelings if it was published. He refused to do so, saying it was a public or political document, and he would use it as such. The next I heard of the matter was seeing it published in a newspaper called the Courier and Journal.

Interrogatory fourth. Did or did not Samuel Gwin express angry and hostile feelings when he heard that a copy of said letter had fallen into the hands of said J. R. Marsh? If so, state fully what he said on this subject.

Answer. I recollect he expressed displeasure.

Interrogatory fifth. Did you do any act at the instance of Gwin in order to suppress said copy? If yes, state fully.

Answer. Gwin wished me to try and get the copy up if I could, and I went to Tillatoby, expecting to see James R. Marsh, but did not meet him. I carried a letter from Col. Gwin for James R. Marsh on the subject, as I think, but left it at Tyson's store to be handed over. I can state nothing more of the letter.

Interrogatory sixth. Independent of this letter and its history, have you, at any time, heard Samuel Gwin use language which convinced you that he entertained hostile feelings towards Samuel B. and James R. Marsh, or either of them?

Answer. From his general conversation, I am satisfied that his feelings are of an unfriendly nature.

Interrogatory seventh. How long since you were first led to this belief?

Answer. About ten months past, as to S. B. Marsh; the letter transaction was the commencement as to J. R. Marsh, as far as I know.

Interrogatory eighth. State the cause of this early hostility.

Answer. I do not know the cause independent of the letter, as to J. R. Marsh; or as to Samuel B. Marsh, further than the altercation about John Jones's application, caused in November last, which I understood was amicably arranged.

Interrogatory ninth. Did you observe any difference in the course pursued by Gwin, in relation to Samuel B. and J. R. Marsh and others, on application for pre-emption?

Answer. I don't know the motives, but the testimony in the Marshes' application is more lengthy, and will show for themselves.

Interrogatory tenth. Did or did not Samuel B. Marsh request that the land claimed by him, under the pre-emption law, should be reserved from sale until a final decision could be had thereon from the Treasury Department; what was Gwin's answer to this request?

Answer. Samuel B. Marsh did make such a request to myself and Colonel Gwin; Gwin said he would sell the land when the public sales came on, and all lands on which pre-emption was not previously allowed. I differed with him, and promised on my part to reserve this and all similar claims till an answer could be had.

R. H. STERLING.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 19th September, 1834.

THOMAS G. RINGGOLD, J. P.

Nathan Hooker was next called, sworn, and deposed as follows:

Interrogatory first. Do you know of any frauds, improper conduct, or fraudulent combinations committed, entered into by the officers of the land offices of the Chocchuma land district, or of the locating agent, or of private individuals, in and about the disposal of the public land? If yea, state the particulars.

Answer. As to the register and receiver, I never had any transactions with them in their official capacity, and know nothing of their official conduct Some time before the sale of the land at this place, I came to Elliot, to see J. W. Martin, the locating agent, and brought a map of the township in which I lived, and in which I had bought a claim of Jones Shields. I showed Mr. Martin where the dwelling-house stood, and how the plantation lay; the house was near a sectional line, on section eighty-nine, and the farm on eight, the line between the sections running near the house. I told him I wished to take a mile square, (the amount of my claim,) half out of each section. He said I would be confined to a section. He asked which section gave the house the support; I showed him section nine, on which stood the farm. He asked me if I had seen his pamphlets; I told him I had not; he handed me one, and appeared unwilling to converse with me on the subject. I believe nothing further passed, but he referred me to a meeting in Columbus, as he had no maps here. At the sales, I came to Chocchuma, and Martin came to me and asked me if I would see Sam Bell before the Columbus sales; I replied I thought I should, as Bell and I had agreed to go to Columbus together, when the land about where each of us lived was to be sold. He told me to tell Bell to go ahead or persevere, and meet him at the sales at Columbus, and told me to have my application made out by that time.

Interrogatory second. In what business was Bell engaged at that time?

Answer. Of my own knowledge I know nothing; I passed through the neighborhood, and understood he was taking numbers of lands previous to the sales.

Interrogatory third. What further passed between Martin and you?

Answer. He told me to tell Bell to go ahead, meet him at the sales, and keep everything a profound secret. In reply to Col. Martin's request, that I should make out my application, I said I did not know how to make out one, and on his recommendation I went to F. E. Plummer, who made out one for me for section eight. He received it at Columbus when I went on there, and gave me a certificate; and after the first two weeks of the sales passed, and after the township in which it was situated had passed the sales seven or eight days, and I had gone home, he set aside my location, and ordered it to be sold at public sale, and the land was bought by different persons. When I heard of his conduct I returned to Columbus, just after the sale closed, and before Martin departed; I said nothing to him.

NATHAN HOOKER.

Colonel Greenwood Laflore was next called and sworn, who deposed as follows:

Interrogatory first. Were you present at the land sales at Chocchuma, in October last? If yea, how many days did you attend said sales?

Answer. I was present on Monday, and went away on Tuesday of said sales.

Interrogatory second. Was there any combination of individuals at said sales, whose object was to put down competition, and procure the lands at the minimum price? If yea, who composed the said company? State fully all you know on this subject.

Answer. There was a company of speculators, as I was informed by John C. McLemore, of Tennessee. He applied to me to join the company, and said that if I would do so, I could get my land at government price, and it would also be the means of protecting the settlers. I refused to do so, and on the same day Gilchrist, (I think,) one of the company of speculators ran some of the land I wanted, to nine dollars per acre. When the overture was made to me to join the company, in the course of conversation, I said I considered them, the speculators, as no better than swindlers. McLemore, Gilchrist, Green, and many others, were of the company; Wiley Davis and R. J. Walker were also of the company. I do not now remember all their names; I don't know how many companies these composed, if more than one.

Interrogatory third. Was either of the officers at Chocchuma or Columbus interested in any company formed for the object stated in the second interrogatory?

Answer. I do not know.

Interrogatory fourth. Did you discover any evidence of favoritism or partiality in any officer of the United States entrusted with the locating of Indian claims, or the sale of the public lands? State fully.

Answer. I thought so in Martin's conduct, but as to others I do not know. The treaty provides that reserves shall include the residence. George Adams bought McGahey's reserve. Martin allowed him to locate a part of Cocanowah's section though McGahey's residence was two miles distant. Proof of the facts was before Martin, of Cocanowah's residence, and also of McGahey's, yet Martin allowed Adams to take a part of Cocanowah's section, which I thought arbitrary, and in disregard of the evidence. Cocanowah is an old Dutchman, with a Choctaw family, and Adams is a lawyer and district attorney of the United States. Another case: Nathan Hooker bought of Capt. J. Shields; Hooker asked Martin to allow him to locate on a farm made by Shields on a different section from that which included Shields' residence; Martin allowed the location as requested; after Hooker went away, Martin changed the location, and suffered the location to be sold, and no other reservation allowed in its place. This I thought unfair and partial; Hooker is a common citizen, and Adams a man of influence. I considered this a mark of favoritism; this I state to show Martin acted partial, and the facts speak for themselves. The lands where McGahey resided on, common poor oak land, of little value, and the land where Adams was permitted to take, was amongst the most valuable tracts of prairie in that part of the nation. Similar land is held at from twenty to thirty dollars an acre; and Adams' claim was nine hundred and sixty acres, or a section and a half; Shields' claim held by Hooker, only a section, or six hundred and forty acres. I do not recollect of any other that came under my own knowledge, except those stated in an affidavit taken at Washington city, at the request of the War Department, to which I refer for particulars.

Interrogatory fifth. What irregularities, if any, did you observe in the conduct of the land officers at Columbus, in regard to the locating or sale of public land?

Answer. I saw nothing in the conduct of the register and receiver, (Dowsing and Harris,) that I thought improper. Colonel Martin, the locating agent, whose instructions required him to go on the land and fix reservations, I thought acted very improperly. I saw an Indian, Adam James, apply to Mr. Martin for information to know how he was to act to save his land; Martin told him if he did know his own business to leave the room, and not bother him. From information, I believe such was his conduct with many others. I believe, from his instructions, it was his duty to attend to fixing their locations himself, as the Indians were incapable of doing it themselves; but I heard Martin say, that unless they attended themselves to their own claims, it must be their loss, that he had not time to do it.

Interrogatory sixth. Had or had not Martin power to suspend the sales, in case he had not time to fix the reservations?

Answer. President Jackson told me since the sales that he had such power to suspend the sales of any portion of land when he had reason to believe the reservations were not fixed.

Interrogatory seventh. Do you know of either of the land officers being engaged in any speculation?

Answer. Not of my own knowledge, neither have I heard of Dowsing or Harris being so engaged. Mr. Harris, the receiver at Columbus, if called on, can explain Mr. Martin's conduct on the subject of dealing in public land; I know nothing except from hearsay.

GREENWOOD LEFLORE.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 12th day of September, 1834.

THOMAS G. RINGGOLD, Justice of the Peace.

John Jones was next called and sworn, who deposed as follows:

Interrogatory first. Were you present at the sales of the public lands at Chocchuma, in October last? If yea, how many days?

Answer. I was present at the opening of said sales, and remained a week or upwards.

Interrogatory second. Do you know of the existence of any combination of individuals at said sales, whose object was to suppress fair competition, and obtain the public lands at their minimum price? State all you know on this subject; state also the names of the persons thus associated.

Answer. On the opening of the sales there were three such companies present, one of this State, one from Alabama, and one from Tennessee. After the sales had progressed for one or two days, these companies united under a written article of agreement. The substance of the agreement shown to me, was that settlers who would yield their numbers up to the company, should have their improvements, not to exceed one-quarter section, at the price for which the company might give. I do not think the articles shown me prohibited bidding against the company, but the members of the company stated, that those who came in for this benefit, were not to bid against the company. I was so much displeased at the proceedings, that I did not pay much attention to the written paper. I rejected the terms, and did not bid for the land I wanted, hoping it would be passed over, and that I might get it at private entry. I thought I saw a course pursued, that I would be run on if I bid; and I declined joining in with their terms, though strongly recommended to do so by Mumford Jones, one of the company. The Mississippi company, as far as I know, were composed of Robert J. Walker, Bernard and Ellis.

Interrogatory three. Do you know whether either of the officers of the land office were interested in the speculations of the company?

Answer. I do not positively know, but understood from Mumford Jones that Colonel Samuel Gwin had put in a thousand dollars in the name of his son, or for his son's use.

Interrogatory fourth. Do you know whether William Gwin, the marshal of the United States, was interested in said company's speculations?

Answer. I do not.

Interrogatory fifth. Were you present at Chocchuma during the first two weeks after the public sales were closed, and the lands became subject to private entry?

Answer. I do not know the length of time I was here, but was present at the commencement of the private entries, and remained until the speculators had dispersed, or nearly so; the plan of entry, as adopted by the officers, was that particular townships should only be subject to entry on particular days, commencing in the order in which the lands were offered at the public sales, and I remained until they arrived at township ——, range five or six east.

Interrogatory six. Did you observe any impropriety of conduct in the speculators or the officers of the United States in these private entries? State minutely and fully all you know on this head.

Answer. I did not for some time know any fact that I can state, but saw enough to create fears that I would be as much exposed to the action of speculators at the private entries as I would have been at the public sales. The officers would not sign applications when presented, but required them to be handed in until a certain hour, and then would announce the applications that were made for the same land. The parties would then, in general, retire to an open shelter, ten or twelve steps in front of the land office, and bid among themselves and divide the profit. I happened to be standing in the office and saw Major James B. Crowder, of Carroll county, hand an application to Colonel Gwin, who laid it on the desk or drawer, containing maps; and Burnett, of Alabama, who was one of the speculators, looked at it, and took from his hat a number of blank applications, and noted down something, which I supposed to be the numbers applied for by Crowder. When the hour of announcing the applications arrived, Samuel Gwin stated that there were fifteen or sixteen applications. Crowder said to Gwin, I will give two dollars an acre for this land. Colonel Gwin said shall I cry it? Crowder replied, I am willing to give two dollars per acre; I don't care what you do or how you settle it, or words to that effect. Burnett, Anderson and Driver were all applicants; one of them said no, don't cry it; we will settle it among ourselves. All withdrew their applications but one, and then went out to settle it. When the parties differed on account of Burnett's drawing so many applications, Burnett professed to represent a good many persons who were absent; I did not see what Crowder paid them. This discovery entirely confirmed my apprehensions, and I determined not to submit to such extortion, and went to Samuel B. Marsh, a lawyer of my acquaintance, who had just settled in the neighborhood of Chocchuma, and informed him of what was going on at Chocchuma, and wished to know if I could not get some land to live on with my family, without going through this shaving machine. Marsh promised to reflect on the matter until next day, and then answer my inquiry. He came to Chocchuma and waited until very late at night, that he might see Gwin and Sterling alone; but not being able to do so that night, he went very early next morning to their office with me, when they were just putting on their clothes. Marsh said something against the practice then going on, and of which I had complained. Gwin and Sterling joined with him in the sentiments expressed, and Gwin said he wished to God he could put a stop to it, and that if he thought the law would justify him, he would lock up and go off until the speculators dispersed, so that the settlers might get their land on fair terms. Marsh expressed himself glad to find the officers so disposed, and said to Gwin, come with me behind the counter, and I will show you how to prevent these abuses effectually. Gwin seemed to be much pleased and went behind the counter. Marsh took from his pocket my application, and said, now sign these applications, and do it in every instance as soon as presented, and you will stop these disgraceful speculations; Gwin said he would not sign them. Marsh asked him why he would not; Gwin replied, you must put them in and let them take their chance among the rest; Marsh observed, I thought you were anxious to stop these abuses; I have shown you how to do so, and you refuse; Gwin said he had written rules on the door, and he would not depart from them; Marsh insisted that he should destroy those rules which were only designed to effect the frauds complained of, and not to prevent them; Gwin refused to do so, and Marsh then asked Gwin to acknowledge that he had then applied for me, and that there was no other application for the said land; Gwin said he would do so, and Marsh took a pen to write, when Gwin said to him you need not write anything, for I will sign nothing. Several persons had by this time stepped into the office. Marsh pulled out his watch and desired some of them to note the time of day, and that he then tendered to Col. Gwin my applications, who refused to sign them. After these facts were noted down, Marsh turned to Colonel Sterling's desk, to tender my money to him, and get receipts, when Sterling observed that the number of acres was not put down in the applications. Marsh turned and asked Colonel Gwin to give him the area; Gwin would not do so, and Wm. M. Gwin at this time stepped in, and said, I will answer for my brother, what is it you want? Marsh informed him, and he opened the maps and marked the number of acres on the applications. Marsh then turned to Sterling's desk and handed him the money; while Sterling was writing the receipts, and Marsh reading the numbers to him, Burnett, of Alabama, said to Sterling, "I want a chance for that land." He was looking over Marsh's shoulder at the time. The receipts were immediately finished and handed to Marsh, who turned round and used some very harsh language to Burnett. At this moment Colonel Gwin returned to the office, and seemingly much excited, said Marsh had acted very improperly. Marsh asked if the impropriety in his conduct consisted in rescuing me from the infamous extortions practiced on others. Wm. M. Gwin then spoke with some marks of passion, and said that if he had known Marsh's object, he should not have seen the map. Marsh used strong language against the practice then going on, and Wm. Gwin justified it. Marsh said, are you the marshal of the State, and do you give and receive hush money, and partake in the profits of these speculations? or words to that effect; I think I can say I have used almost the exact words. Samuel Gwin said he never would sign my application, nor they never should go to the city of Washington. Marsh said he should resign, or he would have him imprisoned until he did. Wm. Gwin said he would buy the land, and try Marsh at law. There was much more hot and angry language, which I do not think material to report. Afterwards Samuel Gwin came to me, and told me to make out new applications, and give up the old receipt of Sterling, and he would sign them. I refused to do so, and J. J. McCaughan came to me and asked me to let him put new applications in my name, and Gwin would sign them. I refused to do so, stating that I had taken my course, and I should have nothing more to do with it. McCaughan brought me the old applications, with new ones signed by Gwin. I took the old ones, and the new ones were returned. Gwin told me if I did not apply with new ones he would not have a patent issued for my lands.

Interrogatory seventh. Do you not know any other act, either of officers or speculators, within the scope of this inquiry, which is in your opinion material to be stated?

Answer. I cannot say that I do, anything that would be essential.

JOHN JONES.

THOMAS G. RINGGOLD, Justice of the Peace.

William Metcalf was next called, sworn, and examined, and deposed as follows:

Interrogatory first. Were you present at the land sales at Chocchuma, in October and November, 1833? If yes, how long did you stay?

Answer. I came there on the morning of the second day of the sales, and remained there thirteen days altogether, but was absent for a short interval.

Interrogatory second. Did you hear a speech said to have been delivered by R. J. Walker? If so, state its substance as well as you can recollect.

Answer. I was present, and heard Mr. Walker. The impression was left on my mind that Walker said in his speech, that a company was formed to buy in the land, and extend the benefit of pre-emption to actual settlers; that is, that each settler should have a quarter section of land at what it cost the company, in consideration of which the settlers were not to bid against the company. I have recently read the publication of Mr. Walker, and will say it is possible that this impression was made by conversation with other members of the company; but, to the best of my recollection, he expressed the idea, that the settlers were not to bid against the company.

Interrogatory third. State the names of such of the company as you were acquainted with.

Answer. Anthony Winston, John T. Rather, Thomas Coopwood, Jonathan Burlison, Claiborn Williams, Greenberry Gillam, John Ray, Malcom Gilchrist, Robert Jemison, Isaac Lane, —— Driver, —— Anderson, Joseph Smith, —— Kirkman, General Green, —— Whitsit, William H. Duke, D. Martin, all of Alabama; some others from Tennessee, with whom I was not well acquainted.

Interrogatory fourth. Did you have any conversation with any member of the company, relative to the terms held out by the company to settlers? If so, state the purport of such conversation.

Answer. I conversed with several of the company, and among others, with Mr. Rather, Mr. Coop-wood, and Mr. Burlison, some of whom recommended me to join them. I objected, on the ground that I thought their plan censurable and improper. I understood the terms from them to be the same as I have stated that I understood from Mr. Walker.

Interrogatory fifth. Did you hear the land officers, at any time while the bidding for land was going on, demand a deposit from the bidder? If yes, state the particulars.

Answer. I heard a demand made at the request of Mr. Jemison, one of the speculators, by the register, and also in one or two other instances.

Interrogatory sixth. Who acted as criers at the public sales?

Answer. I think there were three, who acted at different times: Rather, of Alabama, McLaran, and Holt.

Interrogatory seventh. Did you bid for any land?

Answer. I went to the sale to bid, but, discovering the operation of the company, I was satisfied I could not get the land at a fair price; and, knowing from experience that I was apt to get excited, and bid extravagantly at unfair opposition, I declined having anything to do with the sales. For the land I desired I would have given, at a fair sale, more than it cost the speculators.

Interrogatory eighth. Was the notice of sale made public in the part where you live a reasonable length of time previous?

Answer. I think not. I heard of it some time in September; I believe about the middle. It was too short to enable the people to compete for the lands.

WILLIAM METCALF.

THOMAS G. RINGGOLD, Justice of the Peace.

No. 27.—James McLaran's testimony.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

Interrogatories propounded to James McLaran, a citizen of Hinds county, and State aforesaid, called and examined as a witness, touching the conduct of the officers of the several land offices in the State aforesaid, by virtue of a commission from the honorable Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands.

Interrogatory first. Do you know, or have you any reasons to believe, that any of the officers of the Mount Salus land office did ever themselves mark, or permit any other person to mark, any tract or tracts of land upon the maps of survey belonging to said office, as sold, or with any mark or sign intended to induce inquirers for vacant land to believe that said tract or tracts of land thus marked were sold; when in truth they were not sold, and the government had not received credit for the purchase money? If so, state the particulars of the case or cases, and everything relating to it or them.

Interrogatory second. Do you know, or have you any reasons to believe, that any of the officers ever agreed to secure for applicants for vacant land, said land applied for, with the expectation of receiving a bonus or premium in the form of interest for delay of payment; and further, if said officers ever received any compensation for securing vacant land for applicants, for delay of payment, and then afterwards received the purchase money and interest for said delay of payment? If so, state what officer or officers thus acted, and whether the receiver's receipt for the payment of the purchase money was dated on the day such officer or officers agreed to secure said land for such applicant, or whether said receipt was dated on the day said applicant or actual purchaser paid such purchase money or interest.

Interrogatory third. Do you know, or have you reasons to believe, any register of said office has ever permitted any person applying for any land marked sold upon the maps of survey to purchase land thus marked, without waiting to receive instructions from the Commissioners of the General Land Office, permitting said tract or tracts of land thus marked "sold" to be entered by said applicant; and, also, if you have ever known any of the officers or their deputies, (or have reasons to believe,) that any of said officers or their deputies showed partiality or favoritism towards any person or persons, in the discharge of their official duties, and not acting towards all men alike?

Interrogatory fourth. Have you ever known, or have you reasons to believe that any of the officers of said office have ever been guilty of any dereliction of their official duties, according to your understanding of their said official duties and your knowledge of the requisites of the law directing the duty of said officers? If so, state the particular case or cases, and all circumstances attending it or them.

Interrogatory fifth. Were you at the recent sale of public lands at Chocchuma, and was there at said sales any combination of persons for purchasing lands, who united for the purpose of driving other purchasers out of the market, or for the purpose of putting down competition, or deterring actual settlers from bidding for land on which they resided, or other land which they might want for settlement and cultivation; thereby taking into their own hands the control of the sales for their own benefit, and purchased much valuable land at the minimum price of the government? If so, state particulars.

Interrogatory sixth. Was there any written agreement between the members of said company; and was there any understanding between said company and the actual settlers to prevent competition in bidding; and were the actual settlers to have from said company a certain quantity of land at the price it cost the company; and for all other land they wanted were they to pay a higher price, or such price as might be agreed on?

Interrogatory seventh. Were there any clerks or secretaries, in person, who wrote down the purchases, sales, or proceedings of any kind for said company? If so, state who were they that thus wrote for said company.

Interrogatory eighth. Did said company, after the public sales were over, or after they had made their purchases, offer the land so purchased by them for sale at augmented prices; and were those lands purchased by persons attending the public sales, at the prices put on them by the speculators or their agents; and, if so, what price per acre, estimating the highest and lowest qualities, did said company receive for land thus purchased? State particulars.

Interrogatory ninth. Did land, in general, after said company had been formed and commenced buying, bring so good prices as before the existence of said company; and, if so, was said land purchased by said company because the settlers, and others wishing to buy, had purchased as much as they wanted; or were others wishing to buy deterred from bidding? State particulars, and also the price land brought at said sales before the company commenced buying, afterwards, and while they, (the company) were buying.

Interrogatory tenth. Has said company large body or bodies of land now in the market, which they purchased at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre; and, if so, what quantity of land, according to the best estimate you can make, yet remains unsold, and what is the price to which it is limited, including lands of best quality and that of an inferior quality?

Interrogatory eleventh. What amount of money do you suppose was vested in land by said company at said public sale?

Interrogatory twelfth. What would be a reasonable estimate of the loss sustained by government at said public sale, in consequence of said combination to purchase land at the minimum price of the government?

Interrogatory thirteenth. Do you know, or have you any reasons to believe, the register and receiver attending said public sale, were informed or had knowledge of the existence of said company, and their object; or was the existence of said company so public and so generally known that you can reasonably suppose they had knowledge of the existence of said company; and, if so, did they aid said company in their purposes, or did they interpose in their official character, or otherwise, to prevent the accomplishment of the purposes to which they combined?

Interrogatory thirteenth. Do you know, or have you any reasons to believe, said register and receiver were interested in any manner with said company in their purchases, or that said register and receiver received from said company any extra compensation for land purchased by them, or did said register and receiver show any favoritism or partiality towards said company by requiring other persons bidding for land "to put up the cash" at each bid, but did not require the persons bidding for said company to do the same, or partiality in any other manner?

Interrogatory fourteenth. What disposition did said company make of their funds or lands held jointly? Did some of the stockholders sell out to the rest of said company, or to any individuals? If so, state what persons purchased the most of the stock of said company, and also state what persons continued in said company after they had purchased from all who would sell?

Interrogatory fifteenth. Is said company still in existence for disposing of their lands, or have they sold out and closed their joint business?

Interrogatory sixteenth. Do you know in what State said company was formed, and if it was formed in this State, from what State were the persons who first started the idea of forming a company for said purposes, and their names?

Interrogatory seventeenth. How many persons were interested in said company, what were their names, or the names of as many of them as you can remember, and who were represented by agents, and the names of the agents?

Interrogatory eighteenth. Who bid for land for the company, and in whose names were the lands for said company generally purchased; and when said company or their agent or agents made a sale of any land purchase, did they make a fee simple deed, or did they and the person in whose name it had been purchased, make a transfer in the register's office, and how much did said register charge for each transfer, and what amount of money do you suppose said register made by said transfers, and did he and the receiver divide between them money thus made by transfers?

Interrogatory nineteenth. Were you a stockholder in said company? If so, what disposition did you make of your share or shares?

Interrogatory twentieth. From your opinion, formed from observation and the management of said sales, do you believe they were managed by the register and receiver with a view to promote the interest of the government, the benefit of the actual settlers, or for the good of the speculators, and were they managed according to the strict dictates of justice and a faithful discharge of the duties required of the officers attending said sales?

Interrogatory twenty-first. Do you know, or have you reasons to believe, that any of the receivers of public money have at any time speculated upon the funds paid into their offices, by selling at premium bank notes of the Bank of the United States, or other current bank paper for bank notes not current at par, but which were made receivable for public lands, or speculating in any other manner by exchanging money paid into their offices? State any information you have on this subject.

Propounded June 18, 1834.

ISAAC CALDWELL,
WILLIAM S. JONES,
Commissioners.

James McLaran's deposition and answers to interrogatories, put by William S. Jones, commissioner appointed by the Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands, to take depositions of witnesses in cases of frauds on the public lands, &c.

Answer to first interrogatory. I do not know of any of the officers of Mount Salus land office, or any other persons whatever, ever marking the maps of surveys in said office, for the purpose of inducing applicants for land to believe such lands were sold when they were not sold; but believe that applications have been got out for land, and the land so applied for marked by the register as sold, and the applicant then refusing to get out the receiver's receipt, either for want of enough of money or some other cause, and then the land so applied for stood marked as sold, when in truth it was not; but I cannot say there was dishonest design in this.

Answer to second interrogatory. I do not know that any of the officers of Mount Salus land office, or any other, ever agreed with individuals wanting land to furnish them with means for the payment thereof, in expectancy of bonus or interest for said accommodation, or that under the promise of fee or reward of any kind, applications or receipts for lands had been held up until payments could be made by such applicants.

Answer to third interrogatory. I did myself enter two eighths of land that were marked so sold, in the absence of the present register, not supposing said land had been sold, as it was not tracted or posted, and at a time I did not know such regulations existed, that made it necessary that instructions respecting such marked tracts should be had from the General Land Office before such entry could be made. And that as soon as the register returned and informed me of that fact I gave up the entry, and believe a case something similar occurred between John J. McCaughan and Joseph D. Peebles. Nor have I ever known that any of the officers or their deputies ever showed partiality to any persons in the discharge of their official duties.

Answer to the fourth interrogatory. I do not know that any of the officers of the land offices in this State have been guilty of any dereliction of their duties, except in two or three cases at Chocchuma land office, where the receiver there gave two or three receipts for the same piece of land, receiving the money each time, which was, I believe, done by mistake, in the press of business, and believe, was afterwards returned and corrected; nor do I believe, from my knowledge of the law, regulating their duties, believe such occurred, but generally that they discharged their duties well and faithfully as any could have done, particularly Samuel Gwin, who, for activity in business and accommodation of spirit has ever been very remarkable, in fact obliging above any I have ever known, both in the office, at this place, as well as at Chocchuma.

Answer to fifth interrogatory. I was at the late land sales at Chocchuma in November last, but do not know of any combinations of persons for purchasing land, who united for the purpose of driving other purchasers out of the market, or for the purpose of putting down competition, or for the purpose of deterring actual settlers from bidding for land on which they resided, or other land which they might want for settlement or cultivation, or who took into their hands the control of the sales for their own benefit, thereby purchasing valuable lands at the minimum price of the government.

Answer to the sixth interrogatory. There was a written agreement for a company, known as the Chocchuma land company, which the members thereof, to the amount of about one hundred and fifty, signed, subscribing each sums as stock from one thousand dollars, which was the highest limit, down to, as I believe, two hundred and fifty dollars, which was the lowest, as well as I remember, that was subscribed, though small sums were admissible; but there was not any understanding between the settlers and the company to prevent competition by deterring others from bidding; instead thereof, throughout the time the said company existed, there was competition, and much land bought by others; as of the thousands of people who were there at said sales, the company formed but a small part. And it was expressly written down in the company agreement that any person residing on lands that might be bought by the company, whether such settler was a member or not, or whether present or not, that such settler should have a quarter section of land, including his farm or improvement at the price it cost the company, if he saw proper to take the same at any time previous to the disposition of the lands by the company, and the word of any creditable person, neighbor, or settler, was sufficient for the establishment of such claim with the company. And that where competition in such claims occurred, as was the case in two or three instances where partial clearings had been made, given up by one and recommended by another, or by partial bargains and sales among the settlers, sometimes not well settled by themselves, a committee, appointed for that purpose, generally gave satisfaction to the claimants and company.

Answer to the seventh interrogatory. There were several clerks who wrote down the transactions of said company, viz: Hobson Owen, Thos. C. Nelson, Nicholas Grey, a Mr. Maxwell, and myself. Our duties were to keep a correct account of purchases and sales of land made by the company. A Mr. B. M. Bradford also assisted, taking the place of some one of the above named clerks, as they left the place, there being originally only three, Owen, Maxwell, and myself. Maxwell's christian name forgot, and no papers to refer to for it. There were also treasurers and bidders appointed by the company, who also wrote more or less for the company. The treasurers were Thomas Barnard, Allen Glover, Thomas G. Ellis, and Isaac Lane. Committee of bidders—Robert J. Walker, Malcolm Gilchrist, and Robert Jamison, jr., and Thomas G. Ellis, all members of said company. After the company had finished their purchases, or within a week or so thereafter, the settlers' lands were portioned off to them, agreeably to the first and main design of the company; and the residue was then put up at public sale, and sold to the highest bidder, without any fixed price other than the first cost of the same. And the land so sold or portioned off was transferred, by the company bidder in whose name it was first bought, to the second purchaser or settler. For the lands sold the company received various prices, from one hundred twenty-five cents per acre up to six, seven, and in one instance of a supposed town site, twenty dollars an acre; varying in prices generally as land does in quality.

Answer to the eighth interrogatory. I do not know that the lands offered by the register sold for any more or less on account of the company purchases. Said land, as purchased by the company, was not purchased because the settlers and others wishing to buy had purchased what they wanted; but, as before stated, was purchased for the settlers and company. Nor do I know any wishing to buy being deterred from doing so, as competition with the company was common throughout the time of their bidding; and the lands before, while, and after said company were in existence and buying, sold at the usual rates as at all sales, varying in price according to quality.

Answer to ninth interrogatory. The company sold every acre at the closing of the company affairs at Chocchuma, before the general land sales closed, disposing of everything like company interest before dissolution.

Answer to the tenth interrogatory. The sum of money invested or paid for lands purchased by the company was near eighty-five thousand dollars, including every purchase in their name and interest at said sales, settlers' lands being part thereof.

Answer to the eleventh interrogatory. I do not know that government lost anything in the sale of her lands by the formation of this company. But it is as likely that she was a gainer, as no doubt there was much more sold than otherwise might have been. As much land was left on the hands of the company that could not find purchasers when first offered by them, which was sold in one lot afterwards, under the name of refuse and unsold lands, and bought in by three or four of the company at the closing. And I was told by several settlers, well acquainted with the country and lands, that the company had bought and sold a great quantity of land that never would have had a bidder at the sales but for the company. Therefore, including the active competition the company had and did occasionally contend with, it may as well be inferred that the government was a gainer rather than a loser; for the operations of the company at the sales in buying was only part of two weeks.

Answer to the twelfth interrogatory. I have reason to believe that the register and receiver both, as well as every person at the sales, were well acquainted with the existence of said company, as the agreement of said company was read out publicly to the assembled multitude, and its fitness and legality in a long address descanted on, and the opinions of several gentlemen of the law had thereon before the people did agree; when it was pronounced fair and legal the subscription commenced, the main object of which was protection to the settlers from speculations.

Answer to the thirteenth interrogatory. I do not know nor do I believe that either the register or receiver was interested with said company, or that they received any bribe, compensation, or reward of any kind from said company; nor did they show any favoritism or partiality to said company by requiring other bidders to put up the cash for their bids and not the company, for the company pledged their deposits, which were from fifty to sometimes eighty thousand dollars, in the strong box of the receiver for all their bids; while, as was frequently the case, loose bidders, sometimes drunkards, would bid for lands, then forfeit the same, thereby obstructing the progress of the sales, and consequently the register had to require occasionally a deposit of some bidders, who it was believed were bidding only for mischief, or in ignorance—the effect of liquor. There was not nor could there be forfeit of bids by the company, as their funds were deposited for their bids, and so declared by their bidders.

Answer to fourteenth interrogatory. At the close of the sales of the land by the company, the funds were divided out to the members of the company according to the amount and time of their several subscriptions; and, on the payment of said dividends, the stock and company were no more.

Answer to the fifteenth interrogatory. The company closed the whole concern at the close of their sales, and apportionment of their lands; and the members went to their several homes, and no vestige is left but in recollection of said company.

Answer to the sixteenth interrogatory. The company was formed at Chocchuma, in this State, by persons possibly from different States, a few days after the commencement of the public sale at Chocchuma: whom the idea of forming such a company originated with, I do not know. I do not remember the names of all the members that belonged to the company, but know the following names to have been members on the list, which is not in my possession, viz: Malcolm Gilchrist, Jonathan Wingate, J. W. Garth, J. T. Rather, Jesse B. Garth, William Darwin, John S. Rhea, Reuben Chapman, Henry W. Rhodes, William H. Marks, Thomas Kirkman, Stephen Threlkeld, George G. Sadler, Jeremiah Hendricks, Wiley P. Lane, James Jackson, William Mosely, Archibald Gilchrist, Daniel Gilchrist, Jesse A. Lane, Joseph Smith, James T. Sykes, Benjamin Sykes, William Sykes, Richard Sykes, Dabney A. Martin, Joseph Sykes, George A. Sykes, Thomas Coopwood, Boling C. Burnett, Benjamin Bradford, David Johnston, Curtis Lerny, Jonathan Burleson, Daniel Coleman, Waddy Tate, Eli M. Driver, R. W. Anderson, Charles W. Martin, Robert Gordon, Burrell Preddy, Joseph A. Young, Littleberry Gilliam, Benjamin Harris, John C. McLemore, N. Body, J. Lane, Angus McMillen, Joseph Persons, William Cargill, Hiram Coffee, Joseph A. McRaven, Green Crowder, John Shields, William Vick, Wm. R. Campbell, Abram Shepherd, Thomas C. Nelson, William Manny, Jos. J. Pew, Thomas W. Bell, Wm. M. Gwin, Wm. H. D. Covington, Stephen Holt, Smith C. Daniel, James McLaran, Helsey H. Douglass, Wm. M. Beal, John A. Lane, T. G. Ellis, James Stewart, P. C. Chamblis, J. J. Hughs, Robert Love, Silas M. Catching, J. J. Channing, D. S. Walker, N. N. Wilkerson, A. McNeil, A. R. Drake, E. C. Wilkerson, W. Davis, H. D. Runnells, R. J. Walker, Thomas Barnard, G. W. Davidson, A. R. Govan, J. A. Binford, Nathan W. Edwards, Monfort Jones, James C. Dixon, J. L. Irwin, F. E. Plummer, H. T. Irish, Samuel Mecke, Joseph Catching, Titus Howard, Richard Cordell, J. A. King, Patrick Sharkey, James A. Girault, Bennet Crawford, Abel Beaty, Wm. Trahern, Allen Walker, Horace Carpenter, John Maxwell, (clerk,) Benjamin Bugg, G. W. Martin, D. W. Connally, Allen Glover, J. B. Earl, John H. Hand, McKinney Holderness, Hopson Owen, (clerk,) A. Yarborrough, Claibourn Williams, D. Hartgrove, A. Minston, J. L. Minston, John C. Whitsell, T. B. Goolsby, M. G. Woods, Minus Jamison, Robert Jamison, jr., Daniel Green, Friend O. Love, James J. Harrison, G. G. Griffin, Alexander Trotter, Reuben Loggin, F. S. Lyons, John B. Jones, A. Battle, J. Hogan, B. B. Fountaine, S. B. Eskridge, L. N. Hatch, Amasa Smith, Henry Gibson, Mins W. Collins, Joseph Collins, J. R. Drisk, Wm. H. Duke, R. Eskridge, J. Minter, B. J. Weaver, T. W. Winter, D. Jones. From a blotted list in my possession, I have taken these names, and believe them to be all the members that composed the Chocchuma land company, who were mostly from this State, many from Alabama, and a very few from Tennessee: some subscribing the first day, the highest limit, and many subscribing several days after, which did not entitle them but to parts of a full share; many subscribing small sums, which entitled them to small dividends. The dividends or profits varying from fifty dollars up to three hundred and one dollars, which was the highest dividend of any subscriber.

Answer to the seventeenth interrogatory. The names of such as I can or do remember, are given in answer to the sixteenth inquiry, which is full. As for agencies, I cannot remember any of the parties now, but they were represented by partners of equal interest with them in the company on the ground, and were not numerous: their names are all given in the list above. Some few of the names above were not subscribers, but held stock tickets or receipts; and at the closing, drew the dividends on the receipts that they held of others, who were gone at the settlement of the business.

Answer to the eighteenth interrogatory. Robert Jamison, jr., Malcolm Gilchrist, Thomas G. Ellis, and Robert J. Walker were the bidders for the company, and the land was bid off in their names according as they bid, and then transferred to the settler or second purchaser before the receiver and register, as convenience offered; for which the register or receiver got for each transfer one dollar. But it is impossible for me to say how much they got for company transfers, nor do I know whether the register and receiver made any dividend of the profits of such transfers.

Answer to the nineteenth interrogatory. I was a stockholder; got my dividend or share of three hundred and one dollars.

Answer to the twentieth interrogatory. I am clearly of opinion that the register and receiver did manage said sales, as I believe, in the strictest discharge of their official duties, according to the best of their abilities; and in strict conformity to the interests of the government and the settlers, without partiality or favor being shown to any speculator.

Answer to the twenty-first interrogatory. I do believe that all the receivers that I have been acquainted with at this Mount Salus land office have done some exchanging of moneys for small premiums, if common report, and those who have told me so, speak true, until the present receiver, now here, since which time I have never heard of an accommodation being had, and know of many denials by him. At Chocchuma I know that the receiver there did exchange money with individuals for small premiums, receiving Alabama and giving United States Bank notes, for the same, but do not now remember the amount of premiums received therefor, nor of any of the premiums given and received by other receivers from Mr. G. B. Crutcher's time to the present, as the same has been varying from one to three, or perhaps four per cent premium. Further this deponent saith not.

No. 28.—Interrogatories to Alexander McKay and his answers.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

Interrogatories to be propounded to Alexander McKay, a citizen of Hinds county, called to be examined touching transactions in the public land office at Mount Salus, in pursuance of a commission from the honorable Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands.

Interrogatory first. Have you any knowledge or information of instances where public lands have been marked sold on the public maps of the register of the land office at Mount Salus, in this State, or by a mark which was used and designed in said office to show said lands were sold in fact, when, in truth, they were not sold, or so reported to the General Land Office, and when no money had been paid to the receiver of public moneys on said land? If you do, state the particular case or cases, and who was register of said land office at the time, and how said land was marked on the said maps, and for whose use it was so marked; also state the times at which such facts occurred, and every particular in regard to them.

Interrogatory second. Is it the custom in the register's office at Mount Salus for the register to designate on the maps the lands which have been in fact sold by the government, by putting the letter S on the particular tract sold, or otherwise writing on it the name of the purchaser, and would not inquirers after vacant lands at once view such mark as conclusive evidence a tract was not vacant?

Interrogatory third. Do you know, or have you reasons to believe, any tracts of land, lying near a certain steam saw-mill belonging to John B. Pittman and Samuel Gwin, late register at the Mount Salus land office, were marked or otherwise represented or reported as sold by any person when, in truth, said land was not sold? If so, state every particular, and also who now owns any part of said land, and how near it approaches said saw mill.

Propounded to said Alexander McKay, this, the 9th day of June, 1834. Given under my hand and seal, date above mentioned.

WILLIAM S. JONES, Commissioner. [SEAL.]

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

This day personally appeared before Henry G. Johnston, an acting justice of the peace for said county and State, Alexander McKay, who first being sworn saith, he will true and faithful answers make to the interrogatories that may be made to him by the commissioner by virtue of a commission from the honorable Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands.

Answer to first interrogatory. About the month of April, 1833, after Samuel Gwin had ceased being register of the Mount Salus land office, and some time before Mr. Sumrall came into office, I examined the maps of said office with a view of entering the west half of the southwest quarter, section ten, township five, range two west, which tract was marked with the letter S on said maps; I then examined the tract book, and found said land was not sold. I mentioned to Col. Samuel Gwin that I wanted said land, and that it was not sold, though it was marked sold. He said he knew it was vacant, but that he himself had marked it sold; that it ran into Mr. Mellon's field, and he, Gwin, wanted it, and that it was pretty good pine land. I told him I wanted it. He then said I might have it, if I would examine and tell him what was the quality of some land that lay west of it. I told him I did not then have the money to pay for said land. He asked me my prospects for getting it. I told him I thought I could get the money of William S. Jones, of this place, (Clinton). He advised me to wait, that the per cent was too high, and that he would arrange it for me; he then spoke to Mr. Dameron; they had some conversation together. Samuel Gwin then gave me, or ordered to be given to me, an application not signed by any register, for said land, which was left with Mr. Dameron. Gwin then stated it could lie so one or two months; and that the land could then be saved for me. From the understanding, from what he said, I thought he intended to pay for said land for me, if any one else applied for it, rather than that I should lose it. He did not say positively, he would do so, but that impression was made on my mind. At the election in May, he told me I had better come and enter said land, or I might lose it, as he had heard it talked of. In a few days (two or three days) after that, I came to the office to enter it; it had the mark of S. I then inquired of Mr. Sumrall, the register, if it was vacant? He told me the steam mill company had entered it. I then thought the steam mill belonged to John B. Pittman and Wm. Cage; but I afterwards found out Samuel Gwin had, a few days before, bought Cage's part of said mill. I inquired very particularly if the money was actually paid; the receiver said it was so arranged I could not have the land. I also asked Mr. Sumrall, the register, if said land was paid for. He said he believed it was, but did not give a positive answer; at least I could not get the land. Things remained in this situation till within a few days before Samuel W. Dickson came into office, as receiver. In November last I again examined the maps of survey of said office, and found that the above eighth of land on the map, had had the S, or mark of sold, scratched off, and the letter S on one other eighth joining at the corners, which was on this other eighth when I applied a few days after the election in May, 1833. This other eighth had been represented (as the other piece,) as belonging to said steam mill company. Some time during the summer of 1833, and when I believed said two eighths of land as above described, belonged to said Pittman and Gwin, I mentioned to said Gwin I could not well do without said two eighths of land, as I wanted them for the timber for my saw mill, and that there was a plenty of pine land west of his mill, and that I would pay for as much for their mill; but this was now my mill, and I could not do without it. He told me to go to Pittman, and whatever he did, he (G) would be satisfied. I went to Pittman, and in September or October, 1833, we went and looked at the land. He proposed swapping me some land in section fifteen for some that some of my children owned near to his and Gwin's mill. He claimed three eighths, viz: east half, northeast quarter, section fifteen, township five, range two west; the west half, southeast quarter, section same township and range; the other eighths I do not know the numbers of. All these three eighths, I think, were marked "sold;" any how Pittman claimed the land for himself and Samuel Gwin, and he proposed swapping me any part of it. At the time he claimed these three eighths, and offered to swap them to me, and they marked sold, (I think,) all of them were unpaid for, I know. A few days before Samuel W. Dickson came into office, as above mentioned, I examined the maps again, and found the letter S marked on these three eighths (two of which Samuel Gwin proposed to save for me—all of which had been represented as sold,) had been scratched off, and were, in fact, vacant; and that the steam saw mill company had, in fact, only paid for three forty acre pieces. When the office opened again, under Samuel W. Dickson, as receiver, I applied for four eighths; Pittman applied for the same four eighths in his name and Samuel Gwin's. He spoke to me, and said he would bid pretty high for some of it, particularly the two eighths I first wanted. I knew I was not able to bid against him, not having money enough to come in competition with him and Samuel Gwin, who I believed had considerable amount of money, I was compelled to let him take that which he said he was determined to have; and he let me have two eighths which were worth much less than the ones I first wanted.

Answer to second interrogatory. The letter S upon a tract of land, or writing the name of the purchaser on the tract, but more frequently the letter S is used upon the maps of said office to designate land that has been sold, and inquirers for vacant land, seeing land on said maps marked in either manner, would be induced to believe land so marked was sold.

Answer to third interrogatory. Yes, I do; and have answered and detailed the facts in answer first. The steam saw mill company owns now the most of said land marked sold when it was not sold. I also own one eighth which Pittman told me belonged to him and Samuel Gwin, when it did not. The eighth I own comes within about 640 yards of said mill.

No. 29.—Thomas H. Williams' testimony.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

Interrogatories propounded to Thomas H. Williams, a citizen of Hinds county, State aforesaid, examined as a witness touching any malconduct on the part of the several registers and receivers of the several land offices in the State aforesaid, by virtue of a commission from the honorable Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands.

Interrogatory first. Do you know, or have you reasons to believe, any officer of the Mount Salus land office, ever himself marked, or permitted any other person to mark land sold, which in truth was not sold, and the purchase money for it had not been paid to the government? If so, state every particular of said case or cases, who now owns said land, when it was marked sold, when it was entered, what officer did thus mark land, and every other particular.

Answer to interrogatory first. I do not know, of my own knowledge, that any officer of the Mount Salus land office ever did mark, or permit any other person to mark land sold, which in truth was not sold and the money paid to the government. Touching that part of the interrogatory which requires me to state if I have reason to believe any officer ever did himself mark, or permit others to mark, land not in truth sold and paid for to the government, this respondent states that, notwithstanding he considers this part of the interrogatory more expansive than is generally admitted in courts of law or equity, and is calculated, in this instance, to elicit from this respondent a confidential conversation which ought not to be disclosed; yet this respondent, in obedience to the requisitions of the committee, answers further: that he was informed by Dr. McMorrough, of Benton, Mississippi, in the month of August, 1829, that there was a piece of good vacant land on Cypress creek, in Yazoo county, which had been marked by Mr. Fitz, then register, who was his particular friend, as sold, though in fact it had not been paid for; and further remarked, that no person would be permitted to enter it without an order from him, and offered to give this respondent leave to enter it if he wished, which he declined. And further this respondent says not.

No. 30.—Testimony of Dr. John M. McMorrough, of Benton, Miss.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

Interrogatories to be propounded to John M. McMorrough, a citizen of Yazoo county, State aforesaid, examined as a witness touching any malconduct on the part of the several registers and receivers of the several land offices in the State aforesaid, by virtue of a commission from the honorable Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands.

Interrogatory first. Do you know that any officer of the Mount Salus land office, ever himself marked, or permitted any other person to mark land sold, which in truth was not sold and the purchase money had not been paid to the government? If so, state every particular of said case or cases, who now owns said land, when it was marked sold, when it was entered, what officer did thus mark land, and every other particular?

Answer to interrogatory first. I do not know of any circumstance of the kind. I was never acquainted with any register of said office, except Colonel Gwin, and I never knew of any conduct of his of that kind, nor any malconduct of any kind done by him.

No. 31.—Burruss Haley's testimony.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

Interrogatories to be propounded to Burruss Haley, a citizen of Madison county, State aforesaid, called and examined as a witness, touching the transactions of the officers of the land office at Mount Salus, State aforesaid, by virtue of a commission from the honorable Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands.

Interrogatory first. Have you at any time known of the officers at the Mount Salus land office selling the land otherwise than for cash? and if so, did they take the promissory note of the purchaser, payable at a distant day for the purchase money, including in said note interest for their own benefit, and at the maturity of said note, did they actually receive from the purchaser, the purchase money and the interest? If so, state the case or cases, who were the officers thus selling land, and every particular of said case or cases.

Interrogatory second. Have you any reason to believe said officers did not pay the money to the government at the time they thus sold said land, but paid the money after the maturity of said note, and after they had received said purchase money and interest, and if so, state when the receiver's receipt for the payment of the money was dated, and every particular of said case or cases?

Interrogatory third. Do you know whether said land was marked "sold" upon the maps of survey, or in what manner would the register have acted, if said land had been applied for, after they had thus sold it, and before the maturity of the note, and the payment of it, and in truth, before said land had been purchased of the government.

Propounded June 11th, 1834.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

This day personally appeared before me, Henry G. Johnston, an acting justice of the peace for said county and State, Burruss Haley,* who being first duly sworn, says, he will true and faithful answers make to such interrogatories as may be propounded to him by the commissioner appointed by the Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands, to take depositions in the cases of frauds on the public lands, &c., &c.

Answer to first interrogatory. About the last of October or first of November, 1832, George B. Dameron and Samuel Gwin, receiver and register of the land office at Mount Salus, agreed to enter two eighths of land for me and were to wait till the first of March, 1833, and I was to give them ten dollars for delay of payment on each eighth till that time. I gave them my note for two hundred and twenty dollars, payable at said first of March, 1833, said note made payable to Geo. B. Dameron and Samuel Gwin, and stated in it, it was given for said two eighths of land, describing them. I got the applications from the register for said land, and handed them to Mr. Dameron, the receiver. He filed the applications away with the notes. I asked him for the receipts for the land. He said they were not in the habit of giving receipts for the land at that time, but that the land would assuredly be secured to me, and informed me if I wanted more saved in the same manner, I could get it. The land was then marked sold upon the maps. In a short time afterwards (a week or ten days, hardly so long) I enclosed them my note for three hundred and thirty dollars, due 1st March, 1833, and requested them to enter me three more eighths of land, and to inform me if they had done so, by acknowledging the receipt of the letter Not hearing from them, I came down in a few days, being uneasy about it, to see if they had attended to it. I found that all the eighths had not been marked sold, but Gwin, the register, did then mark the whole of it sold by putting the letter S on each eighth in my presence. On the 28th February, 1833, I came down to pay the money. The first applications that had been taken out could not be found; new applications were taken out, and the receipts for the payment of the money to the receiver were dated on that day, 28th February, 1833. The following are the numbers of the land: northwest quarter, west half, northeast quarter of section thirty-three, township seven, range two east; and the east half, southeast quarter, and east half, northwest quarter of section thirty-two, same township and range. I paid the five hundred dollars for the land, and fifty dollars interest.

Answer to second interrogatory. I asked Colonel Gwin, the register, on the 28th February, 1833, if said land had been returned sold to the department. He said no; he was so far behind with his books, not having been able to get a clerk, he had not come up to it. I then asked him, if said land had been applied for. He said a great many people had been looking at nearly all the vacant land.

Answer to third interrogatory. I know the land was marked sold at the time I bargained for it, in October or November, 1832; but what the register would have done if any one had applied for it I do not know. Furthermore deponent saith not.

No. 32.—Robert Matthews' testimony.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

Interrogatories propounded to Robert Matthews, a citizen of Hinds county, State aforesaid, a witness called and examined touching the conduct of the officers of the land office at Mount Salus, State aforesaid, by virtue of a commission from the honorable Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands.

Interrogatory first. Have you any knowledge of the register of the land office at Mount Salus, having at any time refused any person applying for vacant land, subject to sale at said office, and deterring the person, making application, by threatening to bid for it himself. If so, state what officer, to whom he made the refusal for the land thus applied, and which was vacant, what was his conduct, and every particular of said case or cases.

Interrogatory second. Have you any knowledge or reason to believe, he did not then purchase said land of the government, but put a mark or other sign of sale upon it, to make persons applying for it, believe it was sold, when in truth it was not, and did not pay the government for it, till nearly the lapse of one year after making the refusal. If so, state all the further particulars of said case or cases.

Propounded June 10th, 1834.

Given under our hands and seals.

THE STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Hinds County:

This day Robert Matthews,* of said county and State aforesaid, personally appeared before me, Henry G. Johnston, an acting justice of the peace, for said county and State aforesaid; said Robert Matthews, being first duly sworn, deposeth and saith, that he will true and faithful answers make to such interrogatories as may be propounded to him by the commissioner appointed by the honorable Senate of the United States, through their Committee on Public Lands.

Answer to first interrogatory. Yes, I have; Samuel Gwin, the late register of the land office at Mount Salus, was the officer who made the refusal to me, and my brother, John Matthews. That on the 11th of October, 1832, my brother John first came to the office in company with Ethelwin Sadler, whom he got to assist him, to prevent him from making mistakes, as we were no scholars; he returned and told me that he applied to enter east half, southwest quarter of section number thirty-six, township number six, of range number two west, and said Gwin had refused to let him enter said land; he wanted to enter it himself; my brother said he insisted to enter the land, and then Gwin proposed to him to bid for it, and he told him he could not do it, he only had money enough to pay for it at government price, and he thought he ought to have it as it was unentered, but Gwin would not consent for him to enter it; my brother then returned and told me the circumstance; then I went up and proposed to enter it; he still urged me to bid for the land; I then commenced pleading with him to permit me to enter it, that we had commenced getting land there for a settlement, and it lay joined, some land we had saved, and within two or three hundred yards of where we were building; he still refused, and I complained, and at length he proposed for me to take one-half of the eighth, to which proposing I consented, if he would let me have the half joining my former entry, which he refused, but told me I could take the other half; I concluded to take it rather than lose all.

Answer to interrogatory the second. I think it was in August, 1833, it was hinted to us that the land we applied for had not been sold, but the land on the map had the word "Gwin" written on it, when we got some friend to examine the map for us, and we found out the land had no record of its having been paid for. I again went to the office about the 29th of August, 1833, to ascertain the date of the receipt of the money for the north half of said eighth, and was told in the land office that the receipt of said Gwin, for the purchase of said north half, was dated on the 10th of August, 1833, and further this deponent saith not.

J. B. MORGAN.

No. 33.—Testimony of William Dowsing:

Interrogatories propounded to William Dowsing, register of the land office at Columbus, Mississippi, by G. C. Wooldridge, commissioner.

Interrogatory first. Are you in the habit of demanding fees, or compensation from purchasers, or persons entering land in your office, for the exercise of your official duties; such as granting applications, examining maps, or transferring certificates? and if so, what are the sums usually charged for any of the aforesaid duties?

Interrogatory second. Have you at any time agreed with purchasers, or persons entering public lands, or actually sold any of the public lands, otherwise than for ready money? Or has the receiver of public moneys at this place acted thus, within your knowledge?

Interrogatory third. Have you at any time had knowledge of the existence of companies, or combinations of speculators, for the purpose of preventing a fair competition in the sale of any of the public lands; and were you in any manner connected with said company or combination; and did you participate in any manner in the profits made by them, by speculations on the public lands?

* See interrogatories 4th, 7th, and 17th, to Thos. L. Sumrall, and his answers thereto.

Interrogatory fourth. Have those speculators, after the public sales were closed, offered the lands purchased by them at said sale to persons attending the public sale?

Interrogatory fifth. What portion of the public land offered for sale at Columbus, do you suppose was bought by the company of speculators?

Interrogatory sixth. What would you suppose to have been the loss the government sustained by the purchase and resale of land as above mentioned? Or what sum do you suppose the company realized by their resale?

Interrogatory seventh. Has the receiver of public moneys at this place at any time been in the habit of selling, at a premium, notes of the Bank of the United States, received by him for public lands, and depositing, in lieu thereof, notes of banks not at par value, but which were made receivable for public lands, in the deposit bank, selected by the Secretary of the Treasury?

Answer of William Dowsing, register of the public lands at Columbus, Mississippi, to interrogatories propounded to him by G. C. Wooldridge, commissioner of the Committee of Public Lands, in the Senate of the United States.

Answer to first interrogatory. I have been in the habit of charging twenty-five cents for an examination of the maps, or books; for transferring certificates, which is usually made on a separate printed paper or form, which I keep for that purpose, and which I attach to the certificate, I charge for each transfer thus made, one dollar. For granting applications, I make no charge.

Answer to second interrogatory. I have not. In answer to the second part of this question, in regard to the receiver, I answer, that I have known him once or twice, to suffer persons to enter land, and, as a matter of accommodation, has waited with them a few days, for the money, in which cases he has, however, always charged the amount to himself.

Answer to third interrogatory. I have not at any time had positive knowledge of the existence of any such company or combination; though at the last land sales at this place, I did, from circumstances that transpired during the sales, suspect that such a company had been formed; and used exertions to satisfy myself of the fact, but could not succeed; I was desirous, could I have satisfied myself of the existence of such a company, to have suspended the sales. After the close of the public sales, I then did learn positively that such a company had been in existence during the sales, by the statement of some, who stated themselves to have been members of the company, and who, I think, stated they had drawn a dividend from the company, or a profit of about four hundred and sixty-five dollars, upon each thousand dollars invested. I had no connection in any manner whatever with said company; neither did I participate either directly or indirectly in the profits.

Answer to fourth interrogatory. I have understood they did. I think the land sales closed here on Saturday. On the same evening as well as I recollect, there was a sale of lands at auction, at the court house door, about fifty or sixty steps from my office. This I understood was a sale of part of the lands purchased by the company of speculators, during the public sales.

Answer to fifth interrogatory. I should say at least one-third, or one-fourth, at least.

Answer to sixth interrogatory. I cannot make any estimate on that subject.

Answer to seventh interrogatory. Some time ago, the receiver did frequently exchange notes of the United States Bank, received by him for the sales of public lands, for other bank notes, and sometimes did receive a premium upon the United States Bank notes. But he has subsequently received instructions from the Secretary of the Treasury, instructing him not to make such exchange, and requiring him to endorse on the back of each receipt the specific bills by him received in payment for each particular piece of land, which instructions I believe he has scrupulously adhered to. And further this deponent saith not.

Second interrogatory. Have you at any time sold any of the public lands otherwise than for ready money?

Fourth interrogatory. Have you at any time had knowledge of the existence of companies, or combinations of speculators, for the purpose of preventing a fair competition in the sale of any of the public lands; and were you in any manner connected with said company or combination; and did you in any manner participate in the profits made by them by speculations on the public lands?

Fifth interrogatory. Have those speculators after the public sales were closed, offered such lands as had been purchased by them at the public sales, for sale at public auction, to persons attending the public land sales?

Seventh interrogatory. What would you suppose to be a fair estimate of the loss sustained by the government, by the operations of said company of speculators?

Eighth interrogatory. Have you ever sold at a premium, bank notes of the Bank of the United States, received by you in payment for public lands, for notes of other banks; and depositing those last mentioned notes, in the deposit banks selected by the Secretary of the Treasury?

Tenth interrogatory. Have either the register or yourself at any time entered in your own names, or in the names of other persons for your use and benefit, any of the public lands, without the consent of the surveyor general?

General W. P. Harris, receiver of public moneys at Columbus, Mississippi, after having been duly sworn to make full, true, and perfect answers to such interrogatories as might be propounded to him by the commissioner, answered as follows:

Answer to first interrogatory. I am not.

Answer to second interrogatory. On one occasion, Mr. G. W. Martin, acting as Choctaw locating agent, bid off considerable lands, which he did not pay for, though I issued to him the certificates or receipts, which land he has not yet paid me for, though I charged the amount to myself, and accounted for it. I was mainly influenced in granting him this indulgence, by the fact of his being an officer acting under the authority of the general government.

Answer to third interrogatory. Not to my knowledge.

Answer to fourth interrogatory. I had no positive knowledge of the existence of such a company, previous to the close of the land sales. I was in no manner connected with any such company.

Answer to fifth interrogatory. They did on several different days in this place.

Answer to sixth interrogatory. I should say at least one-third.

Answer to seventh interrogatory. I cannot make anything like an estimate.

Answer to eighth interrogatory. I have not.

Answer to ninth interrogatory. I never have.

Answer to tenth interrogatory. I have entered one section and three-quarters in my own name in one body, in which Major Dowsing, the register, was equally interested. I have also made several other entries, in connection with other persons, in which the register had no agency or interest; further, this deponent saith not.

Answer to interrogatory second. Some short time before the land sales at this place, G. W. Martin, who was acting as Choctaw locating agent, under appointment of the President of the United States, came here. He stated to General Harris, the receiver, that he wished to purchase a large quantity of land at the sales, and that he should not be able to pay for it at the time, but if he (the receiver) would suffer him to bid off such land as he wished, and give him the certificates or receipts, that he would go home and return in a short time, with the money, and pay for the land. This General Harris, the receiver, agreed to; and accordingly, at the land sales, the said G. W. Martin did bid off considerable land, and the receiver issued to him the certificates or receipts for the same, purporting to have actually received the money for the same, relying upon the solemn promise of the said G. W. Martin to return in a short time and pay him the money. He did not return for some time, and when he did he did not pay the money for the land, but represented to General Harris that he had been deceived in the quality of the land. He, however, executed his promissory note to General Harris, the receiver, for the amount; and the money is not yet paid. The land having been reported "sold" by the receiver, he, in his accounts with the government charged the amount to himself. I am satisfied that General Harris had no interest of a pecuniary character in said transaction; but that General Harris was entirely influenced and induced to grant G. W. Martin this indulgence from the fact of his coming here in the capacity of an agent appointed by the President of the United States, and was at the time acting in the capacity of Choctaw locating agent. This, I am satisfied, was the sole cause of Gen. Harris granting him this indulgence.

And further this deponent saith not.

JOHN H. MORRIS, Justice of the Peace. [SEAL.]

Answer to interrogatory third. He did. At the last land sales at this place the said G. W. Martin, in pursuance of his agreement with the receiver, mentioned in my answer to the second interrogatory, bid off a quantity of land in addition to that mentioned in my said answer to the second interrogatory; I think to the amount of about $2,400, and which he also failed to pay for; and upon his return to this place, some time after the sales, and failing to pay for this land, the receiver, Wiley P. Harris, reported the case to the Commissioner of the General Land Office at Washington city, setting forth the facts and circumstances of this transaction; and I think Major Dowsing, the register, also wrote to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, on the subject. The said purchases so made by G. W. Martin were canceled, the certificates or receipts destroyed, and the entries of the sale crossed on the books of the land office here; and I understood this was done by the order of the Commissioner of the General Land Office. I know that the entries were stricken out, and the land became subject to entry in the usual manner; and perhaps the larger portion of it has been since entered by other persons.

WILLIAM L. MOORE, Clerk. [SEAL.]

Interrogatories propounded to Robert W. Carr, a tavern keeper in Columbus, Mississippi, by Gibson C. Wooldridge, commissioner:

First interrogatory. Have you ever attended any of the public sales of lands in Mississippi?

Second interrogatory. Have you known of any combinations of speculators at any public sale of lands, for the purpose of preventing other persons from bidding for or purchasing lands which they might wish for settlement and cultivation, and thereby preventing a fair competition in the sale of public lands?

Third interrogatory. Have those speculators, after the public sale had closed, offered the lands so purchased by them, for sale at auction, to persons attending the public sales?

Fourth interrogatory. What portion of the public lands offered for sale at Columbus, do you suppose, was bought by the company of speculators?

Fifth interrogatory. What would you suppose to have been the loss sustained by the government, by reason of the combination of speculators, or what sum do you suppose the company realized by their operations?

Sixth interrogatory. Have the register, or receiver, or either of them, at this place, manifested favoritism in the sale of public lands at private sale, when two or more persons made application to enter the same particular piece or tract of land?

Seventh interrogatory. Have the register and receiver at this place, at any time, sold any of the public lands otherwise than for ready money?

Answers of Robert W. Carr to interrogatories propounded to him by G. C. Wooldridge, commissioner appointed by Committee on Public Lands, in the Senate of the United States:

Answer to first interrogatory. I reside in Columbus, but did not attend at the land office during the public sale of lands at this place.

Answer to second interrogatory. I believe there was such a company formed at the last public sales of land at this place.

Answer to third interrogatory. There was a public sale at auction of lands, a few days after the close of the public sales, both at the court house door, and at my house, which is a tavern at this place. I understood that this was a sale of lands purchased by the company of speculators, at the public land sales.

Answer to fourth interrogatory. I can give no opinion on this subject.

Answer to fifth interrogatory. I suppose from fifty to sixty thousand dollars.

Answer to sixth interrogatory. I have no knowledge of such conduct on their part.

Answer to seventh interrogatory. Not to my knowledge.

And furthermore this deponent saith not.

WILLIAM L. MOORE, Clerk. [SEAL.]

COLUMBUS, Mississippi, November 20, 1834.

To the Committee on Public Lands in the Senate of the United States:

GENTLEMEN: The undersigned, a commissioner, appointed by the chairman of your committee, herewith transmits evidence taken by him in regard to the land office of this place; and also the facts in regard to Edward Sims, of Tuscaloosa, Alabama, a witness regularly summoned to give evidence, and which he failed and refused to do, for the particulars of which the commissioner begs leave to call the attention of the committee to the subpœna herewith transmitted; on the back of which the committee will find the return of the sheriff, showing that it was regularly served. Your commissioner will further inform the committee, that he is informed and believes that the said Edward Sims is perhaps the only individual who could give the committee full satisfaction with regard to the names, places of residence, &c., of the company of speculators formed at this place at the last land sales. Your commissioner, therefore, submits it to the wisdom of the committee to adopt such course in regard to his evidence as to them may seem meet and proper. Your commissioner further represents, that not considering himself invested with power to enforce the attendance of witnesses, he finds it absolutely impossible to arrive at facts which he is well aware are in the knowledge of individuals, but who will refuse to answer such questions as they may think may, by possibility, ultimately involve themselves, either as actual transgressors, or having some agency; and claiming to judge for themselves how far their answers might have that effect, and forming this opinion upon facts retained within their own knowledge; thereby effectually precluding the commissioner from arriving at the facts, or correcting their impressions on this subject; hence the commissioner finds it impracticable to arrive at positive and satisfactory evidence in regard to those matters.

Therefore, your commissioner would respectfully suggest, in case any further examination should be contemplated by the committee, through the intervention of commissioners, that they should be invested with more extensive powers to enable them to enforce the attendance of witnesses; or, that the committee take such steps with those as refuse to attend, and are reported by the commissioners, as will prevent and deter others from a similar course.

Your commissioner deems it unnecessary to add to the number of depositions, all tending merely to the same point. Presuming, that the fact of a formation and combination of a company of speculators at the last land sales at this place, is sufficiently established by the evidence herewith transmitted; and also, that the loss sustained by the government was about $65,000 of $70,000. The names of the individuals, and their residence, your commissioner cannot with any degree of convenience ascertain, for the reasons above mentioned.

Your commissioner respectfully begs leave to call the attention of the committee to the answer of General Harris, the receiver at this place, to the second interrogatory; and also, to the answer of Adolphus G. Wier, a clerk in the receiver's office. Not considering the Choctaw locating agent, appointed by General Jackson, one of the officers, the investigation of whose conduct was contemplated by the committee, I have not taken any evidence in regard to him further than he has been connected with the land officers at this place.

I have the honor to be, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

G. C. WOOLDRIDGE.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Lowndes County:

To the Sheriff of said County, greeting:

By virtue of the power in me vested by the Senate of the United States of America, I hereby authorize and command you to summon Edward Sims, if to be found in your county, to be and personally appear before me, at my room in Richard Barry's tavern, in Columbus, on Wednesday, the 12th instant, at 10 o'clock, A. M., to answer on oath, such interrogatories as may be propounded to him touching any fraud or malpractice on the part of the several registers and receivers of the several land offices in this State; also touching any fraud or corruption that may have been practiced in the sales of public lands in this State.

Given under my hand and seal, this 11th day of November, 1834.

G. C. WOOLDRIDGE, Commissioner. [SEAL.]

COLUMBUS, November 14, 1834.

The within named Edward Sims resides at Tuscaloosa, Alabama. Soon after my arrival here, I was informed that he was one of the principal leaders in the company of speculators formed at this place, at the last land sales, and that he could give more information on the subject than any other individual. I was also informed that he was expected here in a few days. I remained here, and he did come. I issued the within summons, which was regularly served on him by the sheriff of this county; and the said Edward Sims failed and refused to attend and give evidence. I am well informed that he is the most material witness in regard to the combination at this place that there is; in fact he is the only man that can give all the particulars. I therefore report him to the committee for their further action in regard to him.

G. C. WOOLDRIDGE, Commissioner.

WILLIAM S. JONES, Esq.

VICKSBURGH, June 10, 1834.

SIR: I received your notice to attend in Clinton on the 16th instant, but, in consequence of being on the eve of leaving on some very important business, I cannot attend immediately, but will do so with pleasure in the course of two or three weeks, which, I presume, will be in time, as nothing can be done in the matter this Congress; besides, from the number of persons summoned, I presume you will be two weeks getting through. I do not wish you to suppose, for a moment, that I wish to evade the call of that honorable body, the Senate of the United States; and in justice to the several registers and receivers of land offices in this State, with whom I have had much business, I feel it my duty to attend, and state what I know, which will be entirely in their favor.

Yours, respectfully, W. R. CAMPBELL.

NATCHEZ, June 14, 1834.

SIR: We have read your subpœna and accompanying letter, directing us to appear before you as witnesses, at Clinton, on the 17th instant. It is impossible for either of us to attend. The first is subpœnaed as a witness for the circuit court, which holds its session next week; and the latter is required to attend the session of said court, not only as a witness, but as counsel in various cases. You say in your letter that the testimony of distant witnesses may be taken by deposition. If you will transmit us interrogatories, we will answer under oath, and send you the depositions by mail.

Your obedient servants, THOMAS G. ELLIS,
R. I. NACKER.

MR. WILLIAM S. JONES.

CLINTON, Mississippi, June 23, 1834.

SIR: The following are the names of witnesses, who failed to attend, though summoned, all of this State: John A. Fairchild, Hinds county; William H. Martin, Hinds county. (This gentleman attended, but would not be qualified to give testimony.) Richard Davidson, and Samuel M. Puckett, Rankin county; Joseph Dunbar, Jefferson county. The summons for Mr. Dunbar was left at his residence; whether he received it or not, in time to attend, we do not know. We consider him a very important witness, as you can discover, in fact, from the testimony of John S. Gooch, William T. Lindsay, and Thos. L. Sumrall. Many favors seem to have been conferred on him by certain land officers. Robert J. Walker, Thomas G. Ellis, and Nicholas Gray, Adams county; Messrs. Walker and Ellis, we have been credibly informed, now have all the papers, books, &c., of the Chocchuma land company; they were served with a subpœna duces tecum for that purpose. Mr. Gray was the secretary of said company. A letter received from Messrs. Walker and Ellis, you will find enclosed. Hiram Coffee, James Scott, William Henson, Hinds county; William Vick, William R. Campbell, Warren county. We also enclose a letter from this gentleman. Several others that were summoned did not attend, on account of sickness.

The investigation was carried on in Clinton (this place), and mostly in the land office. The ready access to all papers, and the aid shown us by the present register and receiver of said office can only be accounted for by the correct manner in which they have discharged the duties of their respective offices. The testimony relative to the Mount Salus land office, is not exhausted, nor can we tell how long it would take to examine all the cases that call in question the conduct of the officers, whose names are so often mentioned in the testimony already given, and herewith enclosed. But the testimony behind is either confirmatory of that given, or of about the same tenor; and it is hoped that already given will suffice for all purposes relative to the Mount Salus land office. Mr. Marsh is probably examining the Chocchuma land office, which has caused us to be less energetic in regard to that office.

Very respectfully, your obedient servants,

ISAAC CALDWELL,
WM. S. JONES,
Commissioners.

Hon. CHAIRMAN of the Committee on Public Lands, of the Senate of the United States.

DEPOSITIONS FROM OHIO.

By virtue of a commission to me directed from the Committee on Public Lands, of the Senate of the United States, authorizing and empowering me diligently to examine all such witness or witnesses as I may think proper, upon interrogatories to be exhibited by me, touching the perpetration of any frauds in the sales of the public lands of the United States, if any shall have been committed, in any district of the State of Mississippi; and touching the conduct of any officer or officers, of the said United States, charged or authorized by law, with the conduct, direction, management, or superintendence of said sales, first having myself taken an oath as directed by said commission, I have caused the witnesses whose names appear hereinafterwards, and came before me, and first called Titus Howard, who, after being duly sworn according to law, deposed as follows.

No. 1.—Titus Howard's testimony:

Interrogatory first. Were you at the land sales at Chocchuma during the last fall? If so, state all you know, as to the conduct of the land officers, and speculators, and others, so far as the same is sought to be learned by the resolutions of the Senate of the United States, just received by you.

Answer. I was in attendance every day of the first sales, but did not arrive on the first day until the sales for that day were over. I know that a company of speculators was formed at the sale, but whether on the first or second day I know not. I was selected by the citizens, on the evening of the first day of the sales, or on the second day, to confer with a committee of the speculators. I was to act with James Sims: we requested Colonel Irwin to be with us. We met R. J. Walker, Thomas G. Ellis, and Thomas Barnard, from the company formed in Mississippi; and Gilchrist, Lane and Jamison, from the company of Alabama. I believe we met, up stairs, in Colonel Pratt's house. We were informed by the committee on the part of the speculators, that the company were anxious to protect the citizens in their homes, and would do so, if the citizens would enter into an amicable arrangement with them, by giving them their numbers of land; and that, in that event, one of the company should bid off the land, and the settler should have one half-quarter section; and if one half-quarter section could not include the improvements, then a quarter section, at the price at which the company should buy it. We thought this arrangement the best that we could form, and entered into it for ourselves, and recommended it to the settlers, many of whom, I believe, entered into the arrangement. The speculators, from day to day, held public auctions at the tavern, forty or fifty yards from the land office, for the lands which they had bought for themselves at the United States sales.

Interrogatory second. What were the terms of sale of the land company at this auction?

Answer. The land was sold for cash. I do not know of a minimum; but a remnant I think did not sell.

Interrogatory fifth. Was there any other transaction between you and any company of speculators, at said sales, other than what you have already stated.

Answer. I bought one half-quarter section at the company's sales, at an advance of something like a dollar per acre on the price paid by the company to the United States.

Interrogatory sixth. Was it not obvious, to all persons in attendance, that there were companies of speculators, from the open manner in which they operated?

Answer. I know it.

Interrogatory seventh. Was notice of the said sales such as to afford the inhabitants reasonable time to raise money in time to secure the land they might wish to purchase?

Answer. The news reached us about the 15th September. I thought it short notice.

Interrogatory eighth. Were you present at the time to commence private sales, or enter land at the land office? if so, state the manner of conducting entries by the officers?

Answer. I was present. Each applicant gave his application to the register, and he kept them for a time, and then read out the conflicting applications. The applicants then generally convened together, and all but one withdrew his application: in some instances there was bidding, when the applicants could not compromise.

Interrogatory ninth. Do you know of any instance in which money was given or offered to applicants to withdraw their application?

Answer. Major James Crowder applied for an eighth of land, adjoining him; there were probably seven or eight applications for the same. Crowder said, in the presence of the register, he would give two dollars an acre. Colonel Gwin appeared to get in a pet, and tore up the application, and said they might compromise, or settle it as they pleased. This was addressed, as I think, to Crowder. Crowder got the land without its being at auction.

No. 2.—Samuel Foster's testimony:

Samuel Foster was next called and sworn, who deposed as follows.

Interrogatory first. Were you acquainted with James Oxberry, a Choctaw Indian, previous to and at the time of the treaty of Dancing Rabbit creek, in September, 1830?

Answer. I was.

Interrogatory second. Where did he live at the time of the treaty?

Answer. He lived, I believe, within about five miles of Chocchuma, and on the south side of Yellowbusha river.

Interrogatory third. Did he cultivate or make a crop on the tract of land situated on the north side of Yellowbusha, on the land now in the possession of George W. Martin, the agent for deciding upon the validity of, and locating Indian claims?

Answer. I then lived eight or nine miles from the place. I sometimes passed through a part of the land, but was not well acquainted with it. I have no knowledge of his having cultivated any part of it in the year 1830. I saw some house logs cut and lying along the road on the land before the treaty, or about that time; but I saw no other improvements.

Interrogatory fourth. When was the first time that you ever knew James Oxberry, with his family, or by himself, to be living on the land?

Answer. Within about three weeks or a month after the treaty, James Oxberry, with his family, was living on the land within about two hundred yards of the path I was accustomed to travel, as well as I recollect.

Interrogatory fifth. Has James Oxberry sold his claims to said lands? If yea, when, and to whom, for what price, and on what condition?

Answer. I understood he sold it to Kelsey H. Douglass and George W. Martin, the agent of the United States for the location of Indian claims, and for the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars. I do not remember the exact time, but think it was about twelve months after the treaty.

Interrogatory sixth. Is George W. Martin in possession of the land? If yea, when did he commence his settlement on it?

Answer. He is on the land, and commenced his settlement some time between the month of October, 1832, and March, 1833.

Interrogatory seventh. Has said tract of land been located in the name of Oxberry, and so registered?

Answer. I understood it has.

Interrogatory eighth. Upon what testimony was the location made, or reservation established?

Answer. I do not know.

Interrogatory ninth. Who resided nearest said tract of land at the time of the treaty?

Answer. John Hammonds resided within about two miles and a half, John Smith within about six miles, and myself within about eight miles.

Interrogatory tenth. What was the tract of land worth at private sale about the time of the public land sales last fall, and how much was in the tract?

Answer. There is a section and three-quarters, or eleven hundred and twenty acres, which I think at that time fairly worth on an average eight dollars per acre.

Interrogatory eleventh. At what time did Colonel Martin locate and decide upon the Indian claims?

Answer. Within about a month or three weeks before the land sales; they were registered, but I think his decisions were not made known until within a few days before the sales.

Interrogatory twelfth. How long was it known in the country about Chocchuma and where you reside, that the President of the United States had advertised the lands to be sold in October, before the sales actually came on?

Answer. I think about a month.

Interrogatory thirteenth. Was that a reasonable time, in the then situation of the country, to enable settlers to procure funds to pay for their lands?

Answer. I think not.

Interrogatory fourteenth. Do you know of any dwelling-house, or other house on the tract of land before referred to of James Oxberry's, at the time of the treaty?

Answer. I know of none.

Interrogatory fifteenth. Did you ever hear Oxberry say whether there were any houses on the lands?

Answer. I think I have heard Oxberry say there was no house on the land at or prior to the time of the treaty, nor did I ever see any.

Interrogatory sixteenth. Did Oxberry live on, or cultivate, any land on the north side of Yellowbousha, in the year 1830.

Answer. Not to my knowledge.

S. FOSTER.

No. 3.—John L. Irwin's testimony:

John L. Irwin was called and sworn, who deposed as follows.

Interrogatory first. Were you present at Chocchuma at the land sales, in October and November, 1833? If yea, for what length of time did you continue in attendance?

Answer. I was, and I think for the two first weeks, every day.

Interrogatory second. Do you know of the existence of any company of speculators at said sale? If so, who were they?

Answer. I know that there was a company formed, and this knowledge is derived from my attendance with Mr. Howard, (as he has stated in one of his answers) at a conference between him and James Sims, as a committee on the part of the settlers, with a committee of the speculators: their names are given by Mr. Howard.

Interrotogary third. Have you any reason to believe that at the commencement of the sales there was more than one company? if yea, how many, and what are your reasons for believing their existence?

Answer. It was rumored that there was a company from Alabama and Tennessee: I know of no other except that mentioned by Captain Howard.

Interrogatory fourth. Do you know of any combination or association of speculators or others, to defeat or prevent competition in the land sales?

Answer. I am confident of the fact stated by Titus Howard, in his answer to the first interrogation in his deposition. I believe said statement to be substantially true. I do not think I am able to give any fact on the subject in addition to what he has done.

Interrogatory fifth. Do you know the names of all the consolidated company of speculators, or any of those formed on Wednesday? If so, state their names and their place of residence.

Answer. There were a great many. It was my impression and understanding, that Robert J. Walker, Thomas Barnard, Thomas G. Ellis, of Mississippi, Malcolm Gilchrist, Jamison and Lane, of Alabama, represented in the conference, (of which Titus Howard speaks,) the speculators.

Interrogatory sixth. How long before the sales actually commenced did the advertisement of sales reach this part of the country?

Answer. On the fifteenth day of September, at a barbecue, Captain Howard arrived from Columbus, and brought the first intelligence that reached me, and the sales commenced on the third Monday of October. My impression was that this was the first time it was generally made known. A rumor prevailed a few days before, but was not, I believe, generally believed.

Interrogatory seventh. By what title or claim was the town of Chocchuma held? who held it, or has since held it? the names of the individuals who compose the company, if held by a company? when was such company formed?

Answer. I understood it was taken by one of Mr. Franklin E. Plummer's floats; which float, I understood from Mr. Plummer, was one of those granted by the treaty to Peggy Trahern and her children, and to Delila and her children, and that he had the control of all of them. I understood he sold one to a company composed of Colonel R. H. Sterling, the receiver, George W. Martin, the locating agent, Wiley Davis, Joseph Plummer, and some others. I was invited to join the company, but declined it. The company was formed before the land sales, I think about the 15th September, at Elliot, when I was present.

Interrogatory eighth. Who officiated as auctioneers at the land sales of the government lands?

Answer. There were several who acted at different times—Mr. Rather, of Alabama, Mr. Stephen Holt, of Hinds county, and Mr. Griffin, of Clinton, and probably others.

Interrogatory ninth. Who acted as auctioneer for the speculators' company at their sales, as named by Captain Howard and others, in their answers which you have just heard?

Answer. Mr. Rather.

Interrogatory tenth. Do you know any instance in which the receiver of public moneys has been engaged in exchanging bank paper for profit?

Answer I do not.

Interrogatory eleventh. Are you acquainted with the general character, for truth and veracity, of Titus Howard, Samuel Foster, Thomas G. Nixon, witnesses, whose testimonies have just been taken? If yes, state what are they.

Answer. I am acquainted with them, and I believe they are all citizens who stand high in this community, and are entitled to as much credit in their statements as any men I am acquainted with.

Interrogatory twelfth. Were you present at the first and subsequent days after the sales, when the privilege of entering lands was allowed?

Answer. I was, for several of the first days, and was at the land office occasionally for two weeks.

Interrogatory thirteenth. Did you purchase any land at any of these visits to Chocchuma, at private entry?

Answer. I did, and perhaps at each visit.

Interrogatory fourteenth. Did the register sign your application whenever presented, or did he keep it any length of time, to see whether any conflicting application for the same land might be presented?

Answer. I have no recollection to have met with any delay or objection; my applications were signed by the register without objection or delay, and the purchase money promptly received and receipted for by the receiver.

Interrogatory fifteenth. During these visits to Chocchuma, how much land did you take up at private entry—I mean during the first two weeks after the land in the district became subject to private entry, and before the speculators had dispersed?

Answer. I think about six or eight half-quarter sections.

Interrogatory sixteenth. By what sort of claim is the town of Pittsburgh claimed?

Answer. I have understood that is held under one of Mr. Plummer's floats, said to have been derived from the Peggy Trahern claim, under the treaty with the Choctaws in 1830.

Interrogatory seventeenth. Who are the proprietors of said town, under said claim, and when did Plummer part with his claim?

Answer. I understood that Plummer had sold that section to Joseph A. McRaven, Hiram Coffee, William Trahern, locator of orphan claims, Samuel M. Pucket, J. and J. A. Lane, and I think, Joseph Plummer. The first time that I heard that F. E. Plummer had parted with his said float, was, I believe, during the first two weeks of the public sales in October, 1833.

Interrogatory eighteenth. Do you know, or have you reason to believe, the existence of any further fact that will afford information on the subject embraced in the several resolutions of the Senate of the United States, which you have just read as accompanying my commission?

Answer. I do not think I do.

Interrogatory nineteenth. By what title is the town of Tallahoma held?

Answer. It is held under a section of float, under the treaty above spoken of, to John Donolly; the float was purchased from Donolly's agent by Hiram G. Runnells and John Watt. I do not know what they gave for it. A company was formed at Elliot on Saturday night, I think the 15th September, composed of John Watt and Hiram G. Runnells, who reserved each a share; and the balance of the company were made up of F. E. Plummer or Joseph Plummer, Runnells and Watt, John C. McLemore, Wiley Davis, George W. Martin, the agent of the United States for the location of Indian claims under the treaty above referred to, Doctor Covington, T. Cleveland, of Tallahoma, Allen Sharkey and William Terry, one share, and myself one share: we gave for each share, there being ten shares, seven hundred and fifty dollars, estimating the float at the sum of $7,500.

Interrogatory twentieth. Was the tract, on which said town of Tallahoma is situated, and on which said float was located, improved at the time the location was made? and, if yes, what were the improvements, and when made?

Answer. There was an improvement on the section. John Balfour was said to have made an improvement, and was then living on said tract with his family; his houses were of logs; he had about three acres in cultivation, and lived about three hundred yards from the bank of the river, (Yellowbusha,) L. Cleveland had a store on the town site, and on the same section; I believe there was also a ferry. I do not know when the improvements were made; the company gave Balfour six hundred and odd dollars for said improvement.

Interrogatory twenty-first. Do you know anything as to the title to the town of Hendersonville? If yea, state all you know in relation to it.

Answer. I understood from Col. McKinny, who resided at that place, that F. E. Plummer had laid one of his said floats there.

No. 4.—Abel Beaty's testimony:

Abel Beaty was next called and sworn, and deposed as follows.

Interrogatory first. Were you present at any time during the late land sales, in October and November, 1833, at Chocchuma?

Answer. I was here several of the first days, went home occasionally, and returned several times, during the sales.

Interrogatory second. Did you hear the obligation or article of agreement, (mentioned by witnesses, previously examined,) read by Robert J. Walker? If yea, state its contents as near as you recollect.

Answer. I was present and heard it. The purport was, that all the land should be bid off by the company; that the settlers were not to oppose them; but were to join their terms, and should have at cost, one eighth of land, if it would cover their improvement; if not, then one quarter section: the settlers were requested to hand in to the company all their numbers of land which they had selected for purchase. Mr. Walker, accompanied the reading of the company's terms to the people, by remarks, with a view to show that the settlers could not do better than to accept those terms: most of the people acceded to the terms, and many signed the articles.

Interrogatory third. Did the company generally obtain their lands on the minimum price?

Answer. They did as far as I observed; I heard the company of speculators frequently proclaim that those who stood out, and would not come into the terms proposed, that their lands should be run on them; a few persons stood out. I remember that Mr. Williams, Mr. Ford, and Mr. Laflore were of this number; some of their lands were run to $10.00 per acre.

Interrogatory fourth. Was or was not the business of this company of speculators, transacted chiefly by a committee? Who composed this committee? and did the members of the committee go in a body to the United States officers, who were conducting the sales, to transact with them the business of the company?

Answer. It was transacted by a committee. Walker, Ellis, and Bernard, of Natchez, Mississippi; Gilchrist and Jamison, of Alabama, composed the committee, and it was constantly their practice as soon as the sales for the day were closed, to go in a body to the land office, and transact their business with Col. Gwin, the register, and Col. Sterling, the receiver.

Interrogatory fifth. Was or was not the existence of this company, and the mode of conducting their business and speculation open and public, and known to the officers appointed by law, to superintend the sales on the part of the United States?

Answer. The existence of the company was entirely well known, and their mode of speculation equally public in and out of the office; during the first week of the sales, I heard Mr. Campbell, a merchant of Tuscahoma, remonstrate with Col. Gwin, the register, against the course of proceeding, as then going on, in relation to the sales, and the hardship of being subjected to the tyranny of the company of speculators. Gwin, after some harsh words had passed, said he did not know there was such a company, and if there was, he would have a right to stop the sales.

Interrogatory sixth. Do you or not know of any other facts tending to facilitate the inquiry, directed by the several resolutions of the Senate of the United States, which you have just heard read?

Answer. Whilst some land in the river bottom, near Chocchuma, was selling, and adjoining G. W. Martin, the agent of the United States for the location of Indian claims, and for which said Martin, and a Mr. Gold, the clerk of Campbell, were bidding in opposition to each other, and after the land had been run to more than ten dollars per acre, a deposit was demanded of Gold. Sterling, the receiver, put his head out of the window, and held some conversation with Martin, and immediately a deposit was demanded, (the demand came from near the window,) of Mr. Gold, but I was not able to tell whether by Sterling, Martin, or the public crier, or by some other person. Gold was bidding for Campbell; Sterling put his head out of the window, conversed with Martin, and dodged back, and the demand of the deposit was immediately made. Campbell stepped up and said he could make the deposit, but that he had no right to demand it; the bid was forfeited, and the land again sold, and I think Martin bought it at a much lower rate. When Gold was ordered to make a deposit, he said he could do it if they would wait a few minutes. A dispute ensued, and Campbell soon stepped up, and made the remarks above stated.

Interrogatory seventh. What month in the year would suit settlers best for the land sales to come on?

Answer. I think the month of January, February, or March, would be best. Then the planters could have the proceeds of their cotton crops, and have time to sell their corn to new settlers.

Interrogatory eighth. Was there a reasonable notice given to the inhabitants previous to the sales?

Answer. The news reached here about the 15th of September; there was a great deal of complaint among the inhabitants, on account of not having time to prepare; I think the notice full short, but was myself prepared.

Interrogatory ninth. Did the speculators' company bid off your land? If so, state whether you asked to have it entered on the books of the office in your own name? if not, why?

Answer. They did bid it off; the reason I did not request it (so as to save the fee of the register) was, that some of my neighbors had applied, and were positively refused, as contrary to the articles. There was a certificate issued separately for each eighth of land, and a dollar fee to the officer, was required for each transfer of a certificate.

ABEL BEATY.

No. 5.—Green Hastings' testimony:

Green Hastings was next called and sworn, who deposed as follows:

Interrogatory first. Were you present at the public sales of the lands of the United States at Chocchuma in October and November, 1833?

Answer. I was present every day, I believe, during the first two weeks, and several days afterward, during their continuance.

Interrogatory second. Do you know whether or not, that one or more companies of speculators attended said sales, for the purpose of obtaining the public lands at the minimum prices, by controlling the bids of those wishing to settle the lands for cultivation? If so, how many of such companies existed; where was each company formed; what were the names of the individuals thus associated, and what was their mode of proceeding?

Answer. On the morning of the second or third day of the sales, a short time before the sales were opened, Robert J. Walker, called the attention of the people, before the tavern door about thirty yards from the land office, and read an arrangement, announcing that a company was formed to buy the land, and that such settlers as would comply with the terms proposed by the company should be protected; the settlers were to abstain from bidding; were to give in to the company of speculators the numbers of their land, and one eighth of land, including the settler's improvement, was to be transferred to the settler on his paying, on the day it might be sold, the amount to be paid to the United States; and if one eighth of a section would not cover the improvement, then the settler was to have one quarter section. Mr. Walker also made some remarks to the people, advising them that their interests would be best promoted by closing in with this offer of the company. Robert J. Walker, of Mississippi, Malcom Gilchrist, Robert R. Jemison, of Alabama, and Mr. Jones arranged my business on the part of the company. I understood that John C. McLemore, of Tennessee, was a member of the company. Each day the public sales on the part of the United States, were sold in the forenoon generally, (of the second week) and when the public sales were closed the company would sell, at auction, their lands; and at those sales of the company, I understand that they made McLemore pay very high for some valley lands which he wanted. I am not able to state many other names of speculators; the people, generally, thought it best to close with the terms offered to them, and generally did so; a few persons refused, and those refusing paid high for their lands; Robert Williams suffered most by his independence; they made him pay about ten dollars per acre. Others suffered, though perhaps were not run quite so high. I embraced the company's offer, and obtained a fractional quarter section, embracing what is called Hastings' ferry, on Yellowbusha river, at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre.

Interrogatory third. From the manner in which the company transacted their business, was it known necessarily to the land officers, that such company existed?

Answer. I presume it was; they perhaps were present when Mr. Walker made his speech; I am not certain, however, that they were; but the agents of the company, who generally bid for the lands, would take out receipts in their own names, and immediately transfer them under the attestation of Samuel Gwin, the register, to the settler. One of the public criers on the part of the United States, by the name of John T. Rather, and I understood to be one of the speculators, and who resides in Alabama, when opposition bids were made, would frequently stop crying the land, and say, gentlemen, you had better compromise among yourselves; you are fooling away your money. He generally stood in the office, in front of the window, and as the officers were in the room I do not see how they could have been ignorant on the subject; but I never heard either of the officers say that they knew of this combination.

Interrogatory fourth. What do you know as to the profits of the company of speculators from the lands of the United States thus acquired by them? Give instances.

Answer. On the section on which I live, they bought in 433 or 4 acres; by mine and Norman's contract with them, we would have been entitled to a quarter section each; the 433 or 4 acres was a fractional section, and bought in by the company at the minimum price; myself and Norman wanted the tract, and we proposed to Walker and Jemison and Glover to take the residue, after paying the government price, for $400, which they accepted, and we paid them the money. On another tract adjoining me, they made fifty cents per acre, at their own sales, by auction.

Interrogatory fifth. Were, or were not, the proceedings of the company open, notorious, and palpable; and was it not frequently spoken of by agents and members of the company, and others in the land office, while the officers were present?

Answer. It was, and while the officers were in the room, which is not large.

Interrogatory sixth. From whence did you remove when you settled here, and to what members of Congress, or officers of Washington city, are you known?

Answer. I removed from Hardeman county, Tennessee, in January, 1834; I am known by Hon. William Dunlap, and the Hon. David Crockett, delegates in Congress from Tennessee.

Interrogatory seventh. Who paid the register for the transfers of certificates, from the speculators to the settlers?

Answer. The settlers; I paid five dollars, or more, to the register, Col. Gwin. Whenever I have spoken of the government price, I meant the price paid the government by the speculators.

GREEN HASTINGS.

No. 6.—Kelsey H. Douglass's testimony:

Kelsey H. Douglas was next called, and duly sworn, who deposed as follows.

Interrogatory first. Were you present at the public sales of the lands of the United States, sold at Chocchuma, in October and November, 1833?

Answer. I believe I was present, during the whole of the sales made at that time.

Interrogatory second. Have you any knowledge, that either the receiver or register of the office of Chocchuma, as far as you know, received any fee, or bonus, for the performance of any act connected with his official duty?

Answer. I do not know.

Interrogatory third. Was there, at said sales, any combination of speculators, whose object appeared to be to promote a fair competition in the sales of the public lands, at said sales? State all you know on this subject.

Answer. I know there was a company formed, whose object was to procure the public lands at the lowest price. I do not know who composed the entire company of speculators, but the company was represented, and its principal executive business was done by R. J. Walker, Thomas G. Ellis, and Thomas Bernard, of Mississippi, and Malcolm Gilchrist, Robert R. Jamison, and Col. Lane, of Alabama. I heard that there were about seventy persons who had stock in the company. My impression and belief are, that Stephen Holt, Rather, and James McLaran, were partners in the company.

Interrogatory fourth. Who acted as crier of the lands on the part of the United States?

Answer. Stephen Holt, Rather, and James McLaran, I think, acted in that capacity, alternately; but I believe some others occasionally acted, though Holt and Rather were the principal criers. Dr. William M. Gwin was present, and, I believe, held stock in the company.

Interrogatory fifth. Was, or was not, it the practice of the representatives of said company of speculators, to go into the land office, on the evening of each day, and arrange with the officers of the United States entrusted with said sales, the certificates, and other matters, in relation to the purchases made by the company during the day?

Answer. I believe it was.

Interrogatory sixth. Were the officers of the United States entrusted with the management of said sales, cognizant of the existence of said company of speculators?

Answer. I do not know, but presume they were. It seemed to be a subject of general notoriety. The company of agents, on the part of the company of speculators, transacted the business of the company every evening, with the United States officers; and certificates were transferred under the attestation of Col. Gwin, the register.

Interrogatory seventh. Was the said company associated by written articles of agreement? If yea, where are those articles, and what was their substance?

Answer. I believe they were; I heard them read. I cannot state the substance with precision. The articles were read to me up stairs, in Col. Pratt's house, at the time I took stock. R. J. Walker made a speech to the people, explanatory of the views of the company, which were to secure the settlers in their improvements; and, that all parties might get the land as cheap as possible, the settlers were to give in such numbers of good land as they could; and were to pay to said representatives, on the evening of the day when their improvements might be bid off, the amount for which it might be sold; in all cases the company, by their said executive committee, were to be alone the bidders. No one of the company was permitted to bid against the bidders of the company. At the government land sales, the bidders appointed by the company were, Messrs. Jamison, Walker, Gilchrist, and Ellis.

Interrogatory eighth. At the company's sales, was there any minimum?

Answer. Their lands were first offered, and if no one bid more than they cost, they were passed over. Afterwards a remnant, for which no bid over cost was made, was sold Mr. Gray, a young man of Natchez, said to be connected with Mr. Fisk.

Interrogatory ninth. Are you acquainted with any fact in regard to the right claim and location of the tract of land on which George W. Martin (the locating agent) now lives? If yes, state all you know.

Answer. George W. Martin and myself purchased said tract of land of James Oxberry, in the summer of 1832, for the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars, the tract being one section and three-quarters. We paid him a sum of money, say four or five hundred dollars, a short time after purchase, and gave our obligation to pay the residue whenever he could make a good title for the same. I sold my interest to T. G. Nixon, and before any written contract was entered into with him, he sold to Martin, and Martin became bound directly to me. These sales were made in the fall of 1832, or the ensuing winter.

Interrogatory tenth. Have you known the receiver of public moneys at this land office, Col. Sterling, to sell or exchange bank bills for a premium, or otherwise shave bank paper?

Answer. I have not.

Interrogatory eleventh. Were you present when the land sales were closed, and the time for making private entries commenced? If yes, state the manner in which the officers and applicants conducted the same.

Answer. I was; the land was taken up by townships in the order in which it had been offered at auction, and proclaimed at the window at the land office, that applications would then be received for all the land subject to entry in one particular township, until a particular hour of the day. Applications were then handed to the register, who kept them until the hour of receiving had expired. He then pronounced whose application came in conflict, and called up the applicants; they then had either to bid in his presence for it or to withdraw, go out and bid among themselves, and whatever amount was bid over the cost of government price was divided among the applicants. This was the common course of proceeding as far as I saw. Those conflicting applications were generally participated in by land speculators as well as the individuals who wished to purchase for cultivation. Mr. Gilchrist, Mr. Robert J. Walker, and myself, were frequently in contact with others, though I believe every man acted for himself in this matter. I sought out to know, or guess as well as I could, what land would be applied for, and this I applied for. The register opposed this course of things but could not help himself.

Interrogatory twelfth. Are you acquainted with the general characters of John T. Hammond, Samuel Foster, Titus Howard, and Jacob Thompson?

Answer. I have known Mr. Hammond for several years, his character is unimpeached so far as I know, and should give full credit to his testimony; the same as to Mr. Foster and Captain Howard. I have also lived near Jacob Thompson for near two years' time, but am not so particularly acquainted with him as the others, but think his statement entitled to as much credit as any man's.

No. 7—Colonel Joseph Persons was next called, sworn, and deposed as follows:

Interrogatory first. Were you present at the land sales at Chocchuma, in 1833? If so, state how long.

Answer. I was present, and I believe I staid all the time, except at night; then I went home, which is four miles distant.

Interrogatory second. You have heard the examinations of most of the witnesses, the resolutions of the Senate, and know what is important to be developed. Will you state all you know on the several subjects named; first as to companies of speculators?

Answer. I will state all I know, but, without I am specially asked, something may escape my memory. At the commencement of the sales it was reported that the speculators were endeavoring to bring about an union. It was doubtful whether it could be effected, but on the second day they did come to terms, and on the third day Mr. Robert J. Walker, of Natchez, called the attention of the people, and, standing in the entry of the tavern, distance from the land office only twenty-nine yards, which I have measured at your request, read aloud so much of the articles of agreement as, he said, convinced the settlers; the terms of which articles Mr. Walker, in his speech, advised the settlers to embrace. I am not sure whether in his speech, or in conversation, Mr. Walker said the settlers were requested to deliver up all their numbers of land, which they had selected, as well as the numbers of their improvement, to the company; that the company would buy in all of the land, and let the settlers have one eighth if it would cover their improvement, and a quarter section if it would not, at what it cost the company. Four bidders, I think, were appointed to bid for the company, and the settlers were prohibited from bidding. The names of the bidders were Robert J. Walker, Thomas G. Ellis, Malcom Gilchrist, and Robert R. Jamison. Any one who would subscribe the articles was at liberty to put in his money; not exceeding one thousand dollars, and as much less as he pleased, and draw of the profits of the company in the proportion that the funds put in bore to the profits of the whole company. What that capital was I have had no means of knowing; I heard afterwards that a great many fictitious names were used in taking stock. At a meeting of all the stockholders, which was organized, the names of the stockholders were called over; many names were called to which different ones of the speculators would answer, "I am proxy for that name." A Mr. Coopwood, I think, moved to strike out the fictitious names. Mr. Walker made a speech in opposition, and declared that, if it was persisted in, he would withdraw. There was nothing finally done, I believe, to get rid of the fictitious names. Mr. Rather (the auctioneer), who seemed to speak for a committee appointed on the subject, in his report, said they requested that all fictitious names should be taken from the list. This, I believe, ended the matter. Both the company and settlers were much in the power of Mr. Walker, as he had bought a great deal of land in his own name, both for settlers and the company, which was not transferred at that time.

Interrogatory third. Who composed the company of speculators, exclusive of those settlers who made deposits of one thousand and less, subsequent to the proclamation made by Walker on Wednesday morning?

Answer. R. J. Walker, Thomas Bernard, Thomas G. Ellis, John Irish, Wiley Davis, and D. Conolly, of Mississippi; Malcolm Gilchrist and Lane, Harris, Robert R. Jamison, John B. Jones, James Harrison, Littleton Wood, P. J. Weaver, Colonel A. Winston, Anderson, of Huntsville; Driver, of Huntsville; Bolin C. Bennett, Green, Allen, Glover, Burlison, Lane, Yarborough, Love, Coopwood, of Alabama. I believe John C. McLemore, of Tennessee, was also of the company.

Interrogatory fourth. Who of the settlers took stock after Walker's proclamation?

Answer. I am unable to say, but think several did.

Interrogatory fifth. Were the officers of the United States, who were entrusted with the sales of the public lands, privy to the existence of said company and of its proceedings?

Answer. I do not know; but the existence of the company, and its arrangement and proceedings were very public, and its business done by its committee, both in and out of the land office.

Interrogatory sixth. Did, or did not, the executive committee of the company to which you refer, have access to the office, and remain there frequently every day, and for a considerable period of time, when the doors were kept shut, and access was denied to others?

Answer. They did. Myself and others were ordered to leave the office, but know of no instance in which the said committee were ever excluded from the office, but think I can very safely say, had free access at all times, though it was denied to others very frequently.

Interrogatory seventh. What was the opportunity of buying the public lands at private entry, after the public sales were closed? State fully all you know on this subject.

Answer. The speculators remained on the ground as long as settlers pressed to take up lands, with the exception of a few who went away. The register, Colonel Gwin, gave notice that the townships for private entry would be open for such entry in the order in which they were offered at public auction. I think on the evening of each day Colonel Gwin would announce what particular townships would be subject to private entry the ensuing day, and that he would receive applications until a certain hour. He would then, after a certain lapse of time, open the door and announce the conflicting applications, which were constant and numerous. Conflicts arose in almost every instance, and sometimes six or eight applications for a single tract; when these applications were announced, Colonel Gwin would lay down on the counter such conflicting applications; the applicants would generally then withdraw all applications but one for the same tract, retire into the yard, a few yards from the door of the office, and set the land up to the highest bidder, and the profits were divided among the applicants who conflicted, as I suppose. R. J. Walker I heard crying for them on one occasion.

Interrogatory eighth. During the time appointed to receive such applications, and before the conflictions were announced by Colonel Gwin, did any of the company of speculators have access to the office, and were the doors kept shut? Say all you know that will give further information on this branch of the subject.

Answer. Frequently the doors were kept shut, and, on being opened to proclaim conflicting applications, I did see that some of the speculators were in the room. Dr. Wm. M. Gwin was generally in the office, assisting his brother, as I understood, about the applications. When the opposing applications were ascertained, Colonel Gwin would call such conflicting applicants into the house, and frequently shut the door in exclusion of others; when all the applications but one for each tract were withdrawn, as was most commonly the case, the applicants would retire and set up the land to the highest bidder, as above mentioned.

Interrogatory ninth. Were you present at an altercation said to have taken place at the sales, between the register, Colonel Gwin, and A. S. Campbell? If so, state particulars.

Answer. I was present. A. S. Campbell went to Colonel Gwin, and told him there was a company of speculators to defraud the public, and demanded if he did not know it. Colonel Gwin denied knowing it, and said, if he did know it he would stop the sales. Both got angry, and harsh words passed between them. This took place on the evening of the day on which Gold and Campbell were called to make a deposit when bidding against Martin.

Interrogatory tenth. Do you know whether the receiver has, in any instance, exchanged bank paper for a premium, or otherwise been engaged in dealing on the public money?

Answer. I have heard something on the subject from Parson Milton Moore, of Tennessee, Fayette county, but know nothing further, except I got Colonel Sterling to take a fifty dollar note or draft, (for Captain Howard,) at one per cent discount. I cannot more particularly describe the paper.

Interrogatory eleventh. Have you known either of the land officers to be engaged in speculations on the public lands?

Answer. When the land where myself and son-in-law live, came on to be sold, Gilbert Griffin, of Clinton, Mississippi, (who had been crying land,) gave way to James McLaren, of the same place, who then acted as crier. Griffin commenced bidding against me; while it was going on, I insisted on Griffin letting me have it; he shook his head, and persisted in bidding until he bid off two eighths; I got the rest at $2.80 per acre. Colonel Sterling claimed the land bid off by Griffin, and offered it to me at five dollars per acre; during the private sales, he got one eighth at one dollar and thirty-six cents, and the other eighth at two dollars and fifty cents. I refused to buy it. I have no reason to believe any unfairness was shown to me by Col. Sterling.

Interrogatory twelfth. Who acted as auctioneers at the sales of the public lands? and who acted as auctioneers and clerks at the company's sales.

Answer. Stephen Holt, James McLaren, Gilbert Griffin, and John T. Rather: Mr. Rather cried most of the land. At the company's sales Rather acted as crier for the company, and James McLaren as one of the clerks, Grey likewise; the others not recollected.

Interrogatory thirteenth. Was it or was it not generally believed that the auctioneers were connected with the company of speculators.

Answer. I believe they were; Rather and McLaren took an active part in the business of the company.

JOSEPH PERSONS.

No. 8.—Augustus L. Humphrey's testimony:

Augustus L. Humphrey was next called and examined, first being sworn, who deposed as follows.

Interrogatory first. Were you present at the land sales during the last fall, at Chocchuma? if yea, state whether you bought land, and the circumstances attending your purchase fully, and if you made any purchases.

Answer. I was present during the greater part of the time of the sales; I wished to buy one section, or 640 acres of land; I was advised to make my peace with the consolidated company, and accordingly spoke to Mr. Allen Glover, one of the treasurers, in the presence of John C. McLemore; he, Glover, said the company would bid it in for me if I would agree to pay fifty per cent on the cost; that in all probability they would get it at $1.25 per acre, or a fraction over; and I had better take up with the offer, otherwise they would run it on me; also, that I must not bid against the company, and surrender up the numbers I had taken. A part of the land was bid off at various prices by the company. I then applied to Mr. Glover to fulfill the contract we had made; Mr. Gilchrist, one of the company, said I had bid against the company, and that they, therefore, considered themselves under no obligation to me; I bid for only one eighth of the land at the company's sale, and for that eighth they paid one dollar and thirty-five cents per acre, and I had to give two dollars and sixty cents per acre at the company's sale. I was not a member of the company.

AUGUSTUS L. HUMPHREY.

No. 9.—Col. John H. McKenie's testimony:

Col. John H. McKenie was next called and sworn, who deposed as follows.

Interrogatory first. Were you present at the sales of the lands of the United States at Chocchuma, in October and November, 1833?

Answer. I attended the sales every day except two during the first two weeks, and I attended for about one week when the lands were subject to private entry.

Interrogatory second. Do you know whether or not one or more companies were formed to procure the public lands then for sale at the minimum price? If so, give the names and residence of each individual thus united, their arrangement, and as many of their acts as came within your knowledge from observation or information

Answer. There was one such company; I knew of no other. After Wednesday morning of the first week, on the opening of the sales I was informed by several persons that there was a company from Mississippi, composed of Robert J. Walker, Thomas G. Ellis, Thomas Bernard, Franklin E. Plumer, Wiley Davis, Hardin D. Runnels, and perhaps some others: from conversation among the parties I was informed that Malcolm Gilchrist, Joseph Smith, (of Florence,) Thomas Kirkman, Rather, (Jesse,) (Winston Garth had his name set down, but was not present; Rather acted for him.) Jesse B. Garth, composed another company. On Monday or Tuesday these companies came in conflict in bidding for some Yazoo river lands. The lands were run very high. I have understood that those lands were forfeited, and subsequently bought by the consolidated company at the minimum price, though I have no knowledge that this is true as to the forfeiture and subsequent price. On Wednesday morning, before the sales were opened, R. J. Walker called the people before the tavern of Col. Pratt, about thirty steps from the land office, and informed the people that the companies had united; then read an article by which the people who would comply with the terms held out by the company would be protected. The settlers were to hand in to the company their numbers of land which they had selected, with a view to buy it, and the company was to buy it in, and let the settlers have their improvements, if it did not include more than one quarter section, at the price that it might cost the company. Mr. Walker advised the settlers to accept of the terms proposed. Persons were invited to join the company, and allowed to take stock, not to exceed one thousand dollars; to give up their notes of land divisions to the company, and participate in the profits in proportion to each investment. A committee of the consolidated company was to transact business. Walker, Bernard, and Ellis, of this State, Gilchrist, Jamison, and perhaps another, from Alabama, composed the committee. The officers entrusted with conducting the sales on the part of the United States, on the first two days sold the land in the morning, and closed for the day about one or two o'clock; and while the companies were making their arrangements to unite, and avoid the conflicts which had previously occurred, the public sales, on the part of the United States, were delayed until the afternoon, and subsequently were commenced about nine or ten o'clock, A. M. Many of the people took stock in the company, and the settlers generally availed themselves of the terms of the company from the necessity of the case. Mr. F. E. Plummer made a speech to the people, and told them that the company had done them a great favor by securing to them a pre-emption right to their homes, which the government had denied. After this consolidation of the two companies, the company generally obtained the land at government price. I could tell all their prices if I had my notes with me; I noted the prices they gave, I think, for all their land. A few persons refused to surrender their numbers of land to the company and take its protection, and such persons had their lands run on them.

Interrogatory third. What quantity of lands did the company purchase, and how did they dispose of the same?

Answer. I cannot say with precision. The company's fund amounted, I believe, to one hundred and forty thousand dollars, and they paid to the government about seven dollars of every ten or seven hundred in each thousand. They generally obtained the land at the minimum price. Some they sold by private arrangement, but the greater quantity was sold at public auction, to the highest bidder. These auctions were conducted at Col. Pratt's tavern. The company realized on these purchases and sales perhaps fifty per cent. Much of the lands were purchased in by individual members of the company at their own auctions. Some of these went as high as ten dollars per acre, others were sold at cost.

Interrogatory fourth. Who were employed as auctioneers on the part of the United States at its sales?

Answer. Stephen Holt, of Hinds county, Mississippi, cried some of the lands at first, but —— Rather, one of the members of the consolidated company, was the general crier. McLaren was sometimes employed as a crier.

Interrogatory fifth. Was Holt or McLaren a member of the company of speculators?

Answer. I do not know.

Interrogatory sixth. Did or did not McLaren act as one of the clerks or assistants of the company in their executive business, in buying and settling with the officers for the lands bought by the company?

Answer. I do not know, he was a clerk of the company at their own sales.

Interrogatory seventh. Were or were not the register and receiver, Gwin and Sterling, cognizant of the existence of this company of speculators? State all you know on this subject.

Answer. I do not know, but presume they did; the subject was one of common remark; their acts were public, and I supposed the sales on Wednesday delayed for the convenience of the company; but these are mere inferences.

Interrogatory eighth. When lands were bid off, was it, or not, frequently asked who got that land; and was not the answer frequently given, the company?

Answer. The question was frequently asked, and when one of the committee of the company was the buyer it would be answered, the company.

Interrogatory ninth. Was or was not the office accessible to this committee of the company, when other individuals were excluded?

Answer. It was.

Interrogatory tenth. When the public sales were closed, did the company disperse?

Answer. I understood that the company was dissolved after they had disposed of the lands they had bought; but many of the individuals who composed the company remained during all the time that I remained.

Interrogatory eleventh. How were the private entries conducted during the time you remained? Answer fully every circumstance within your knowledge.

Answer. Applications were handed in for lands in a given township, for a given time, designated by the register; when the time expired, the register would announce such names as had applied for the same land, and would say, you can bid here, or settle it among yourselves; the applications would then be withdrawn, except one; the applicants would then go into the yard and bid for the tracts they bought of the government, and divide the profits.

Interrogatory twelfth. What was the highest, and what the lowest dividend that you know to have taken place in relation to one tract?

Answer. Thirty-two dollars and fifty cents was the highest, and four dollars and fifty cents the lowest; in the last instance there were twelve or fifteen shares; perhaps there was an instance in which the dividend amounted to fifty dollars.

Interrogatory thirteen. During the time designated by the register for receiving applications, were any of the speculators admitted to his room and allowed to see the applications filed by settlers?

Answer. Some of them were; I do not know that all were; these men would in some instances, I observed, put in counter applications, and then had to be bought off. I do not know that the register showed them the applications.

Interrogatory fourteenth. Name some of those who thus had access to the office?

Answer. Conolly, R. J. Walker, Ellis and Barnard, Gray of Natchez, were allowed access to the office at those periods, and possibly some others.

Interrogatory fifteenth. Do you know of any instance in which the register departed from this rule, and signed an application as soon as presented to him?

Answer. I do not.

Interrogatory sixteenth. Do you know whether fees were paid to the register and receiver, or either of them, for services required of them by law?

Answer. The receiver required a per cent on money deposited; this I looked on as a private transaction, and not official. The per cent was very small.

Interrogatory seventeenth. Do you know whether Samuel Gwin, R. H. Sterling, or George W. Martin, is concerned in any of the town locations, or have been engaged in speculations in land in this district?

Answer. I understood that Gwin and Sterling were interested in Chocchuma; I know that George W. Martin is interested in Tullahoma; I am also interested.

Interrogatory eighteenth. Under what title does the company hold that town, and was Martin interested before the location of the float?

Answer. The float of John Donolly, under the treaty with the Choctaws in 1830; I think he was not interested when it was located.

Interrogatory nineteenth. When did Martin become interested?

Answer. I do not know precisely.

Interrogatory twentieth. Was said tract improved at the time said float was laid and recognized by Martin?

Answer. It was; John Balfour lived there and kept a ferry, and one Cleveland was living there and keeping a store.

Interrogatory twenty-first. Who applied to Martin to locate said float?

Answer. John Watt and Hiram G. Runnels purchased of Donolly, as I heard Runnels say; and Runnels had the location made at Elliot.

Interrogatory twenty-second. Was there any Indian improvement on the section of land on which the Donolly's float was laid, and where Tullahoma is now situated?

Answer. There was an Indian lived on the section in 1830; and had a cabin, and had a small field of three or four acres.

Interrogatory twenty-third. Had Hiram G. Runnels ever been on the land named, before the location was made?

Answer. I heard him say he had been there and staid on the place all night.

Interrogatory twenty-fourth. Did Belfour or any other person ever claim compensation of the holders of the Donolly claim, for the improvement on the tract where it was located? If so, state who are the proprietors of said section of land, and who contributed towards satisfying said claim, and to what amount?

Answer. Belfour asked the proprietors to pay him for the improvement that he had made; and also, for such as he had purchased. The company agreed to leave it to reference, which was done. The referees decided that the improvements were worth between six or seven hundred dollars; I think $680; and we agreed, among ourselves, that we would pay double the amount, and each proprietor agreed to pay an equal share. Hiram G. Runnels, proposed to give Belfour one eighth of land as a present; and another proprietor did the same thing. This offer (of charity, as I consider it) was made before the arbitration; Hiram G. Runnels, John Watt, John C. McLemore, George W. Martin, John L. Irwin, W. H. D. Covington, Larkin Cleveland were of the company. Wm. M. Gwin, bought a part of McLemore's share, and a few weeks afterwards sold it to Thomas B. Ives; this sale was after he, Mr. Gwin, was appointed marshal of this State. Franklin E. Plummer, as I understood, was one of the company, but received a letter from Mr. Belfour, accusing him of a breach of understanding between them; he then withdrew his name, and entered Joseph Plummer's name. Wiley Davis was one of the company, and I am not certain as to the names of other proprietors.

Interrogatory twenty-fifth. What do you think the improvements were really worth, for which Belfour received pay, and what was the value of the other improvements not owned by Belfour?

Answer. I think Belfour's not worth more than $340. I presume the referees misunderstood us, and assessed the double instead of the real value: the other improvements not belonging to Belfour were valued at $50.

Interrogatory twenty-sixth. Did Martin pay his quota of the same to be paid Belfour?

Answer. He promised to do so; but I do not know that he has as yet paid it; but I presume he has.

Interrogatory twenty-seventh. Were you present at the public sales when Gold and Martin were each bidding for land of the United States, adjoining the Oxbury location, where Martin then, and still resides? If yes, state all that occurred on that occasion.

Answer. I was present, and heard some land sold which I understood adjoined Martin's. Martin and Gold were bidding, and the land was run to $16, when Colonel Sterling, the receiver, put his head out of the window and required Mr. Gold to make a deposit of money before his bid could be taken. Some words ensued, and without another bid the land was knocked off to Gold; next day it was announced that the land was forfeited; it was again set up and sold to Martin, I think for six dollars per acre. Mr. Gold had previously bid off a number of eighths, one as high as eight dollars per acre, and were then not paid for, the bids were said to be for Campbell; there was a deposit of about $4,000 then in the receiver's chest from the mercantile house of Campbell, deposited by Gold in Honley's name. Honley and Gold were both clerks of Campbell.

JOHN H. McKENNIE.

No. 10.—John Smith's testimony:

John Smith was next called, and sworn, and deposed as follows.

Interrogatory first. Were you present at any time during the land sales at Chocchuma, in October and November, 1833? If yes, state how long.

Answer. I was present a short time, say five or six days of the sale, or more; I live at Elliot, and entertained a great many persons, and consequently could not attend long at a time.

Interrogatory second. Previous to the commencement of the sales, have you any reasons to believe that there were formed one or more companies of speculators to buy in the lands? if so, state them, and give names.

Answer. It was reported that there were two prominent companies, the one called the Alabama, the other the Mississippi company; I heard it as a common talk, and among others by Malcolm Gilchrist, Robert Jamison, Jr., John B. Jones, and Dr. John H. Hand, that there was an Alabama company, and a Mississippi company, who it was apprehended would come in competition. The relative strength of each company, was a common subject of discussion at my house; some thought one, some the other; and in these discussions, I heard many names as belonging to the company; among others, that of Robert J. Walker, Thomas Barnard, Wyley Davis, Hiram G. Runnels, and I have forgotten if there were any others, of Mississippi: and Malcolm Gilchrist, Mr. Jamison, Dr. Hand, Mr. Wood, Mr. Driver, of the Alabama company. About the time when it was reported that a union of the companies had taken place, Dr. J. H. Hand told me that the two companies had united and made provisions for the benefit of the settlers, as well as the speculators, and to prevent a competition between the speculators and settlers; he advised me to join the company; I replied I thought it then too late, he said he would assist me in getting in; I then told him I had not means to speculate on.

Interrogatory third. At what time did Col. G. W. Martin decide on Indian reserves, and at what place? State generally all you know, calculated, in your opinion, to promote the present investigation.
